This is the third time in a row that FSU has furnished the back of the Wee .

In previous games, quarterback Eddie Feely of the two-way Chiefs, was named Back of the Week for his performance against the Furman Paladins.

The week before, Feely was chosen for his performance against the Kentucky Wildcats.

Besides getting Back of the Week laurels three times, Florida State has had two gridders named Lineman of the Week -- Chuck Robinson against the Citadel and Gene McDowell against the Paladins.

Week's Best

Charley Calhoun, signal-caller for the Renegades, has been named Back of the Week for his defensive play against the University of Miami Hurricanes Friday night.

FSU Senate Meets The Governor

Subscription to the belief in majority rule also carries with it the duty to abide by the rule of the majority Florida Governor Farris Bryant stressed as he spoke to Student Senate yesterday in the Senate Chambers at the Capitol Building.

"You deal in the art of compromise on a level that does not sacrifice idealism," Bryant told the senators. Differences of opinion concerning legislation should be expressed, "but once the majority rules, you abide by it," he continued.

During his speech, Bryant referred to recent riots at Old Miss, without naming the institution. "We have seen of late the difficulties that arise, the passions that arise, in student bodies," the governor said. "I hope that whatever exigencies are visited on the student body at Florida State University there will be (student) leaders to meet them, looking forward not just to the next election . . but to the future" the governor continued.

In floor action yesterday, the Senate passed a bill that will give the secretary of elections power to initiate actions against students who destroy or move campaign posters placed on off-campus establishments. The bill also reduced the size of campaign posters permitted on campus to 10 by 14 inches.

After extended debate, the Senate referred back to committee a bill that would the give the chairman of University Court, Women's and Men's Judiciaries the power to vote on court rulings in case of ties. The chief justice of Honor Court already has this power. Debate centered around whether this power would be used to determine guilt or innocence or to set penalties.

Several senators objected to giving the chairman the power to break ties to determine guilt or innocence on the grounds that if there was this much doubt as to cause a tie among regularly voting members the case should be dismissed.

Sounds Of Music To Fill Opperman

An evening of organ music will be presented tomorrow night beginning at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. The recital is free and open to the public.

Mrs. Ramona Cruickshank Beard will open the School of Music's faculty recital series for the trimester. Assisting Dr. Beard will be a nine-member string ensemble conducted by Ramon Meyer of the music faculty and a women's quartet.

The program will open with "Ciacona" by Buxtehude and Handel's "Concerto for Organ and Strings," followed by two selections by Clerambault, and a prelude and fugue by Bach.

Members of the ensemble which will perform two selections with the organist include music faculty members Bela Urban, Robert Sedore, Donald Michel, Lois Schnoor, violinists; Owen Sellers, cello; and students, Tom Hall, Penny Winchell, Elda Franklin and Elizabeth Qualls.

The women's quartet made up of Charlotte Reinke, Carolyn Glenn and Betty Jane Grimm, will join Dr. Deard for the performance of "Fuge, Kanzone Epilog Op. 85, No. 3" by Karg-Elert. Miss Lois Schnoor will be violinist. The program will end with "Concerto for Organ, Strings and Timpani" by Poulenc.

She has found that students respect her silence, and with a tell-tale twinkle in her eye, remarked that "they generally have their minds made up anyhow, and so it wouldn't do any good for me to say anything. I just listen. . .and then let them decide."

Students often comment on her youthfulness and ask how she manages to stay in pace with the college generation. Mrs. Bateman attributes this to working with young people. If you don't think of your age, then it can't bother you is her maxim. She doesn't think of growing old, and for this reason is the

Six To Attend College Union Conference

Six FSU students left this morning for Greensboro, N. C., to attend the Region Four Conference of the Association of College Unions.

The conference, being held on the campus of the Women's College of the University of North Carolina, will feature workshops dealing with various phases of Student Union management.

According to Don Thigpin, secretary of the University Union, FSU's delegates will be able to contribute to several of the workshps, because of their experience in planning FSU's proposed student union.

Delegates to the conference are Johnny Smith, student body vice president; chairman of the delegation Jackie Mathis, secretary of Student Senate; Frank Milwee, Secretary of Finance; Pam Cornelly, secretary to Student Body President Ken van Assenderp; Betty Ann Eastridge undersecretary of the University Union. and George Miller, a member of the University Union committee.

Teacher Training Needed In Future

School children will suffer unless teacher-training institutions exercise more care in recruiting future school teachers, said Dr. Kenneth E. McIntyre of the University of Texas, to a five-state conference of schoolmen.

McIntyre spoke to the Southeastern Regional Conference on improvement of school administration which was attended by 175 persons at FSU this week.

"The melancholy fact is that we haven't been going out after the best prospective school administrators, and we don't even screen the ones who come to us.

"To be sure, we feel their pulse to be reasonably sure they are alive, and we require a baccalaureate degree and admission to the graduate school -- which might or might not mean something."

"We'll make some mistakes if we try, but we'll make more mistakes if we don't try, and the children in our schools will pay for these mistakes.

"Certainly if we don't do anything else, we can recognize that the administrator who is to solve the complex problems of our times--the leader who must personify learning and culture in an era of increasing insistence on excellence in education -- cannot be an ignoramus himself."

The administrator, said McIntyre, "should have a broad general undergraduate education to begin with (or make up the deficiencies) and then build a strong professional structure on this foundation at the graduate level.

"We need not split hairs about the courses he has had, but if he isn't conversant with the big ideas in such fields as economics. sociology, political science, history philosophy, anthropology and psychology, then we outh to do something about it," he stressed.

Randel To Speak At Coffee Hour

Dr. William Randel of the English Dept. will speak on "A Summer in England" at the English Coffee Hour tomorrow at 4 p.m.

During his stay in England, Dr. Randel made trips to various parts of the country and recorded some of them in pictures which he will show. One of the highlights was a writers conference in Edinburgh.

Dr. Randel will also read clippings of the "London Times" to compare life in England and the United States.

Good Old Geography

At present I am in my Geography class. I love my Geography class--it's so restful. Even more restful than the Literature Lounge is my Geography class. It's perfect for writing letters studying for exams, or just plain dozing.

There are no sharp noises, just the steady, dull drone of the professor. There are no annoying facts to learn, no tiresome knowledge to ingest, just the same old junk. And the professors are trained to speak no louder than a whisper, so you wouldn't be bothered, even if they did have something important to say.

Wait a minute! The professor is actually saying something out loud! Oh, he's only calling the roll--he does that every six months. Whew! For a moment I thought he was saying something we should actually remember! Ahhh, good old Geography class, so quiet, so peaceful... zzzzzzzzzz.

Today's News Roundup

ACROSS THE NATION

WASHINGTON--Informed sources in Washington last night said the United States has agreed to underwrite the shipment of about 13 million dollars worth of medicine and food to Cuba if invasion captives are freed. This presumably would be in addition to private subscriptions raised by the families of the 1 113 men captured in the ill-fated April, 1961, Cuban invasion.

Prime Minister Castro reportedly wants 62 million dollars worth of goods in all for releasing the prisoners.

WASHINGTON--The United States has announced it has scheduled a new high altitude nuclear test for next Monday in the Johnston Island area of the Pacific. The announcement said the device to be set off will have an explosive force of less than one million tons of T.N.T., which means it will be smaller than the giant high altitude blast in the same area last July 9, which created a new band of radio-activity in space.

NEW YORK - U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson has called for U.N. action now to end further cycles of nuclear weapons testing. Speaking before the General Assembly's Political Committee, Stevenson said this is the decisive time for action because both the United States and the Soviet Union now are completing series of tests.

Soviet Delegate Valerian Zorin fired back at Stevenson. He said the U.S. has no desire to end tests and the Stevenson proposal is designed to allow it to continue.

WASHINGTON--The Senate has joined the House in voting to put Congress firmly on record for [illegible] military force needed to uphold Allied right in Berlin. The Senate vote complete action on the Berlin resolution which the House passed last Friday. It does not have to be signed by President Kennedy.

WARSAW--Polish State Railway officials are investigating the possibility of sabotage in a freak double-train accident last night about 90 miles from Warsaw. An express bound for Vienna raced out of a fog and rammed a derailed passenger train killing 32 persons and injuring at least 62. There are fears the death toll may rise.

WASHINGTON--The Space Agency says the Mariner II spacecraft will miss Venus by 20,900 miles instead of the 9,000 reported earlier, but still be able to scan the planet thoroughly.

FLORIDA SPOT SUMMARY

TALLAHASSEE - Florida [illegible] officials feel they are prepared to market a record Orange and Grapefruit crop forecast for this season.

MIAMI--Families of 1,100 Cuban invasion prisoners are still waiting for word whether negotiator James Donovan has met with Fidel Castro to try to trade medicine and food for the men.

IRON CURTAIN PARTS TO ACCEPT GRADUATE EXCHANGE STUDENTS

The Soviet Union is parting a small space in the Iron Curtain to allow graduate students and young instructors to participate in an exchange program on all levels with Bulgaria Czechoslovakia and Hungary. the Inter-University Committee on Travel Grants has announced that applications are now being solicited for the exchange of students. First year graduate students and young post-doctoral faculty members may inquire further into the exchange program by writing the above committee at 921 Atwater Ave., Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind., by Nov. 19.

Applications from first year graduate students who wish to spend the second semester of their second year of graduate study in the Soviet Union are not being widely solicited this year. This action has been taken because of the enormous difficulty faced by the selection committee in evaluating the applicant's relative merits on the basis of only and under-graduate record. The committee will consider applications from persons in early graduate status if the application is strongly supported by the university and not directly from the applicant.

Young post-doctoral faculty members, under forty years of age, are eligible for the exchange with the Soviet Union, and are encouraged to apply.

Spirit Product Of Individual

Is school spirit measured solely by the volume of noise coming from Campbell Stadium on a Saturday night, or the number of people welcoming the team bac from an away game? It seems to me that this is a limited perspective. Our team has been doing a great job, and deserve their praise; more than an athletic as we are a university.

School spirit is ultimately an of the individual, and thus itself in many ways. Athle of those ways, but only one important are the arts and even some academics here there. Those who enjoy their school spirit by noises at football g remember that there ar do not especially care f r who prefer to wat There is no pep rall the orchestra before a there is spirit. There a leaders in the art say that art is more many of us than football

The spirit of a univers sum of individual and grou in academic, athletic, social and spiritual endeav cannot be singled out ab So the next time you feel l loudly about the lack spirit, just look ar und y direction-- and discover ways other than football ifest that spirit.

Como In The Soda Shop

With the agility of a North African Gazelle, Como bounded from her cotton pallet, leaped across the room and landed in her size 12 1/2 Roman sandals. Avoiding her roommate who was writing poetry on the underside of the rug, Como wrapped herself in seven yards of pink burlap which she belted with a snake skin from a water moccasin she had captured in Westcott fountain.

She adjusted her green wig, awoke her raccoon coat, and with her books under her arm, climbed to the window, carefully avoiding a nest of Spotted-breasted Orioles on the sill. Como gathered the forces of her energy and flung herself on the nearest tree branch, then worked her way down to the lowest limb, leaving patches of raccoon fur on the shaggy bark. Without further ado, Como dropped to the ground, carefully avoiding her housemother who was coming out the front door.

"Well," said Como. "I have five minutes to get to my Egyptology class. I think I'll go to the Soda Shop. Five minutes later, Como was sitting in the Soda Shop drinking coffee. Around and about her were numerous Intellectual Discussions. Como listened carefully and asked intelligent questions. She was given enlightening answers. "This is much better than class." said Como.

"Today," said Como, "I will experiment with my plan to keep infidels out of the Soda Shop." Leaping onto the tabletop, Como waved her arms hysterically and shouted, "Lepers, Lepers, run for your lives." Immediately there was a rush for the doors, tables were overturned, dishes were shattered and general uproar ensued. "Well," sighed Como, "It's effective but very messy and besides the Lepers are still here. I'll have to form another plan." Como jumped to the floor and retreated from the Soda Shop, just as the Campus Police came in the front door.

Today's Weather

Fair and cool weather is expected for the morning, with a low of 56 degrees and a gradual warming during the day. High should be in the mid-80's, and no rain is forecast.

Student Union, said Miss Jane Adams, director of Longmire, who supervises the Lost and Found.

In the past six years, hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise has been bought with the money from sales of lost items and placed in Longmire for the enjoyment of the students. Articles purchased include two television sets, located in the student and alumni lounges, and a stereo that furnishes piped-in music for the large student lounge.

The proceeds from the last sale were used to add silver service to the rental service of the Student Union.

The Lost and Found, located at the Main Desk, first floor Longmire, is open at all times the building is open -- 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Upon bringing an item he has found to the desk, a student fills out a card describing the item, and lists the time and place he found it. If the item lacks identification, it is kept by the office until the owner claims it or until, after several months, it is sold.

A student who has lost an article that has not been turned in may fill out a record of description so he can be contacted if the article is turned in.

Large quantities of the following articles are currently being held in the office: books, fountain pens, sweaters, rain coats, umbrellas, class rings, keys and glasses. Many of these things were turned in last semester.

Large boxes of these articles are turned in periodically from the library, Business School, History Bldg., Tully Gym, dormitories and the Campus Police.

Next spring, unclaimed articles now being held will be appraised and put on sale.

So who is the lady with the flowers in her hair? The Cotillion, local chapter of the National women's dance honorary, thinks she rates enough to be tapped an honorary member of their group. Students think she is the greatest feature possessed by the Student Center.

What does Mrs. Bateman think? "I do as I please, but it is strictly legal." This, in itself, is enough to merit a closer inspection of the lady with the flowers.

Baby Seminoles To Face Miami Frosh Saturda

A stocky 18-year-old who wants to be an Air Force pilot is leading the Florida State freshman football team in rushing after its first game.

Fullback Dave Hall of Panama City is averaging 6.3 yards per carry after gaining 38 yards in six trips against the University of Southern Mississippi B-team. Harry Breeze of Bradenton is second in rushing average with 25 yards in four carries (5.8). Leading gainer is halfback Joe Petko of Shaker Heights, Ohio, with 51 yards in a dozen tries.

The Baby Seminoles were defeated in their opener when the Southeners took them to task, 35-12, in Columbus, Ga.

FSU scored its touchdowns on a pass from quarterback Buddy Blankenship of Atlanta to end Elton Jones of Fort Meade and on a one-yard dive by Petko.

Freshman Coach Bill Proctor said the loss was due more to a lack of preparation time than to lack of talent. The Southeners already had one winning game under their belt.

FSU will play its only 1962 home game this Saturday night in Doak S. Campbell Stadium against the University of Miami frosh. Kickoff time will be 8 p.m. The game is being sponsored by Capital City Kiwanis Club for benefit of Candle of Hope School for retarded children.

Florida State students will be admitted free to the contest upon the display of their identification cards, but they are encouraged to donate to the retarded children fund.

Tickets for others are on sale in Tallahassee at the following establishments:

Brown's Mens Wear, Nic's Toggery, Aubrey Barrow Service Station, Skyline Restaurant, Tallahassee Barber College, FSU Alumni Affairs office, Athletic Ticket office or from any Capital City Kiwanis Club member.

Tickets are priced at $.75 for high school students and $1.50 for adults.

They tell the story of the American and Russian diplomats who tore into each other over the question of superiority in space:

"I'll tell you one thing," shouted the American, "our German scientists are better than your German scientists."

And when the freshman football teams of Florida State and Miami meet here Saturday night, you can change the tune to something like "My out-of-state players are better than your out-of-state players...."

Though the Baby Seminole squad is made up primarily of home-grown boys (Florida and South Georgia, anyway), many of the stars-of-the-future playing at Doak S. Campbell Stadium will be from such points as Texas, Ohio, Pennsylvania, et al.

FSU's leading ground-gainer after one losing game, for instance, is halfback Joe Petko of Shaker Heights, Ohio. And the Seminoles' top passer in the game against Southern Mississippi is quarterback Buddy Blankenship of Atlanta.

The Miami squad of 33 includes only five boys who played high school ball in Florida — three from the Miami area, one from Jacksonville and another from southerly Fort Lauderdale.

Racquettes Slate Matches, Choose Seven New Members

Matches for the new season, plus new members, highlight the Racquette's new year of 1962-63. For the first time in the fall have matches been scheduled for the tennis clubs according to Miss Anni Stafford, sponsor.

Twenty-one girls tried out for the spots in the club and seven were picked in the finals.

The tentative schedule for the Racquettes has them matched with Rollins College on November 10. Other tournament dates have been tentatively set during fall trimester with Valdosta, Emory and Agnes Scott.

Three Platoons Don Different Football Garb

Seminole fans have commented that the three platoons of the Florida State football team appear differently this season.

The Chiefs, the two-way outfit, wear an Indian head on their helmets. In addition, they have all-white socks.

And the Warriors, the offensive squad, have an arrow on their headgear, and they wear gold-topped socks.

A SCENE FROM "THE PASSION OF JONATHAN WADE"

Floyd's "The Passion Of Jonathan Wade"

Professor's Opera Has World Premiere

[illegible] was the impetus which started [illegible] premiered [illegible] and opera [illegible] wife's [illegible] a story about an [illegible] he called the [illegible] atic period in American [illegible] immediately to develop a story around the [illegible] occupation of [illegible] aught up in a terrible conflict conscience and duty during early Reconstruction in the South. [illegible] as I know, the period had really been expolited in the [illegible] or in films, and certainly [illegible]. Writers who wished to [illegible] Historical South seemed [illegible] to be more attractive [illegible] or to the more romantic and romanticized antebellum period.

"I felt instinctively, however that the Reconstruction was the most intrinsically dramatic period in Southern history if not in all American history."

Floyd spent [illegible] preparation [illegible] period before writing the opera. "My enthusiasm for the Reconstruction as a background for an opera increased as I studied it and corrected some of my misconceptions concerning it," he said.

Floyd said there was conflict in the North over whether or not the South should be treated as a conquered nation. One group espoused stern retributive action and the other a more lenient Reconstruction. And there were Southerners willing to cooperate in restoring the South" Floyd commented.

"In these conflicts of belief and feeling I found the basic materials for a drama, and I merely had to invent characters to realize a plot which the period naturally suggested" Floyd said.

Board Of Publications

Journalism Core Studied By Board

Journalism courses for the purpose of teaching certification may be offered in the future at FSU as the result of action begun at the Board of Student Publications meeting last night.

A three-man committee of the Board was appointed to investigate the possiblities of offering a 12-hour core of courses in journalism directed at preparing English education majors to each journalism. At the present time only 12 hours of journalism, or four courses are required beyond English certification for journalism requirements.

Board Chairman Toni DiCarlo and Board members John Schaffner, managing editor of "The Florida Flambeau," and Dr. Sidney Kobre, professor of advertising, communications and public relations in the School of Business, will report to the Board in November concerning possibilites of instituting the program and proposed Board action.

Formerly, FSU had a full journalism program but the School of Journalism was closed by the State Board of Control in 1959. The action came as the result of the recommendation of a three-man study committee which investigated duplication of courses at FSU and the University of Florida.

Currently there are courses being taught in public relations at FSU which embody a short unit on news writing, but these are directed at general preparation for business majors who may need to do some public relations for their firms. The two public relations courses include extensive units on such things as brochure preparation, construction of exhibits and displays, and planning and filming promotional films, as well as how to achieve effective inter-office communications as through house publications.

"If a small core of journalism courses were established at FSU, the courses would approach journalistic writing from a different angle than the courses in public relations now offered at FSU; and to a large extent they would be taught differently than those offered at the University of Florida," Miss DiCarlo said.

"The courses at Florida are primarily pre-professional in content," she explained. "while courses at FSU would primarily be directed at the preparation of teachers."

"Course content would probably include classroom instruction on basic reporting, practical laboratory experience and teaching methods, in order, to give English maors sufficient background to teach journalism courses and act as advisers to high school publications," she continued.

Miss DiCarlo said she believed FSU is large enough to support a small journalism program. "We graduate hundreds of English teachers who, with 12 hours in journalism, would receive state certification. This would double their job potential" she said.

Arts Are Here

With yesterday's world premiere of Carlisle Floyd's new opera "The Passion of Jonathan Wade" in New York City, Florida State University moves into the national cultural spotlight.

THE ACHIEVEMENTS of Floyd will greatly benefit the university in terms of public recognition. But the meaning of such achievements goes much deeper than that.

The presence of leaders in the arts as Floyd, Elena Nikolaidi, and Carl Zerbe gives Florida State University a cultural atmosphere that is rare in Southern universities. Here, students have the opportunity of discussing the arts with outstanding creators on a personal basis. The appreciation a student can acquire and the understanding a student can develop from such associations is much more valuable than any publicity FSU, as an institution, might receive from public performances.

MANY OTHER SOUTHERN schools depend largely upon visits of outside artists to provide students with contact with the arts. But here outstanding performances of outsiders are only a small part of the total scope of the arts. Concerts are scheduled frequently, art exhibitions are on display, fine plays are being presented continually.

FSU students can count themselves fortunate to have the benefit of great artists, both in the national spotlight and on campus.

Skeptics Challanged

TO THE SKEPTICS OF STUDENT GOVERNMENT:

This October 19 and 20, Student Government is sponsoring its Annual Retreat. This year's program promises to be more stimulating and enlightening than any Retreat program ever presented in the past.

The purpose of this Retreat is not only to evaluate Student Government in student life but also in the larger area of the community and world.

All phases of SG activity will be covered and thoroughly discussed. Through this approach, ALL SG officials and all people interested in SG become acquainted with EVERY phase of SG, NOT just the branch in which they work or show interest.

To you, the skeptics of SG, we, the members of the same, extend a cordial invitation to attend this year's meeting in hopes that your opinions will, hereafter, be based on the firm foundation of knowledge about that which you are so eager to criticize.

We take this stand believing that EDUCATED criticism shows more potential of being beneficial to all concerned.

Blind To Reds In SCEF

At Liberal Forum there was a most interesting speaker last Sunday the Rev. C. K. Steele, president of the Tallahassee Chapter of the NAACP. But more interesting than Rev. Steele's prepared remarks were some of his responses to questions from the audience after the talk.

In particular Rev. Steele showed an indifference to the possibility of Communist infiltration in groups working for desegregation. The organization which was brought to his attention was the Southern Conference Educational Fund, of which Rev. Steele is a member and official. This organization has been characterized by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee as having the main purpose of promoting Communism in the South and according to a statement from the audience. Tobias Simon of the Florida Civil Liberties Union. a lawyer who aided in the defense of those convicted in Tallahassee sitins. has also warned that the SCEF is Comm[illegible] trolled.

Cats, Cats, Cats, Cats

Well, actually, several problems. They want to give away a highly productive factory. A cat factory. It consists of two manufacturing cats in full production and in full bloom.

It seems that sometime last year a cat which had noticeably budding sides came around to Selby House. Appropriately she (they knew it was a she, due to her budding sides) was named Blossom and quickly cultivated three little blooms which were subsequently named Floyd, a girl; Lotus, a boy; and Mode, another girl.

Blossom and Floyd still remain and make up the greater part of the cat factory. It has been noticed of late that the two main divisions of the cat factory (Blossom and Floyd) have budding sides (that's how they knew Floyd was a girl). The girls have been telling everyone that they hope it will be a batch of cookies instead of you know what. But the girls are pretty shrewd and are not too hopeful.

Meanwhile back at the factory after a short slack season this past summer Blossom bloomed with a batch of three (not cookies) named Mario, Garnet and Gold. They were all orange and all boys (thank goodness).

As the day of anticipation draws near when the factory (Blossom and Floyd) hits capacity producation the girls, wringing their hands, have expressed a panicked desire that they would "love" to give them away, especially the cat factory. Please please call, and hurry before the best of the buds are gone the girls at Selby House on West Pensacola Street, phone 224-3956.

Calls will be gleefully accepted anytime day or night.

AROUND THE WORLD

NEW YORK-- The Soviet UN delegation has renewed Russia's demand for a three man board to replace the UN Secretary-General. The US replied to the Soviet appeal by saying a threeman board -- a so called "Troika"-- would wreck the integrity of the UN Secretariat.

NEW DELHI-- Reports from New Delhi say Indian and Chinese Communist troops have fought their bloodiest battle in three years along the disputed Tibet border. Both sides claim victory in the fighting, which has reportedly taken 50 lives and is apparently continuing in the high Himalayas.

ROME-- A torchlight parade was held tonight in Rome on the first evening of the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council. Pope John blessed the tens of thousands of persons in St. Peter's Square from his window.

MIAMI-- US negotiator James Donovan has returned to Miami from Havana after negotiating with Cuban Premier Castro over the release of 1,113 Cuban invasion prisoners. Donovan says he is awaiting Cuba's decision and is optimistic Castro will accept an offer of medicine, drugs and baby food for the captives' freedom.

TALLAHASSEE-- Meantime, Governor Farris Bryant says he objects to ransoming the prisoners, indicating he would rather fight than buy.

WASHINGTON-- The US state-department is remaining mum on reports of a raid made by a Cuban exile group on a Cuban port city earlier in the week.

ACROSS THE NATION

WASHINGTON-- President Kennedy has signed what is considered the most far-reaching legislation passed during this session of Congress -- the sweeping Trade Expansion Bill. The new law gives the President unprecedented power to reduce most tariffs, repeal others and link the US closely with the successful European Common Market.

Kennedy also signed into law a bill to raise postage rates and give pay boosts to 1.6 million, federal workers. The new postage increases start going into effect January 7 and are calculated to yield an additional 600 million dollars annually by 1966. They include one cent boosts on letters, airmail and postcards.

WASHINGTON-- A voice vote in the House has passed a 5.5 billion dollar Agriculture Department appropriation bill. However, action on several other major items has been put off for tomorrow, when final adjournment of Congress now is hoped for.

WASHINGTON-- The Senate last night voted $205,000 for final planning of the Floida State Barge Canal.

the proposal "might be a possibility." He pointed out the University is allowed to offer four courses in journalism for certification, but felt the problem was a "matter of budget allocation."

In other Board action, a three-point program proposed by "Flambeau" Editor Ben Sharp was approved. The program involved raising advertising rates from $1.05 to $1.20 per column inch and readjusting the graduated scale for large advertisements; upping Flambeau circulation from 5,500 to 6,500; and raising the salaries of five of the Flambeau line editors.

"Advertising rates have not been raised since the Flambeau circulation was 4,500 copies," Sharp explained in requesting the raise. The increase in rates is expected to cover the cost of both circulation and salary increases, as well as to lessen the anticipated Flambeau deficit this year.

Because the switch to daily publication is costing mor than was originally anticipated, the Flambeau probably will have to draw on publications' reserve funds to make up the deficit.

The reserve funds have been accumulated over a number of years from the unspent balances in publications' budgets. These funds are held in reserve for use in purchasing needed equipment or in making up budget deficits.

The Board also approved increasing the size of the Homecoming edition of the Flambeau, jumping circulation to 11,000 for that one issue. This year the Homecoming edition will be distributed at the Homecoming game.

Navy's Recruiting Team Visits Campus Monday

The Navy's Officer Candidate School recruting team will visit the FSU campus next Monday through Thursday.

While on campus, the team will solicit applications from senior male students and junior and senior women students to attend the officer candidate school at Newport, R.I.

The officer procurement team will be located in 107 Education Bldg. from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily for testing interviewing and processing. Applications are entirely voluntary, and there is no obligation on the part of the applicant, a Navy spokesman said.

The men's OCS is a 16-week course of indoctrination in naval subjects, leading to a commission as Ensign, USNR, in one of several line or staff corps. Upon completion of OCS training the ensign will report to one of many Navy schools for further training, or to one of 800 ships and numerous shore stations in the U.S. and overseas. There is no restriction on martial status in this program.

Women's OCS also is a 16-week course. The first half of the course is served as an officer candidate (enlisted), then the candidates are commissioned as [illegible]. Tribes Rated Best Passers In The U.S.

The Seminoles have gained 805 yards passing and eight touchdowns via the air lanes to lead all contenders in those departments. FSU's passing average after four games is 201.3 better than any other team with more than two games under its belt.

The NCAA ranking, which is based on yardage average per game, rates Florida State fourth in passing offense eighth in total offense with (390.3 average yards), fifth in total defense (138.8 average yards).

FSU signal-caller Eddie Feely, who has twice been named Back of the Week this season has the best passing percentage in the country with a .698 tally. He is also ranked sixth nationally in total offense, having racked up 570 total yards. He passed 451 yards on 30-of-43 attempts.

Miami's George Mira has a slight total offense edge over Feely in Florida and is expected to enlarge the margin this Saturday, when the Seminoles are idle.

Also nationally ranked is FSU's Keith Kinderman, who is rated No. 10 after catching 13 passes for 192 [illegible]

Priceless Violins Acquired For Concert

KING COLE WITH HIS FIDDLERS THREE

Audience To Compare Tones Of Stradivarius And Guarnerius

Violins made by Antonio Stradivarius and Joseph Guarnerius the elder will be played by Professor Bela Urban, associate professor of Music, at the second faculty recital of the season at FSU, Friday at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

The program is presented by the School of Music and is open to the public without charge.

The Stradivarius, valued at $30 000, is known as the "Joachim" Strad after the great German virtuoso, according to Urban. It was made about 1705.

The second violin, valued at $15,000, was played by the Italian virtuoso Paganini, and is known as the "Paganini" Guarnerius. It was make in 1696 by Jospeh Guarnerius, known as "filius Andrea."

Urban is playing both the Stradivarius and the Guarnerius in order to permit the audience to compare the tonal quality of the two. He will demonstrate and compare both instruments in identical passages during the course of the concert.

The recital is being given in commemoration of Belgium violin virtuoso, Eugene Ysaye. Urban studied with Ysaye for two years just prior to the death of the famous violinist, and then continued his studies with Ysaye's son, Gabriel.

The FSU program has been selected by Urban as representative of Ysaye not only as a composer but of the great violinist's style of playing. The Nardini "Sonata" on the program was transcribed by Ysaye as a composite of movements from three original Nardini Sonatas. The Saint-Saens' "Caprice" in the form of a waltz is a Ysaye transcription noted for its extreme difficulty. Viotti's "Twenty-Second Violin Concerto" was included because of the brilliant cadenza written for it by Ysaye and because Ysaye made the work famous by his unique interpretation.

Other selections on the program include: Ysaye's Sonata No. 3, "Ballade"; one of his mood poems for violin entitled "Les Neiges d'-Antan"; "Lointain Passe"; one of three mazurkas written by Ysaye, and typical of his technical style; and "Reve d'Enfant" dedicated by the composer to his youngest son.

...was just one up on Florida State University ...linist Bela Urban, who saws away on two famous ... Urban, in a faculty recital next Friday ... will play only one of the instruments at a time. He'll play the same selection on the "Joachim" Stradivarius and on the "Paganini" Guarnerius in order to bring out the different tonal effects on the two 250-year-old instruments.

Florida's Greatest Problem: Classrooms

State Senator Verle Pope of St. Augustine called upon Florida to meet its growing educational needs in a speech to the state conference of the Florida Center For Education in Politics at Stetson University, Saturday.

Pope told delegates from the University of Florida, Stetson, FSU and several junior colleges that the state's "greatest problem is to provide a sufficient number of classrooms, living areas, and high quality professors to give the students of the state the kind of educational system they deserve."

"As I see the future today, unless we can keep fiscally sound and levy such taxes and stay on a pay-as-you-go basis then we endanger future revenues to be dissipated."

He also opposed federal aid to education, contending that education is a state function and the state should provide it. He is afraid of federal domination of education.

But the senator did not oppose the federal system as a whole. He refused to go along with other state leaders who have been castigating the Federal Government over the University of Mississippi situation.

"Though some people would applaud Governor (Ross) Barnett, I think the Governor of Mississippi did great disservice to Mississippi. People are dead that could have been spared if the Governor of Mississippi had had the courage that a man in this position should have," stated Pope.

Pope regreted that the federal courts had stepped into the state representation dispute. But he blamed the states for this.

"The people in the legislatures failed to uphold their oath of office and had not done their job of making proper representation. I regret that it took place, but a great many of us brought this on ourselves," he said.

Alum Returns; Homecoming Guest Speaker

Representative Mallory Horne, the speaker-designate of the 1963 House, will be the Homecoming banquet speaker, Nov. 2.

Horne is the first alumnus to be chosen as Homecoming Banquet speaker. He attended FSU shortly after World War II. He participated in the formation of Student Government on campus and majored in political science. He later got a Bachelor of Laws degree at the University of Florida.

Horne is serving a third term as state representative and has served as president of the State Junior Bar Association.

No stranger to the Homecoming Banquet, Horne was the toastmaster in 1960 and in 1958 he was selected as the off-campus honorary member of Gold Key society. Gold and Garnet Key will select honorary members and announce the selection at the 6 p.m. banquet.

Will Warren Meigs of Niceville has been selected as the banquet master of ceremonies. Meigs hot his bachelor's degree here in 1948. He is in the real estate and insurance business.

The speaker for the Alumni Lecture at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, Nov. 3, will be Dr. Michael Kasha. The speaker is a widely known physical chemist and the faculty member primarily responsible for the establishment of the Instritute of Molecular Biophysics. Kasha is the 1962 selection by faculty colleagues as Distinguished Professor of the Year.

Randel Views London From Top Of A Bus

While in England this summer, Dr. William Randel found The Common Market, the Soblen case and Churchill's illness to be the most prevalent topics in the "London Times."

"A Summer in England" was the title of Dr. Randel's talk at the Coffee Hour Friday. While it was a "work summer" for him, Randel took time to take slides of the countryside. He also spent a lot of time walking in London and often never had to walk down the same street twice. He also said that a good way to see London is from the top deck of a bus.

He attended the International Conference of College Professors of English where he met colleagues from all over Europe.

A highlight of the trip was a writers' conference in Edinburgh where Randel was able to get some pictures. Other slides included buildings of London, gardens of estates, private homes and the heather in bloom.

Treat Yourself

The Gymkana production "Pirate Daze" this week will undoubtedly be another in the series of fine productions produced by this group.

Hartley Price and his gymnasts specialize in yearly producing a show displaying the best of gymnastic skill, beauty, pageantry, and showmansip. The show is worthwhile and enjoyable.

Many students go back year after year to watch these gymnastic spectaculars. Students who have never seen a Gymkana production owe it to themselves to witness this annual spectacle.

Action, Not Words

The most popular topic for political speech making these days is education. One by one, state political leaders are taking the stump to crusade for better education in Florida.

Gov. Farris Bryant and gubernatorial candidates Fred O. "Bud" Dickinson and Scott Kelly are among those crusading for education. Senate and House of Representative leaders, such as Verle Pope and Mallory Horne, have also put in a good word for education. More reports of pleas for education come in daily.

This is an encouraging sign. If the politicians are talking about education, it is a safe bet that the voters are interested in the topic. Politicians are vitally interested in discussing matters of voter concern.

The plans for aiding education involve either increasing taxes or long range bond financing. Considering the high interest, long range bonding contains hidden dangers that must be weighed carefully. Taxes too are unpopular among politicians for they endanger political futures. Federal aid to education is also opposed by many state leaders.

But one of these will have to be called on if education is to be more than a conversation piece. The state is growing rapidly and this growth will provide additional income. But chances are slim that growth revenues will be enough to provide a first rate educational system.

House Speaker-designate Mallory Horn contends that if growth does not provide the money then the legislature will have to "buckle down, look someone in the eye, and tax 'em."

Words will not suffice to build education. Action is needed. The people of Florida will be watching the legislature to see if it puts its money where its mouth is.

Tale Of The History Building

IS YOUR BEST friend shrinking? Does he weep at the sight of an ice cube? Does he see imaginary air-conditioners? Chances are, he has a class in the History building. Nicknamed "little Auschwitz" by some, the History building is possessed of a shady past that began at the very dawn of time.

Constructed in the year 1755 B.C., the building was originally intended to be a pyramid honoring a wandering Egyptian king. The master architect, one Abu ben Missin, cleverly designed the structure so that tomb-robbers would find themselves trapped in a confusing maze of corridors and levels. The monument was never completed, however, for ben Missin himself got lost while working on the fourth floor and was never seen again. Following this tragedy, the project was abandoned and the errant Pharoah moved on toward Valdosta.

In pre-columbian days, the deserted building was taken over by the Armpit indians, under the leadership of their capable chieftain, NoMum. The Armpits were a people well-known for their prowess in the art of baking bread--as a matter of fact, the oldest joke about "needing dough" is still etched on the wall of the men's room on the second floor. Being thus inclined, the Armpits quickly saw, in the air-tight construction of the building, the makings of a wonderful oven. At first only the bottom floor was employed, but as demand began to gain on supply, more and more floors were put into use. Finally there came the day when NoMum decided that the fourth floor would have to serve too. Calling the whole tribe together, he led them up to the four[th] to prepare it for full-scale [op]tion, and neither he nor the [r]est them were ever seen again.

IN 1733, the build[ing] ed from the Spanish governm[ent] Sir Everett History (after course, the buildi[ng] structure was sold for [a] stolen exam. Letters To The Editor

Not Just Another Spoke

To the Editor:

Most students' average class day consists of going to class, listening to instructors, taking notes, and doing assignments. This routine perhaps will persist throughout the student's whole college career. He or she will eventually graduate, maybe with a high grade point average - but, what of it!

The students to whom I am referring comprise a great majority of the student body. These are the ones who go through school parrotting learning from books and instructors. Their steadfast beliefs are few, and personal convictions are practically nil. They think they believe everything that is put down before them.

These people form a section of our population that can be termed "The Common Mind," or "sheep"-- no real individuals, no leaders, just followers. Possibly at some future time they may appear to be leaders, but actually they are subordianted to a more readily thinking person. They need "Big Brother" to watch them.

What I am trying to say is that there exists a lack of participation in class discussions. Many a class period slips by where there is no show of hands. Notes are taken, which is good, but that is all that happens. A rise cannot be gotten out of docile notetakers who are in a somnabulistic state. Maybe a few will react when baited. The teacher may as will be lecturing to an empty classroom.

What is the cause of this? Social pressures? Are the students afraid to say something for fear of what others may think? This specific problem can put a damper on one's own thinking and self-confidence. The cause can also be traced to certain teachers, who stand in front of their classes mumbling everything and making the subject matter dry.

The blame can also rest partially with the teacher who conducts class with the attitude that every class is the same. His or her presence is all that is required. They aggravate the problem because they seemingly try to get class over with as quickly as possible without promoting any class discussion. Even so, the fault still primarily rests with the [stu]dent, who is paying for and ed[uca]tion and should force the issue, [if] possible.

Then there are the lawnmow[er]s. In retrospect, I will venture [to] state that these students are den[ying] themselves the privilge of [find]out who they are, why they are, [and] whether they are, or are not, [just] another spoke in the wheel.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

"Can [illegible] bring happiness"

This [illegible] question that in recent years has caused [illegible] debate and several hundred stirrings among American college undergraduates. Some contend that a student's attitude toward [illegible] happiness will automatically [illegible] Others say that to concentrate on this intangible and elusive [illegible] personality only leads to misery.

I [illegible] on the second view, and I offer in evidence the [illegible] experience of Agathe Dacron.

Agathe, a forestry major, never got anything less than straight A's [illegible] was awarded her B.T. Bachelor of Trees [illegible] after two years, her M.S.B. Master of Sap and Bark in [illegible] days, and her D.B.C. Doctor of Blight and Cutworms in only four.

Academic glory was hers. Her intellect was the envy of every [illegible] on the campus. But was she happy? The answer, alas, was no. Agathe—she knew not why—was miserable, so miserable, in fact, that during her whole walking career on campus, she was suddenly so overcome with melancholy that she sang herself [illegible] by with his yoyo. He noted Agathe's condition. "How come you're so unhappy, sis?" said R. Twinkle.

"Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major," replied Agathe peevishly.

"All right, I will," said R. Twinkle. "You are unhappy for two reasons. First, because you have been so busy stuffing your [illegible] that you have neglected your psyche. I've got nothing against learning, mind you, but a person oughtn't to neglect the pleasant, gentle amenities of life—the fun things. Have you, for instance, ever been to a dance?"

Agathe looked [illegible]

"Have you ever watched a sunset? Written a poem? Smoked a Marlboro Cigarette?"

Agathe shook her head.

"Well, [illegible]," said R. Twinkle and [illegible] a Marlboro and struck a match.

She puffed, and then for the first time in twelve or fifteen years, she smiled. "Wow!" she cried. "Marlboros are a fun thing! What flavor! What filter! What pack or box! What a lot to like! From now on I will smoke Marlboros, and never have another unhappy day!"

"Hold!" said R. Twinkle. "Marlboros alone will not solve your problem—only half of it. Remember I said there were [illegible] things making you unhappy."

"Oh, yeah," said Agathe. "What's the other one?"

"How long have you had that bear trap on your foot?" said R. Twinkle.

"I stepped on it during a field trip in my freshman year," said Agathe. "I keep meaning to have it taken off."

"Allow me," said R. Twinkle and removed it.

"Land sakes, what a relief!" said Agathe, now totally happy, and took R. Twinkle's hand and [illegible] to Marlboro country and [illegible] to a justice of the peace.

Today Agathe is a perfectly fulfilled woman, both intellectually and personality-wise. She lives in a darling split-level house with R. Twinkle and their 17 children, and she stays terribly busy in the forestry game. Only last month, in fact, she became Consultant on Sawdust to the American Butchers Guild, and was named an Honorary Sequoia by the park commissioner of Las Vegas, and she published a best-selling book called I Was a Skipjack Elk for the FBI.

3,000 FANS VIEW FROSH

Hurricane Fledglings Rally, Tie Baby Seminoles , 14-14

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Sports Editor

The Florida State freshmen, trying hard for their first victory of the season, fought the Miami fledglings to a 14-14 deadlock Saturday night in Doak S. Campbell Stadium before 3,000 fans.

Frosh Coach Fran Curci's UM crew racked up 17 first downs as compared to FSU's 10, and the Miamians had a total offensive yardage of 331, while FSU had 212 yards.

On a strong drive from their 40, the Miamians moved the ball to paydirt the first time that they got possession of the ball in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, FSU bounced back and quickly tallied two TD's and two PAT kicks, and then in the fourth session the Seminoles ran aground at the Miami one to kill a chance to win the game.

Miami's first TD drive, helped along by 5- and 15-yard penalties against the Seminoles, depended heavily on the running of fullback Peter Banaszak who carried Miami from the FSU 18 to the goal in five runs. A one yard run up center climaxed the drive with 10:15 left.

The two squads finished out the quarter by driving approximately to each other's 30 before punting.

PASSES STOLEN

Two pass interceptions in the second quarter set up FSU's two touchdowns.

The Hurricanes moved to FSU's 16, when they sufferred a 15-yard penalty. From the 31, quarterback Gary Gump hurled a pass to FSU's four, but Seminole quarterback Elton Revell was waiting and ran the ball to the 28. A 15-yard penalty set Florida State back to the 13.

After a five-yard offsides penalty and three plays, Coach Proctor's crew found themselves in a third-and-fourth situation on their 19.

At this point, halfback Joe Petko stepped through right end, then cut back to the middle, and angled his way to a clear field. With two Hurricanes breathing down his neck, he ran hell-for-leather for 81 yards for a TD with 11:37 left.

BANASZAK BLASTS

Later in the quarter the Seminoles punted deep into Hurricane territory, where Banaszak and fullback Earl Blomberg attempted to blast the ball out from the five with 4- to 8-yard runs.

After getting a first down, Gump heaved an aerial which was stolen by guard Bobby Jamieson, who was downed immediately at the 22.

The clock ticking off the last minute and a half of the half, Petko started the TD drive with an 18-yarder off right end before he was stopped by halfback Eric Adams. Fullback Ken Frazier then drove three yards up the middle.

With 44 seconds left Frazier dove over left yard from the one for a touchdown. Again, Gasque's kick was good, and FSU led, 14-6.

Halfway through the third quarter, the Hurricanes started their score-knotting drive. Taking the ball on the 40, Gump netted 31 yards on two aerials and Banaszak ran 23 yards more to put them on the seven. Two plays later, Banaszak went over with 6:00 left.

FUMBLE LOST

A fumble nearly permitted the Seminoles to win the game in the fourth quarter. After moving the ball from the Miami 45 to the 43 in four plays, FSU punted to Miami's five.

On the first play, the Hurricanes bobbled the ball and FSU recovered on the four.

With a first and goal situation, the Seminoles tried four identical runs up the middle. Quarterback Revell gained a yard, then Frazier gained two. The next run put the Seminoles on the one.

With victory only a foot away, the Seminoles ran the fourth play up the middle, only to be stopped inches from the goal.

Like Lightning

Halfback Joe Petko of the Baby Seminoles provided the highlight Saturday night against the Miami frosh when he scooted 81 yards downfield to paydirt for a Florida State touchdown. The 190-pounder is from Shaker Heights, Ohio.

Yardstick Has Canes On Top

Individually, the FSU frosh dominated rushing yardage Saturday night, while the Baby Hurricanes came through in passing yardage.

Halfback Joe Petko [illegible] 152 net yards on [illegible] including an 81-yard dash to the goal, for the game [illegible] back Peter Banaszak [illegible] Miami, charged 96 yards [illegible] for second place honors.

Others with substantial yardage were halfback Robert Barth of Miami, with 35 yards on seven carries; halfback [illegible] of Miami, with 24 yards on [illegible] carries; and fullback David Hall of FSU, with 20 yards on eight tries.

Quarterback [illegible] ship of FSU vainly attempted four passes, while quarterback Elton Revell completed [illegible] only aerial, good for seven yards, as he hit on one of [illegible] attempts.

Journalism Curriculum Given Go-Ahead Signal

By JOAN ABBOTT
Flambeau News Editor

Journalism courses designed for certification of high school journalism teachers will be offered at FSU [illegible] the year before.

Dean of Faculties Werner A. Baum said the courses "could conceivably be offered as early as the second trimester but more likely will not be offered until the third trimester."

Under the present plans, 12 hours will be offered. Three courses will be in the School of Education and one in the English Dept. under the College of Arts and Sciences.

"It should be clearly understood that the courses will not be professional or pre-professional courses but will be specifically for the purpose of teacher certification," Baum stressed. Six hours of course work beyond English certification are required for journalism certification with 12 hours required for those other than English majors to become certified.

"It will not be possible to major or minor in journalism" the dean continued. "We are just going to make it possible for teacher certification."

The University began investigating the possibility of offering such courses last spring, Baum said, when the Role and Scope study was being conducted. However, the decision was postponed until after the proposal could be discussed with the Dean of the School of Journalism of North Carolina, Norval Neil Luxon, who is the consultant to the Florida State Board of Control on journalism.

Dean Luxon was on the committee which recommended the abolishment of the FSU School of Journalism as a result of a study on duplication of courses at the University of Florida and FSU. The last journalism courses were taught at FSU in 1959.

"We wanted to make absolutely certain that it was not contrary to the intent of the original report or contrary to the advice of consultants that we offer elective courses for teacher certification," Baum explained.

Once this point was clarified, the path was open for FSU to offer courses for certification, which will have a different approach to the subject than the pre-professional and professional oriented courses offered in the University of Florida School of Journalism.

Primarily, according to Baum, the establishment of these courses was stimulated by requests of students and educators in the state. "Apparently the public schools need more teachers to work with the yearbook staffs and to teach journalism courses," he explained.

Plans for the courses are currently being formulated by the English Dept. and School of Education, he said. When the courses will be offered will be regulated mainly by student demands and the availability of professors to teach the courses. However, Baum stressed, offering these courses will not force the University to hire additional teaching faculty. "This program is within the competence of existing faculty personnel," he added.

After the journalism school was dissolved, many of the professors remained on campus and transferred to other departments such as education and business.

Joy Davidson Presents Graduate Recital Thursday

[illegible] CHRIS CLARKE
[illegible] Staff Writer

Joy Davidson, mezzo-soprano will present a graduate recital Thursday at 8:15 p.m. The recital, sponsored by the School of Music, will be in Opperman Music Hall.

Mrs. Davidson is a protege of former Metropolitan Opera star [illegible] Merrill. She was seen twice last year in leading roles [illegible] Guild productions. In Gluck's "Orpheus and Eurdice" she brought to life the [illegible] characterization of Or- [illegible] the presentation [illegible] "Consul." she [illegible] acting grandmother [illegible] her grandson die. Her awards on a national level [illegible] an advanced studies [illegible] rom the Rockefeller [illegible] an award from the [illegible] Morning Music Club in [illegible], receipt of the [illegible] Hanslup Memorial [illegible] Indianapolis, and an award as outstanding contribu- [illegible] in 1959.

Her guest artist appearances include contralto soloist in Honegger's "King David" with the Florida Symphony Orchestra in Orlando, various religious festival of arts concerts in Indianapolis and Los Angeles, and

Unlike most artists Mrs. Davidson has chosen a dual role. He both singer and wife and mother. Her husband, Rob, is a psychologist currently doing work on his Ph.D. in clinical psychology.

Mrs. Davidson has announced that her program will begin with two arias from Bach's "Magnificat," and continue with an early English three-part song by John Danyel. This unusual number is entitled "Mrs. M.E.: Her Funeral Tears for the Death of her Husband." This will be followed by an aria from Haydn's "Orfeo ed Euridice," and Mahler's song cycle, "Lieder Eines Fahrenden Gesellen" (Song of the Wayfarer).

Following the intermission she will return with a group of five impressionistic songs by Debussy. The program will conclude with selections from A.A. Milne's "When We Were Very Young" songs for children. The latter group is dedicated to her two year old daughter, Lisa, and to her second child who will be born in January.

Sophomore-Senior Investiture

Dr. Hardee Gives Investiture Speech

"Education: The Delicate Commodity" will be the topic of Dr. Melvene D. Hardee's talk tonight at the Sophomore-Senior Investiture.

Dr. Hardee, professor of higher education at FSU, will speak at the investiture in Westcott Auditorium following the 6:30 p.m. banquet in the Suwannee Room.

"We want all students to come to the investiture ceremony," said Senior Class President Duncan Moore. "This is the ceremonial recognition of the attainment of senior status."

University President Gordon W. Blackwell will preside over the proceedings. He will cap Moore, thereby symbolically capping the entire senior class.

Attending seniors will not wear the caps and gowns as was traditional in the past. According to Moore, this change was made to encourage more students to attend the function.

Seniors, accompanied by sophomores, will meet at the Opperman Amphitheatre to form a processional, following the banquet.

Bruce Darsey will give the invocation. Joyce Faggioni will play Brahms' "Rhapsody in b minor," on the piano, and Jack McCord, a baritone, will sing "Built Three More Stately Mansions" by Andrews.

Robert Fritz will play the processional and the recessional.

Able Speakers Are To Tryout

Tryouts for Speakers Bureau will be tomorrow from 2 to 5 p.m. in 202 Longmire and Thursday from 2:30 to 5 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

"Tryouts are open to all students," said Wayne Edwards, vice president of Gold Key and chairman of Speakers Bureau. "Participants should come prepared with a 2-3 minute speech," he added.

Representatives of the Speech Dept. and of Gold Key will be judging the tryouts.

This is the first year that Gold Key is in charge of Speakers Bureau as its main project. Edwards appealed to all phases of University life to have representatives at the tryouts.

The Bureau sends representatives to high schools and service clubs in Florida, Georgia and Alabama to give talks and to answer questions about FSU. Members also act as guides to visiting groups on campus.

Students Do TV Plays

A series of television plays written [illegible] FSU students will be produced this year by WFSU-TV, Channel 11. The [illegible] will be produced as a [illegible] of the English and drama departments under the direction of [illegible] ara and Richard Fallon, [illegible], and the University [illegible] Service, represented [illegible] Franceschi.

Casting for the first play, "Of Men and Mortal Pots" by Jerry Lyell will be tonight at 8:30 in 202 Dodd Hall.

"Of Men and Mortal Pots" has a cast of four men and two women. The characters are Hubert Singleterry, the recently deceased hero; Laura Singleterry, his wife; Mrs. Kipple, mother-in-law of Hubert; Rev. Pinkley, a large man in late middle age who is a friend of the family; Willoughby, mortician and friend of the family, a middle-aged mousy type with a small moustache; and the Guardian Angel of Hubert, an off-camera voice who is never seen.

This play and others, to be produced later in the year, will be video-taped and shown on Channel 11. They will also be seen throughout the Florida ETV network and in about five cities outside the state.

"To my knowledge a program like this is not being done anywhere else in the country," Franceschi said. "It provides a chance for writers to see their works produced and also gives students interested in drama experience in television," he added.

Candidates Neglect Expense Statements

Twenty-five candidates in the recent fall Freshman Class officers and [illegible] enators election have failed to turn in expense statements. Secretary of Elections Ron Jones said that these candidates are subject to a fine of $14 each or a total of $350 from all delinquent candidates.

It was made clear to all candidates at the compulsory meeting that [illegible] andidate, whether he won or lost, was required to turn in an expnese statement, Jones stressed.

Those candidates who have not filed expense statements are as follows: [illegible] ivs, Bob Moon, John Noppenberg, Rusty Seabolt, "Stormy" Thurmond, Susan Worley, Jane Franzino, Nancy Aunspaugh, Jean Norman, Dee Williams, Carol Gresimer, Ted DeLaVergne, Carl Sugarman, Charles Intriago, Bill McCarron, Marshall Gifford, John B. Student Insurance Sales Hit All-Time Record High Student Insurance sales have hit a record high for the first trimester, Secretary of Student Welfare Bill Sheppard announced today.

More than $64,000 worth of student insurance has been sold, he said. The previous record was $54,000 worth of insurance sold during the entire year, he added. In excess of 5,000 students have been insured while the past record was 4,200.

Insurance will be sold again during registration for the second and third trimesters, Sheppard added.

The major improvement over last year's policy is increased benefits which include a doctor's visit fee of $25. Cost of the insurance to the student was also brought down from $13.15 to $13.

"In the future if participation continues to increase, additional benefits can be obtained, because the insurance companies will be anxious to get the business," Sheppard added.

The Student Insurance Plan this year is with Piedmont Southern of Atlanta. The local agent is Tom Overstreet.

Faculty Club

The Faculty Club will sponsor a Smorgasbord Supper Oct. 24 at 6:30 p.m. prior to the Zinka Milanov concert.

Club members wishing to attend should make reservations for themselves and their guests not later than 5 p.m. Tuesday Oct. 23. Checks for $1.75 for each reservation may be sent to Marie Williams, Box U-3113.

Promote School Spirit

This year as in those previous much has been said about the lack of school spirit at FSU. After our first football game and subsequent pep rallies indignation at the lack of enthusiasm and student turn-out was expressed in numerous letters to the editor. Each sought to seek out the cause or place the blame for the lack of student interest. For the most part there has been a great deal of talk about school spirit, but nothing constructive has been done about it. Students have been made aware of the situation but until now have not shown enough interest to attempt to do anything.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO a committee was appointed under the Secretary for Internal Affairs with the express purpose to "promote school spirit." The Rally Committee, as it has been called, has made attempts at the beginning of each school year to create a unified and spirited effort among the student body in supporting its athletic teams. They have attempted to create on the FSU campus traditions like those found on other large campuses. At various times coordinated cheering sections and card section have been tried but invariably fail due to non-participation by the student body.

For the past four weeks the Rally Committee has again been meeting to "promote school spirit." It has had full support of the Administration and Student Government but has gone virtually unnoticed by the student body at large. The committee has asked repeatedly that each fraternity, sorority, dorm and scholarship house send at least one representative to its weekly meeting. At these meetings ideas for coordinating student participation at athletic events and in other areas are worked over and polished. The representatives can then take back to their residence areas the results of their planning and thus provide students with an opportunity to at last work together.

MANY PEOPLE HAVE voiced complaints about the method in which cheers are conducted. Some disagree with the way pep rallies are handled. But these people are conspicuously absent when these problems are talked about in Rally Committee meetings.

The Rally Committee continues to meet each Tuesday night at 7:00 in Longmire Auditorium. Membership is open to any member of the student body with the only requirement being enthusiasm and interest. We hope that at tonight's meeting all those who have voiced the need for an improvement in school spirit will stand up and be counted.

Continually Expanding Market

Karl Marx ignored seven important elements when he set up his arguments against capitalism. This column is the fourth in a five part series on these seven missing factors. Already covered are the first four elements: (1) the dynamic nature of money, (2) the role of psychology in the economy, (3) the relation of advertising to distribution, and (4) the consumer credit.

The fifth factor is the continually expanding market. There is no limit to human aspiration, and as we see in the United States where there is a free economy, the market is always expanding. New items are constantly appearing, and old ones are always being improved in useableness and appearance.

Take the electronic industry, for example. There are endless opportunities for advancements in products. Also, thirty years ago the fastest means of mass transportation was the train. Now people fly in comfort from the Atlantic to the Pacific in only four to five hours. It's not rare for a family to have two cars in the United States any more.

Things that seemed out of the question a few decades ago are now almost as common as the home having the faucet with running water. The market is expanding and will continue to expand, because human aspirations are limitless. This factor certainly needs to be considered before making conclusions about the economy under capitalism.

The sixth ignored element of economy building is the people's capitalism. Dr. Schwarz says, the development of people's capitalism is "possibly the most devastating repudiation of the Marxist doctrine." Marx felt that all wealth would sooner or later be concentrated in fewer and fewer hands. He called this class the bourgeoisie, and, as Schwarz says, Marx felt that "the natural forces within capitalism would constantly diminish the number of this class."

The opposite has happened in the United States. American industry is constantly enlarging its ownership. There are literally millions of stock holders, and, as Schwarz points out, "the profits received by the vast majority of these stock holders are utilized for purchasing."

Here we see that [illegible] argument of the "cla[illegible]" ridiculous. The "[illegible] Marxism become an iron[illegible] except, of course, to the red-blo[illegible] Communists.

In the concluding [illegible] series the role of go[illegible] legislation will be discussed.

Dancing -- So Suave

At present I am in my physical education class. We study ballr[illegible] dancing in my physical education class. I love ballroom da[illegible] so suave. Even more suave than epilepsy is ballroom dancing.

The girls in my physical education class are little jewels of personality. Each one is glittering with vitality, patience, and love of [illegible] even though the sun has not yet risen and everyone smells like N[illegible]

Come, let me introduce you to a typical princess--that one ov[illegible] there, with her sorority pin glistening from its not-too-pron[illegible] (tch, tch) position on her blouse. "My name is John," say I, anticipating her fun-filled reply. "(Yawn) So what?" she answers. Isn't s[illegible] life itself? "Would you like to dance?" I ask, after giggling at he[illegible] little joke. "I guess we gotta," she sighs, "My name is Vlalumie, don[illegible] get too close to me." Oh what a sparkling way to begin the day! "Don[illegible] you find dance class interesting?" I ask pleasantly. "Not particularl[illegible] (yawn), you see, I don't really need this class--I just take it for laugh[illegible] I mean, like anyone who can't dance is an oaf!"

"Oh." I reply, as pleasantly as I can. Alas, class is over too soon and I must bid this epitome-of-all-that's-warm-and-wonderful-in womanhood farewell. There are tears in my eyes as I [illegible] this is to be expected, however, for my toes are crushed and bleeding.

Diddley Hours Useless

Every afternoon between the hours of four to six I slip into a coma. Once these two most worthless hours of the day arrive, time a[illegible] ings mean nothing to [illegible] about in lethargy. [illegible] me? Do you suffer from this afternoon droop too?

If you do, don't bother to see your doctor about it.

Classes have ground to a [illegible] four; and nobody of correct [illegible] bringing even thinks of eating u[illegible] six. This is the transitional per[illegible] from class day to social or st[illegible] night. During this time people t[illegible] of nothing but being tired and get[illegible] hungry.

Let's label these hours with s[illegible] smooth erudite name to show [illegible] collegiateness. How about the "[illegible] dley Hours"?

The Diddley Hours, are [illegible] useless for everything[illegible] dy. Most people need two hour[illegible] just to get their minds in gear[illegible] this time supper is ready.

This situation of the Diddley Hours really bothered me for a [illegible] thought of several solutions, amon[illegible] them drinking and suicide; but these would have wasted the rest of th[illegible] day.

The only solution I actually tri[illegible] was one involving study. I thoug[illegible] to myself, "Why don't I [illegible] fix myself some yumm[illegible] study in the Library?"

It didn't work. I munched too loudly and got my ears boxed by a rather brave Wally Cox type. This completely shattered my experiment as I was taken by violent seizures of fear every Diddley Hour [illegible] two weeks.

What do you do during the Diddley Hours? The Marching Chiefs practice, the football team works out and the Physics department holds incomprehensible seminars. Otherwise everybody else mopes around their rooms.

Do you know what I think we should do? In fact it's the only solution to a situation of this type. We all should write to President Kennedy and get him to abolish the Diddley Hours! Then life would be better.

Absence System Explained

To the Editor:

This letter is designed exclusively to inform you, the students, of the reasoning behind my proposing the amendment that increased the amount of absences from Student Senate meetings.

First I want it clear as to the amount of meetings a senator must attend. Student Senate meetings constitute one absence; Men's and Women's Senate also constitute one absence; and a minimum of one committee meeting per week, in addition to at least one special committee meeting which are one half absence each. This constitutes at the minimum eight meetings per month.

Now to my reasoning for five absences. Under last year's system of three cuts a senator was allowed to turn in excuses for missing meetings. These excuses could be turned in for every absence that could be thought up and would be accepted. This allowed unlimited absence as long as an excuse was turned in, and nothing could be done about it. The way I feel about this is give a senator a certain amount of cuts, but no excuses. This is the way the system is now. They are allowed five absences and no excuses, except for academic reasons. They are not allowed absences for illness.

If a senator is absent I don't care where he was, he has five absences, I don't want any excuses, there are none. If a senator takes more than the allowed number of absences under this system, I give my word as a senator of you the students that impeachment proceedings will be brought against this individual. I feel that this will cut the number of absences that a senator will have by allowing no excuses.

Senator Arnie Gibbs

Receptacles Improve Appearance

To The Editor:

Florida State has a very lovely campus, much nicer than some I have seen. However, the fact remains that some improvements can be made. The particular one I am referring to is the lack of receptacles for trash.

The grounds themselves are usually free of trash, but often under the shrubbery may be seen pieces of paper other debris that has been carelessly discarded. With the addition of receptacles for the grounds the students may be more prone to use them. Of course, many man hours may be saved by the maintenance department which might be needed elsewhere.

I hope that action can be taken on this matter. Let's not let our campus, which I am sure we are all proud of, fall behind other campuses as far as appearance goes.

Peterson Is Pleased With Three-Team Syste

Paul Dietzel had a favorite story a few years ago when he was coaching football at Louisiana State and his famed Chinese Bandits - a glorified third string - was making itself one of the top defensive units in the country:

"One of 'em was doing so well that we figured he was in for a promotion. I walked up to him one day and said, 'Joe, how would you like to play for the White (starting) team?'

"And you know, the kid got so mad I thought he was gonna quit. He said he was already playing on the best team."

Florida State's Bill Peterson, who brought his own version of the Bandits from LSU three years ago, says the same thing is happening at FSU-and it's had a lot to do with the Seminoles' surprising showing in four games this Fall.

Peterson has dubbed his three teams the Chiefs (two-way unit), Renegades (defense) and Warriors (offense).

Theoretically, the Chiefs open each half and play until (1) somebody scores, (2) about six minutes is up, or (3) they run out of gas. The Chiefs are supposed to log 30 minutes per game, with the other two units splitting the other 30.

It's worked perfectly so far. FSU has clobbered The Citadel (49-0) and Furman (42-0), tied Kentucky (0-0) and lost to Miami (7-6). In the Kentucky and Miami games, FSU clearly dominated play but hurt itself with fumbles or penalties.

"We've used the three-team system the past two years, but in the past we've always had to bail one of 'em out of trouble," he said here as FSU prepared for an Oct. 20 date with Georgia in Athens.

"This year, though, it's been different. Sure, we make an occasional 'wild-card' substitution here and there. But for the most part we've substituted by units -- and it hasn't gotten us in trouble even once."

Where LSU sold coolie hats to Chinese Bandits fans in Baton Rouge, Peterson is developing singularity among his units by putting them in slightly different battle dress.

The Chiefs, for example, wear all-white socks and an Indian-head design on their helmets; the Renegades wear garnet-trimmed socks and a tomahawk on the headgear; and the Warriors wear gold trimming on their socks and an arrow on their bonnets.

And, like at LSU, each of the units is getting downright cocky about its respective role in the overall war plan.

After the Citadel, Kentucky and Furman games FSU was giving up an average of less than two yards per play on the ground. Naturally, the Renegades were receiving widespread credit for FSU's defensive statistics since they are the primary defensive unit.

A member of the Chiefs team attacked the school's publicity man with, "What about us? We play BOTH ways." He was quieted with figures showing that the Renegades really were doing the best defensive job.

And during the Furman game, the Renegades had given up a first down--a rarity at that stage of the season--when a Warrior ran up and down the sidelines shouting, "C'mon, wake up out there. How're we gonna score if you don't get the ball?" Shortly, the Renegades obliged, and the Warriors flew 59 yards for a quick TD.

Total times played after the four games show the Chiefs with 110:-23 minutes, Renedages 82:10 and Warriors 47:27.

Peterson recognizes the value of the system on the field, but he also feels there is a definite value in morale and recruiting.

"It's easier to get everybody 'up' for a game this way, because they all--33 of 'em at least--feel certain they'll get to play.

"And when we talk to a high school prospect now," adds Peterson, "we tell him he doesn't have to be one of the best eleven to play for us. We have 33 'starters,' so he has 200 per cent better chance of playing here than if he goes somewhere else."

Of course, by the time this year's signees reach varsity status, the Renegades and Warriors may have installed their own system of 'permitting' new men to 'join' organization.

After all, not everybody ca Renegade.

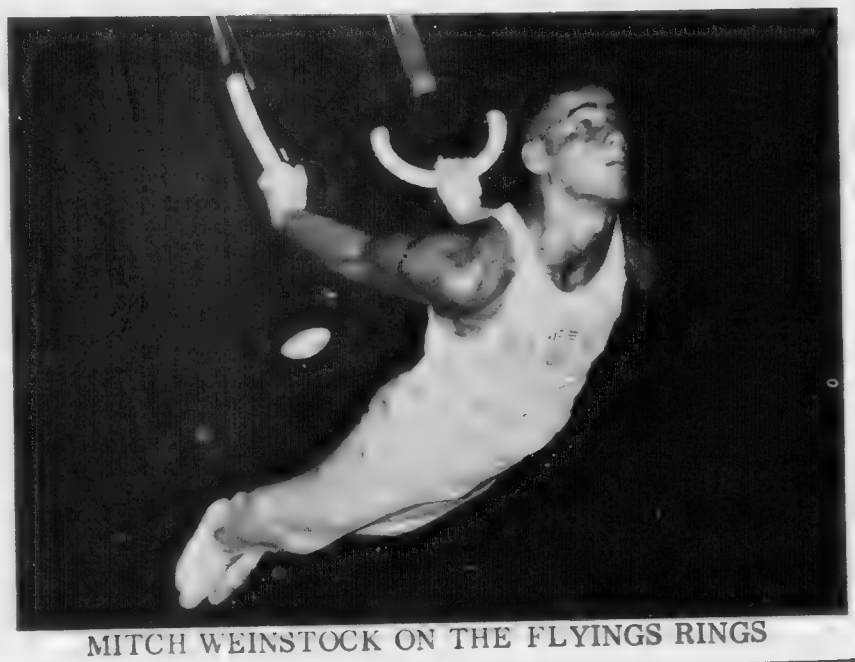
Gymkana Team's "Pirate Daze" Opens Tonight

"Pirate Daze," the fall Gymkana presentation opens in Tully Gym tonight at 7:30 for a four-night run to be climaxed Saturday night with the crowning of Miss Gymkana for 1962 and the presentation of the sorority-fraternity service trophies.



The exhibition of gymnastics, singing, dancing, showmanship and beauty is filled with acts whose costuming and scenery recall the colorful days when pirates roamed at will over the high seas in search of gold and precious jewels.

The show has been in the production stage ever since the beginning of the trimester, and work on the general theme and organization of the show was well under way when classes began.

Last Friday the Gymkana troop presented "Pirate Daze" at the Veterans' Domiciliary at Thomasville, Ga., in preparation for opening night in Tully Gym.

For the Gymkana Court, twenty-two coeds were chosen last month on the basis of beauty, charm and poise. This Saturday night Miss Gymkana for 1962 will be chosen from the court on the additional requirements of cooperation and costume design. Until Saturday night Miss Peggy Bruce, Miss Gymkana for 1961, will reign over the festivities.

The fraternity-sorority service trophies will also be presented Saturday night. They go to the sorority and fraternity which contributed the most to the production of "Pirate Daze." Contributions could be in any area of production of the show, such as staging, publicity, scenery or props.

MITCH WEINSTOCK ON THE FLYINGS RINGS

Tickets for the shows, which begin at 7:30 p.m. may be purchased every day this week at either the Student Center or the Ticket Office in Tully Gym. Tickets for students with I.D. cards are $.75, for non-students $1.25, and $.50 for children.

Dr. Hardee Tells Seniors Successful Life Pattern

***** *****

Seniors who will be graduating in the next few months were advised to become "men and women of all seasons" by Dr. Melvene Hardee at the Sophomore-Senior Investiture Ceremony last night.

The professor of higher education spoke on "Education: A Delicate Commodity."

"That education which is delicate--light-in-weight, selfishly and narrowly defined-- has little place in the slice of life accorded you," she said. "I beg you to barter and bargain for an education, continuing throughout your adulthood which will enable you to share in the work of the world. . . which will insure the dream of individual opportunity both for yourself and others and which will assist you in resolving the problems of the segment of earth on which you live, though it may be small as a city block or a country acre.

"With such an indelicate education with its general and professional aspects and attendant counseling and advising, I predict you will aspire-- yes, you will become a man or woman for all seasons, durable, dependable, and in the face of changing winds of chance-- dedicated to a singular service," she concluded.

Dr. Hardee defined a "delicate education" as one which places no obligation on the student for "transmitting the benefits to others for their good," but rather is merely self-indulgent. "I believe that education, like other commodities---time, money, health, wisdom, to name but a few-- are accorded us for a larger purpose" she said.

Further, an occupation, she continued, should provide "an opportunity for doing needful work, an opportunity to absorb, develop and express one's abilities, interests and personality and an opportunity to share in the world's work."

Students Bomb TEPs

Five FSU Students Arrested By Police

Five FSU students have been arrested by the Tallahassee Police Department charged with disturbing the peace by throwing gas cartridges, "molotov cocktails," at the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity house.

The five were released to the custody of the Assistant Dean of Men, Robert G. Brewer. They are Gerald M. Huegel, 17, 322 E. Tharpe St.; Robert Gogswell Atwood Jr., 18; Tommy Dwaine McDonald, 18 and Steven Joel Robertson, 19, all of 318 S. Copeland St.' and James Everett Morton, 17, 221 S. Macomb St.

SIXTH ACQUITTED

A sixth student was in the car but has been exonerated by the other five, as having no part in the incident, Dean Brewer said.

Police Sgt. Vester Kelly said the five admitted riding past the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity house at 547 W. College Ave. early Saturday morning and tossing homemade "molotov cocktails" -- gasoline in soft drink bottles -- at the fraternity house. Members of the fraternity house doused the flames caused by one of the bombs, with a garden hose. Kelly quoted the students as saying a prank "just got out of hand."

BOMB IGNITES

One of the bombs struck the roof of the house but did not ignite. Another struck the front of the house and failed to ignite. However, a third bomb struck the steps of the house and ignited.

Dean Brewer said he has interviewed all the boys involved in the incident. The results of the interviews and investigations will be submitted to the discipline committee at the end of the week.

UNIVERSITY POLICY

Dean Brewer said that it has been the policy of the university in the past to reserve university action pending the outcome of the city court actions.

There was no racial discrimination involved in the incident, Brewer stressed. The Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity is a Jewish fraternity.

Brewer's evaluation is that the group was committing an immature act with no malicious intent involved.

What Is 'South?"

FROM THE "CHERAW CHRONICLE"

There are those who believe that when Governor Faubus called out the National Guard to prevent a colored student from entering Central High School, he was acting in accordance with the best traditions of the South.

THERE ARE those who believe the same thing about Governor Patterson of Alabama when he fails to use the police power of his state to protect those citizens who want to ride integrated buses and register to vote.

And finally, there are some people who will argue that Governor Barnett, in skating dangerously close to rebellion, is a lineal descendant of those aristocratic early Virginians who played such a significant role in the establishment of our country.

NOTHING COULD be further from the truth.

Frank Graham reminds us that George Washington, a Southerner, stood for the universality of human rights; that James Madison, a Southerner, was the chief framer of the Constitution and used states rights, as did Thomas Jefferson, in defense of, not against, basic human liberties; and that John Marshall, a Southerner, established the principle that a ruling of the Supreme Court is the law of the land.

We are also reminded that Robert E. Lee, patron saint of the South, led the way to the communion rail to take communion with a Negro in his own church when other members hesitated, and that Lee's own daughter, reflecting her father's moderate views, was later arrested for violating Jim Crow laws requiring segregated seating on trains.

THE GREAT EARLY Virginians are the real spiritual ancestors of South Carolina, a state often mistakenly grouped by outsiders with Alabama and Mississippi, but which actually gravitates more toward the Old Dominion and her North Carolina neighbors. It is in this great liberal tradition that South Carolina, as one of the 13 original colonies, will meet the challanges that lie ahead.

No, the Faubuses, Barnetts, and Pattersons do not reflect the South's authentic, traditional, and patrician past and do not deserve the fealty which some South Carolinians mistakenly give them.

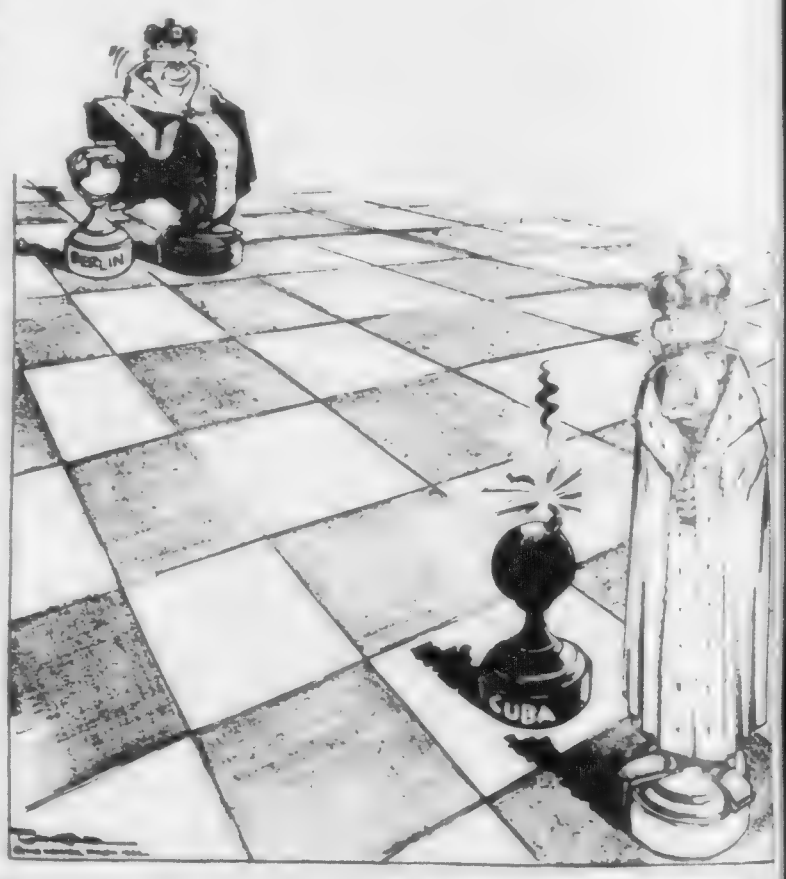
Liberal Unmitigated Gall

I don't admire today's liberals for much, but I do admire their unmitigated gall. Take Cuba, for example. The liberals are responsible for the advent of Castro, both for all the tommyrot in the press about Castro being the "George Washington of Cuba," and an "agrarian reformer," and because it was the residual leftist influence in the Department of State, and not the Eisenhower or Kennedy administrations, per se, which pulled the strings to topple Batista.



It is most unfortunate for the foreign policy of this nation that the civil service act has been extended to include even those in policy making positions in the State Department...positions which enable the bright young men of the early New Deal era to maintain influence to this day. It is sad but true that the handling of foreign affairs in the United States is no longer responsive to the will of the American people, but is controlled by the same group of self-perpetuating bureaucrats who have made our foreign policy the miserable record of vacillation and appeasement it has been for a generation.

The "experts" in the State Department were responsible for the embargo placed on arms for Batista... arms which in some instances were already paid for. These liberal geniuses were the ones who have the big propaganda buildup to Castro... and painted Batista in a far worse light than he deserved. They were responsible for the flouting of the neutrality laws, so that about 90 per cent of the illegal arms shipments to Castro reached their destination.

The Communist takeover in Cuba so closely follows the pattern of the takeover in China that it hurts to think about it: 1. Discredit the regime (anti-Communist) in power. 2. Laud and praise the Communists, who are only "agrarian reformers." 3. Disarm the regime in power by placing an arms embargo on it. 4. When the true nature of the Communist government thus helped to power becomes apparent, say, "ha, ha, what do you know? We made a mistake."

These are the liberals: they quake in fear at the thought of atomic attack, but decry "right-wing hysteria" when Americans express concern at missle bases 9[illegible] from the United States. By [illegible] stupidity and mist[illegible] they enslave a nation, and then maintain that only they can s[illegible] problem they themselves [illegible] Yeah...it takes plenty of [illegible] right.

Both Sides Are Wrong

Do you know what is as bad as a rabid segregationist? It's a rabid integrationist! This person sincerely believes that all Southerners are red neck farmers, all colored people want integration, and the Northern way is the only true way.

Before I sink any farther into a miasma of complexities, let me say that I am 100% integrationist.

Being an integrationist though doesn't prevent me from turning purple when I hear a local NAACP official take in the same biased manner so typical of many hard core Southern whites.

Taking the "total integration now" line of thinking is as bad as the Georgia farmer "superior white race" beliefs, if not worse, for the simple fact that integrationists are supposed to be broad minded.

Neither side speaks with complete authority. The only person capable of speaking justly on the integration question is one who has lived in integrated areas (really integrated, 50-50) in the North and has lived in the segregated South, knows the difference between the Northern Negro and the Southern Negro, and is completely aware of all situations in all locals.

How can you then, ardent integrationist, who comes from New Hampshire where there was one Negro in your high school, justly accuse the Southerner of being completely narrowminded and not knowing the "true way".

Also how can you, ardent segregationist, who has never come in contact with a Negro except to have him cut your grass, really make knowledgable judgment of his race, all th[illegible] while waving your stupid Dixie fla[illegible] (See! I'm prejudiced, [illegible] you should have some s[illegible] into your heads!

The whole situation is [illegible] and so riddled with [illegible] terms that everybody [illegible] and think. Gov. Barnett was [illegible] cerned with States' Ri[illegible] pical Southern white is[illegible] with such an ambigious term, [illegible] just wants to keep the N[illegible] of his schools and social life.

By likewise token, the aver[illegible] groes aren't concerned [illegible] vague "freedom for all" [illegible] phrase. They want only t[illegible] wherever they wish, instead of [illegible] stantly being forced to ride third class and steerage on our ship of life.

There are good reasons for and against integration now. Some are: Social upheaval vs. real opportunities for all; lowering of some education standards vs. equal education for all.

How does anybody then have to cope with the question without even a small comprehension of the entire situation?

If we can stop all of these one-sided people who constantly babble just of States' Rights, just of equal schooling, just of one side of the question, and get people thinking of the situation as a whole, we will have taken our first giant step toward solving this whole mess.

Mahoney Views Praised

To The Editor:

I would like Lawrence Mahoney to know that he is not alone in his views. I was especially gratified to read his clear and sensible view on the Cuban situation in this time of rightist hysteria.

We live in fearful times--times that seem to cause some people to feel that we can retreat back into the Dark Ages when all issues could be settled with force. I am tired of hearing about how our country is becoming weak because we don't have enough "guts" to attack Castro.

We have as much "guts" as anybody, but we also, let us hope, have a national conscience. It is our ideals--and the way we live up to them--that make us a great nation. And if we fall from greatness, it will not be because we are "weak"--it will be because we will have made the fatal and terrible mistake of thinking that might makes right.

Pep Rally Set Thursday Night

School spirit has picked up considerably this year, and the cause can be laid clearly at the feet of the performance of the fired-up Seminoles.

So far the FSU squad has a 2-1-1 record, which includes a 49-0 victory over The Citadel, a 0-0 tie with Kentucky, a 42-0 squashing of Furman, and a 7-6 loss to the University of Miami.

However, despite the loss, the Seminoles need not feel shame, because the team that edged by them was rated number nine in the entire country that week by the Associated Press poll.

The ninth team in the land fought hard with the enthusiastic FSU tribes, causing them to fumble and lose the ball six times ... but still the ninth team in the nation managed only a 7-6 victory ... with six recovered fumbles.

It was a game that Andy Gustafson could "take to the win window," but it came dearly. First, the Miamians were outrushed and outpassed; statistically, they were humbled. Secondly, the Hurricanes are now absent from the top ten of the AP and the United Press. The Seminoles put them in 14th place.

This week, Coach Bill Peterson will send the Tribes against the University of Georgia in Athens. Georgia, a team that FSU squeaked by 3-0 last season, came from behind last week to defeat Clemson and Peterson says, "As we expected, Georgia has improved much at mid-season."

Unless Seminole rooters plan to travel to Athens to encourage the Seminoles, the fans will have to hear and cheer for the team via the radio waves.

A pep rally will be held, however, for those that want to wish the footballers well before they leave.

The rally, the third to be held this season, will be kicked off at 9 p.m. Thursday on Landis Green. Over 500 students are expected to show up to cheer and to hear the music of the Mighty Marching Chiefs.

The increase in students at the rallies, from 150 at the first poorly publicized rally before the Kentucky game, reached approximately 600 at the last Landis Green rally.

When the Seminoles were returning from their statistical win over Kentucky, at least 50 FSU students, along with Student Body President Ken van Assenderp, went out to the airport at 2 a.m. to greet the returning gridders.

The number isn't too impressive, but the sentiment was, because the return hadn't been publicized and because at that time Tallahassee was being racked by one of the worst thunderstorms this season.

State Is Impressed

But Tallahasseans and FSU students haven't been the only ones to notice the vigor of the the 1962 football team.

After Miami, Bob Bassine of the Orlando Sentinel, said "It was Miami's victory. It was FSU's finest hour ... for Friday night in the Orange Bowl, the Seminoles finally shucked their undeserved but obnoxiously persistent image as the state's little brother, as soon as they took off their warmup jersies."

Even in the horrid city of Gainesville, where ogres keep alligators in cages instead of canaries, Joe Halberstein of the Gainesville Sun quoted a friend's question, " 'Do you think this (the 7-6 game) means that FSU will give the Gators a tough game, maybe even have a chance to win, this season?' "

He answered, "Brother! You'd better believe it!"

Being "up" for the Georgia game is important for at least two of many reasons. First of all, Florida State hasn't really won an away game since it defeated Tampa, 33-0, in the finale of 1959.

This road jinx has haunted the Seminoles, who were frustrated by a 0-0 tie with The Citadel in 1960, then the 3-3 tie with Florida last year, the 0-0 tie with Kentucky this season, the 10-7 upset by VPI last season, and the 7-6 squeaker with Miami.

It is necessary to have the spirit high.

Halberstein, and others, have said, that FSU narrowly missed national recognition when the Miamians barely triumphed. Others, like Bassine, say FSU is not quite ready for a run at the national championship.

"But, unless they let game like Friday's against Miami sap their tremendous esprit de corps, they're going to beat some good football teams this season. And they might just scare the drawers off those they don't beat."

Larry Rakestraw of the University of Georgia will quarterback rookie coach Johnny Griffith's Bulldog crew Saturday afternoon when the Georgians battle the Seminoles.

Seminoles Scrimmage, Lose Blazovich For Season

The Florida State Seminoles, getting ready to face the University of Georgia Bulldogs Saturday in Athens, Ga., ran through a controlled scrimmage Saturday in Doak S. Campbell.

Missing from the lineups of the three platoons were three players who were expected to play against the Bulldogs. They are end Freddy Biletnikoff, tackle Mike Blazovich, and guard Ferrell Henry.

Biletnikoff, the highly touted pass receiver, sustained a broken foot before the season began and has yet to see varsity action. Head Coach Bill Peterson revealed that the 6-1 flanker would not be able to play against the Georgians.

Previously the Seminole mentor had said that he might red-shirt the Pennsylvanian, but "if we see that we need him, we'll use him in future games."

X-rays revealed that 230-pound senior, Blazovich, fractured a bone in his foot. Peterson said that the senior will apparently be sidelined for the rest of the season, although there is a small chance that he may be able to compete against the Auburn Tigers in FSU's finale.

Injuries have also claimed the services of the 6-1 Henry, who will not, however, be out for the season.

In the controlled scrimmage, the three platoons drilled offensively, attempting to move the ball from about the 30 down to the goal line. Peterson said that the squads looked "drab" during the first half of the practice, but that "they were looking pretty good toward the end."

Hard running characterized the performances of the two-way Chiefs, as quarterback Eddie Feely, halfback Keith Kinderman, and fullback Marion Roberts provided the yardage romps.

Fullback Dave Snyder, who ran with both the offensive Warriors and the Chiefs, substituted occasionally for Kinderman, and came through with power drives up the middle.

Passing was the forte of the Renegades with quarterback Charlie Calhoun hurling long aerials to end Red (Bill) Dawson of Valdosta, Ga. The sticky-fingered Dawson latched onto at least two TD passes in the end zone, missing another high one by inches.

The Warriors, led by quarterback Steve Tensi, most pleased the grid mentor, who said they seemed to have the most spirit. Although occasionally caught behind the line attempting to pass, the tall Tensi got off several passes that brought comments of "fine pass. . . good catch" from the assistant coaches.

RETURN TIME

The three-platoons of the FSU Seminoles will return to Tallahassee immediately after the afternoon Georgia game. They will arrive via Eastern Airlines about 7:30 Saturday night.

Deserving Spouses

More than 19 per cent, or nearly 2000 FSU students are married with wives and families in Tallahassee. The University historically has done everything within its power to make it possible for married couples to obtain a college education. In many respects FSU had far outdistanced other universities in providing the facilities and atmosphere proper for married students to maintain a home, rear their families and still continue school.

Costs for housing and medical insurance have been drastically reduced. The university provides numerous opportunities for wives of students to obtain parttime work on campus to help defray still further the cost of going to school.

Many wives make great sacrifices and work many long hours to help put their husbands through school, while at the same time maintaining a home and in many instances rearing children.

For all their efforts however, the wives are still classed "outsiders" as far as student activities are concerned. In order to accompany their husbands to many university activities they must pay the fare usually charged persons totally unconnected with FSU. As an example, "Date" tickets must be purchased in order for wives to attend FSU football games with their husbands.

Other universities have broached this problem and attempted to make wives of students more a part of university activities by issuing them identification cards.

On our campus an ID card would allow wives free admission to all sports activities, use of library facilities, and access to numerous other activities. The cards would also serve as check identification with Tallahassee merchants.

Over the years many attempts have been made to better the lot of spouses of students. But the cost of allowing them free access to university activities has always been a prohibitive factor.

The problem of cost might be removed if at registration for each trimester the portion of fees which is allocated for student activities is paid for each spouse of a married student. According to Secretary of Finance Frank Milwee this would amount only to $21.50. An identification card, similar to ones issued students can then be given to spouses.

If the Administration and student government would look into this situation, a group of gallant ladies whose contributions to this University have gone long unrecognized might at last feel they really belong.

U.S. Security Before Mankind?

Some interesting comments have been made recently by men in high office concerning the efforts of James Donovan and the Cuban families Committee to exchange around 62 million dollars worth of medical supplies and baby food for 1,113 prisoners of the Bay of Pigs invasion.

Congressman Cramer has said: "Where's our compassion for our own citizens being held by the Communists throughout the world?" Also, "The whole philosophy of this blackmail deal is to apologize for the invasion failure." He has also ordered a congressional investigation of reports that the United States government might pay part of the "ransom."

Governor Bryant has patriotically remarked, "Our real and basic concern is with the security of the United States-- not the release of Cuban prisoners." Then he remarked that if American citizens were involved, "I wouldn't have any question about what I would do. Teddy wouldn't have to pull his sword but once and I would be right with him."

Sixty-two million dollars worth of [illegible] just too much to exchange for 1,113 Castro-held prisoners, isn't it gentlemen? After all, what do the lives of 1,113 people mean, especially since they are not Americans? Perhaps it would look more gallant in the eyes of the world if US troops stormed in and took them by force. Of course then there might be a few people killed, but they would die with "honor" and many speeches commending their bravery.

In their rush to uphold the image of guardian of the country, these gentlemen seem to have forgotten one basic thing: Both Donovan and Edwin Martin, assistant secretary of state for Latin American affairs, have denied that the United States government has any part in the negotiations. President Kennedy approves of the undertaking, but Donovan is not acting as an agent of the government.

The Cuban Families Committee is a private organization, therefore the negotiations are none of the United States government's business, they have nothing to do with the "se[illegible] of the United States," and sin[illegible] Committee is interested in the [illegible]lease of Cuban prisoners, why Cramer, should their concern with "our own citizens being held the Communists [illegible] world?"

Are we that egot[illegible] we cannot see pa[illegible] Are United States citizens [illegible]sically so much better tha[illegible] human beings, th[illegible] basic concern should b[illegible] security of the U[illegible] cannot our real and ba[illegible] be the welfare of mankind.

. . . CHAIN STORES

Both discussions will be held in the Starry Conference Room, 220 Business. In each session the first hour will be divided among the panel members for a few remarks.

Individual conferences with the speakers may be arranged for Friday, at the desk in the lobby of the Business Bldg.

James C. Hardy, FSU director of placement will moderate the panel discussions. Members of the panel will be R. A. Stelzenmuller, personnel recruiter of college students for Sears and Roebuck Stores; Isabel S. Jaffrey, personnel director for Burdine's' Mrs. Mary B. Southwoth, owner of Mary's Corner; Edward Miller, owner of Miller's Inc., Tallahassee; Richard Dunn, merchandising manager at May-Cohens, Jacksonville; and Bartlett Carrell, personnel director of the seven Maas Bros. Stores.

"Careers in Merchandising" is being sponsored by Alpha Delta Sigma, American Marketing Association, Fashion Incorporated, fashion merchandising students, Gamma Alpha Chi and the Home Economics Association.

. . . SENATE

Shepherd added that this sole agent policy will eliminate political pressures in bidding and will take care of the previous lack of organization. He further stated that Overstreet has arranged to set up an office on campus, which will make purchasing and communications simpler.

In other Senate action yesterday, Senate President Johnny Smith appointed a non-senator, Bob Kerrigan, as parliamentarian of Student Senate, and Clyda Stoakes, former senator, as chairman of the Senate-Student Relations Committee.

President Smith also announced the meetings of the Annual Student Government Retreat, and urged members of the student body to attend. There will be a called Student Senate meeting at the Reservation at 12:45 p.m., Saturday, to give interested students an opportunity to observe the Senate in action.

Liberal Forum

Rules Guide All Actions

BY TED HARVEY
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Do college students really need rules?" was the topic of Dr. DeHart Krans, University psychologist, as he addressed the Liberal Forum Sunday night.

Almost every aspect of life, began Krans, is controlled by rules of some sort. Eating, breathing and sleeping are all guided by basic rules of society, and in the same manner our other actions are guided.

Most of the rules that we face, Krans stated, are thrust upon us by society. Rules as such, faced from infancy, we resist, yet eventually we accept and obey them. We begin to act in accordance with these rules, because we need them, and life has much less conflict and indecision when such rules can be followed, the speaker asserted.

Without rules, we find ourselves helpless and unable to cope with many situations; life becomes chaotic and aimless.

During a transition period, roughly ages 12 through 25, difficult rules for sexual behavior are enforced. They are confusing, difficult, and usually less understood than other rules of society, Krans declared. He said that these rules are more easily understood when compared to a more efficient system--military discipline.

A combat soldier is faced with a difficult task: staying in the battle and resisting the urge to run away. Rules and regulations require him to do this, and there are several reasons why these regulations work.

Usually, the speaker said, the rules are made clear and specific, leaving no doubts concerning what to do. They are feasible, within the abilities of those who are to do them. Third, there is no conflict of authority.

If a rule of society does not fit these specifications, it should be changed, Krans declared.

Many rules imposed on college students are not only extremely hazy in terminology, but applied differently according to sex and age, the psychologist asserted. He noted that rules concerning sexual and social behavior are often difficult for students to follow, as a strictness is demanded beyond their ability. He said that, not only are the regulations ill-defined and hard to live up to, but many students receive little or no training in living up to these precepts of society.

For all the enforcement and lip service given to the rules by authorities and students, they remain greatly ignored, the psychologist declared. In previous years, sexual conduct rules were enforced somewhat by the fear of venereal disease, continued Krans, but this discouragement has been greatly lessened by medicine.

FSU SOCCER TEAM TO BATTLE FLORIDA

Six members of FSU's International Soccer Team scrimmage in preparation for Saturday's match with the University of Florida in Gainesville. The match will begin at 10 a.m. Scrimmaging are (left to right) Peter Hales of Jacksonville, [illegible] Key Biscayne both German born, but now American citizens; Pattan Vitoonsant of Thailand; goalie Rick LaPan of Corinth, N.Y.; Roger Cheng of Formosa; and Alan Schwartz of New York.

Bulldog-Seminole Hassle Set Saturday In Georgia Stadium

The University of Georgia will [illegible] Saturday when it takes the Florida State Seminoles at 2 p.m.

Both teams have a 2-1-1 record.

The Seminoles upset the Bulldogs, 3-0, at Tallahassee last year and boast perhaps their best outfit in history. They have only lost to Miami, 7-6, at Miami and they outplayed the Hurricanes. They were tied 0-0 by Kentucky at Lexington and they outplayed the Wildcats. [illegible] to top-notch Alabama, 35-0, at [illegible] South Carolina, 7-7, at Columbia [illegible] at Clemson.

The FSU-Georgia series:
Georgia 14, FSU 0 (1954)
Georgia 47, FSU 14 (1955)
[illegible]
Georgia 28, FSU 13 (1958)
FSU 3, Georgia 0 (1961)

Despite the 3-0 Seminole victory [illegible] not to get cocky, pointing out earlier scores. In addition, he said, "They (the Bulldogs) have improved a lot during their first three games..they looked strong against Alabama in the first part of the game."

The 'Dogs will send quarterback Larry Rakestraw in to command rookie Coach Johnny Griffith's crew. Rakestraw, termed "one of the finest quarterbacks we'll face this season" by FSU coaches, recently became a hurler of the long, deadly passes.

Jim Sims

The Georgia captains will have to meet two other crackers in the field Saturday afternoon. Both season captain Gene McDowell of Waycross and co-captain Jim Sims, a senior tackle, of LaGrange are from the Peach State.

McDowell, who is the player that Peterson says he could least afford to lose, will be doing double duty Saturday because of injuries to linemen.

McDowell will work out as usual with the two-way Chiefs, but will also see some action with the defensive Renegades.

The Georgians lead the Seminole defensive chart with 27 tackles and eight assists for a total of 35.

Close behind is Marianna's Dick Hermann, a sophomore guard with the Renegades. The Panhandler has dragged down [illegible] and helped to floor 12 others for a total of 31. UNC String Four Perform Tomorrow

The North Carolina String Quartet from Chapel Hill will present a program at 8:15 Saturday night.

The concert by the four musicians of the University of North Carolina will be at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. Presented under the auspices of the FSU School of Music, the program is free and open to the public.

The quartet is scheduled to play numerous concerts this season at colleges and community concert series from Virginia to Florida, many of them return engagements. It has made frequent appearances [illegible].

During the eleven years of performing together quartet members Edgar and Dorothy Alden, Jean Heard, and Mary Gray Clarke have played for a wide variety of audiences.

Last year the group was invited to play for the General Assembly in Raleigh and gave a program on the floor of the House of Representatives. This year it has been requested to play at the Governor's Mansion in a special concert.

Alden, first violinist, teaches violin, music theory, and graduate courses in musicology at the University of North Carolina and is associate conductor of the University Symphony. Educated at Oberlin College and the University of North Carolina, he joined the University faculty in 1949.

Mrs. Alden, also a graduate of Oberlin, plays viola. She is equally accomplished on the violin and has often appeared with her husband in duo concerts.

Mrs. Heard, second violinist, has degrees from the University of Alabama and from the Juillard School of Music in New York.

Miss Clarke, cellist, is an instructor in the Music Dept. and first cellist of the University Symphony. She holds master's degrees from the Manhattan School of Music and from UNC and has performed in concerts in Germany as well as in this country.

The program at FSU will include Haydn's "Quartet in G Major, Opus 54, No. 1"; Bartok's "Quartet No. 2, Opus 17"; and Ravel's "Quartet in F Major."

The quartet's contributions to the University of North Carolina and to the community have been priased editorially by the Greensboro (N.C.) Daily News.

STUDENT SUSPENDED

A student found guilty by the Honor Court of stealing the textbook of another student and then selling it has been sentenced to immediate suspension from the University.

The case, tried by the Honor Court on Oct. 11, has been reviewed and approved by the faculty disciplinary committee. All actions involving suspension from the University have automatic appeal to the President.

The court also levied a fine equal to the value of the textbook on the student.

Four students were tried on a charge of using I.D. cards illegally to obtain admission to the FSU-Furman football game, and were sentenced to lose the privilege of using I.D.'s for free admission to university events for the remainder of the trimester.

Two students involved in a case of falsification of senior automatics were sentenced to one trimester of Honor Court probation. One of the students was charged with deliberate falsification of records, and the other was found guilty of deception and lying to persons in authority.

A student charged with deliberate deception for using his I.D. card to obtain admission to the Furman game for a friend from another school, was found guilty and sentenced to a trimester of Honor Court probation.

THE HIGHEST BIDDER

. . .walked away with a faculty member yesterday afternoon to work as a slave and to do anything his master wishes. The highest slave, Dr. Stephen Winters, brought in the most bounty for the benefit of the Campus Chest amounting to 46.05 put up by the Delta Zeta's.

Faculty Slaves Gather Large Pot Of Gold

By BILL SMART

The Campus Chest gained $246.15 last night at the Kappa Delta-Pi Kappa Phi Faculty Auction on Westcott steps.

The auction is an annual affair at which the services of faculty members are auctioned off for the benefit of the Campus Chest. The faculty "slaves" agree to do "anything reasonable" for their purchasers for this cause.

The Castawavs combo provided entertainment for the crowd until the auction began. Chairmen of the event were Bill Branch and Marsha Lynn with Chuck Wilson as auctioneer.

The bidding was lively, with Dr. Stephen Winters bringing in the most money to the Chest. Winters went to Delta Zeta sorority for $46.05. In other bidding, Dr. William Rogers sold for $15 to Delta Zeta; University Vice-president John Champion for $10.00 to Kappa Delta; Coach Addison Gilbert for $23.75 to Circus; Dean Donald Loucks for $25.00 to Delta Delta Delta; Social Director Marie Williams for $14.00 to Phi Mu; Major Robert Kalina for $12.35 to Alpha Xi Delta; Dr. Daisy Parker to Kappa Delta Housemother Mrs. W.R. Spradling for $15.00; Mrs. Kay Vernon for $25.50 to Gamma Phi Beta; President Gordon Blackwell, in absentia, for $18.00 to Pi Kappa Phi; Fraternity Adviser Hal Smith for $30.00 to Tau Epsilon Phi; "Peter Rabbit" for $6.00 to Alpha Xi Delta, and a painting entitled "Halo that Slipped" for $5.50 to Richard White.

Tickets Are On Sale

Organizations that want block tickets for the Nov. 17 game should pick up IBM cards from the table in front of the Central Ticket Office in Westcott beginning today.

Each card is to be filled out with the name and ID number of the person and returned accompanied by $1. next Tuesday or Wednesday.

No date (non-student) tickets will be sold at this time.

All blocks must have a minimum of 30 people.

Regular student tickets will go on sale Tuesday, at 1 p.m. for $1. Date tickets will be sold starting Oct. 29, for $5 each. Absolutely no tickets may be exchanged.

Attorney General Fletcher said that assignment of the 4,000 end zone seats which have been alloted to the FSU student body will be handled in an impartial manner. According to Fletcher, the business manager of U of F has said that ID cards of all students of both schools will be checked at the gate.

Coordinate Courses

THE LONG-AWAITED re-establishment of journalism courses at Florida State University has finally been announced, and the nature of the new program points to an interesting issue.

"Unnecessary duplication" was the reason given when FSU's School of Journalism was abolished several years ago. At that time, the Board of Control decided that one state university, the one in Gainesville, could fill the state's needs in professional journalism.

Emotions became so heated that another, more important phase of the question was completely ignored. In their zeal to avoid costly "duplication," officials forgot that there is an educational as well as a professional side to journalism. They therefore cut both the professional and educational journalism courses at FSU.

This indiscriminate trimming of educational offerings was dismayingly hasty, but at least it has finally been rectified. Werner A. Baum, Dean of the Faculties, went out of his way to reassure those who doubt FSU's intentions with the new journalism program.

WE DO NOT intend to use these few courses as a springboard back to a School of Journalism. The purpose is to train teachers to work with high school journalists.

With 12 hours of educationally-oriented journalism courses, FSU graduates in education can be certified to teach journalism in addition to their major subject. This double qualification is an obvious advantage to the graduate applying for a job.

These courses, however, should offer more than a simple text-book acquaintance with journalism. In school, as in the professional world, there is no substitute for practical experience.

ALL STUDENTS are welcomed as staff members of the campus newspaper, yearbook, magazine, literary anthology and handbook, but such participation seems unavoidable to one who intends to advise similar publications on the high school level.

When the journalism courses are actually begun, some sort of arrangement should be made between the instructors and the student publications so that journalism students could, as part of their course work, help in the preparation of an FSU publication.

The publications are more than willing to co-operate in such a program. It will be up to the instructors to take advantage of this opportunity for practical experience for their students.

Trimester System -- A Disease?

Squefusion is defined in Goobies Dictionary of Estoteric Terms for Knowledgeable Idiots as follows: "A disease caused by pressing too hard or closely, exerting pressure on, most often applicable to a student who is obtaining a hard-buck education is paperback time."

A most interesting malady at the least you must agree. Becoming interested I looked further into the matter.

It seems that the cause of this strange disorder is believed to be some type of new organism which has come to have been known as the trimester. As this is a rare and relatively new organism found chiefly in one of the southern states, there isn't too much known about it. It seems to breed best in uncertainty and in the few cases known, hasn't lasted for any great lengths of time, as may well be expected.

The spreader of this malady has been been identified as those who appear periodically before students with an hour and a half of lecture which in unconceivalby squeezed into a neat 55 minutes. Littering minds with trivialities to a greater or lesser degree, which causes mass confusion, hysteria and bewilderment, overt sym... of squefusion.

As far as I'm able to discern, the cure should be attempted at the source. Hour and a half lectures should be trimmed to fit the alloted time. Presently the students are suffering from over work. I realize that this in not a new complaint of college students, but never have the complaints been so well founded.

Sad Year For Student Senate

To the Editor:

This year your Student Senate has earned its annual title of being "Mickey Mouse," as well as being one of the most inefficient and politically corrupt in recent Student Government history.

Here midterms have come and gone and what has the Senate done? Nothing! The important Elections and Appointments Committee under Sen. Curry Bassett met once to consider presidential appointments made this school year. Sen. Grant's Judicial and Rules Committee has not met as yet. Last year under the experienced and capable hands of Sen. Jeanie Ferlita this committee was the most active and perhaps the most important of all committees.

Perhaps this isn't the fault of the chairmen of these committees, for both men have never been part of the Senate before and lack the valuable knowledge of experience. Although Vice President Smith has appointed these men (political favors) with full knowledge of their inexperience in Senate he should aid them to the fullest. If Smith fails, he not only hurts these men, but has ruined the 1962-63 Student Senate.

Last Wednesday the Senators decided to vote immediately on a measure that will affect us for several years and involves about $65,-000 a year. They committed us to a sole insurance man. A motion was put forth by myself to let a Senate committee study this important measure for one week so that the Senators could familiarize themselves with the proposal. The motion failed for lack of a se... They voted on the argument put forth by one man. If the National Congress did what we did Wedne... they would be laughed out of Washington.

Last year's Senate under President Ken van Assenderp ... midterm had considered 11 ... and eighteen resolutions. Thi... year's Senate has not begun to approach that record.

Perhaps this article will start our elected officials working once more, and perhaps it will draw criticism from them in order to cover up their mistakes, and perhaps they will try to bury me politically for telling you the deep secrets of Longmire Building. But I feel I have done the right thing.

Urban Concert

A recital in commemoration of Belgium violin virtuoso Eugene Ysaye will be given tonight by FSU Professor of Music Bela Urban.

The second faculty recital of the season will begin at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall and is free and open to the public.

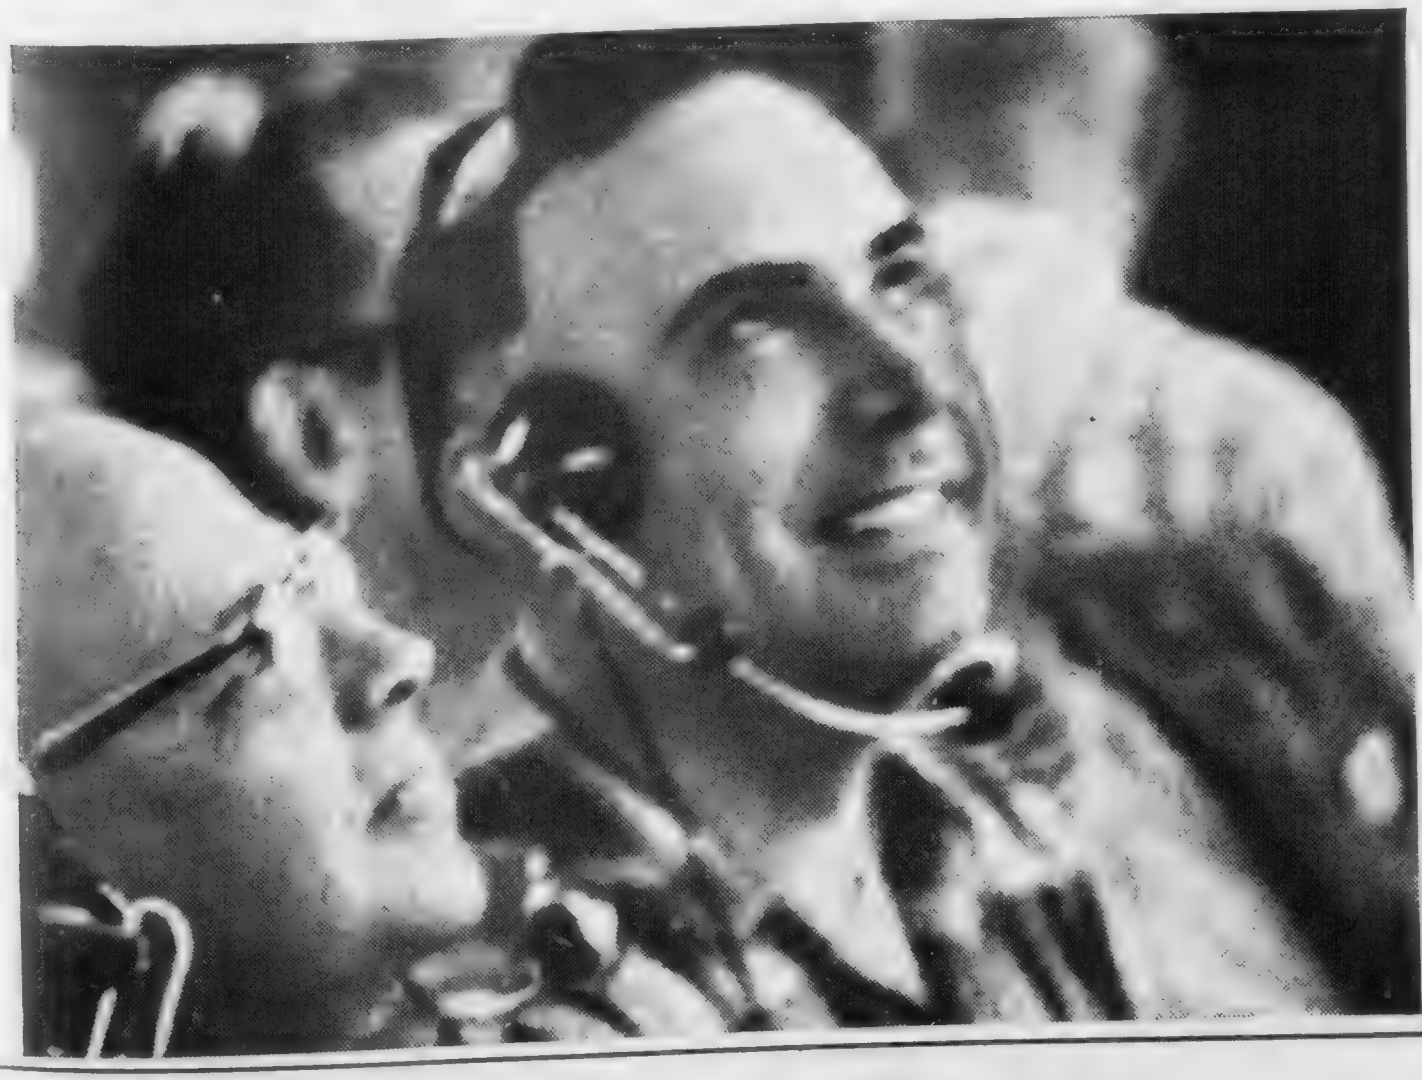
Urban will play Stradivarius and Guarneris violins during the concert.

The FSU program has been selected by Urban as representative of Ysaye not only as a composer, but of the great violinist's style of playing. The Nardini "Sonata" on the program was transcribed by Ysaye as a composite of movements from three original Nardini Sonatas. The Saint-Saens' "Caprice" in the form of a waltz is a Ysaye transcription noted for its extreme difficulty. Viotti's "Twenty Second Violin Concerto" was included because of the brilliant cadenza written for it by Ysaye and because Ysaye made the work famous by his unique interpretation.

Reflections of Telstar

Remember the picture above? It flashed across your television screen on a hot night last July. Perhaps you remember that it originated from France. And that it reached the U. S. via Telstar, the world's first private enterprise communications satellite.

Since that summer night, the Bell System's Telstar has relayed electronic signals of many types—television broadcasts, telephone calls, news photographs, and others.



But there's one Telstar reflection you might have missed. Look into the faces of the Bell System people below and you'll see it. It is the reflection of Telstar's success that glowed brightly on the faces of all who shared in the project.

Their engineering, administrative and operations skills created Telstar and are bringing its benefits down out of the clouds to your living room.

These Bell System people, through their talented, dedicated efforts, make your phone service still better, more economical, and more useful.

School Spending Is To Triple By 1970

Florida will double or triple its educational expenditures by 1970, Dr. Stephen J. Knezevich, head of the FSU Administration, Supervision and Curriculum Dept., has predicted in a report distributed this week by the Florida Council on Economic Development.

Calling public school spending an investment in people, Knezevich said state spending for all educational institutions would total between $900 million and $1.3 billion a year in less than a decade.

"This is roughly two to three times present levels," he said.

Spending for public education is an investment by government in the State's economic development, he said. Economic growth is generated not only by physical assets and the quantity of labor "but also by improvements in human capital," he stressed.

Just as technical improvements step up the efficiency of machinery, education increases the efficiency of manpower, he continued.

Spending of $1.3 billion for education would take about 6.66 percent of personal income of $20 billion. Currently, education spending takes about 3.64 percent of Florida's personal income, considerably less than the 4.1 percent national average, he said.

Florida will have the wealth to support quality education at all levels in 1970, he said. Whether it will choose to do so is another question.

But he added, "If the state's wealth and economic growth are to be maintained or increased, it will be imperative that the people of Florida allocate the resources necessary for a quality system."

Although the report was distributed by the Florida Council on Economic Development, chairman Mrs. Ouida Baggett Regan, said the council had neither approved nor disapproved of the comments.

This was announced after an extensive study of the results of the American Council on Education Psychological Examination and the School and College Ability Test. Conducting the study of test results was the FSU Office of Institutional Research and Service.

According to the study, when the girls' school became a university in 1947, the average student of the FSU student body ranked only in the 44th percent on the national scale.

FSU's percentile, compared with national figures, continued to drop until, in 1952, the average FSU student was 36th nationally. At that point, the trend reversed itself completely.

By 1962, a freshman who stood in the bottom 10 percent of his FSU class rated in the 40th percentile according to national norms, and the average student ranked 70th nationally.

Although greatest and most significant rises took place in the lower percentiles of the student body, standards at the top also rose. A 1962 freshman standing 90th at FSU was 94th on the national scale.

Dr. Hugh Stickler, director of the research office, explained his interpretation of some of the significant changes that are reflected in the figures.

INTERPRETATION

From 1947 to 1950, FSU's rating gradually decreased, as the number of GI students registering decreased. In 1950 also, the FSU percentile dropped sharply, coinciding with the start of the Korean War, as good students left the University to enter the Army.

A sudden boost in the rating in 1955, Stickler said, was caused by the University's instituting a system of selective admission. He explained that until this time, there had been no method of selecting students to attend FSU.

The latest dramatic change in the figures occurred this year, Stickler pointed out, as the result of the University raising admission requirements. In the past years, a score of 200 on the Florida Statewide Twelfth Grade Tests has been used as a minimal cutoff.

This year, the minimal score was raised to 300, thereby eliminating automatically a large number of the lower percentiles of students, Stickler said.

Campus Chest Readys Drive

Campus Chest is now making plans to launch its annual drive January 23-29 for student contributions to charitable organizations.

This FSU version of the United Fund is a substitute for individual drives of numerous organizations. World University Service, Helen Keller Crusade for the Blind, Project Hope, and the Tallahassee Tuberculosis Association were among the groups supported by Campus Chest last year.

Libby Gentile is chairman of the committee. Other members are Fran Harper, recording secretary; Molly Darrah, corresponding secretary; Louise Carter, Patty Childs, Bucky Fry, Ginger Strobeck, Jay Geisenhof, Bob Hays, Judy Loucks, Marsha Lynn, Susan Mauger, Bill Mercer, Suzie Miller, Jane Turnage, Mike Henniger and Lisa Bagley.

Fraternities and sororities are no longer obligated to contribute any of the money made on individual projects to the Campus Chest. Some groups, however, sponsor events to raise money for the Campus Chest, such as the Kappa Delta-Pi Kappa Phi Faculty Auction scheduled for Thursday at 5:15 p.m., and the Sigma Kappa Variety Show.

Gotta Yen To Wrestle?

By JOHN MCCOTTER
Flambeau Staff Writer

If you are an ancient Greek, and you have, as most ancient Greeks do, a yen to see a wrestling match, you would expect to see two well-oiled young men grappling in a pit full of sand.

If you are an ancient Turkish sultan, and you have a yen, as ancient Turkish sultans will have, to see a wrestling match, you would expect to see two well-oiled young men grappling on a polished marble floor at your feet, and the loser's brains would be dashed out on that floor.

If you are a modern American, and you have, as a very few modern Americans will have, a yen to see a wrestling match, you would turn on your T.V. set and expect to see two well-oiled apes performing a ridiculous pantomine of good-guys vs. bad-guys.

But if you are anyone of the above people, and you decide to satisfy your yen by witnessing a collegiate wrestling match, you will probably be surprised-- and maybe a little disappointed. For there are no good-guys or bad-guys in this league and no play-acting.

But if you really knew what wrestling was all about, you would realize that one element that makes the world's oldest sport live forever is present in every college match-- two men matching their brains and brawn without the aid of instruments of any kind.

Collegiate wrestling surpasses its predecessors in many ways, however. For one thing, the loser of a match is not killed or banished, but given a chance to improve. If anything, a man you have defeated before can be more dangerous than than a new opponent, for he has probably worked out a defense for whatever trapped him before.

The heavy coat of oil so common to the ancients has been replaced by light knee pads and plastic ear-guards, and the polished marble floor has been replaced by a plastic-covered mat.

The no-holds-barred philosophy has been replaced by strict regulations ranging from the length of one's fingernails to improper pressure on joints.

The last and greatest attribute of collegiate wrestling is the attitude of everyone connected with the sport. To say that good sportsmanship is stressed would be an understatement. Some newcomers to the sport, especially those with previous football training, find it harder to adjust mentally to the sport than they do to ajust physically to the extremely rugged conditioning.

It takes the will-power of a yoga to regard an opponent impassionately, but it's the only way to win.

The cry baby, groaner, and win-at-all-cost type enjoy a short life in collegiate wrestling.

But to really feel what collegiate wrestling is all about, you have to see it, and this brings me around to the main point of this article-- the opening of practice of the Seminole Wrestling Club. The club is not officially sponsored by the University, although most of its members are students. Its standing in the state is near the top, and its members are an extremely close-knit group.

Although several members are already getting into condition, the first official practice will be Monday, Oct. 29th, in the wrestling room at Tully Gymnasium. Practice will begin at 3:45 p.m. All interested male students of ANY weight may join. NO previous experience is necessary.

What Wood Be

Wood Sees FSU Win

By JOHN WOOD
Assistant Sports Editor

Another Saturday looms deac ahead, and with it a host of gridiron grapples. This week all the powers in the Top Ten are putting it on the line, and Alabama may even have a little trouble for a change.

This is the way I think things will turn out Saturday:

Alabama over Tennessee--another hard struggle for the Tide. Arkansas over Texas--another No. 1 team gets the shaft. Army over VPI--Dietzel's Cadets bid for National Ranking. Georgia Tech over Auburn--that Auburn street comes to an abrupt halt. Duke will down Clemson by about two touchdowns. Florida State over Georgia--let's show them how we play football down here. Furman over W&M--look out William and Mary, here comes Paladin. Florida over Vanderbilt--Gators will beach the Commodores for Homecoming.

West Virginia over George Washington. Mississippi over Tulane in a walkaway. Mississippi State over Houston--one of the most evenly matched games. The Louisiana State Bengals will tame the Kentucky Wildcats. MIRAculous Miami tames the Maryland Terrapins. Michigan over Purdue in a squeaker. Ohio State over Northwestern--the game of the week. UCLA continues their streak and downs Pitt. Penn State over Syracuse. TCU over Texas A&M. Washington over Stanford.

LAST WEEK'S RESULTS: nine right, six wrong for a .600 percentage for my first week.

Ex-FSU Gridder Tallies 5 TD's Against W & M

Against William and Mary this week, the 6-4, 200-pound Hawkins scored five touchdowns for Emory and Henry to give W&M its first loss in 15 games. Hawkins ran a kickoff back 85 yards for one of the touchdowns

Soccer Match Scheduled Tomorrow Against Florida

The "Florida game" is no longer just a football contest between Florida State and the Gators on Nov. 17. Instead, it's the game scheduled at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Gainesville between University of Florida's soccer team and the International Soccer Team of FSU.

The International team, composed in part of students from foreign countries studying at FSU, is frankly worried about "depth" of the opposition as it practices on a field behind the University School.

"They have 50 or more players," said team captain Bodo Pyko, a native of Germany but now an American citizen from Key Biscayne. He is in his senior year as a pre-med student at FSU.

"In soccer the rules say there can be no substitutions," he said. "Eleven players play the two 40-minute halves for the entire game if anyone gets hurt that's just too bad--the team keeps on playing with 10 men.

Another worry is the language problem, Pyko said. Most of the Florida players are from Spanish-speaking countries and so they communicate in Spanish during the game. None of the FSU players speaks Spanish--although they know eight other languages. As a result they have to communicate in English and the Gainesville boys understand every word they say.

"We thought of teaching all our boys to speak Chinese so no one would understand what we said" smiled Roger Cheng, a graduate student of space biosciences from Formosa, captains of last year's team and co-captain this year.

There's plenty of respect among the FSU players for the Florida team. According to Pyko, the Gainesville team has won 58 games straight. Last year the team won over FSU's 7-0. The FSU team's only other game year was with a 7-5 loss to a St. Petersburg team.

The FSU aggregation will go onto the field this time more dressed for the affair than ever before. By special arrangement with the Athletic Department, the booters expect to wear old football jerseys, shorts from the basketball wardrobe, socks from the baseball lockers and hockey shin guards from the Women's Gymnasium. Sneakers, which the players buy themselves, will have to serve as in the past in place of cleated shoes for some of the team.

Tribes, Bulldogs To Square Off For 7th Go Saturday

The Florida State football team will kickoff at 2 p.m. tomorrow against the Georgia Bulldogs. Both team are 2-1-1 on the year, and FSU is--for the first time in its 16-year football history--favored to defeat a Southeastern Conference team.

A crowd of around 30,000 is expected to watch Georgia's home opener--the Bulldogs' seventh meeting with FSU--and most eyes will be focusing on an anticipated air duel between Georiga's Larry Rakestraw and FSU's tandem of Eddie Feely and Steve Tensi.

Nine times in the past 20 years, a Georgia passer has led the SEC in passing; among them such notables as Frank Sinkwich, Zeke Bratkowski and Francis Tarkenton. But Athletic Director and former coach Wally Butts said that Rakestraw could be the very best of them all.

Rakestraw is a 6-2, 198 pound junior quarterback from Atlanta who placed tenth in the nation as a sophomore thrower last Fall. This year, after the four games, he is fourth in the SEC with 23 completions on 51 attempts for 415 yards and three touchdowns.

The touchdowns, incidentally, have been out-and-out "bombs": against Clemson last week in a 24-16 Georgia win, they went for 77 and 74 yards; and in a 7-7 tie with South Carolina he flipped a come-from-behind 68-yarder for the tying score.

This forces another interesting challenge upon FSU's defensive unit, the Renegades. The Renegades have already faced Kentucky's Jerry Woolum and Miami's George Mira, but remain seventh in the nation in pass defense (60.8 per game. one touchdown).

FSU's Feely and Tensi placed the Seminoles in fourth place nationally in passing offense with an average of 201 yards per game a total of eight touchdowns.

Feely, a 5-7 senior from Gai[illegible] ville, has connected on 30 [illegible] for 451 yards and three TD's, T[illegible] si, a 6-5 sophomore from Cin[illegible] nati. has completed 22 of 39 [illegible] for 323 yards and four sco[illegible]

Opera Star Gives Two Recitals

Zinka Milanov Performs Here Tonight

By CHRIS CLARKE
Flambeau Staff Writer

Leading Metropolitan Opera soprano Zinka Milanov will appear in the Auditorium tonight at 8:30 in the first of two recitals.

In her program will be selections from both arias and lieder. Among the arias sung will be works by Verdi and Puccini. The art songs will feature Richard Strauss, Beethoven and others.

Tickets for the performances, today and Wednesday, are on sale at the Westcott Ticket Office. Student tickets are free on presentation of the I.D. card. Tickets for non-students are $3.50.

Madame Milanov, who is in private life the wife of General Ljubo Ilic, Yugoslav Ambassador to Denmark, has been a star at the Metropolitan for several decades and has been called the "greatest dramatic soprano of our time." (Max de Schaunsee, "The Philadelphia Bulletin") She began her studies in her native Yugoslavia where she was discovered and trained by former Metropolitan great, Milka Ternina.

For Americans she is the discovery of conductors Bruno Walter and Arturo Toscanini. Walter invited her to sing the title role in his production of Verdi's "Aida" in Vienna. Toscanini then engaged her to sing in Verdi's "Requiem" at the Salsburg Festival in 1937. At the Festival she was heard by the manager of the Metropolitan Opera, Edward Johnson. Shortly thereafter he engaged her for the Met. She has starred in the opening night production four times. Only four other sopranos, Emma Eames, Emmy Destin, Rosa Ponselle and Elizabeth Rethberg, have matched this record.

Madame Milanov is especially well known for her Verdi and Puccini interpretations. Three of her most popular roles, Mimi in "La Boheme," Tosca in "Tosca" and Leonora in "La Forza de Destino" will be represented in her recital. Selections from these operas will be Mimi's Farewell, Tosca's "Vissi D'arte" and "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio" from "La Forza de Destino."

She will also sing four selections by her brother-accompanist Bozidar Kunz. They are "Longing," "Album Leaf," "Impromptu" and "The World is Empty."

Other lieder selections will include Beethoven's "Die Ehre Gottes in der Natur," and Richard Strauss' "Allesseelen," "Traum durch die Dammerung" and "Zueignung."

Circle K

Circle K, College Key Club, will have its organizational meeting Tuesday at 4 p.m. in 317 Business. All male students interested in joining may attend.

FSU Building Report

Suite Style Dorm Aid Is Received

An air-conditioned eight story men's dormitory with four and eight-man suites will be built at FSU with the aid of a $1,814,000 loan from the federal government.

U.S. Representative Bob Sikes said the Community Facilities Administration has approved the loan. Federal funds will be matched by $700,000 in state funds which were appropriated by the State Legislature last session.

Assistant FSU Business Manager Ray Green said the dormitory will house 540 men. It will be built in two eight-story wings with a one-story core with a basement between the towers.

The four-man and eight-man suites will each have separate bathroom facilities. The smaller suites will cconsist of two bedrooms and two study rooms. The larger suites will be similarly arranged.

Cost to students will go up to $140 a trimester, compared with $110 for the two bunk rooms in the present men's dormitories. Rentals from the units will be used to retire the federal loan.

The dormitory, will also have four apartment suites where members of the faculty and their families can live.

The dormitory will be constructed in an area adjacent to Smith and Kellum men's dormitories, a space which is now occupied by 14 frame houses in Mabry Heights, a community of houses for married students. These buildings will be moved, some of them onto campus to provide additional research and study space.

Plans now include advertising for bids by about Feb. 15, the bids to be returnable March 15. Notice to proceed is presently scheduled for about April 15, and 15 months are allowed for construction. This would allow for occupancy about July 15, 1964, but allowing for usual delays, completion is expected by Aug. 1 to 15, 1964.

First, however, the federal bond issue must by validated in court.

Green said that of the $700,000 in state funds, $471,000 is to go toward construction of the building and $227,000 toward furnishing and equiping it. Construction cost alone, not allowing for architect's and other fees, is estimated at $2,019,6000.

Control Board Approves 13% Faculty Pay Boost

State university faculty members will receive an average of 13 percent pay boosts over the next biannium and FSU faculty pay average will be equalized with those at the University of Florida if recommendarions made by the Board of Control Friday are accepted by other state organs.

The board staff said the increases would bring salaries at Florida Universities up to the national average. Faculty pay has been increased more than 20 percent during the past two years in an effort to strengthen the position of Florida's schools in competing with other states for professors.

RECORD BUDGET

The salary increases were a part of a record $265 million operating budget for the state university system for the 1963-65 school years approved by the Board in a two day session in Gainesville primarily devoted to budget matters.

The record budget figure is up some $91 million over what's being spent to run the university system in the current biennium. Of the total, some $150 million would come from general revenue appropriations.

The request now will go to the State Cabinet, the Budget Commission and the 1963 Legislature.

ADDITIONAL FUNDS

Under the Board of Control action, FSU would receive an additional $240,000 to bring averages of the regular 10-month faculty in line with those at the University of Florida. President of FSU Gordon W. Blackwell said this amount would "assure that our averages by rank would be approximately the same as those at

City, University Decide On FSU Bombing Case

No decision was made Friday by the University Disciplinary Committee on what action is to be taken against five FSU students involved in the tossing of "Molotov Cocktails" at the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity house.

Dean of Men Donald Loucks, a member of the disciplinary committee, said that the committee will meet again today to decide the case. He said that the committee had thoroughly discussed the case, but had postponed a decision until after further thought.

It has been the policy of the University in the past to reserve university action pending the outcome of city court actions.

Thursday, the five students involved appeared before Municipal Court Judge John A. Rudd on a charge of disturbing the peace by throwing torches on a building. All five pleaded guilty.

Judge Rudd ordered the students to clean and paint the steps, pillars and front of the TEP fraternity house. These parts of the Jewish fraternity house caught fire when one of three "Molotov cocktails" tossed from the students' car exploded.

Involved in the homemade bomb-tossing were Gerald Huegel, James Morton, Robert Atwood Jr., Steve Robertson and Tommy McDonald, all members of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

Judge Rudd added that the cleaning of the TEP house is "only a starter" for the five, unless he is completely satisfied of their "repentance."

The students have said they made the bombs--gasoline-filled soft drink bottles --with the intention of throwing them at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon lion, but were discouraged by a sizeable crowd that gathered around the SAE symbol.

They continued that they had considered several other targets--including the Delta Gamma anchor--before driving past the TEP fraternity. The anchor, however, was being carried away by other pranksters as they arrived at the sorority house.

In making his decision, Judge Rudd commented that the students' action "could be construed as a felony, you know. Any time you mess with gas bombs, it isn't a prank."

More Responsibility

ANOTHER UNIVERSITY HAS followed Radcliffe-Harvard's lead in granting almost complete freedom to upper-class coeds. The University of Michigan has exempted senior women from curfews on an experimental basis.

According to Dr. James A. Lewis, vice-president for Student Affairs at Michigan, "The university believes that senior undergraduate women have the maturity and good sense to regulate their social affairs without resorting to the strict regulations which to safety of our younger undergraduates require."

Radcliffe College, sister school to Harvard University, adopted this no-senior-curfew policy two years ago. Women are issued keys to the dormitory. They can check these keys out at anytime. As long as the keys are returned by noon the following day, it is assumed that the girl has returned, attended her classes, etc.

THE SYSTEM WORKED so well with seniors that Radcliffe officials extended the privilege to juniors this year. Michigan, in following Radcliffe's lead, may be pointing up a national trend.

This trend does not necessarily include dropping curfews, but it involves giving students, especially women, greater responsibility for their own actions.

The basic issue is this: "Are college students mature enough to be responsible for their own actions, or do they need to be guarded from themselves?"

College students, if they were not in school, would probably be married, working citizens of the community. As students, however, they are forced into an artifically prolonged adolescence.

MORE AND MORE, educators seem to realize that they cannot expect young people to be mature, capable students and take complete responsibility for choice and pursuit of a vocation while they are in the social atmosphere of a group of children who must be lead by the hand.

Considering that FSU was a Southern women's college only a few years ago, remarkable progress has been made in treating students like adults. The response has been, for the most part, mature actions by the students. We hope this trend will continue, both at FSU and other colleges and universities of the nation.

Sisco Criticism Blasted

To The Editor:

In reply to Senator Tom Sisco's letter in the Flambeau last Friday, I feel that it is my duty as Secretary of Senate to clarify a few points.

The charge that President Smith appointed men to positions as political favors could hardly be valid. There have been nine appointments--four to the Student Party, four to the University Party, and one has been an independent.

According to the Senate records, after six weeks of classes last year only six bills had been introduced into the Senate, not the 11 that Senator Sisco spoke of. This year, also in the span of six weeks, the Senate has introduced eight bills. Furthermore, there were only 16 resolutions passed last year rather than 18, and 3 were congratulatory resolutions. This year's Senate has passed six resolutions.

Concerning the standing committees, last year at this date the committees had just been appointed, and although they were very active throughout the year, I think it is only fair to assume that this year's committees will do as good a job, if not better, than last year's.

In connection with the senator's action on the insurance program, I would like to remind Senator Sisco that this motion [illegible] ly--in other words, against the action [illegible] violently opposed.

It is not my intention to cut Senator Sisco, but only to ask to give us a chance to match and haps surpass the fine record last year's Senate. [illegible] to ask Senator Sisco to help this the best year ever [illegible]

If he feels that [illegible] needed, then it is his [illegible] ator to introduce it [illegible] so he should remember [illegible] more important to have [illegible] quantity.

[illegible]

To The Editor:

I have only one comment to make on Senator Tom Sisco's bad taste and inaccurate letter.

Is it possible, Senator Sisco, that you are jealous that you did not receive one of the appointments which you denounce so harshly?

Why Rush Things?

To The Editor:

If there's one thing I really hate, it's a prejudiced person.

Matt Straub asks that we stop all the babbling about States' Rights, (although the states were created first and they made the Federal Government) and the babbling about equal schooling, (even though Southern schools are a year behind Northern schools, there is no reason not to slow them down another year or two or three by total integration) and the babbling about civil rights, (even though the 14th and 15th Amendments were signed by the Southern States under duress, violating their civil rights) and get in a position to look at this mess, one more basic point seems to loom out. Rome declined and fell into the rule of barbarian nations due to the effort of the masses to seek the high level of living standards and the culture of the rulers. The slaves and peons wanted to have a state of "all chiefs. No Indians." In Brave New World the idea of brainwashing the working class is proposed to keep these people at the status level they are born into; In our country, this would be cruel, but why rush onward to full education for all? When the Negro is fully educated, who will be willing to do janitorial services or unskilled labor for less than three or four dollars per hour? (assuming our inflationary trend continues).

The Southern Negro is becoming more educated all the time and eventually he will be socially acceptable, but until then, why rush these things and cause hard feelings for all, or don't white peoples feelings matter any more?

Expel Bombers

To The Editor:

"Brewer's evaluation is that the group was committing an immature act with no malicious intent involved."

This excerpt from the "Flambeau" shows one of two things. Either Dean Brewer is extremely gullible, which is highly doubtful, or he doesn't see things as bad as they really are for the five bombers who pulled a Molotov cocktail raid on the Tau Epsilon Phi Fraternity house recently.

For some strange reason, I believe that college men are past the stage of this type of childish prank. One just does not go around hurling weapons of destruction at any time. No one seems to realize what might have happened if these three bottles of gasoline had landed on target. Not only is it entirely possible that the fraternity gouse could have gone up in flames, but innocent people inside the house sleeping or preparing for bed might have been killed.

Punishment should be delivered swiftly and mercilessly. These "little children," (mentally, at least) should not only be subjected to stern civil action, but should be expelled from school immediately. It would be easy to say, "Give them another chance," but they do not deserve another chance.

Joy Davidson Recital Praised

Flambeau Staff Writer

Joy Davidson is a young mezzo-soprano of singular accomplishment. Thursday night for an hour and a half she delighted an audience in Opperman Music Hall. For the first two numbers Mrs. Davidson seemed a little nervous, but both singer and audience forgot this as both concentrated on music.

The first selections were from Bach's "Magnificat." Even these, written in the so-called "objective" period of Bach were sung with enthusiasm and yet did not lose the congruity of their style.

By the third work Mrs. Davidson's voice was fully warmed. The song, entitled "Mrs. M.E.: Her Funeral Tears on the Death of her Husband" was written in 1606 by the English composed John Danyel. Its unique three-part composition and the contrasts of the various sections are a test for any singer. Mrs. Davidson passed remarkably well.

Then followed two pieces by Haydn. [illegible] was a mermaid's song with many coloratura-like runs and trills. The second, a lament from Haydn's "Orfeo ed Euridice," showed foreshadowings of the dramatic aria style that was developed to its fullest in the 19th century.

It is an extremely rare voice that can do justice to both opera and lieder. Only a few singers of the past four or five decades have been able to sing the two forms.

Mrs. Davidson sang the lieder of Gustav Mahler "Songs of a Wayfarer" cycle with both beauty and continuity. Perhaps one of the most striking of her qualities is economy. In an age when singers seem to dote upon syrupy emoting and dripping sentiment she sings with a reserve that is refreshing while still retaining the vocal [illegible] imum effect of her [illegible]

FSU Student Is Suspended

An FSU student was suspended from school Wednesday for discharging a firearm, destroying state property and possessing a lethal weapon on the University campus, announced Dean of Men Donald Loucks.

Brad Munroe was apprehended by the Tallahassee police Friday, Oct. 12, at 7:30 a.m. while discharging a weapon in front of the Kappa Alpha fraternity house.

University policy often allows a student who has been suspended to return to school during a later term if his behavior in the interim is acceptable.

...Growing with the Future

Homecoming Plans Are In Full Swing

"Plans for creating 'a future view of FSU' this Homecoming are in full swing," Bill Harnage, student vice chairman of Homecoming said.

Homecoming, Nov. 2 through 4, will have a futuristic theme and will be geared toward student interests, Harnage added. "Therefore it is somewhat changed from the Homecomings of past years," explained Harnage. The Pow Wow in particular will include new features, such as a spectacular bonfire.

He urged that students also plan to attend some events this year which have not had a great deal of student participation in the past, such as the Homecoming barbecue.

There will be the traditional Homecoming parade Friday afternoon and the banquet preceeding the Pow Wow, Friday night. Saturday evening, the Homecoming dance will follow the futuristic theme with the use of rocket ships and fluorescent lighting. Preceeding the dance, a singing and instrumental group, The Journeymen, will entertain in two shows in Westcott and will then perform at the dance. In addition to The Journeymen, comedian Bobby Hackett will perform in the Westcott show.

Sunday morning there will be an Alumni breakfast honoring the class of 1912.

AROUND THE WORLD

WASHINGTON-- The United States has condemned Communist China for what it calls "violent and aggressive action" in its border dispute with India. And it has expressed sympathy for India. But officials of the State Department do not believe that the border fighting in the Himalaya Mountains will erupt into a full scale war.

Meanwhile the fighting between India and Red China has gone through a second day-- with both sides reporting heavy casualties, but giving no figures. Indian troops continue to retreat as the Chinese continue to attack in considerable strength.

Indian troops have been driven out of six or seven posts. India says its troops are taking up new defensive positions.

NEW YORK-- A United Nations Commission has accused Communist North Korea of persistent defiance of UN principles for the unification of Korea. The Commission said North Korean broadcasts last June made no reference to means for assuring a genuinely free choice to the Korean people in the process of unification.

WASHINGTON-- The nation's capital is filled with reports and speculation that the United States is about to make a major--and perhaps sensational-- move in the Cuban situation. The Kennedy administration is saying absolutely nothing about such a move. The only hard fact which might back up the reports is that Air, Navy and Marine forces have been concentrated in recent days in the Florida-Caribbean area. The official explanation for this is that the United States is holding its annual naval maneuvers in Puerto Rico.

Rio de Janeiro-- The Russian ambassador to Brazil drowned today during a beach outing at Rio de Janeiro. Witnesses said the ambassador was caught in a high wave and pulled under. Another member of the embassy staff also was caught in the wave and is missing.

ACROSS THE NATION

LUTCHER, NEW ORLEANS-- Twelve bodies have been recovered from a Norwegian Motor Tanker, grounded in the Mississippi River near Lutcher, Louisiana-- after a collision, fire and explosions aboard the ship. Seven others aboard the ship are still missing. The ship is loaded with highly explosive cargo of chemicals-- and though the ship was still burning last night it's believed there is now little danger of explosion.

PASSADENA, CALIF.-- The Jet propulsion laboratory in Passadena, California-- which built the Ranger V spacecraft-- says the Ranger came within 450 miles of the Moon today. Then th spacecraft curved around the other side of the Moon toward a probable orbit around the sun. But we'll never see anything of what this Ranger saw. Its television camera is dead.

...Board Approves Faculty Pay Raise

the University of Florida, which was pleasing to us."

For the past five years, the average nationally at comparable institutions has been increasing between five and seven percent, each year, Blackwell said.

The proposed increases would be at "approximately the same rate that other institutions will have during the same two-year period," he added.

"We are of course pleased that we can count upon at least this much for increases," the president said.

FSU AVERAGES

If the increases are finally approved, during the 1963-64 school year FSU faculty members would average by rank, $14,083 for full professors; $10,550, associate professors; $8,709, assistant professors; and $7,140, instructors.

However, these figures are for two and a half trimesters, while the national averages are computed on the basis of two semesters of teaching.

The Board also recommended that the salaries of UF presidents and that of the Executive Director of the Board J. Broward Culpepper be boosted from $17,500 to $25,000 a year.

Of the total budget, $48 million is earmarked for new buildings.

Culpepper said a plan to raise the extra millions for the university system above the $150 million request from general appropriations will be presented to the Legislature.

The second step he suggested was the passing of new laws or a constitutional amendment to provide the money needed to keep ahead of college enrollment.

Homecoming Queen

Final Voting Is Tuesday

Final selection of the Homecoming Queen will be tomorrow.

The five candidates to be voted on are Peggy Bruce, Evelyn Foy, Diana Goodwin, Kitty Miller and Fairfax Mathers. All members of the student body are eligible to vote for one of these persons, Secretary of Elections Joy Jones said.

Voting will be held across from the ticket office in Westcott, across from Bryan Hall, at the Seminole Club and at the Student Center. These polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The person getting the highest number of votes will be the Homecoming Queen. The other four will be members of the Court. The identity of the Queen will not be made known until the Pow Wow, Nov. 2.

Because complications in the process of "Who's Who" nominations the "Who's Who" elections will not be held until Friday, Jones said.

Student Government Guest Speaks On Economic Link

An economic link between America and Europe, in the form of an Atlantic Partnership, is needed, "based on a full realization of the need for greater understanding and interdependency," Rolf Hancke said Friday night.

Hancke, head counsellor of the Royal Norwegian Embassy in Washington, D.C., was keynote speaker at the annual Student Government Retreat. His topic was "United States Relationship with European Allies."

Hancke said that the world has shrunk through developed communications to the point where highly developed countries must recognize their responsibilities toward the rest of the world. The troublespots, where the two ideologies, communism and democracy, conflict, are of special concern, he said.

WORK TOGETHER

The speaker commented that the necessity of survival and the defense of our rights rests on the "interdependence of the countries of the North Atlantic and the necessity for the democracies of the Western World to give up old prejudices and go all out to work together."

He pointed out that North Atlantic countries are linked militarily throughout the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He added that although the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development exists for the discussion of economic and financial problems, "we do not have a real and consolidated Atlantic Partnership or an Atlantic Community."

At present, Hancke said, European countries are solving many problems through the Common Market and the European Free Trade Association. The former organization consists of six member nations which agreed on accelerated economic and political integration.

SECOND COMMON MARKET

The seven nations forming the EFTA did so for two main reasons. They throught that by promoting free trade among themselves, they would create a common market of about 90 million people which would benefit world trade as well as the economies and peoples of the member nations.

They also believed that the new organization could speed future negotiations to create a single European market, he said.

Hancke said that, since negotiations never were begun to reduce the trade barriers between the two organizations, the economic split of Europe could have injured political and military cooperation between the free countries of the world and between NATO allies.

UNITE AND GROW

Today, the speaker said, all seven member nations of the EFTA have applied either for membership or for association with the Common Market. He added that the tendency to unite has fostered economic growth and a higher standard of living for all the peoples.

Hancke expressed his belief that Europe can be a strong and perhaps equal partner in trade with the United States. He said that although the Atlantic Partnership or Community may never become an organization, it should become a philosophy of cooperation.

Georgians Crumble, 18-0, In Athens

The Florida State Seminoles, pushed by the offensive efforts of the Warriors, killed two old enemies in Athens, Ga., Saturday afternoon as they defeated the University of Georgia, 18-0 and destroyed a three-year-old road jinx.

The FSU scores came in this order:

In the second quarter, kicking specialist Doug Messer split the uprights with a field goal from the 27. This gave the Seminoles a slim 3-0 lead at the half.

In the third period, end Hank Stysma of the Warriors caught a six-yard pass from Chief quarterback Eddie Feely, and then the Gainesville quarterback pushed the score to 11-0 when he hurled a PAT pass to Warrior fullback Gene Roberts.

In the final session, fullback Dave Snyder intercepted a Georgia pass on the 15 and darted to paydirt. Messer, who kicked the two field goals in FSU's narrow loss to Miami, kicked the PAT.

But the Seminoles were robbed of still a further touchdown when the clock ran out with the Tribesmen sitting six inches from the goal.

Afterwards, Head Coach Bill Peterson said, "This just might be the biggest victory an FSU team ever played." And FSU was a bit sloppy in this win, it was pointed out.

Florida State dominated the game statistically in all departments, and only a first quarter Georgia drive kept the contest from being too lopsided.

When the Bulldogs first obtained possession of the ball, they progressed 75 yards down the field to FSU's one-yard-line, where they ran aground.

FSU's goal-line stand. . .probably was the most decisive factor," said Coach Johnny Griffith of Georgia, "it was our best drive by far of the season."

Then the Bulldog mentor said, "Pass interceptions hurt us a lot."

Florida State intercepted five aerials, while the Georgians stole only one. In other statistical departments, the Seminoles rushed 150 yards to Georgia's 105, and passed 138 to Georgia's 105. FSU's 15 first downs was superior to Georgia's 11.

The Seminoles also dominated individual statistics.

In rushing, halfback Keith Kinderman of the Chiefs charged 47 total yards on nine carries to lead the Seminoles. He was trailed by Phil Spooner's 40 yards gained on eight carries.

In passing, Stysma caught for 55 yards on five attempts, while Kinderman was second with 28 yards on two tries.

The Bulldogs, however, came through in the passing department as top-notch quarterback Larry Rakestraw hurled 122 yards on 35 attempts and 10 completions.

Warrior quarterback Steve Tensi racked up the most passing yardage for a Seminole as he heaved for 78 yards on 7-of-14 attempts, while Feely was second with 60 yards gained on 5-of-10 attempts.

Tensi's passing and commanding set up the final FSU TD, as the Warriors ran to the Georgia six. After a minus gain, Feely relieved the sophomore and shot an aerial to Stysma.

Until the final session only Tensi's outfit, the Warriors, had allowed FSU to rack up the scores. The offensive unit played only 13 minutes, 18 seconds and scored 11 points.

Seminole Shorts

The Virginia Tech Gobblers who recently held Army to a 20-14 victory, will face the Seminoles Saturday in Campbell Stadium. The Gobblers, coached by [illegible], have won and lost two games against FSU.

3-Year-Old Jinx Bites The Dirt

Florida State rapped its knuckles on the door of big time football Saturday afternoon when it defeated Georgia, 18-0. On top of this, the Seminoles broke a three-year-old losing streak for road games.

Actually, the Seminoles hadn't been having too good luck with either the Georgians or the jinx in the past, having previously been defeated in five-of-six encounters and having missed several victories by inches.

The last game that the Seminoles won on enemy soil was a 33-0 triumph over Tampa in 1959. Since then Peterson has had more than his share of narrow misses and "moral victories." In 1960 the University of Florida slipped by, 3-0 in Gainesville, and then an underdog team from the Citadel managed a scoreless tie in South Carolina. In 1961, the jinx nearly died during a 3-3 tie with the Gators.

The road hex prevaled this season with the 0-0 tie at Kentucky and the 7-6 loss to the Miami Hurricanes--but neither a game that could be "taken to the win window."

Peterson warned before meeting the Georgians that, "If we don't get more polish than we had against Miami, we're going tc wind up wth a whole season of ties and near misses."

The first few moments of the Georgia game seemed another typical road finish, but it turned out that the Seminoles swamped the Georgians, and, in doing so, scored their first touchdown against an SEC team in two years.

Kentucky escaped being scored upon this year, having swamped the Seminoles last year, 20-0. Last season, FSU scored upon only two SEC squads, Georgia and Florida, both via field goals.

In the finale of the 1960 season, the Seminoles hit the Auburn Tigers for the most points scored against Auburn since 1944. FSU tallied 21 points. . . unfortunately, the Tigers scored 57 -- the most ever scored against FSU.

However, the Seminoles have scored on teams that were equal to several SEC squads. Last season, FSU struck Houston for a TD in a 28-8 loss. A year before, they lost by one point, but still scored a touchdown.

And, this was the third key game of the current season. First against Kentucky, then against Miami, Peterson said Florida State could tell how it would do against the giants in the latter part of the schedule. Officially, the moral victories could give no answer.

But against the Georgians, in the third key game, Peterson saw that Florida State could play tough football, both offensively and defensively.

Certainly, it will help FSU's national defensive rating. With a 3-1-1 record under its belt, FSU has scored 115 points as compared to its four opponents' seven points.

Last year at this time, the enemies had totalled 50 points, while the Seminoles trailed with 36 markers.

And still to be fought this year are Houston, Georgia Tech, Florida and Auburn.

...for a life of pride and purpose

Among the young people being graduated from college in these times, there are some who think and feel—perhaps a little more deeply than the others—about the world we live in, the future we face. They ask, "How can I make my career really meaningful? More than just personally rewarding?"

And many of today's most successful young people are finding a fulfilling answer to these questions as officers on the Aerospace Team... the United States Air Force. They can tell you that no career could better combine the opportunity for achievement—and the deep inner satisfaction of knowing that they are helping to preserve the very future of America.

If you are a college senior and not currently enrolled in ROTC, Air Force Officer Training School provides an opportunity to qualify for a wide variety of career fields. The graduate of this three-month course receives a commission as a second lieutenant. As the Air Force continues its technological advance, officers with college training will move into positions of increasing importance.

For full information—including the opportunity to earn graduate degrees at Air Force expense—see the Air Force Selection Team when it visits your college, visit your local Air Force Recruiting Office, or write: Air Force Officer Career Information, Dept. SC210, Box 805, New York 1, New York.

Pres. Kennedy Addresses The Nation

President John F. Kennedy put teeth the United States' policy towards ba in a speech to the nation last t.

The President said that the military ildup in Cuba had turned offensive announce that the U.S. will turn k any ship carrying weapons of an sive nature to Castro's island ress.

There are two types of missile inlations going on in Cuba, Kennedy ... These are facilities for medn range ballistic missiles with a ge of more than 1,000 nautical les and addition sites, not yet pleted, appear designed for inrmediate range ballistic missiles at could travel more than twice as r.

"The purpose of these bases can be none other that to provide a nuclear strike capability against the western hemisphere." Kennedy remarked

Kennedy announced a seven-point course of action under which the United States asked last night for an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council and took steps to call for an immediate meeting of the hemispheric body, the Organ of Consultation under the Organization of American States.

Reinforcements to the U.S. Naval Base in Guantanamo Bay in eastern Cuba have been ordered, announced the President, and dependents of military personnel have been evacuated. Additional military units have been placed on alert.

Kennedy demanded prompt withdrawal of offensive weapons in Cuba and challenged Premiere Khrushchev to halt what he called "the clandestine, reckless and provocative threat to world peace and to stable relations between our two nations."

"The United States would regard any missile launches from Cuba against any nation in the Western Hemisphere as an attack by the Soviet Union on the United States, requiring a full retaliatory response upon the Soviet Union," stated Kennedy.

In speaking to Americans, Kennedy acknowledged the outlook is risky.

"My fellow citizens, let no one doubt that this is a difficult and dangerous effort on which we have set out. No one can foresee precisely what course it will take or what costs or casualties will be incurred.

"Many months of sacrifice and self-discipline lie ahead--months in which both our will and our patience will be tested--months in which many threats and denunciations will keep us aware of our danger.

"But the greatest danger of all would be to do nothing.

"One path we shall never choose," Kennedy asserted, "is the path of surrender or submission."

In London, the British foreign office said Kennedy's disclosure of the Soviet buildup in Cuba "will come as a shock to the whole civilized world." The British Cabinet will meet shortly.

In Bonn, Germany, a West German spokesman said Chancellor Adenaur welcomes the determination of the United States government to counter the danger posed by the Soviet buildup in Cuba.

BULLETIN

Pentagon sources said the Navy is prepared to sink all ships refusing to be searched in Caribbean waters.

President Kennedy announced the end of his political campaigning for the year and urged Congressional leaders to remain in Washington for the duration of the Cuban crisis. Many legislators though facing election campaigning apparently will comply with the President's wishes.

All three former presidents have been informed of, and consulted with on the Cuban crisis, the White House said. President Kennedy ordered the CIA Director to give former President Eisenhower a thorough briefing of the Cuban crisis.

Homecoming Show Remains City-Wide

Walter Richards, chairman of the Downtown Committee for Homecoming, and Mrs. Kay Vernon, have announced that again this year there will be a city-wide Homecoming Pageant.

Individuals, classes and clubs other than sororities and fraternities will design and decorate show windows of downtown business establishments in keeping with the overall Homecoming theme.

This year, instead of presenting trophies honoring first, second and third prizes as has been done in the past, there will be substantial cash awards to the winning groups and individuals of $25, $20 and $10 respectively. Anyone may enter a window project, though the appeal is made primarily to interested groups of individuals and organizations other than sororities and fraternities in order to enlarge the total scope of Homecoming at FSU.

Interested parties should register as soon as possible in order to secure choice windows. Deadline for registration is 5 p.m. Oct. 31, in Room 20 Langnire.

The decorations must be completed by noon, November 2. Judging will take place Friday afternoon and the winners announced at the POW WOW Friday night.

Decorations may be in any medium such as paint, cardboard, rope, metal or a combination of media that will serve the purpose of attracting the public notice. Entries will be judged on originality, neatness, effectiveness and appropriateness to the Homecoming theme of FUTURE VIEW OF FSU.

Tally Ho

1962 FSU Yearbook Makes All-American

An "All American" rating has been awarded the "Tally Ho" for the third year in a row by the Associated Collegiate Press.

With the honor rating is included a critical service. Judge Benjamin W. Allmutt, author of "Practical Yearbook Procedure," commented that, "The '62 'Tally Ho' is the best yet! A delightful book, carefully edited and with emphasis on the vital elements of the campus. It is a joy to read and study. It reflects solid planning and hard work in carrying out those plans. Congratulations to Editor and staff for a job well done."

Americans First

At this writing, the nation is expectant. The people of the United States have been alerted. The word from President John F. Kennedy will be coming. Shortly, we will know who, what, when and where of the international situation. Unity is imperative.

In recent months, the people of this great nation have been divided. Mississippi has defied the nation and attempted to break away from their responsibility as a part of this nation. Americans have died at the hands of other Americans. Americans have hated other Americans. We have cursed each other and condemned our fellows.

Political campaigns have been upon the nation. Americans who call themselves Republicans have denounced Americans who call themselves Democrats. The Democratic leaders have charged Republicans with hurting the country. Harsh, bitter words have passed between citizens of the United States. A President and a former President have been at each others throats. Division has run rampant.

Americans who live in metropolitan areas have fought vigorously with Americans who live in rural areas over political representation. Rural people have charged city citizens of attempting to take over power. The metropolitans have accused rurals of hogging power and unfairly dominating politics. Wars of words have raged between the cities and the villages.

Into this boiling pot of animosity has dropped an international crisis of yet undetermined seriousness. A crisis which may threaten the existence of our nation is imminent.

As a result, these divisions are placed in their proper perspective. Differences often thought so important seem petty and insignificant. Now we focus on our common interests, instead of our differences, and find that they are many.

This reminds us of an important point. Regardless of other loyalties, we are Americans first.

We are Americans whether we live in Mississippi or New York, north or south, Sopchoppy or Miami. We are Americans whether we be white, black, yellow, or red. Whether we are rich or poor, strong or weak, large or small, we are Americans. As we meet an international crisis, our loyalty to this nation is paramount. This should always be.

What's Private Property?

Private property? What's that? Oh, back in the old days, say in the nineteenth century, it was something Americans were allowed to have. Today, however, in the era of enlightenment, we all know that it is evil, but, nonetheless we pay lip service to the idea for the benefit of the few remaining reactionaries in the country.

We've been pretty clever about destroying the right to own private property. We still allow the people to possess "deeds" which give the illusion of ownership. And, of course, we still allow them to pay taxes on it, too. But we decide how they shall use the property; we are the elite, and we know more about what's good for a person than he does, because we're experts.

How did we do it? In many ways. One of the first ways was to subsidize agriculture. That gave us the right to tell a landowner what and how much he could grow on the land. And for those misguided individuals who couldn't see that we were doing all this for their own good, we had a remedy. Simple, really. All we had to do was fine them so much they lost their land.

We were clever with the city people. They didn't grow things, so we had another plan. In this enlightened age everyone realizes that the city planner knows best. It was easy to set up zoning ordinances. . . and eventually we were able to set up so many different zoning classifications that almost no one was able to build what he wanted, but instead, had to get special permission from us.

Industries? The wrinkle we use here is to have our experts help settle wage disputes between the Unions and the owners of businesses. Generally, we suggest that the owners give raises no greater than the productivity increases in the business. Then, of course, the Unions will settle for no less. If a business puts up a fight, we can have our chief expert make an appeal to the people. If we can give labor all the productivity increases, the owners get nothing more in return for their investments. We soon will be able to discourage the idea that owners should make a profit on their property.

This fall, nine of our experts will have a chance to tell the owners that they no longer can decide whom they may permit on their property. Soon, the chief expert will issue an "executive order" telling those who have used government money to help purchase the property that they may not refuse to rent or sell it to persons they don't like. Already some state experts have decided that it is wrong for a person to refuse to sell his property to someone he doesn't like. And we hope it will not be long before we decide who a businessman may hire to work for him. We decide now for those who do business with the Government.

It's all been a horrible misconception. . . ordinary people decide what they will grow, and how much what they shall build; who they shall rent and see to; whom they shall hire, and whom they shall permit on their property. Imagine! If we permitted people to decide these things, think of all the experts who would be out of work. And experts are good.

Join SIFODAF Now!

Much has been written about Coma and her adventures in and around the Soda Shop, but strange as it seems, nothing has ever been mentioned of Coma's step-cousin, Iphigenia (thrice removed on her mother's side). The only reason I can give for this strange fact is that Iphigenia lives in the Sweet Shop, and through all of recorded history (1959 on), no Flambeau Staffer has ever been known to set foot inside the Sweet Shop. Recently, an overly excitable P.E. major thought he saw one, but it turned out to be a fraternity pledge dressed up as a chimpanzee.

Iphigenia (or Iphi as her friends call her) is exactly opposite in character from Coma. Where Coma is a left-wing radical, espousing such causes as the John Birch Society, Young Americans for Freedom, Young People's Socialist League, etc., Iphi stands four-square for a return to the time-tested and proved institution of Feudalism.

In fact, Iphi is the president, executive secretary, and treasurer of SIFODAF (Students In Favor of Democratic Authoritarian Feudalism). She's also the only member at present, but she is conducting an extensive membership drive. For the benefit of those students who belong to the intellectual elite, and would hence be interested in joining an organization such as this, Iphi has prepared the following list of SIFODAF beliefs.

SIFODAF stands solidly in support of: (1) Motherhood. (2) The preservation of the family as the basic unit of the home. (3) Prohibition. (4) Hedonism. (5) SIFODAF.

SIFODAF also stands solidly against: (1) Communism. (2) Fascism. (3) Nazism. (4) Antidisestablishmentarianism. (5) Repeal. (6) Anti-SIFODAFism.

A word of warning to those who might be interested in joining. Don't wait too long! Due to the nature of Feudalism, only the first 500 members can be Lords and Masters. All others will have to be serfs.

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor and student comment are welcomed by the "Flambeau." We firmly believe that students should have an organ through which their opinions and views can be aired.

At no time will letters containing material which is libelous or in bad taste be printed.

My Sociology Class

At present I am in my Sociology class. We study race relations in my Sociology class. I love race relations--they're so controversial. Even more controversial than the cheering squad are race relations.

We have lots of excitement in my Sociology class, cause everytime we attempt to examine the problem objectively, a few of the students begin to bicker (a senior standing is required for the course because seniors are more mature and can bicker better). Soon the whole class is divided into two factions--just like Ole Miss! This way we aren't bothered by annoying facts, because the professor can't get a word in edgewise, what with all that good ole' easy-to-understand opinionating.

Half the class wears bedsheets; the other half carries carpet bags. There's a rumor flying about that the bedsheets are importing a new student into the class--some guy named Walker.

The final exam is going to be an all-night street fight with the winning side receiving A's and the losers collecting student insurance. I'm sure glad I didn't get stuck with one of those dull, scholarly courses like flycasting.

Pink Slips

Pink slips denoting unsatisfactory mid-term grades will be issued on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Students with unsatisfactory grades for less than nine credit hours of work will receive pink slips at their campus addresses. Students with unsatisfactory grades in more than nine credit hours of work will receive pink slips at their home addresses.

If a student's home address is the same as his campus address and he falls into the second group listed above, he will receive two pink slips.

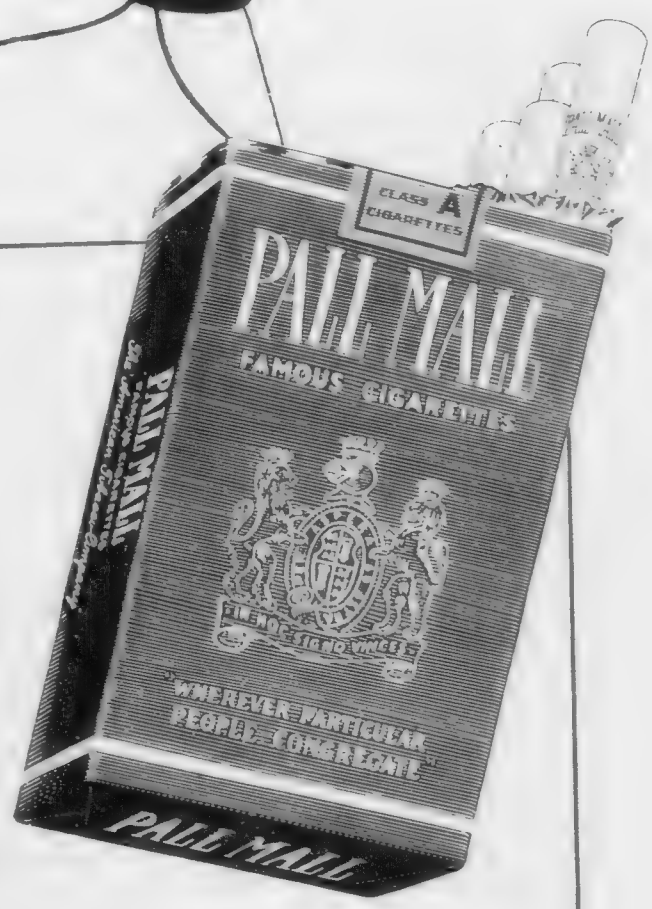
Pall Mall Presents~ GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE



CAMPUS TYPE II

Don't let this girl's costume fool you. She's not really a mad scientist. She's a girl—a real, live girl. It's just that she has to prove something—to herself and to her family.

She has to prove that she has a brain and that, if she ever has to compete with men on their own terms, she can do it—and win. But she really doesn't want to compete with men. In her heart she wants to attract men and eventually, marry one. The girl watcher should not let this situation disturb him, however.

If the girl is watchable, she should be watched, no matter what her motives or ambitions may be. The same thing is true of a cigarette. If it's smokeable, it should be smoked—and Pall Mall is the most smokeable of all!

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

The Inter-University Committee on Travel Grants is now receiving applications for the exchange of graduate students and young instructors with the Soviet Union, and for the new exchange of advanced graduate students and faculty on all levels with [illegible] and Hungary.

Post-doctoral faculty members, under forty years of age, are eligible for exchange with the Soviet Union. There are no age restrictions on the East European exchanges. Applications for the latter received before Nov. 16 will be given first preference. Complete information is in the office of Dr. George Lensen, 215 History Bldg.

Miss Winnifred Bamforth, secretary of the Joint Committee for Summer Schools, will visit FSU Nov. 28 to 30 to meet members of the faculty and student body who are interested in attending a joint program of four British University Summer Schools.

The courses are designed for graduate students, including teachers in universities and schools, and for undergraduate students who have completed at least two years at a university. The number of places at each school is restricted, and preference will be given to graduates and those in their final year of a degree course at the time of application.

The teaching methods at the four schools--at Edinburgh, London, Oxford, and Stratford-upon-Avon--are those of the British university system. There are formal lectures open to all students, and less formal tutorial discussions, when students have the opportunity of working in small groups under supervision of a tutor.

The tutors also supervise written work. There is opportunity for students engaged in research to discuss their subjects with British scholars working in the same field.

At each school visits are arranged to places of historical and cultural interest.

A number or scholarships are offered to cover part of the cost of tuition, board and lodging. Information about scholarships and other general information may be obtained from Dr. George Lensen, 215 History Bldg.

In the United States, scholarship applications should be received by March 1, 1963, for the 1963 summer school session.

Dr. Herberg Addresses Two FSU Audiences

Literature Theme Is Coffee Hour Topic

"The essential themes of literature throughout the ages treat the same theme as existentialism."

This was one of the main ideas expressed by Dr. Will Herberg at the English Coffee Hour last Friday, when he spoke to a crowd which overflowed Westminster House. Some of the audience stood out on the porch while others listened at the windows as he spoke on "Existentialism and Literature."

"Thinkers have approached their subject surreptitiously. Indirect communication has become the mark of existentialism," he said.

The mode of thought in this indirect communication is what Dr. Herberg calls the "transjective." It is not the mind looking out as in objective thought (I-it) or the mind looking in as in subjective (I-me). It is the "I-thou" type of thinking as used in conversation, and in which plays or novels are written.

Herberg then concluded that both existentialism and literature have this indirect communication in common and work in this transjective mode.

"Existentialism is the analysis of the human situation. Man is the kind of being who is compelled to freedom, held to responsibility, and must venture forth into insecure ground. This is also the perennial theme of literature," he said.

Dr. Herberg summed his ideas up with three statements.

1) Existential thinking is most appropriately expressed in indirect communication as is the novel.

2) Imaginative literature elaborates itself in the transjective mode as does existentialism.

3) The enduring theme-- the analysis of human existence is basic to both.

Herberg was on the FSU campus as the first lecturer in the Religion in Life Series. The series of lectures, one group of programs each trimester, replaces Religious Emphasis Week.

Religious Emphasis Address Is Given

Dr. Will Herberg, sociologist, theologian, philosopher, historian and literary critic from Drew University, spoke Thursday night to an FSU audience on the topic "Religion and the Changing Cultural Situation."

The speaker, taking the classification of sociologist David Reismann, said that today in America there are two social types, the inner-directed and the other-directed.

CREATED AMERICA

The inner-directed, he said, has been the creator of American culture. The driving power of American progress is largely due to inner direction, he continued, and any violation of inner-directed standards give rise to feelings of guilt for this social type.

The other-directed man, Herberg said, arises from a society of plenty, of leisure and of consumption, such as the United States is today. He has a deep need of being one with his environment, his peer group.

Isolation from the group gives rise to feelings of anxiety, the speaker explained. The other-directed man is society conscious, group minded, a compulsive conformist, has a phobia for controversy, and is tolerant of everybody except the inner-directed guy.

Herberg continued that the inner-directed man still is the predominant character in American culture, but the other-directed man is emergent in middle class suburban society, and is spreading to upper and lower classes.

RELIGIOUS IMPACT

The impact on the religious situation of this shift has been twofold, the sociologist declared.

The other-directed people are flocking to churches in a need to belong to society. But the same factors leading to pro-religiousness has created a growing imperviousness to the actual message of the Church, Herberg asserted.

The speaker declared that the man of faith can meet this baffling challenge by asserting himself differently when dealing with the two social types.

For the inner-directed man, the crack in his armor is his sense of guilt from violation of standard, while for the other-directed man it is his feeling of anxiety in the search for social success, Herberg re-emphasized. Herberg said the Church must speak to each at the point of his weakness.

Jinx Really Wasn't, But Still Could Be

Now that we've all duly noted that the road jinx is dead, it is time for us to realize that the superstition wasn't the only reason we were losing away games. . . indeed, it hardly even qualifies as a reason at all.

Florida State plays the big ones away, and since it persists in tackling a Georgia Tech, an Auburn, or a Miami on enemy soil, it has to expect a hard fought contest. . . which might end in defeat.

It fs mathematical in nature because Coach Bill Peterson, it would seem, would be out of his mind to expect to beat Georgia Tech or an Alabama. Common sense would tell us that expecting to defeat powers of Alabama's calibre is futile.

But Vanderbilt had Alabama tied at the half recently and made Coach Paul Bryant claw madly for a victory. . . so common sense had little to do with the matter as long as there are such things as upsets.

Then again, it is mathematical because the bigger powers have the bigger stadiums. And BP plus BS equals more money.

And money is a factor that even Bryant has to consider. The "really big shoes" that Bryant's squad plays are not fought in Tuscaloosa. The recent battle with Tennessee was fought in Knoxville. The Auburn-Alabama game was scheduled for Birmingham. . . for financial reasons.

About 31,500 people saw Florida State defeat Georgia in Athens this week. Doak S. Campbell drew only about 20,000 last year.

After VPI, we meet Houston for Homecoming. Then it's one long haul through such as Georgia Tech, Florida and Auburn.

Aftermath

If we are as good as we should be, there should be some disappointed oddsmakers in the country. If not, maybe news of the jinx will be appearing in sports headlines.

Georgia's Coach Johnny Griffith may have lost the services of sophomore lineback LeRoy Dukes (hip injury) and halfback Don Porterfield (bruised knee).

The Georgia coach, who is the first Southeastern Conference mentor to be defeated twice by Florida State, said the Tribesmen are a "sound football team which on this day was a tougher club than Clemson. We hadn't underestimated them. They just played better than we did, and won."

The Bulldogs had one major drive, a 75-yard push, that stopped at the FSU one. This was the turning point of the game, which still looked like a defensive battle at the half. The halftime score was 3-0, the same score in last year's Georgia game.

Griffith pointed out that the five interceptions by FSU were somewhat unavoidable, because several occurred at a time when the Bulldogs ordered the arm of Larry Rakestraw into action. And a couple of successful bombs by Rakestraw could have changed the outcome considerably.

Griffith pinpointed the major disappointing thing about the game -- "our inability to score when he had the opportunities."

For The Record

On the road, the Seminoles have played before approximately 151,500 paid spectators, while at home about 40,000 fans have watched them play. Again on the road, the Seminoles have a 1-1-1 record, as compared to a 0-1-1 record at this time last year.

And so far this season, the Tribesmen have yet to be scratched by a Southeastern Conference team, being tied by one and defeating one. Two Southern Conference foes were soundly thrashed and the only defeat came from an independent, Miami.

Seminole Shorts

In the next home game, the Florida State Seminoles will be facing the Virginia Tech Gobblers.

But the Gobblers need not lay eggs in Doak S. Campbell, because they scared the wits out of former LSU Paul Dietzel when they held the Army Cadets to a 20-14 victory. The week before, the Virginia Tech squad defeated Richmond in a 13-7 contest.

"We think we have a good first unit," Claiborne says, "beyond that we have just six men who have ever played in a college varsity game." That was said before the season began, but now inexperience is not such a big problem.

Life Saving Class

A non-credit course in Red Cross senior life-saving will be offered by the Physical Education Dept. Classes will be scheduled from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays from Oct. 29 to Nov. 28, with no class on the Wednesday preceeding Thanksgiving.

Interested persons should call Mrs. Whittemore at 3240, or stop by Montgomery Gym. The registration deadline is at 5 p.m. Oct. 26.

Duffers Form Club

All coeds interested in playing on a golf team should contact Mrs. Martin-Vegue in Montgomery Gymnasium. The group will play each Tuesday at the Oak Valley Golf Course. Tee-off time is between 1 and 5 p.m.

WE WILL FIGHT THEM IN THE STREETS

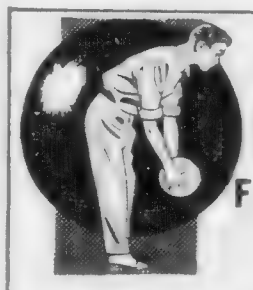
Varsity-Alumni Basketball Contest Scheduled Saturday

The First Annual Varsity-Alumni basketball game will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday in Tully Gymnasium, announced Head Coach Bud Kennedy yesterday.

The event, which will be free to the public, will feature approximately 35 former cagers, all from the various teams coached by Kennedy in his 14 years at Florida State.

Starters will come from the first Bud Kennedy team the 1948-49, edition. "They will play a while," Kennedy said, "and then will be relieved by the younger boys."



About 13 members of the 1948 team will participate. They include Dick Kendall, the basketball coach at Jacksonville University; captain Art Adams, personnel director of the State Industrial Commission; Ernie Williams of the State Department; Ronnie Nettles, a roofing contractor; Lee Benjamin, basketball coach at Northeast High School of St. Petersburg; Jim Pavy, a physical education instructor at Chipola Junior College; Tom McLaughlin, an engineer for the Southeastern Telephone Company of Jacksonville; Bill Weisel, athletic director of the Deerfield Junior High School; Ted Hewitt, of the Savannah IBM company (against Stetson in 1948 Hewitt returned an interception of 99 yards for a TD for a still-standing football record).

LEE BENJAMIN . . . alum cage star

Shad Hilaman, principal of the Woodville schools, will referee the contest. The [illegible] Benny Lovell, now with [illegible] tail Credit, while [illegible] principal of an elementary school at Chipley, will be the coach.

The alumnus to come the longest distance is Dwane [illegible] who lives in Alexandria Va., said Kennedy. About 15 wives will also accompany their husbands.

Kennedy Signs Blockade Proclamation

Security Council Holds Meeting

NEW YORK-- United Nations Security Council members granted the triple request of the United States, Cuba and the Soviet Union and opened an emergency session yesterday afternoon in New York.

President Kennedy, immediately after his Monday night address to the nation, made his plea for the special meeting and submitted the United States' proposal that the United Nations enforced withdrawal of Soviet offensive weapons from Cuban territory.

Cuba countered with a request that the UN study the American arms quarantine and Russia followed with a similar proposal. The special session adjourned last night after hearing opening addresses by US Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Soviet Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin. They will resume debate on the Cuban crisis at 10:30 a.m. today.

The United Arab Republic and Ghana are reportedly trying to work out a resolution aimed at closing the gap between the US and Russia.

Stevenson, speaking first, said that the flow of Soviet arms into Cuba is a grave threat to world peace. He summarized the President's speech, and reviewed Russia's history of breaking treaties and absorbing smaller countries since 1945.

The Ambassador spokesman cited the fact that the US had cut its defense budget 10 billion dollars within a year after World War II as evidence that we are not bound on a course for world domination.

While Stevenson was speaking, a message was brought in from the meeting of the Organization of American States in Washinton, D.C. The OAS, it was announced, voted unanimously to support the United States' proposal to use force, if necessary, to expel Soviet weapons from the Western Hemisphere.

Only Uruguay did not vote, saying that because of communications difficulties the delegation could not get instructions from home. They can cast their vote later.

Stevenson, on the other hand, was asking the UN to help stop the Communist plot for world domination.

Soviet Ships Steam Toward Cuban Shore

WASHINGTON-- President Kennedy signed a formal proclamation last night placing an arms blockade around Cuba. An armada of U.S. Naval vessels will begin halting all ships - both Communist and non-Communist- near Cuban waters at 10 a.m. today.

Former President Eisenhower has called on all Americans to assist President Kennedy in the Cuban crisis.

In London more than 2,000 demonstrators broke through police lines and stormed the U.S. embassy. Some of them were screaming "Viva Fidel" and "Hands off Cuba." Police managed to keep the demonstrators from entering the building.

Word has been received from Moscow that all Soviet armed forces have been ordered into a state of combat readiness. All military leaves have been cancelled.

In West Berlin, the U.S. Army deployed most of its 56,500 man garrison in the field in what has been termed a routine maneuver.

American military bases in Turkey, next door to Russia have been put on alert in view of the Cuban crisis.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, at a news conference following issuance of the proclamation, estimated about 25 Russian ships are moving toward Cuba, some close to Cuban ports.

McNamara also announced orders for extension of all Marine and Navy enlistments for up to one year in support of the arms blockade. He said this move is necessary to provide the necessary manpower and will apply in all except hardship cases.

McNamara said he had no knowledge of te specific cargoes of soviet ships now heading for Cuba, but that it would be a "fair presumption" that some ships have offensive weapons in their cargo.

Democratic Congressman Albert Thomas of Texas said without giving his source that 35 to 40 Russian cargo ships are en route to Cuba.

AAUN Director Speaks

Clark Eichelberger Talks On U. N.'s Severe Test

By OTIS WRAGG

Flambeau Associate Editor

Quarantine of Cuba by the United States may well be the most severe test facing the United Nations since Korea, Clark M. Eichelberger, national executive director of the American Association for the United Nations (AAUN) told the Tallahassee Chapter of AAUN last night.

Praising President Kennedy for "taking action (in Cuba) within the moral and legal framework of the United Nations charter," Eichelberger said he hoped the Cuban situation does not degenerate to the type experienced in the Suez crisis several years ago. He was referring to unilateral British action in Egypt without deliberation by the U.N.

Speaking to a capacity crowd in the Faculty Club Lounge, Eichelberger said Kennedy, by working within the principles of the U.N., has provided for the first time a place where the moral opinion of the world can be registered.

"There is a good chance the pressure of the overall conscience of mankind can bring a change in the policy of the Soviet Union with regard to Cuba," he said.

Eichelberger, who was a consultant to the State Department when the U.N. charter was drawn up, said the charter provides machinery of arbitration, conciliation, and regional deliberation in handling national crises.

If deliberations on this basis are nor effective, Article 51 provides that a nation may act to protect its national security. The problem should then be brought immediately before the Security Council. "This is exactly what President Kennedy has done," said Eichelberger.

Because of the veto power of any member of the Security Council, he predicts the Soviet Union may prevent action by that body on the Cuban crisis.

If council action is vetoed, the question can be brought to the floor of the General Assembly by a vote of seven members.

"There will be a long process of deliberations on this crisis," predicted Eichelberger. But he expressed hope that the world parliamentary body can take action which will prevent the provocation of a worldwide conflict.

Alumni To Sell Banquet Tickets

Tickets for the Homecoming Banquet, Nov. 2, may be purchased through the Alumni Office beginning Thursday, said Miss Rema Ratcliff, Administrative Assistant of the Alumni Office.

Tickets will be $2.25 for students and alumni.

Si Zentner Is Scheduled For Homecoming Dance

Students will dance to strains of the music of Si Zentner's 17 piece orchestra at the Homecoming dance, Nov. 3.

Zentner and his orchestra will perform at the Roosevelt Grill in New York on Friday night and then fly to FSU to perform here Saturday night.

Zentner has been selected as the number one band in the nation by "Billboard Magazine." Zentner has recorded many popular albums including "The Stripper," "Up a Lazy River" and "The Hollywood Twist."

The dance will be in Tully Gymnasium from 9 to 12 p.m. Tickets will go on sale at Westcott Monday, at $3 per couple or per person.

This year's decorations will be "Future Scope Unlimited" and will include a painted mural on the wall behind the bandstand. There will also be bright luminescent colors muted by dim lights.

The Journeymen, a trio of folk singers and the Bobby Hackett Quartet will appear in a short concert at 11 p.m. at the dance. The Homecoming Queen and her court will be formally introduced at 10:30 p.m.

Blackwell Speaks On Cuban Crisis

In view of the current Cuban crisis and rising international tensions, FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell made the following statement:

"Rapidly moving elements have brought the nations to a moment of grave crisis. In view of the seriousness of the present situation, it is appropriate that men of good will everywhere beseech God's guidance. In this spirit I call upon the University community to offer its prayers in concert for the preservation of our nation and for a just and honorable peace for the world.

"May we all, each in his own way, ask God to grant wisdom and compassion to those who must make momentous decisions in the days ahead.

"At 5:30 this afternoon the religious houses that encircle the campus will hold special services of intercessory prayer. The University Chaplain will hold a similar service at that hour in the Longmire Lounge."

One Course

Adlai Stevenson, a liberal called pink by many of the right wing, squared off with the Communist international conspiracy in the emergency session of the United Nation's Security Council yesterday.

Stevenson told the Communists in no uncertain terms that the United States had passed the point of toleration. Irritations have been endured by this nation for many years and the United States has made agreement after agreement in an effort to make a settlement. Each successive agreement has been broken.

Undoubtedly, it was not a pleasant task for Stevenson, a man long associated with peace movements. But the job had to be done.

"We have exercised patience. Now the time for forebearance has passed. I hope that Chairman Khrushchev has not mistaken forebearance for weakness," said Ambassador Stevenson.

The natons of the world must share that hope, for if the Soviet Union misjudges America's determination to back up the blockade of Cuba, then the world will be involved in a nuclear holocaust that will bring about the destruction of man.

A glimmer of hope for peace lies with the United Nations. The Security Council, whose hands are tied by veto, cannot act, but the General Assembly can. The nations of the world, banned together, may take action to reach a solution to the trying world problem. But they will have to move swiftly, else action will come too late.

Unless the United Nations acts, the United States will be put into a position of either defending its position or surrendering it. As Stevenson articulately pointed out, the United States can follow but one course in that eventuality.

GETTYSBURG, PA.-- Former president Eisenhower said yesterday: "So far as Cuba and Soviet Russia are concerned, in the weeks ahead we cannot be partisans. But a United America need not and should not degenerate into a conformist, a silenced America. In our internal affairs, unity should not become an excuse for complaint submission by Republicans or a shield against our valid criticism of Democrats..."

"Moreover, our civic duty impels us to express our honest convictions, in this campaign, about the complexion of the next Congress; about the quality of leadership we want in state governments and in our home counties and communities."

And Eisenhower went on:

"The republic of the United States -- the oldest constitutional government among the major nations of the world -- has survived war and the peril of war because the American people through their elected representatives in the congress have always been free to advise and counsel-- even to rebuke and warn -- the Executive.

"Therein lies the fundamental strength of our system. Never has catastrophe nor emergency justified reduction of the people to a regimented herd or of their representatives to blind acceptance of decree and pronouncement by government."

BELGRADE-- President Tito of Yugoslavia says world peace is in danger because of the situation around Cuba and on the Indian-Chinese border. He called for a peaceful settlement through the United Nations.

BUENOS AIRES-- Argentine President Jose Maria Guido has ordered the Argentine Navy to undertake what operations may be necessary in defense of the continent. Foreign Minister Carlos Muniz said the measure was decided in light of the Cuban situation.

WASHINGTON-- A U.S. high altitude nuclear test shot near Johnston Island in the Pacific has been postponed from early today to early Thursday-- because of technical troubles.

WASHINGTON-- President Kennedy has signed the nearly 4 billion dollar foreign aid appropriations bill. It has clauses which could ban aid to nations helping Cuba. . . and deny aid to certain Red nations.

MOSCOW-- Premier Khrushchev heard a performance by American opera star Jerome Hines. Khrushchev appeared relaxed despite the international crisis. After the performance, he personally congratulated Hines back stage. But a Soviet statement earlier today angrily denounced the U.S. stand on Cuba.

Kennedy Move Supported

By OTIS WRAGG
Flambeau Associate Editor

President Kennedy's directive establishing a quarantine on offensive military weapons entering Cuba has stirred widespread interest and concern on the FSU campus.

Rumors of a national crisis spread over the campus Monday afternoon when it was announced the President would speak to the nation that evening. At 6 p.m. all activity came to a standstill. Every radio and television set was tuned in and students, faculty and staff crowded around to listen to President Kennedy's address.

Immediate reaction to the President's words was varied. Most people expressed unqualified praise and support of the Kennedy directive. Some few were concerned that our position might be difficult to justify in view of the close proximity of U.S. military bases to Soviet territority.

There was speculation that action now in Cuba might percipitate a world wide nuclear war. Prospects for retaliation in West Berlin were seen as likely in view of the prediction that Cuba was no important enough to Russia for her to go to war over.

Despite reservations and conflicting opinions most people were pleased positive action had finally been taken in the Cuban situation.

Yesterday morning an air tension hung over the campus. Every newspaper rack was emptied and students huddied in intense conversation over their morning coffee. Course work in classes was all but forgotten as everyone speculated over developments in the Caribbean.

"Our government's position is a decisive and proud moment in American history," said Dr. Robert Bone, professor of government. Bone speculated there will probably be fighting in Cuba, but does not visualize a war at this time with the Soviet Union.

He said he was glad we are dealing with men in the Kremlin rather than Hitler. "There is a slight consolation in dealing with a sane scoundrle rather than an insane one. Berlin is the place to watch for Russian reaction to the Cuban crisis," he said.

The reaction of the Soviet people to our bases ringing Soviet territority in view of the quarantine was the concern of Dr. George A. Lensen, professor of history and specialist in Soviet affairs. Lensen, who spent several years in the Soviet Union, said the Cuban crisis presents a two-edged argument. "Everything said about Cuba by the U.S. could be said by the Kremlin with regard to our military bases surrounding the Soviet Union."

Although supporting wholeheartedly President Kennedy's position, Lensen said the first reaction of the Soviet people would probably be that we should get out of our bases near their territory. These bases would pose as dangerous a threat to the Soviet Union as does Cuba to the U.S. according to Soviet opionion, said Lensen.

Dr. William P. Dillingman, professor of Economic[s] "no question that the course the [U.S.] is following is an act of war." Dillingham, who is acting head of the Economics Department, felt Russia is not yet ready to retaliate on a world wide basis.

"If Russia finds we are determined they will pull [back] not that important to their drive for world domination. Retaliation, if any, will probably come in Berlin," he said.

Student leaders [commended] President Kennedy's [action]. Body President Ke[nnedy] said, "the actions of [the] days provoke serious deep concern in the minds of every member of our student body."

"There was apparently [only one] native course which could have been taken," said Secretary of Elections Ron Jones. "The [actions] (President Kennedy) outlined are frighteningly bold, the consequences yet unseen. We must now remain firm in the stand we have taken," he said.

In referring to British Prime Minister Nelville Chamberlain's attempt to avoid war at all cost by pacifying the axis [powers] before War II, Secretary [of State] Milwee said he hoped [this] action will serve to prevent [a repeat] of mistake Chamberlain [made] occuring again. Men[s] dent Gene Brown said he was [glad] some positive action has finally been taken."

Freedom Fighter Presents Film

A Hungarian Freedom Fighter will introduce a film on the Hungarian Revolution of 1956 at the Project Awake meeting tonight at 6:30 in the Library Lecture Hall.

Now a graduate student at FSU, he was a senior at the University of Budapest in 1956. He will recall for the audience the beginnings of the revolution when a demonstration was called by Polish writers asking Hungarian support against Soviet intervention in Polish Communist Government. Russia had moved a tank division into Poland to oust Gomulka, then head of the government.

A march through Budapest was started by technical university students and later joined by other students going to protest at two statutes, one of a Hungarian poet who took part in the revolution against Russia in 1849, the other a Polish general who led the Hungarian army against the Russians. It was planned as a silent, arm to arm demonstration specifically for students and no one else the student said.

Preceding the demonstration, there was fermenting inside Hungary. Students in other universities set up demands to the Hungarian government, which included the withdrawal of Russian troops, the appointment of Nagy, a nationalist communist, as premier and the removal of Gero, an ardent Stalinist and Muscovite.

At the beginning, the demands were not very radical, but as the demonstrations became more volitile, the demands grew in size and scope to include a democratic government and te breaking of the Warsaw Pact.

The student said he personally went to the square with the idea that there might be trouble and he wanted to be there when it came.

The crowd grew as people got off work and others joined the students in the square. Finally the demonstration was moved to the parliament.

Crowds kept shouting to get rid of the Stalinists and to tear the Russian emblem out of the national flag. Within three hours the streets were mobbed and the square was filled.

Tension rose until finally the people turned to the radio station in an attempt to broadcast the students' demands for reforms.

Secret police ordered soldiers to shoot into the crowd. Several people were killed before officers deserted and the mob entered the building.

The next day, unarmed demonstrators carrying the Hungarian flag were fired on with submachine guns from the police station. The student, sleeping after demonstrating all night, was occasionally waskened by shrieks of people dying beneath his window. Blood covered the streets.

Russian troops were completely unpredictable. Sometimes Hungarian students, including the one interviewed by the "Flambeau," talked to the soldiers and were able to persuade them not to fire.

Others even joined the revolutionaries. Ukrainians and other soldiers who had been stationed in Hungary for some time were [also] friendly to the students.

Secret police fired at the crowd from inside a building, killing a child in its mother's arms. The Russian commander ordered [his men] to fire on the building and the police were killed.

Russian troops then [began] leaving Budapest [and] "victorious" freedom until the [Russian] troops arrived with hundreds of tanks to retake the city.

This second wave of armored divisions shot mercilessly, killing even the nurses who were treating the wounded in the streets.

Soldiers went from house to house looking for those who had participated in the rebellion, but approximately 200,000 people managed to escape from Budapest. Some [have] returned; others are now scattered throughout the free world.

Zinka Milanov Performs Repeats Recital Tonight

By CHRIS CLARKE
Flambeau Staff Writer

Zinka Milanov, lead soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, gave the first of two recitals in Westcott Auditorium Monday night. Included on the program were both opera selections and lieder (art songs). Westcott was filled to near capacity as students, faculty, and townspeople turned out for the performance.

Madame Milanov, a veteran of twenty-five years standing at the Metropolitan, was accompanied by her brother, Bozidar Kunc. Kunc, a composer in his own right, occupied a portion of the program with a piano recital of pieces by Chopin, Debussy, himself and others.

Among the songs performed by Madame Milanov were works by Antonin Dvorak, Richard Strauss, Beethoven, Verdi, and Puccini. The operas "Tosca," "La Boheme," and "La Forze del Destino" were represented. Arias from these operas included "Vissi d'Arte," "Mimi's Farewell" and "Pace, Pace, Mio. Dio," respectively.

In response to applause from the audience Bozidar Kunc played "Hurdy Gurdy" a composition of his own, as an encore. Madame Milanov sang "O Mio Caro Bambino" from Puccini's "Gianni Schicci" and a comic version of "Little Jack Horner" for her encores.

The program will be presented again this evening at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are still on sale and may be obtained in the Westcott Ticket Office. Students tickets are free upon presentation of I.D. cards; non-student tickets are $3.50.

Grid Records Fall; Others Threatened

School football records are being broken right and left. . . and the season is only half-way finished.

Four school marks have already been rewritten, and several more, especially those involving passing, are in danger.

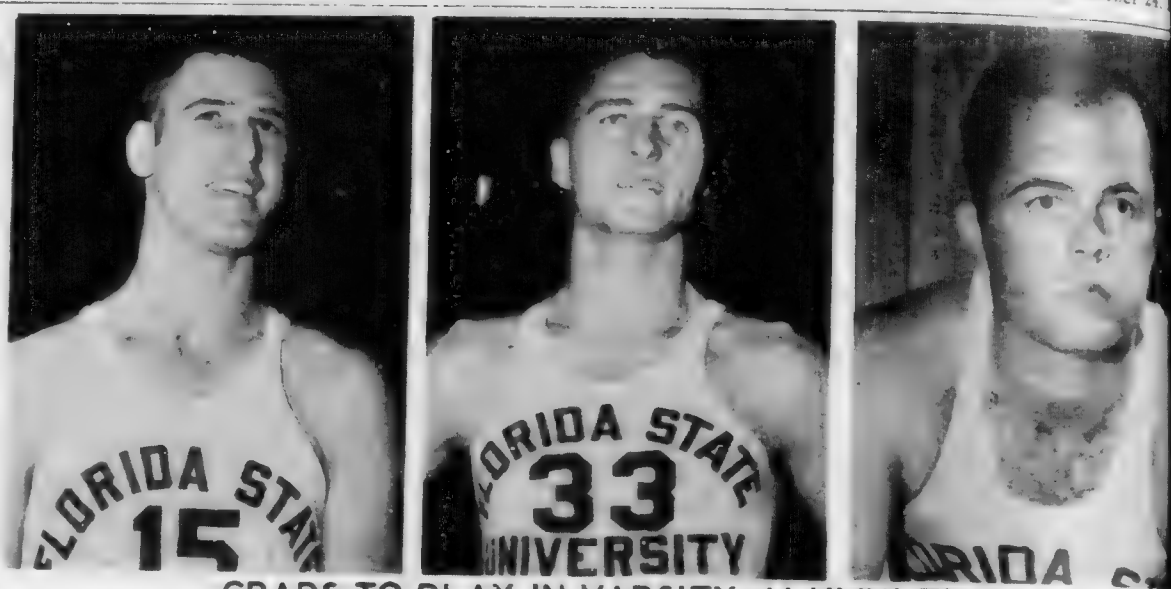
Senior quarterback Eddie Feely of Gainesville is rapidly approaching the passing marks set by Joe Majors in the 1957-59 period. The chunky field general has thrown more passes in his career than any other FSU passer when he hurled 139 aerials as compared to Majors' 136. Feely needs 55 more completions and 196 more yards to top two other records.

LaGrange, Ga., is only a junior but he already owns the records for most field goals in a season and a career. He has booted five in his one-and-a-half seasons. Messer has already tied the record of field goals in a season (3) set by Johnny Sheppard in 1958.

The three platoons have broken the school record for most yards gained rushing in a single game when they picked up 526 yards on the ground against Citadel. That surpassed the mark set in 1959 when FSU defeated the Cadets 47-6.

Other team records in jeopardy and likely to be broken during the five remaining games include most yards passing (1,745 in 1954), total offense (3,434 yards in 1954), and passes completed (107 in 1954).

Messer's 3-of-4 field goals and 5-of-6 point-after-touchdown attempts have given him the lead in scoring (20). He is trailed by Feely (14 points on two touchdowns and a PAT run); end Don Floyd halfback Keith Kinderman, fullback Marion Roberts, and halfback Ken Russon (each with 12 points with two TDs).



Marion Roberts is still in the lead in the rushing department, boasting 182 yards on 45 carries. Warrior fullback Gene Roberts of High Springs is second with 162 yards in 31 attempts.

Steve Tensi, Warrior quarterback, is second in passing behind Feely. Both have hurled 53 times. Tensi completed 29 aerials for 401 yards and four touchdowns.

In pass receiving, Kinderman has a secure lead, having snagged 15 heaves for 220 yards and two TDs. Floyd caught nine passes for 172 yards, while Russon snagged an equal amount for 132 yards.

In kicking, Renegade quarterback Charlie Calhoun has punted 22 times for 736 yards and 33.5 average. There possibly may be a broken record in punt return average. Both Russom and Calhoun are vieing for the 15.7 average mark set in 1951 by Tommy Brown. Russom is maintaining a 19.3 average, while Calhoun has the same average as Brown.

Pass thieves are headed by Dave Snyder, who intercepted a pass and ran 20 yards for a TD against Georgia. He is followed by Tom Hillabrand, who stole two passes for 38 yards and a 19 average. Chuck Robinson's average is third, (18), coming on one steal.

Under the heading "Challenge of basic religious beliefs of students by professors," the Board listed the following policies:

1. The personal religious beliefs of each student shall be respected at all times.

2. The subject of religion may be discussed and analyzed so long as it is carried on in an objective manner.

3. The faculty in discussing the subject of religion in the classroom will refrain from advocating their own religious beliefs or their own convictions concerning religion.

The board also restated the following procedures relating to homosexuality:

A. The president of each institution shall file with th executive director a confidential quarterly report on action taken with regard to the elimination of sex deviates on the campuses in compliance with the "morals and influences policy" as as adopted by the board. This report shall enumerate cases and the action taken.

B. Each academic year the board's policy in this regard shall be disseminated to each member of the faculty and staff of the institution.

C. Where serious variations from acceptable behavior occur, the board requires that a full report shall be placed in the permanent record of the individual concerned.

The directive also requires that fingerprinting of all university personnel be completed no later than Feb 1, 1963, and that following that date fingerprinting will be done when possible prior to employment.

This restatement of policies came as a result of the report of a Board subcommitte following the report of the John's Investigating Committee.

In approving the directive, the Board charged the administration of each institution with the responsibility of carrying out the directive. "We expect that this shall be a positive action, taken without delay, so that board policies are not only known but are applied fairly to insure for the young people of our state a wholesome environment for effective learning in the institutions," the Board emphasized.

U Thant Urges Both Powers Not To Endanger World Peace

Acting Secretary-General of the United Nations U Thant has reportedly sent personal appeals to President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev asking them to avoid any act which might threaten the peace of the world.

Sources in New York said U Thant has asked Kennedy to lift the quarantine against Cuba, and Khrushchev to halt ships bound for Cuba. The sources reported that he has offered his offices to help in negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union, and would make his action public in last night's session of the Security Council.

Meanwhile in Moscow, Nikita Khrushchev called for a summit meeting and urged that the United States stay its hand in the Cuban crisis to remove any threat of a nuclear war. Khrushchev said Russia will not make any reckless decisions, however, he said, it will act if the United States carries out what he termed acts of piracy.

In Washington, the Defense Department reported some Soviet Bloc ships moving toward Cuba appear to have altered course, but other vessels are proceeding toward Cuba.

The Defense Department yesterday released intelligence reports that at least 30 missiles and more than 20 Russian-built jet bombers are now in Cuba. The reports are called undeniable. Eight to ten missile bases are located near four cities, with each base having about four rocket launchers.

Offers to help the United States in its blockade of Cuba poured in yesterday from nations of Latin America. Reports indicate that, so far, eight Latin American nations have offered active assistance.

In Western Europe, France joined the other allies in full support of the American action on Cuba.

But in some parts of the world anti-American demonstrations continued. In London, demonstrators clashed several times with police. In one fight near the American Embassy, a U.S. Flag was torn to pieces. Some of the demonstrators were waving copies of the Communist "Daily Worker." In Berlin, about 5,000 anti-American leaflets, bearing the words, "Hands Off Cuba," were thrown from an elevated train in West Berlin.

Actions were taken yesterday both on the national and state level that directly affect Florida.

The Federal Aviation Agency in Washington acted to assure the immediate identification and control of aircraft operations over the southern half of Florida. It directed that no civilian planes may fly in the area unless they operate on approved flight plans and in direct radio contact with air traffic control centers.

Florida's Governor Farris Bryant announced that Civil Defense in the state is being stepped up.

The state's five educational television stations will carry a special series of Civil Defense programs. The stations, in Tallahassee, Gainesville, Jacksonville, Tampa-St. Petersburg and Miami, will put the adult education programs on the air as soon as possible.

Bryant asked that the programs be scheduled by each station for hours when familier can watch them as a unit.

In another development, Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner urged homeowners to be prepared for emergencies. "I would urgently suggest that all households make arrangements to get a two weeks supply of groceries, including baby foods and water, and to continue keeping that much of a supply at all times," he said. "At the same time I would urge that all persons keep a full tank of gasoline in their cars."

Montgomery Receives Publications Award

Dr. Reid H. Montgomery, professor and director of student activities at FSU, has been selected as distinguished advisor in the yearbook division for 1962 by the National Council of College Publications Advisors.

Selected as distinguished advisor in the newspaper division was Mrs. Gay Harding Jenkins, associate professor of journalism at Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Ore.

The two winners were chosen from more than 40 nominations from throughout the United States and Canada. Made annually by the National Council, the awards are "in recognition of the guidance, advice and assistance these advisors willingly give to the staff members of student publications at their own schools."

Fred Kildow, founder and director of the Associated Collegiate Press and the National Scholastic Press Association, from Minneapolis, Minn., was presented the Council's first Distinguished Service Award. Kildow's award was "for guidance of the nation's two student press associations and his assistance to advisors in maintaining standards of excellence."

Dr. Montgomery, advisor to the "Tally Ho," FSU's yearbook, also serves as advisor to all other FSU student publications.

Before coming to FSU, Montgomery was head of the Journalism Dept. and director of information at Winthrop College. He formerly was news editor of the Sumter Daily Item and assistant city editor of The State, Columbia, S. C. He is a member of the Southern Interscholastic Press Association and the Florida Scholastic Press Association.

tudent Senate Endorses President Kennedy's Cuban Action

affiliation with the "Collegiate uncil for the United Nations," ary of Elections Ron Jones d before Senate in support of asure, is not a membership policy agency. It is an affili- information agency and will enable us to get materials, reports, agendas, etc., which would not otherwise be available through normal channels, he explained. These materials would be deposited in the Library, he said.

Heated debate arose among the senators over a clause in the affiliation resolurion which stated, "The United Nations is recognized as the only hope for preserving lasting peace in the world...."

Nancy Sindon, a member of Honor Court, speaking in favor of the resolution, expressed the view of several senators that this was an endorsement of the United Nations as perhaps the sole, and definitely the major instrument in providing for world peace.

However, an amendment to strike this clause was introduced by Sen. Susan Wharton, who expressed the sentiment that the United States had taken action on its own in blockading Cuba, and that the U.N. is certainly not the only source of hope for peace. Senate voted heavily in favor of striking the clause.

In campus legislation, Student Senate yesterday passed a bill which gives to the chairman of University Court, chairman of Men's Judiciary and chairman of Women's Judiciary the power to vote in case of a tie, in order to decide upon a penalty. The chief justice of Honor Court already has this power.

None of these judicial officials will have the power to break a tie in determining innocence or guilt. Chairman of the Judicial and Rules Committee Bill Grant stated that these officials would be already familiar with the cases, and hence qualified to settle a tie. In the case of a tie on matters of guilt or innocence, the case is automatically dismissed.

Senate also passed a resolution for a committee to investigate the possibility of obtaining I.D. cards and special rates for University activities for the spouses of full-time married students. The committee consisting of Senators Richard Sanders, Nancy Dale and Linda Luna will report to Senate no later than the second meeting in November.

Sanders expressed the view that this legislation is the first real step taken by Student Senate on behalf of the married students, and that this should increase their interest in Senate and Student Government. It will be of great benefit to those who are under the financial pressures of marriage plus college education, Sen. Joyce Killian stated.

Student Body President Ken van Assenderp explained in a letter to Senate the nature of last wekk's legislation concerning student insurance. Senate merely endorsed the executive branch's investigation of the sole agent policy. Van Assenderp reported in his letter that "The Executive Branch of the Florida State University Student Government has made no decision and no change relative to Student Insurance."

Senate approved unanimously the appointments to the "Who's Who" Committee by Ken van Assenderp. The committee members are Tom Hall, music; Luther Kramer, campus religious organizations; Lana Murray, student publications; Chuck Kenman, graduate students; Ken Richart, dramatics and speech; Martha Pierce, Student Government; and Hank Raehn, transfers.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members with the initials of the writer following the editorial.

We Do Our Part

Tension has continued to mount throughout Florida as news of the developing Cuban crisis reaches the public. Civil defense and national guard and other military reserve units have been put on alert. The citizens of this state are rapidly becoming prepared for any eventuality.

Military bases around the state have become beehives of activity. Key West and Miami now appear like debarkation centers during the last war. The federal government has ordered cessation of all but specifically approved civilian air traffic.

Most of the free world has lauded the President of the United States for its action. We stand armed and waiting for any challenge the Soviet Union and or Cuba may present.

The whole state is bustling with activity and there appears to be a feeling of frustration here on campus. For all we can do is wait. Classes continue as usual, though often becoming the setting for discussion and speculation on the national crisis. Portable radios are seen in profusion and at the time of each news broadcast all activity ceases.

Many students are members of reserve units and would in the event of conflict be recalled to active duty. Others will be eligible for the draft and still others have said that as soon as the first shot is fired, they will enlist. Although we must wait there is no reason our thoughts and feelings cannot be registered.

Tuesday night more than 300 FSU students staged a demonstration in front of Westcott in support of the United States' position in Cuba. And yesterday afternoon Student Senate crystalized the sentiment of the student body by passing a resolution expressing "full and unqualified endorsement of the actions taken by the United States" in Cuba. Copies of the resolution will be forwarded to President Kennedy.

We applaud these events as mature and conscientious actions on the part of the FSU student body. In this time of national crisis, perhaps as never before, it is of paramount importance that we present a united and loyal front to all challengers. FSU is doing its part and will continue.

Role Of Government Ignored

This is the last of a five part series on the seven factors Karl Marx ignored when he set up his arguments against capitalism.

The seventh ignored factor of Marxist analysis is the role of government. The government has established anti-trust laws which have restrained the development of monoplies in America. In a depression the government can cre[illegible] to help lessen umempl[illegible].

There are also indirect eff[illegible] government spending. One, f[illegible] ample, develops from spendi[illegible] school-building construction [illegible] teacher's salaries. This expend[illegible] ture results in better education f[illegible] more people -- a great asset [illegible] democracy and capitalism.

Despite the ignored factors [illegible] tant to capitalism, many peo[illegible] been convinced that it is evil. [illegible] is the first and main attack [illegible] system. Dr. Fred Schwarz (s[illegible] I) gives a good example of [illegible] sidedness in the argument th[illegible] italism is evil.

Fair Warning Issued

I've had it! It's time to fight! Every day I pick up the Flambeau quaking and moaning in anticipation of seeing my column in print. I am willing to accept the fact that there's no way to put my articles on the front page, and I am even willing to accept the fumbling excuses of the Associate Editor for not letting me have a page all to myself, but when I find my articles actually squished at the bottom of the editorial page like an unlucky roach, I begin to get MAD!

But (pant, pant) let's be rational a moment--why is my column always so squished? I'll tell you why, it's because there are certain students that clog up this page with unimportant tripe such as Communism vs. Democracy, or Liberalism vs. Republicanism, or Integration vs. Segregation. It belies the creeping irresponsibility among American youth when they should concern themselves with such drivel and ignore the important things like Westcott pool, or sitting in the grass.

Well, I'm not going to let this smugness creep over this editorial page without a fight! I am going to do all in my power to free the minds of the Flambeau's readers!

So I give you fair warning Dobson, Dermott, Mahoney, and others of your ilk that parallel your writing with teen-age fads like race, coexistence and political philosophy. I plan to drive you into the margins. How shall I do it? Easy, I am going to spike your guns--I am going to write a single article that will settle every major issue in the world today. Not only will you have nothing to write about, but the world will be such a dully peaceful place that I shall be the only columnist anybody will read. You'll see! You'll see!

Welcome Mat Out For War

A night, a day, and another night--like any other--but not quite. On this campus--off this campus--not quite the same.

Cuba. Castro. Khrushchev. Kennedy. Freedom. 1-A. America. Seven words tell the story.

Students move uneasily. They talk, they think.

So unreal it seems. So impossible. So close--Cuba to the Keys.

The welcome mat is out for war--that's what they say, the Students. Boom boom we're finding our doom.

What's a little sugar--or Gitmo Bay--or nuclear warheads--or nothing. That's what they say, the Students.

Honor Court

Students Are Warned Concerning ID Usage

Students were warned today in a letter from Chief Justice of Honor Court Ross McVoy that improper use of I.D. cards will result in severe penalties.

"Since the last home football game, numerous students have appeared before the student Honor Court charged with deliberate deception concerning the use of student I.D. cards--all have been found guilty," the chief justice said.

"Usually one student would forget his or her I.D. card and in the rush and excitement of game time, another student would pass his or her I.D. card through the fence so that the friend could get into the game. Each knowing the act to be wrong, but if both were students, what was the difference?

"These students abused the privilege of being able to attend various student activities free simply upon presentation of their I.D. cards. Consequently, the Court ruled that these individuals may not, for the remainder of the trimester, enter any student activities free with their I.D. cards, but must pay to attend the event. Further a transcript of their trial is attached to their school record.

"It should be noted that students allowing their I.D. cards to be used by persons not FSU students were sentenced to Honor Court probation.

"The advice in this letter is self-evident. If you forget your I.D. card, a friend fails to bring his or hers, or you wish to get a non-student in without cost, consider the consequences of your action. Obviously, missing a few minutes of the opening quarter is a much more desirable alternative to an Honor Court trial and permanent blight on what might otherwise be a good record," the chief justice said.

VARSITY-ALUMNI GAME IS SLATED

What to do before a football game:
Check the statistics of the gridders?
Get yourself a seat on the 50-yard line?
Erase chalk marks on parked cars?
Roll a drunk?
None...

Why not attend a basketball game?

The first annual Varsity-Alumni basketball game will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday in Tully Gymnasium, and is just the thing to solve the before-the-game problems.

The contest will feature 35 former FSU cagers, all from the teams of Coach Bud Kennedy, who has been at Florida State since 1948.

The starters for the contest will come from the 1948 squad and the "younger" boys will relieve them as the game progresses, Kennedy says. Thirteen members of the 1948 squad will participate, either as players, coaches, or officials.

There will be no admission charge, and the general public is invited.

GAME IN DOAK S. CAMPBELL STADIUM

Biletnikoff, Floyd Share End Spot; Henry Reinjured

End Fred Biletnikoff has recovered from a fractured foot and might start against Coach Jerry Claiborne's VPI squad. The sophomore pass receiver, termed the best in FSU's brief football history, has never seen varsity action since he was injured during the pre-season drills.

The first medical reports indicated that Biletnikoff would be ready to start against the University of Georgia Bulldogs, but Head Coach Bill Peterson said he was not in shape for the Bulldog game.

Even now, Peterson has indicated that he would decide whether Biletnikoff or end Don Floyd would start at end when Saturday's game got underway. The two ends will share the end position.

"We're no a bit afraid to use Biletnikoff," Peterson said. "He'll be dressed but and ready to go."

* * * * *

Junior Guard Ferrell Henry may be out for the season because of an old knee injury. Henry originally injured his knee against the Miami Hurricanes and did not enter the Bulldog contest.

During practice this week, he reinjured the knee, and the Seminole medical staff says that it will be a week or so before it will know if Henry will out for the season.

He will be replaced by sophomore Steve Slay.

Florida State has been mentioned as a possible competitor in the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, the Gator Bowl committee announced. The Seminoles are being considered along with Miami, Army, Penn State, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana State West Virginia, Arkansas, Missouri, Nebraska, and Oregon.

* * * * *

After five games, the Seminoles are rated 11th in the napion in total offense with 1,873 yards, which were gained on 350 plays for a 374.6 average. Peterson's platoons trail Ohio State and West Texas by fraction points.

The Tribesmen are also fifth in passing offense. They have thrown 943 yards in 66-of-109 attempts for a 188.6 average. FSU's percentage is .606. Oregon State is fourth with 200.8 average.

In total defense, the Seminoles finished sixth, having yielded 158.4 yards per game. In defense against scoring, the Seminoles remain in second place in defense against scoring. Darmouth, which has given up three points in four games, is in first.

Florida State has surrended seven points in five games, while racking up 115 points itself.

FSU Meets VPI

Legislators Feted At Football Game

Over 80 legislators will be on hand tomorrow for a series of social events and a serious look into the educational program at FSU during Legislative Recognition Day.

Among the events for legislators will be a barbecue at Tully Gymnasium at noon tomorrow and a football game at Campbell Stadium tomorrow night between FSU and Virginia Tech.

From FSU's point of view probably the most important event is a program at 11 a.m. during which President Blackwell will be able to discuss the University's needs in connection with the expanding demands for higher education.

Before the program, which will be in the University School Auditorium, legislators and their wives will be guests at a coffee at 10 a.m.

This coffee will be in honor of the Leon County legislative delegation composed of Senate President-designate Wilson Carraway, House Speaker-designate Mallory Horne and Representative Richard Mitchell.

In addition to President and Mrs. Blackwell University deans and others who will be out to greet the visiting legislators all five members of the Homecoming Court will be on hand. The Queen has already been selected to preside at Homecoming next weekend, but her identity is a secret. Court members are Peggy Bruce, Evelyn Foy, Diane Goodwin, Kitty Miller, and Fairfax Smathers.

In addition to Blackwell who will make a brief talk, program participants will include Dr. Merle Stone, Dean of the School of Education; Dr. Joseph Hooten, director of University School; Coach Bill Peterson; and Ken van Assenderp, president of the student body.

The University Singers, a mixed chorus of 75 voices directed by Dr. Wiley Housewright, will sing several numbers. Selections from the musical, "Kiss Me Kate," will be sung by Lonnie Keene and Ethel Donaldson.

Following the barbecue legislators will go during the afternoon to Capital City Country Club where the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce will be host for a party and buffet dinner. The Chamber of Commerce is joint host with FSU for Legislative Recognition Day.

Monday Paper Bypassed For Special Edition

Monday's edition of the "Flambeau" will not appear in order to present a special "Homecoming" issue. Complete coverage of Homecoming activities including Pow Wow, the parade and crowning of Homecoming queen will be featured in this edition. Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity will distribute the "Flambeau" during the FSU-Houston football game Saturday afternoon.

FSU - U of F Game

Date tickets for the FSU-U of F football game go on sale Monday at the Westcott ticket office. Student tickets for the game may still be purchased at the ticket office all this week.

Bobby's trumpet solos have been recorded among the grooves of seven record albums for Columbia and Decca. His quartet has appeared in the night club circle including the Roundtable and the Embers in New York.

Third on the list for the "Big Sheew," is comedian Dick Curtis who has been raved by MCA Artists' Agency, as saying, "This guy is great." He is described as a spry fellow with dancing feet and a plastic face, who is usually found brightening the smoke and sawdust of some of the country's plushest night clubs. Curtis on one occasion had returned from a trip to Australia and had grasshopper and kangaroo stories to spare.

Another critic said of Curtis, that his magic is abundant. At one moment he is a youngster again, telling the adventures of his boyhood-- "Mama, we killed a mean old rat," and at another, he is an Italian guide fiercly showing the sights to a skeptical, but patient Texan and still another, miming a young lady fortifying herself for a date.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members with the initials of the writer following the editorial.

Need Is Evident

Education is now probably one of the hottest issues on the state political scene. The voters of the state are talking about the need for improving the state's educational level. So quite naturally, state politicians are also talking about education.

SOMETHING drastic needs to be done to provide the state institutions of higher learning with facilities and professors to raise the level of education in the state. Money will have to be spent to do this.

The question is who, what, when, and where.

Legislators visiting the campus this weekend can help answer that question. This will be an excellent opportunity for them to see first hand that the need exists.

LEGISLATORS certainly should visit the new Bio-Physics Building and other such improvements. But let them also see the History Building, Building A, the Science Building, and the room in Longmire Building where the Social Welfare classes are held. Let them talk to professors and students about the Trimester System. The legislators need to know the facts if they are to make proper appropriations.

The need is evident. The legislators need to see the bad, along with the good in order to determine action.

BCS

Not Act Of War

According to International Law, which is generally accepted by the nations of the world, the Cuban Blockade is not an act of war. The blockade is a "Specific Blockade," one designed to keep a certain item out of a certain country. It is defined as a measure or redress short of war.

OGLESBY, who teaches International Law, terms the measure of redress as a step between diplomacy and actual war. "Definite force is implied here," states Oglesby. But he emphasized that acts of war are carefully enumerated according to International Law and that the "Specific Blockade is not one of them." A full blockade would be an act of war.

AMERICANS must realize that International Law applies to the United States as well as the other countries of the world. Strength is necessary in the Cuban situation. Hasty, ill-considered action is not. Americans need to know the difference.

Responsible For All Men

To the Editor:

In reply to Larry Wolfe's letter I wish to say I am completely astounded!

Mr. Wolfe, do you feel that a possible (though improbably) lowering of the level in the school systems of the South, for a span of a few years, is less deplorable than the continued unequal services now rendered? Surely, Mr. Wolfe--the education of the TOTAL population of this country far outweighs any "setbacks."

I am grievously concerned, also, Mr. Wolfe, over the possible scarcity of waiters and other unskilled workers. But must we [illegible] people [illegible] simply because they are Negroes? I daresay there will be [illegible] who will be congenitally unable to take advantage of education, to alleviate your anguish over the supply of Sanitation Engineers.

I agree, Mr. Wolfe, that "white peoples" feelings might possibly matter. In fact, they have had a monopoly in this country for a few centuries.

Let me cite an old maxim that many cultures have had somewhere in their literature. "Do so unto others as you would have them do unto you." Are you studying Sanitation Engineering, Mr. Wolfe?

One final opinion. It [illegible] from Sartre. "And [illegible] a man is responsible [illegible] do not only mean that he is responsible for his own [illegible] but that he is responsible for all men."

He Loves Math Class

To the Editor:

I love my math class, I love it so much that I may take it again next trimester.

We learn a lot in my math class. Basically we learn that numbers are not numbers but symbols. Besides that, all that math is, is a manipulation of these symbols. I think the professor is symbol minded.

We as students are also fortunate in our math class because we have two teachers. Actually, though, one is a highly educated board eraser, and paper grader.

I am glad that Florida State lets me take math because it prepares me for an adequate life. I now know how to mix nuts and candy, alcohol and butterfat, and come up with a number which is only a symbol, which with a simple conversion table can be turned into kilometers, and that is a handy thing to know.

My math class has prepared me for an adequate life as either an alcoholic dairy farmer or a nut salesman with a thorough knowledge of the metric system.

Sisco Defended

To the Editor:

In response to the controversy that has arisen over Sen. Tom Sisco's letter in last Friday's "Flambeau," we are shocked to know that our elected student government officials are not only filling their position with inefficiency and disinterest, but many of them attempt to hide these faults by degrading Sen. Sisco for filling his position with integrity and ambition.

In letters to the "Flambeau" in an attempt to weaken Sen. Sisco's attack, Sen. Curry Bassett wrote "down boy"; in other words let's not be progressive. Mr. Gaines Pickett called us gullible for being interested enough in our school to want good student government, yet he admitted that the senate has made mistakes. Doesn't he believe that it is the duty of a senator to inform his constituents on action (or lack of action) which could weaken the effectiveness of the senate?

We wish to thank Sen. Sisco for doing his duty as a senator, and we respect him for taking his stand in the face of strong opposition. We consider it the duty of our elected officials to fill their positions to the best of their ability, and to inform us of things with which we do not agree.

"Once More Unto The Brink, Once More"

Think Before Acting

Following suspension of six FSU students involved in "molotov cocktail" bombing of Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity house Dean of Men Donald Loucks made the following statement:

"It has been my unhappy responsibility to issue suspension letters to six young men, ages 17-19. What has brought their college careers to such an abrupt halt? Why must they suffer loss of valuable time in pursuit of their formal education? Here is the reason, briefly their story.

"By turning my chair in Room 204, Westcott, some 180 degrees, I can look through my window upon the scene of many happy exciting events around the fountain and on the steps leading into this building. Here I have watched proud young men being tapped for ODK, even prouder parents taking countless pictures of new graduates, various student and faculty slave marts, the start of numerous Homecoming parades, and, not without some foreboding, frequent "pool" parties, where struggling young men and women seek to avoid the inevitable. These and similar activities add spice to college life and only the more stodgy of our university family would frown or offer criticism.

"By elevating my line of sight a mere five degrees, my eyes come to rest on a spot where, at about 3:30 a.m., the morning of October 13, a tragic event took place. Tragic not because of what actually happened, but tragic in its potential and in its aftermath. One hundred yards from my office window, directly in front of one of our fraternity houses, six students hurled home-made gasoline bombs, commonly called "molotov cocktails," from their passing automobile. This set off a chain of events resulting in the dismissal of all six young men.

"What is the nature and character of these six young [illegible] Surely, the same [illegible] most casual readers of [illegible] -- these must be reprehensible, immature and [illegible] far below the caliber of the average college man.

"For the most part, these men had fine personal records, at least four had some scouting experience, with one [illegible] rank and the highest [illegible] and Country Award. All have participated in high [illegible] worthwhile, wholesome activities. None possessed characteristics [illegible] the attitude of the hoodlum. Each was contrite, embarrassed, and [illegible] with the reality of the significance this event on their individual life and the effect it would have on their parents. Yet these men rode about the campus and city streets engaging in acts fraught with peril to their fellow man.

"Mixed in with the grief and tears during the terminal interviews held with these men was expressed determination to return to FSU and face up to their lapse in standards of conduct. If statistics hold up, four will return some day.

"How can such a loss of time, energy, and potential be avoided? This is the real crux of the matter. For preventive not punitive measures are the chief concern of university officials charged with [illegible] disciplinary matters. I would suggest that if every student will simply pause to think before [illegible] think of the possible consequences and the accompanying embarrassment, to think of the anguish and distress he will cause both to himself and his parents he [illegible] becoming involved in these or similar sub-standard activities."

THE CUBAN SITUATION

NEW YORK-- Acting UN Secretary-General, U Thant, announced last night he will begin private negotiations on the Cuban crisis today in separate meetings with US, Soviet and Cuban representatives. The UN Security Council has agreed to suspend its Cuban debate indefinitely for the duration of talks initiated by Thant.

As things stand now, Russia has agreed to the UN leader's proposal for a simultaneous two-to-three week halt in the US blockade and in Soviet arms shipments to Cuba to give dimplomats a chance at solving the impasse.

The United States is willing to enter into negotiations, but is in no mood to lift the blockade while these are in progress. A White House source explains: "The object of the quarantine was the elimination of Russia's Cuban missile bases. And at last word, work was continuing on those bases."

HAVANA-- Cuba was described last night as completely mobilized with Army regulars, militiamen and teen-age students standing guard in wind and rain for an invasion they are described as feeling well surely come. Most units are reported to stand by duty along the island's 2,500 miles of coastline.

WASHINGTON-- The first Soviet ship, a tanker, was checked through the US blockade today, with no trouble reported. A dozen other Russian vessels apparently turned back to avoid confrontation by American ships.

PRAGUE-- Demonstrations by several thousand persons against the US Arms Blockade of Cuba, were topped by a noisy demonstration of 2,000 Czechoslovak students in Prague.

ATLANTA, GA. Florida Congressmen were briefed on the Cuban situation along with those from other Southeastern states at a meeting in Atlanta.

MIAMI-- Contrary to rumors, Miami is not overcrowded nor are there food shortages says the Chamber of Commerce.

TALLAHASSEE-- Governor Farris Bryant has asked Floridians to continue business as usual during the Cuban crisis. He said there is no more danger now than in the past.

OTHER NEWS

THREE-PLATOONS SEEK REVENGE

Gobblers Battle FSU

The Florida State Seminoles and the Virginia Tech Gobblers will clash at 8 p.m. tomorrow night in Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

This will be the seventh game of the FSU-VPI series, each team having won three games.

Last season, the Gobblers wrecked a high-flying Florida State squad in a 10-7 upset in Blacksburg. At that time, the Seminoles had a 3-1-1 record (which they presently [illegible], and afterward seemed unable to recover from the physical and statistical whipping Coach Jerry Claiborne's team administered.

The Gobblers, although they have been anmed the underdogs by oddsmakers, are not to be taken lightly--having already whipped the University of Virginia and kept Paul Dietzel's Cadets to a 20-12 victory.

The FSU-VPI series:
Virginia Tech 24, FSU 20 (1955)
Virginia Tech 20, FSU 7 (1956)
Florida State 20, VPI 7 (1957)
Florida State 28, VPI 0 (1958)
Florida State 7, VPI 6 (1959)
Virginia Tech 10, FSU 7 (1961)

Last season, Coach Bill Peterson's FSU team, "[illegible] wanted to play more than we did. I don't think [illegible] were convinced they would hit hard until it was [illegible]

The extra punch that the 1961 Gobblers had was [illegible] created in part by the new coach, Claiborne. [illegible] winning the last contest the Gobblers [illegible] they weren't supposed to. In 1958 he was named chief assistant to Alabama's Paul Bryant.

Despite the loss of 18 lettermen, this year's squad is stronger according to general consensus.

Coach Peterson was displeased with Wednesday's drills. The Seminoles, who are rated fifth in the nation, lacked polish, the coach said.

Co-captain for the Seminoles will be Y.C. McNeese. McNeese played end last year and performs as utility center at end this year.

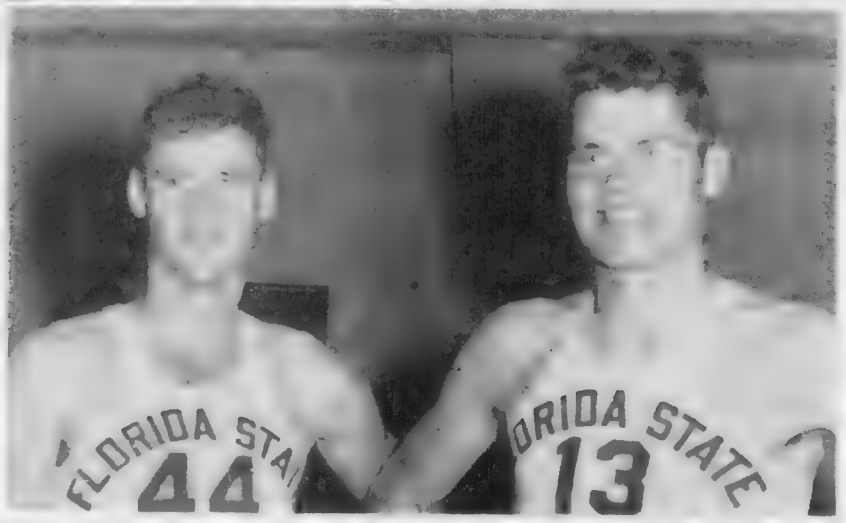
Alums Face Varsity In Pre-Season Bout

Florida State basketball coach, Bud Kennedy, can't lose tomorrow afternoon, no matter which team wins the game. At 4 p.m. in Tully Gymnasium, the graduate cagers and the varsity players will compete in FSU's first annual Varsity-Alumni game.

The contest, for which there is no admission charge, will precede the FSU-VPI grid game.

Kennedy, who guided perhaps FSU's finest basketball team to a surprising [illegible] last year, will utilize the game as an exhibition game for the varsity and a get-together and exercise for the grads.



The game, being played in honor of the 1948-49 team, will feature 35 cagers that played under Kennedy, since he came to Florida State 14 years ago.

Art Adams, personnel director for the state Industrial Commission and Tommy Waits, FSU alumni Association, developed plans for the game.

Alumni who have accepted invitations include:

Starters will come from the 1948 team and Kennedy said the youngers plays would come in on relief. The 1948 team featured guards Benjamin and Nettles, forwards Larry [illegible]ickson and Kendall, and center Adams. Kennedy's first squad split 12-12.

[illegible]wane Gordan, left, and Gary Wold are among the 35 alumni that will participate in tomorrow's Varsity-Alumni game in Tully Gym. The contest will start at 4 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU

Vol. XLIX, No. 39 Published Daily By The Students Of Florida State University Tuesday, October 30, 1962

Flambeau Covers Key West

Flambeau Photographer Art Campbell ventured down to Key West this past weekend and took these shots of the military actions in that area. The top picture shows the front view of the Casa Marina Hotel which has been closed for the past two years but now has been taken over by the military. The bottom picture shows a mobile radar unit on the city beach of Key West. Campbell also took shots of machine gun nests planted along the shore line, waiting for whatever might happen.

Facilities Desperately Needed

Blackwell Reveals $7.5 Million Future FSU Expansion Program

"Florida taxpayers are footing the bill for only $700,000 of the $7.5 million of construction for which FSU expects to break ground by summer," President Gordon Blackwell told legislators Saturday.

The University president spoke to approximately 75 lawmakers and legislative candidates at the annual Legislative Recognition Day jointly sponsored by the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce and FSU.

Dr. Blackwell told the group that FSU's building needs between 1963 and 1970 will total $65 million in state funds, and that FSU is preparing to ask for $29 million in capital improvements during the biennium beginning next July 1.

Using screen-projected maps of the campus, Blackwell showed the legislators, building by building, the major buildings which are nearing the construction stage and for which ground is expected to be broken by June 30.

These projects include a Student Union of four units in addition to the existing Student Center; an olympic sized swimming pool nearby; the first of a Physics Bldg; a research addition to the present Psychology Bldg.; and a new dormitory for 540 men students.

Although these structures will cost $7.5 million Blackwell said, only $700,000 will come from regularly appropriated state funds for their construction.

Much of the remainder is provided from the governor's bond program which depends upon student fees. "Without this bond program," he said, "we would not have several of these desperately needed facilities."

Some of the building asked during the next biennium will be for the developing the FSU Science Center, for which $15 million in new construction is being asked during the 1963-65 biennium.

Legislators traveling to the University School on buses had a view of the two new units in the complex. They drove by the recently opened Mathematics-Meteorology Bldg. and the Institute of Molecular Biophysics Bldg. and saw construction work in progress on a third floor of the Nuclear Research Bldg.

Blackwell said also that funds will be asked during the biennium for a fine arts center, a social science building, an addition to the Library and two dormitories.

FSU presently has an enrollment of almost 10,400, and must expand its crowded classroom, laboratory and dormitory facilties to accomodate an estimated 15,000 in 1970," Blackwell noted.

"The $29 million worth of buildings we are asking during the next biennium represent only what are urgently needed right now, or which will be required by the enrollments which are expected in 1965" he concluded.

Other speakers on the program included Dr. Mode Stone, dean of the School of Education; Dr. Joseph Hooten, director of the University School, who explained the plan of year-round operation for that school; Head Football Coach Bill Peterson; and Ken van Assenderp, president of the student body.

Musical entertainment was provided for the group by the University Singers, directed by Dr. Wiley Housewright, and Lonnie Keene and Ethel Donaldson.

Six Dismissed For Bombing

Six students involved in the bombing of the Tau Epsilon Phi Fraternity house October 13 have been dismissed from the university. Two of these students have petitioned for re-entry in January.

The six include Robert Atwood, 17, sophomore; Gerold Huegel, 17, freshman; Thomas McDonald, 18, freshman; James Morton, 18, freshman; Steven Robertson, 19, freshman; and Patrick McGinty, 18, freshman.

The six students were charged by the Tallahassee Police Department with disturbing the peace by throwing gas cartridges, "molotov cocktails," at the fraternity house.

Dean of Men Donald Loucks said the six have been dismissed from the university following action taken by the university discipline committee. The decision of the committee was submitted to R.R. Ogelsby who in turn submitted the decision to President Blackwell who signed the dismissal.

Dean Loucks said, "The University Disciplinary Committee was impressed for the most part with the attitude and the backgrounds of the six young men involved in the unfortunate incident. Pending a good record while away, each will be eligible to appeal for readmission in the April 1963 trimester. All aspects of this case were carefully studied by university officials. It was the consensus of opinion supported by President Blackwell that such reprehensible behavior merited stern disciplinary action."

Tallahassee Police Sgt. Vester Kelly said the students admitted riding past the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity house at 547 W. College on the morning of October 13 and tossing the homemade bombs at the house. Members of the fraternity house doused the flames caused by one of the bombs, with a garden hose. Kelly quoted the students as saying a prank "just got out of hand."

Unfair, Unethical

City Judge Balks Meeting, Calls Audience "Planted"

City Judge John A. Rudd of Tallahassee, scheduled to deliver a lecture at the Liberal Forum Sunday night, declined at the last minute to speak to the group assembled in the Unitarian Chapel.

At the time the speech was supposed to begin, he rose and told the racially-mixed group, "I had planned and prepared to address this group tonight on the topic 'The Campus and the Community.' However, since a speaker should have the right to approve the audience to which he speaks, I apologize and cannot speak before this group."

Yesterday, the judge gave the following explanation in a letter to the "Flambeau" editor:

"No doubt there will be many write-ups and letters in re my refusal to speak at the Liberal Forum Sunday evening, October 28, 1962.

"Please do not take this letter to be an apology, but merely as an explanation of the true facts.

"I was invited to speak to the Liberal Forum, Florida State University Campus, to be given at the Unitarian Chapel. Upon arrival at the designated place, I saw in the audience certain persons who had recently been tried and convicted in the Municipal Court, over which I preside. Those cases are now on appeal. These same persons, and others, have pending in the Federal District Court now, litigation against the City Offiicials of the City of Tallahassee, Florida, asking for sums of money up to one million dollars.

"It would have been the height of judicial impropriety to deliver a speech where the main portion of the program was a question and answer period.

"Further, I feel that it was completely ungentlemenly, unfair and completely unethical for the Liberal Forum to expose those people and/or me to this situation.

"Obviously, this was a planned situation which shows a complete lack of respect on the part of the Liberal Forum for any speaker."

Homecoming Bon Fire To Rise Two Stories

A blazing two-story-high bonfire will [illegible] the Homecoming Pow-Wow Friday night.

This is the first bonfire ever permitted on the grounds of FSU. Students will form a snake dance out of Campbell Stadium to the practice [illegible] where preparations for the bonfire are now underway.

Members of Scabbard and Blade, military honorary, are building and [illegible] the bonfire. All dormitories, sororities, fraternities and scholarship houses have been asked to "contribute" to the bonfire. Any[illegible] that burns will be acceptable.

Head coach Bill Peterson and team captain Gene McDowell will give pep talks. Game captain Tom Hillabrand will be introduced along with all other senior lettermen.

The Marcing Chiefs, under the direction of Dr. Manley Whitcomb, will provide the music.

Because of the more informal atmosphere at this year's Pow-Wow, casual attire including skirts, sweaters, and flats is appropriate for women students. They should not wear long pants or bermudas, however.

Immediately following the bonfire, there will be a combo party open to all students in Montgomery gymnasium.

Student chairman for the Pow-Wow is Gayle Motes, with Frank Ryll as vice chairman. Richard Hahn served as faculty chairman.

The schedule is as follows:

Seven Coeds Selected As Orange Bowl Contestants

Seven Florida State University coeds have been selected as finalists in the 1963 Orange Bowl Queen Contest.

Twenty-five were selected from a record number of 150 entries by the Orange Bowl Queen Contest Committee. The Queen and her court of four princesses will be named after a full day of judging which will begina at 9 a.m., Nov. 3.

The Queen will reign over the 29th annual Orange Bowl Festival, a 16 day period of sports and pageantry starting December 22.

In addition the Queen will receive a $500 scholarship to the Florida school of her choice and a complete wardrobe including an exclusive coronation gown. The princesses also receive fashionable wardrobes.

Downtown Store Windows To Help Weekend Pageant

Students who are interested in designing and decorating show windows of downtown business establishments as a part of the city-wide Homecoming Pageant must register no later than 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Anyone may enter a window project, although the appeal is made primarily to interested groups of individuals and organizations other than sororities and fraternities, Mrs. Kay Vernon, director of special events, said. Cash awards of $25, $20, and $10 respectively will be given to the winning groups or individuals.

Interested individuals or groups should register with Mrs. Vernon, Room 20 Longmire, or with Walter Richards, chairman of the Downtown Decorations Committee. Entries will be judged on originality, neatness, effectiveness, attractiveness, and appropriateness to the Homecoming theme, "Future View of FSU."

Decorations must be completed by 12 noon on Friday. Judging will take place Friday afternoon, and winners will be announced on Friday night at the Pow-Wow.

THE CUBAN SITUATION

WASHINGTON--The Defense Department announced that American planes made surveillance flights over Cuba today--and came back with new pictures of what's taking place on the ground on that isand. The pictures could show what has been done--if anything--to carry out Nikita Khrushchev's order on the dismantling of Russian missile bases. An analysis of these latest Cuban pictures will be completed today.

The indication is that these surveillance flights over Cuba will continue until United Nations inspection machinery takes over. As for the American naval blockade of Cuba, it too is still in force.

In other action on the Cuban situation, the United States brushed aside Cuba's demand that the U.S. abandon its naval base at Guantanamo Bay. A state department spokesman said: "American rights to the military base are clear, and the U.S. position is unchanged." The U.S. leases the base under a treaty made after the Spanish-American War.

NEW YORK--The spotlight shone last night on United Nations headquarters in New York--where acting secretary general U Thant is trying to resolve the crisis over Russian missile bases in Cuba. The Secretary-General had a round of talks yesterday with Russian, American and Cuban officials--and he was said to be heartened by these talks on the eve of his departure for Havana, where he'll meet with Fidel Castro.

The Secretary-General had a two-hour meeting with Russia's Vasily Kuznetsov, Khrushchev's special envoy in negotiations over the Cuban bases. A U.N. spokesman said it was a good meeting--and the Soviet delegate came up with constructive suggestions. U Thant also met with the Cuban U.N. delegate, who told the Secretary-General his visit to Havana is "most welcome."

And then Thant conferred with Adlai Stevenson and John J. McCloy, appointed by Kennedy today as head of a coordinating committee on the Cuban crisis.

SAN JUAN--In Puerto Rico, a leader of the anti-Castro Cuban exile organization known as Alpha 66 says he has received reports that some of the organization's fighting commandos landed in Cuba several days ago and engaged in fighting. The reports cannot be confirmed.

NEW DELHI--India asked for arms from the United States yesterday to fight its border war with Red China. And the United States promised that the arms will be forthcoming. India said it has suffered as many as 2,500 dead or missing in the border war.

MOSCOW--A high Russian military source said the Soviet Union supports Red China's territorial claims in India and will ship no arms to the Indian government. This apparently wipes out a recent Moscow deal to supply Mig fighter planes to India.

WASHINGTON--The Atomic Energy Commission reported that three more nuclear tests were set off by the Russians--two yesterday and one early today. One of yesterday's tests was at a high altitude over central Asia.

Is There Still Time, Brother?

I sit at my table in the Soda Shop, writing my column with the naive assumption that there will be a "Flambeau" to publish it. My morning doughnut refuses to be swallowed, what with all the other lumps in my throat, and I find myself unconsciously estimating the thickness of the walls. The conversation is buzzing as usual, albeit a little hushed, and every now and then one hears the words "Russia", "JFK", and "help"!

The entire situation seems to be a prolonged dream, and I find it hard to believe that such alarming reality might soon pierce the college womb. I shouldn't really worry so much, I keep telling myself: after all, ever since they took that old airplane away from in front of the ROTC building, Tallahassee has lost its importance as a defense arsenal.

As I gaze through the morning paper, I find myself gleaning what little grains of hope there are in the endless lines of print. Ah! Here's one--"Governor Bryant wires President that the people of Florida are behind him." Notice that little surge of feeling in my breast? That's patriotism. Wait! Here's something else--"student senate backs Kennedy's stand." Whew! I'll bet JFK was worried about that one. Why, the "Flambeau" editors are behind him too! Well, what's all the panic about? I'll bet the [illegible] on 24-hour alert right now. [illegible] fraternities will prob[illegible] effort too. Sign Letters

The "Flambeau's" policy on acceptance of letters to the editor has been published frequently on this page. We have attempted to encourage students to voice their opinions and to print as many of their views as possible. Some letters submitted by students have not been published, however, and questions have been raised as to the reason.

Our policy statements make it clear that all letters must be signed by the author.

Gobblers Lay An Egg, 20 -

BY HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Sports Editor

The Virginia Tech Gobblers laid an egg, 20-7, this Weekend, when the Florida State Seminoles romped to their fourth victory against a tie and a loss.

But at times, it seemed as if the outcome would be different.

The Gobblers, who previously were defeated by Army, 20-12, were handed their first touchdown on a silver platter. With the Seminoles on their 12 yard line, quarterback Eddie Feely bobbled the ball on a run around right end and the pigskin was recovered by VPI guard Vic Kreiter at the 12.

With 2:51 left in the first act, the Warriors re-entered and in seven plays scored the tieing touchdown. High spots in the drive were a 13-yard pass from quarterback Steve Tensi to end Don Floyd and a 11-yard run by Gene Roberts. Roberts' run put FSU on the 11, and a 15-yard penalty against the Gobblers pushed the Warriors on down to the four. At this point, Spooner dove over right tackle for FSU's first score with 17 seconds left. Doug Messer's kick tied the game, 7-7.

Chief halfback Keith Kinderman can be credited with the TD that put FSU ahead to stay. The first time that FSU got its hands on the ball in the second quarter, Kinderman burst through the middle for five yards before he was stopped by tackle Lynn Jones. This put FSU on the VPI 25. Then Kinderman cut across right tackle and blitzed 34 yards down the field before getting tripped up. Next, he piled through the VPI front wall for a gain of two.

Feely took some of the load off Kinderman's shoulders with an eight-yard pass to end John McConnaughhay. On this play, VPI helped along considerably by committing a personal foul. With the third first down in the series, fullback Marion Roberts ran two yards off right end.

Then the onus fell to Kinderman again. Needing eight yards for a first down, the Chicagoan swept around left end for 10 yards, putting the Chiefs on the six.

Jones stopped him again after a two-yard run, but on the next play Kinderman charged over left tackle for a TD with the second half 5:05 old. Again Messer's PAT kick was good, and FSU held a 14-7 lead until 56 seconds remained in the game.

But in between Kinderman's touchdown and the final FSU TD, also by Kinderman, the Tribesmen threatened two more times with field goal attempts.

In the third, the Chiefs got to the nine on a fake field goal. Then four- and one-yard runs then moved the Chiefs from the nine to the four. Kinderman's third down run stopped at the four. At this point, Messer attempted a field goal, which was blocked and recovered by Robinson at the five.

After a little dilly-dallying by both teams, finally FSU regained possession and began its final 76-yard TD drive. The Chiefs stayed in for four plays moving from the FSU 34 to the FSU 49, largely because of a 14-yard pass from Feely to end Tom Hillabrand. With 5:41 left in the game, the Warriors came in on relief. Quickly the Warriors picked up five first downs, relying on three runs by Spooner, two jaunts by Gene Roberts, and one five-yard aerial to Systma and two 11-yard passes to Systma and right half Winfred Bailey. Gene Roberts went up the middle one yard on the second down to put the Warriors on the VPI 3. Tensi's pass to Systma in the end zone was dropped, and then Kinderman sliced through right tackle for the final [illegible] left.

Council Of Deans Discusses BOC Directive

[illegible] the Board of [illegible] cerning ob- [illegible] aterials was [illegible] FSU Council of [illegible] [illegible]ttee, President [illegible] W. [illegible] directive, a reiteration of [illegible] policies, was issued at the Board [illegible] Gainesville, Oct. 29. It requires that all textbooks are pertinent to the subject being taught, the best material available and obtainable and within the purview of good taste and common decency.

The discussion by the Council is apparently the first action taken at FSU concerning this phase of the directive. Other parts of the directive deal with matters ranging from communism to homosexuality.

Following the Board's meeting, Dr. Sheldon Grebstein of the University of South Florida was suspended by President John Allen because of his selection of teaching materials. He reportedly distributed to his classes a published review of "Beatnik" literature containing quotes adjudged [illegible].

At USF and the University of Florida chapters of the American Association of University Professors have demanded an investigation into the matter.

Dean of Faculties Werner Baum told the "St. Petersburg Times" that one form of implementation action being considered is to have faculty members sign a textbook requistion form that states, "in their judgment, material being ordered meets with the three conditions" set by the Board.

"I am of the opinion that our faculty is doing this now," the Dean said, "but we want to make certain that the policy is called to their attention."

Although the directive is probably considered by many to be an infringement of academic freedom one professor commented, that it was unlikely that many faculty members would do anything about it. "A professor doesn't do something to cause him to lose his job unless he already has another one," he said.

This does not mean, he feels, that the faculty is apathetic to the situation, but rather that the "commitment of the faculty member is to our own scholarship that is, research and teaching."

State Of Campus Address

Ken van Assenderp Addresses Campus

The main portion of President van Assenderp's speech will be devoted to a "self-study" of the FSU Student Government which he has urged all branches of the government to join into wholeheartedly.

The study began with a directive van Assenderp handed down to his Cabinet at the beginning of the year for each of the members to study and report on the operations of his own position. This was prompted by the University Self-Study which was published last year, and deals with the operations of different aspects of the University operations.

Van Assenderp said, "While we are above the average Student Government right now, we won't be unless we make some changes now." He feels, "We should make improvements in our system before the need arises."

Van Assenderp pointed out that, "We are now ten years ahead of most other university student governments in our financial operations, but there are other agencies of our Student Government which show definite inadequacies in their operations."

One aspect of this Student Government self-study has shown the assets of setting up the Cabinet Government system instead of the past committee system, the president said. By this system, students could be called upon when they were needed for an expressed purpose; and they would not have to attend meetings when there is no duty for them to perform. President van Assenderp pointed out, however, that this possibly could not be applied to all of the Cabinet positions and their operations. It is felt though that many of the Cabinet operations could be handled much more efficiently under this new system, he said. This is just one of the possible changes brought forth by the self-study, President van Assenderp pointed out.

The "self-study", along with its recommendations will be presented in the "State of the Campus" address. President van Assenderp urges all FSU students who are interested in their Student Government to attend this meeting.

Students Must Meet 3 Points

All students who will meet the requirements for transfer from the Division of Basic Studies to a degree-granting school or college at the end of this trimester should see their advisors to sign an Intent to Major form.

Requirements for transfer are:

Dictatorships Rule New Countries

United States should neither [illegible]urprised nor dismayed when [illegible]overnments of newly emerg- [illegible]untries become dictatorships, [illegible] M. Watkins said Mon- [illegible]

[illegible]chairman of the Political Sci- [illegible] Yale spoke on "Colonialism and Dictatorship" at the first [illegible] lectures sponsored by [illegible]ment Dept.

"The usual colonial experience is that the top management of government and industry remains in foreign hands," he explained. In this situation the native population is in no way trained to exercise basic economic control. Those that are trained become "a modernizing native elite," he said. This results in "the cleavage of the society into two hostile elements" and "the natural tendency is for the advanced sector to claim a right to dictate," according to Watkins.

When this occurs, Americans tend to take it as a failure of American foreign policy because they assume that the right way of government is "constitutional democracy" and that anything else is wrong, he said.

This belief that foreign policy has failed exists in spite of the fact that "substantial victories for the free world have been made" in establishing a system of alliances, he said. Americans need to revise their major expectations so they will be more "realistic and psychologically satisfying," he stressed.

"The principle of American foreign policy should be to try and figure out which of the various dictatorships would be most useful to us, which most likely to lead to modernization and ultimately to democracy," he said. These should be supported by the U.S., he emphasized. "We shouldn't reject these people because they are dictators."

Further, U.S. support should not be withdrawn from a dictatorial regime unless there is relative certainty that something better will follow. "The difficulty is to know what kind of a dictatorship is going to emerge if you get rid of the one that's there," he stressed.

Game Tickets

[illegible] tickets for the Homecoming [illegible]ne cannot be bought at [illegible]ni Office. The $2 ticket along with end zone seat [illegible]kets for $3 will be available [illegible]t Campbell Stadium at 10 a.m. [illegible]y.

Debate Team Wins Second In Dixie Debate Tournament

The FSU Debating Team carried away one trophy and six certificates from the Dixie Debate Tournament, held Friday and Saturday at Mercer University.

Vanderbilt placed first and Alabama second in the debating event. It was the first tournament of the season for the FSU squad.

Of the team's 25 members, 16 attended the Dixie tourney. Winning a trophy were Peyton Wynns and Polly Donnigan, who won six and lost none to place first in the novice division. Miss Donnigan, Wynns, and Paul Brown won certificates of excellence.

Charles DeFoor was awarded a certificate for superior performance, placing him among the top four debaters at the tourney.

The FSU team won 29 and lost 19 rounds. Approximately 30 debate teams participated.

This weekend, a team of four debaters will attend a tournament at Emory University in Atlanta. Bill McCarron, Dick Erickson, Dean Fadely and Steve Mielsel will make the trip.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members with the initials of the writer following the editorial.

'State Of Campus'

The president of the student body will present his "State of the Campus" address today to Student Senate and to the student body as a whole.

In the past, many senators have considered these addresses boring ordeals which they are compelled to sit through. Judicial and executive branch officials have been conspicuous by teir absence and lack of interest, and the student body as a whole has shown little or no interest at all.

SOME OF THE ADDRESSES have warranted this lack of enthusiasm; some have not. When the student body president himself consideres the "State of the Campus" address a burdensome chore nothing worthwhile is likely to be said. However, when he utilizes the great potential of such a speech, it can be a powerful facet of executive leadership.

Pres. van Assenderp will present many of the findings and suggestions brought forta by a recent "Self Study" of FSU Student Government. This study was carried on by directive of the student body president and points to many of the strengths and weaknesses of our present norm in many aspects of our student government, there are also many parts of our system which he feels need immediate attention. "The time to act is now," van Assenderp said, "if we wish to continue to have a top-ranking student government."

officials. It will, however, also be of interest to each member of the student body who may be called upon in the near future, either by vote or active participation, to take part in their student government.

WE THEREFORE URGE that each member of student government be conspicuous by his presence and attentiveness at the president's address, and not by his absence and or disinterest.

We further urge that all student's attend today's session at 4 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium so they can see what work their representatives have done and are planning to do in the remainder of the year, and so they can see what changes need to be made to make FSU's student government more efficient and effective.

TEZPUR, INDIA-- An Indian major reporting from the frontier battlefront said yesterday the Chinese Communists are throwing masses of troops against Indian positions. Some of the Chinese are sent along without weapons. They wait for comrades to fall dead or wounded and then pick up their rifles and submachine guns to carry one.

The major's report is one of the first eyewitness accounts of fighting in the Dhola sector of Northeast India, near the Tibetan border. It reached correspondents at Tezpur, India, by means of a Scottish tea planter. The description covered a Chinese onslaught that overran a lightly defended Indian outpost.

Only severely wounded troops have been brought back from the battlefronts in the mountains and correspondents have been barred from going to the front for observation.

Seminoles Need One More For Winning Season

FSU, with a 4-1-1 record under its belt, is anxiously looking forward to this Saturday's Homecoming game with the Houston Cougars.

The Seminoles are anxious for reasons

First of all, Coach Bill Peterson needs only one more victory to assure a winning season, and, considering the calibre of the last three teams on FSU's schedule—Georgia Tech, Florida, and Auburn all on the road—the tribe will have an easier row to hoe against Houston

The Texans also haven't been faring too well this season, dropping a 12-0 contest to Boston College last Saturday. In six outings, the Cougars, under rookie Coach Bill Yeoman, have lost four games.

But Peterson warns, "I guarantee you one thing—they have a strong line easily the biggest we will have faced this year." He pointed out that Houston played a tough game against Alabama before losing, 14-3. In some games the Cougars have played fine offensive ball, while having outstanding defense in most games, Peterson said.

A second reason why FSU is anxious to win Saturday's game is that it has a three-year-old Homecoming "jinx" on its hands. Former Coach Perry Moss started the jinx in 1959 with a [illegible] has seen Kentucky win, 23-0, in [illegible]

Branch. The Executive Branch ...sponsibility and authority to be efficient and effective," he stressed.

Van Assenderp advised a revamping of the Student Traffic Court due to a report from a 1962 Campus Traffic Study conducted by the Florida State Road Department. It was noted from the report, that students tended to regard campus traffic violations as unimportant.

The Student Government committee studying the traffic report considered that regardless of the court's good intentions, it was ineffective because of inefficient organizational structure.

The committee made two proposals. One, a traffic court member should be elected and should be designated "traffic court chairman." Two, the student body president should appoint four associate court members with the advice of the elected chairman and the university security officer. Two of the appointed associates should be appointed from the student assistants working in the University Security Office, and two should be appointed at large from the student body.

Previously, van Assenderp had instructed Cabinet members to initiate a study of their respective offices for the purpose of planning legislation for more efficient operations of Student Government in the future.

Secretary of State Jim Blue recommended that the University Promotion Committee and the Educational Analysis Committee be changed in structure to bureaus and the Curriculum Evaluation Council be merged with the Educational Analysis Bureau.

Attorney General Lyman Fletcher proposed that the Honor Court structure be revised to provide for the attorney general to investigate cases in cooperation with a proposed chief defense counsel. (Please see Senate, this page.)

Secretary for Communications and Public Affairs Reville Slayden urged the creation of an undersecretary to co-ordinate the communication aspects of this office.

Secretary of Welfare Bill Sheppard proposed setting up an agent of record to improve the quality of the Student Insurance program.

Secretary of Student Events Lou Rich proposed the establishment of a three-man staff to plan and coordinate campus artist attractions.

Secretary for the University Union Don Thigpen reported he is planning the organization and function of the University Union Board to insure that the Union remains under the jurisdiction of Student Government.

Secretary of Elections Ron Jones is working with memebers of Senate in revising the Elections Code and in "establishing optimum dates for elections under the trimester system." He is also studying the length of terms of office and lines of succession of elected officials.

Secretary for Internal Affairs Evelyn Flathman proposed the establsihment of an independent rally or booster organization to replace the present Rally Committee.

Secretary of Intercollegiate Affairs Kitty Miller recommends the appointment of an undersecretary to coordinate plans for the annual Student Government Retreat.

Si Zentner Plays For Homecoming

Tickets for the Homecoming Dance, to be held Saturday night in Tully Gym, are now on sale at Westcott for $3 per couple.

Music will be provided by Si Zentner's 17-piece orchestra. The Journeymen will make a brief appearance at the dance.

Competing floats will return to Campbell Stadium via Gaines street, where final judging will be done.

The winning floats will be announced at the beginning of the Pow Wow ...orrow night. The winning and runner-up floats in each category will ...make a semi-circle of the field before the stands.

Chiefs Salute Future View At Halftime

The FSU Marching Chiefs will be high-stepping with a "Salute to the Future of FSU" during Homecoming halftime this Saturday.

The show will open with the playing of the "1962 Homecoming Fanfare," after which the Chiefs will move down the field to the "Fight Song." The band will form a telescope to take a look at the future of FSU.

In order to understand the future growth of FSU, the Chiefs will direct the audience's view to the past, especially the 1950's when the old bird, the stork, was quite busy. To the tune of "Rock-a-bye Baby," a stork will be formed on the field.

The band will then move into the figure 15,000, the predicted number of "little Indians" on campus in the year 1970, as they play "Ten Little Indians."

An arrangement of "Summertime" and the formation of a baby carriage will suggest the growing number of upper division and graduate students, many of them married, whose gas buggy has been replaced by the baby buggy. To the music of "High-ho And Off to Work We Go," the band will then form a steam shovel to help the future building program on campus.

As these buildings will take money, the band will symbolize Westcott Fountain, and play "Three Coins in the Fountain," and assure the citizens of Florida that their contributions will contribute to a greater Florida State University. The majorettes and the Garnet and Gold Girls, in their routine, will salute Homecoming and FSU.

This show will mark the final appearance of many senior members of the Marching Chiefs in Doak Campbell Stadium. Among these are Jon Ann Beazley, Head Majorette, and the Garnet and Gold Girls, Janice Freeman and Beverly Calvert.

The Garnet and Gold Girls, the first female solo twirlers to be featured with the band, have performed as the solo twirlers with the Chiefs for the past four years.

Dr. Manley R. Whitcomb, has directed the band since 1953. Assisting him is Robert Braunagel, and Charles Carter, special arranger.

For The Weekend

Fashion Conscious Coeds Advised On Proper Attire

With Homecoming Weekend foremost in almost every coed's mind, the big question is, "What will I wear, and where and when will I wear it."

Now that the frost is on the pumpkin, the big question's answer depends on the weather. If a cold nip is forecast, mothflakes will be shaken from light wools, but if the trend is to warmer days, then it will be on dark cottons.

Rules to follow for the Pow Wow and the Homecoming Parade are based on informality with two piece dresses and sheaths or skirts and sweaters and flats the order of the day. But if Jack Frost decides to take over the scene, pleated skirts and blouses with cardigans are a good bet.

During the afternoon when the Seminoles clash with Houston, cotton suits or lightweights wools are worn. In either case, gloves and heels are used as assessories. White heels are usually taboo in Florida after Labor Day.

The Homecoming Dance is one of the few times during the year when the coed can don her best. This is the time to look elegantly feminine in a long formal and long gloves. For those who do wish to wear long formals, a short formal or cocktail dress is very appropriate.

The latest fashion magazines show popularity slipping on full skirts and full hairdos. The soft natural look seems to be the latest trend in hairstyles with the modified bell and the softly flared skirt becoming more popular.

Now, for a special note to the men. Their dress will consist of coat and tie for most activities. Men and women should get together for a small pre-dance conference to see what she is going to wear. If she is wearing a cocktail dress, he should wear a dark suit (without white socks), but if she is wearing formal attire, he should dress appropriately by wearing a dinner jacket.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members with the initials of the writer following the editorial.

Committeeitus Out

President Ken van Assenderp kicked a traditionally pitiful method of running a Student Government out of the way in his State of the Campus address yesterday. He proposed abolition of committees and the establishment of a more effective means of handling business.

The proposals are welcome. For years critics of Student Government, including the "Florida Flambeau," have been crying loudly for an end of "committeeitus." And for years Student Government has been glossing over gross inefficiency in its executive branch by steadfastly ignoring any suggestion to streamline.

Reality has finally been recognized. The Student Body President is preparing to cut the deadwood from his organization.

"We must shed the last vestiges of earlier inferior practices. We in the Executive Branch must rid ourselves of that contagious disease -- committeeitus," fired van Assenderp.

"The Executive Branch is a place for knowledgeable, eager, experienced action -- not dead wood. It is a place for flexibility and adaptability -- not awkward delay."

Under the committee system a group is appointed to handle a certain problem. Usually, it is very difficult to get all members of a group together, so action is awaited for weeks and months. Ultimately, a few did the work.

Under the Cabinet-Bureau-Staff system, the Cabinet member will be able to delegate a certain problem to a few people. He can maintain closer communication with them and expect more information faster.

Van Assenderp has sounded the call for more efficiency in Student Government. He hopes that this will help emphasize academic pursuits by cutting down on the drain of time Student Government has on its members.

The idea is good, but concrete details as to the exact operation of the bureaus and staffs are still lacking. Organizational structures still must be formulated. Duties must be assigned. Jobs must be specified. Such details are necessary before an accurate judgement of the value of the proposed system can be made.

Doing away with inefficient committees will have no value if they are to be replaced with inefficient bureaus. We hope that the Executive Branch can establish clear-cut, working bureaus to handle the complex problems which continually confront it.

Free From Morals?

I just read a sickening editorial. [illegible] "Sex," the editorial proclaims, "is a perfectly natural function of the human body". From this true statement, the writer goes on to say that the girl herself should decide whether she should go to bed with Joe College. "She knows that contraceptives are safe and effective", and should base her decision on whether or not to shack up on "blind ignorance,....and Victorian morality."

I suppose that we should expect such collegians, educated beyond their ability, to say that we have been emancipated from the Judeo-Christian morality, and have entered the era of do-it-yourself moral legislation. That there are no fixed truths in the world any more..... no God-given rights or obligations. That the whole thing can be explained by the social scientists. Who are we to say that the cannibals have a system of morality inferior to ours? After all, it suits their needs just fine.

But in our world, a world of great complexity and danger, man needs more than the pragmatic faith. He must have something greater than himself to believe in, for if man alone is supreme, how can one rationalize away all the hypocrisy, all the cruelty, greed and ambition in the world today?

Once one accepts the idea that human being are not accountable to a greater power than themselves, the Communist thesis that individual members of the species may be sacrificed for the common good; if there is a long range benefit for mankind to be gained through the murder of millions of people, that it is an act

World's Problems Solved

This problem is easily solved. In fact, it's so easily makes me wonder about the level of intelligence of our w The answer is not disarmament, but DISROBEMENT! Perhaps disrobement solves the conflict with Communis to solve the race problem. Even I will admit that. No, the race problem is much more complicated:

LIBERALISM VS. CONSERVATISM

Although disrobement and "gene-greening" will already ha the conflict between liberals and conservatives quite a bit, th of the Democratic and Republican political parties will re drastic measures. The procedure will begin with a much-publi entific experiment in which a mule is cross-bred with an ele hant, r sulting in either an "elemule" or a "mulephant," depending on what's front (cause its what's up front that counts). The two political parties, pr ceeding with their characteristic irrationality, will cross-breed another (politically, of course) in hopes that the result will be a s moderate party. The actual result, however, will be NO political par since opposite beliefs will cancel one another out, resulting in n (Schultz's Law).

So there you have it. The solutions to the three greatest conflicts in th world today. It never ceases to amaze me that I should be the first to com up with these simple answers. After all, I'm no different from anyone else Even I will admit that.

the Honor Court cases should remain the same. The difference under this bill is simply that both sides of the story will be presented sufficiently and accurately, and that the Honor Court will not have to take on duties which are not properly a part of its functioning," Brown concluded.

The bill, if passed, will also provide that the members of Honor Court, within one month after their installation, shall prepare in writing a "Rules of Court Procedure." They have had no such written rules in the past.

Men's Vice President Brown stressed about this point. "I feel that any court that has the right to ruin a person's life by expelling them from the university, should be required to have a written rules of procedure." He added, "If this is not a good thing, I do not want it passed; but I feel that it is good!"

Brown explained that a great deal of investigation had gone into this bill, and that this system had proven effective at other major universities. The main purpose of the bill is to "make the Honor Court what a court should be...."

Varsity Cagers Stomp Alums, 105-59, In First Annual Tilt

The Florida State varsity basketball team swamped the Alumni Saturday afternoon, 109-59, in Tully Gymnasium. In a "game" that seemed more like a practice for the varsity and a get-together for the alumni.

The alums stayed in the game until they reached 20 points and then seemed they would never hit another point. At the halftime, the score was 45 to 20, varsity's way. But finally, with the varsity approaching the 80's and 90's, the alumni got in the groove and began moving toward the 50 mark.

[illegible], who played from 1951 to 1955, sank the first foul that cracked 50, and then added a free throw to give the alumni 51.

The varsity shot a hundred when forward Cal Huge sank a field goal, and also added a field goal. Field goals by center Bill Giswold and guard Bob Lovell pushed the varsity score to 105, while Benson hit a field goal and a free throw that gave the alums 59.

Starters for the alumni came from the 1948-49 [illegible] the first team that [illegible] at FSU [illegible] ago. About 1,500 spectators watched 20 of the alums battle the varsity.

Leading varsity scorers were 6-7 center Dale Reeves (21), 6-4 forward Charlie Long (15), guard Lovell (11), and Huge (11), guard Pete Rogers (10), and Dale Ricketts (10).

Benson and Bob Watts, of the 1953-57 teams, paced the alumni with 10 each.

Pow Wow Sets Homecoming Spirit As Bonfire Kills Cougar

By GAYLE MOTES
Flambeau Staff Writer

A six-foot-long Houston cougar burned in the flames of FSU's first Homecoming bonfire will conclude the Pow Wow tonight.

The event will begin in Campbell Stadium at 8:30 p.m., and is free.

The new or "futuristic" aspect of this year's Pow Wow is a completely different format with major emphasis being placed on the creation of pep, spirit and enthusiasm. Although changed, the Pow Wow will continue to keep many of its traditional elements, including the crowning of this year's Homecoming queen from a court of five senior FSU coeds.

Candidates are Peggy Bruce of Atlanta, Ga., Evelyn Foy of Knoxville Tenn., Diane Goodwin of Jacksonville Kitty Miller of Sarasota, and Fairfax Smathers of Winter Haven.

The winning floats will be announced as a part of the Pow Wow. Awards are to be given in five categories: most original float, most humorous float, most beautiful float, most appropriate float for the Homecoming theme, and the best all-around float theme. One honorable mention award also will be given.

The FSU fighting Seminoles will add to the spirit. Coach Bill Peterson and senior captains Gene McDowell and Tom Hildabrand. Helping to create pep will be the Marching Chiefs, under director of Dr. Manley Whitcomb.

The end of a flash of fireworks will signal the beginning of a snake dance to the site of the bonfire, which will be located in the practice golf course area, behind the south end zone of the football field.

The bonfire, which utilizes several telephone poles as its base, was built earlier this week by Scabbard and Blade, military honorary. Wood

Academic Freedom?

"If there isn't freedom in a university, then where can freedom be found?"

A professor was commenting on academic freedom. He was concerned with educators freedom to pursue knowledge and to communicate what they judge to be truth.

Traditionally, in great universities the ability of professors and students to read and speak freely in the pursuit of knowledge without fear of a politician peering over their shoulders (politicians who in most cases have never read, nor have the background to comprehend the material in question) has been held sacred.

As a result of Johns Committee investigation at the University of South Florida, the Board of Control (BOC) has reiterated its policy concerning obscenity in text books. State Universities are now charged with insuring that "all textbooks shall be pertinent to the subject being taught, the best material available and obtainable and within the purview of good taste and common decency."

To implement the BOC policy at FSU an "honor pledge" may be drawn up. Each faculty member ordering texts would have to swear they were ordered under the criterion set by the Board.

In the light of recent purges by self-appointed campus cops the question could easily be raised as to what happens to a professor if a student or any citizen of the state protests that the material is unsuitable.

Would he, like the professor at USF face dismissal because of a difference of opinion concerning pertinency, quality or taste?

We would rather see professors hired for their academic backgrounds and experience, decide freely without fearing loss of their jobs what students should study rather than political figures who are mainly concerned with making political hay.

Will the BOC and state university administrations be intimidated to the point where qualified and superior professors will shun our campus and Southern Assn. of Colleges and Universities remove our accreditation as the result of improper political pressures?

We firmly believe that the time has come for the administration to stand up to the Board of Control and the Board to the Johns Committee. Academic freedom is the sacred trust of a university. If we are to train young people to be the leaders of our country, to uphold and perpetuate the freedoms and principles on which our nation was founded we cannot allow political opportunists to interject their unqualified and mercenary opinions into the governing of our academic institutions.

China Miscalculated On India

By Mygnon Champion

Communist China seems to have miscalculated.

For years, China has dabbled in border conflicts with India. At first, assuming that Chinese patrols had crossed the Indian border by mistake, India simply dispatched cordial notes to Peiping informing them of the error. As it became increasingly evident that Chinese border incursions were not mistakes, the Indian Government became increasingly indignant. Each time, however, that the Indians resisted, the Chinese applied greater force and shouted "war mongers" at the Indians, who submitted rather than risk war.

This time the Chinese strategy back-fired. This time the Chinese show of force provoked not humiliating submissiveness from the Indians but a fierce determination to resist aggression. The Indian people, much like the Americans, are slow to anger. They will endure great provocation before taking up arms but, once pushed too far, will react with vigor and heroism. The Chinese simply "mistook forbearance for weakness."

The Chinese, with an army four times the size of India's and looking at the Hindu tradition of ahimsa (non-violence) and the Gandhian tradition of satyagraha (non-violent non-cooperation), apparently did not think the Indians would fight.

They failed to understand the other face of Hinduism. In Bhagavad-Gita, one of the classics of Hinduism, Khrishna, the incarnation of the God Vishnu, declares: "To a warrior there is nothing nobler than a righteous war. But if you refuse to fight this righteous war, you will be turning aside from your duty."

Thus, it seems that Nehru, Krishna Menon, and the Indian people have now stood up and resolved to fight. When Nehru ordered the Indian army two weeks ago to clear the Indian soil of the invader, the Chinese employed their old strategy of a great show of force by hurling two divisions into India. Apparently a full invasion of India was not planned at that time; to launch such a venture on the eve of winter in the Himalayas (through which all Chinese troops and supplies must come) would be sheer lunacy.

However, President Kennedy's speech last Monday night had repercussions in China as well as Cuba. The opportunistic Chinese may well have decided to take advantage of the situation; while the West was occupied with Cuba, perhaps they thought they could take on India without interference. Perhaps the "inevitable war" which they predict will finally come to pass. If so, the U.S. has certainly left China holding the bag.

Just Trying To Help

The strangest thing happened to me a couple of weekends ago. After I took my date back to her dorm, I was walking beside a hedge. The stars were out, and the lunatic rays of Luna still had some effect on me. Suddenly, I tripped over something. I heard a female's voice almost scream. I had tripped over one of her legs projected from the hedge.

You can well imagine how surprised I was. My immediate thought was that she had been attacked and pulled into the bushes. I stooped to help her. All I heard, however, was a deep voice: "Mind your own business, buddy." It was too dark in the bushes to see even the outlines of the figures, for the moon had slipped behind some clouds.

She said, "I'm okay."

You can well imagine how much more I was surprised. Had her attacker forced her to say these words? Perhaps he had a knife at her throat.

I backed away in fear. My next thought was to find a campus cop. But no, I [illegible] What if the owner of that voice were [illegible] get away? If I reported [illegible] papers. The murderer, knowing if I [illegible] might come [illegible]

I ran back to my dorm, jumped in bed, [illegible] Lord might save that poor, innocent girl and forgive me for my not-so-brave decision.

The next morning I quickly found me a Tallahassee Democrat. There were no reports of a girl being found murdered and felt greatly relieved. The [illegible] students in the news were [illegible] arrested the previous night. It appears that the [illegible] at the Florida High field [illegible] left shining on the Tully [illegible] night, and [illegible] were [illegible] strange places to discuss their week's activities.

Board Of Control Knows What's Best

To the Editor:

The recent directive of the Board of Control and the present activities of the inquisitorial Johns Committee couple to make my task tantamount to treason--but I must make several suggestions.

First, consistent with the apparent aims of both of the above named groups, it seems that the title Florida State University is not applicable. Although the letters FSU are far easier to explicate, my proposed title goes further into an actual explanation of the function of the future (sic(k) university. I submit the following title for adoption by the Board of Control: FSUECFPOI-OTOAWONM--Florida State Umbilical Extension Cord for Progenitorship of Ignorance of The Opinions and Writings of Nasty Men.

Second, I would like to suggest a method for determining "good taste" in the [illegible] courses. The Board of Control neglected to delineate a plan [illegible] out this part of their dictum. It's understandable, however, for [illegible] members were [illegible] ily blinded by the illumination created by their own brilliance. At any rate, we can simply modify the [illegible] one large city used to form a [illegible] censorship board. [illegible] firemen's widows and the ex-mayor's ex-chauffeur off Social Security and made them censors. They [illegible] nighted (or is it [illegible] the city's conscience [illegible] can modify the plan and bestow honor on a task force [illegible] janitors. Of course, they [illegible] but, given enough [illegible] and razor blades, they [illegible] library of filth. Some [illegible] mired by less enlightened [illegible] tions will, by necessity [illegible] completely. We will still, however, have some things of Milton (no, he wrote revolutionary material that tyrant, Cromwell--I [illegible] but we can have the whole [illegible] Twins series (woops my mistake--incest theme, you know); we certainly can have the Bible (an expurgated version, of course). The map section will be in good shape as will the mathematics books--unless a disgruntled student has scribbled in the margins.

Who needs philosophy, psychology, sociology, literature, music, history, art, etc.? Remember, the Board of Control wants only the "best materials"; ignore minor difficulties that appear to our [illegible] tored minds--the Board will tell what's best for us.

Professor Professes Nothing

To the Editor:

In the lead article of the Oct. 31, 1962 issue of the Flambeau ("Council of Deans Discusses BOC Directive"), you have quoted some nameless professor as saying that "it was unlikely that many faculty members would do anything about" the BOC directive. This professor goes on to say that "a professor doesn't do something to cause him to lose his job unless he already has another one." Then he adds that this does not mean that the faculty is apathetic to the situation, but rather that the "commitment of the faculty member is to our own scholarship; that is, research and teaching. Baloney!

If the faculty of this University does not take a stand on an issue as important as this, what future issue could possibly move them to action? None that I can think of, save perhaps a drastic salary cut. That would be important; it WOULD hurt where it really counts.

Perhaps it is because I am still a young man, because I still believe in such ridiculous ideas as truth and freedom and personal discretion, that I am moved to repudiate this "professor's" statements. He does not speak for me. He does not stand for the ideas I stand for. He does not stand--and in this he fails to be a professor.

Perhaps he has a family and the possibility that his security will be taken away and his family injured moves him to say such things. I have a family too. My responsibilities to my wife and son go much deeper and much further than the nearest bank. I must make them secure against a more terrible condition than material poverty. How could I teach my son to believe in himself, in freedom, in personal responsibility, if I surrender these things? I could not look at myself, much less at my son.

So I say no to this nameless professor. He "professes" nothing of value to this University, this community, this state or this country.

Rain Preparations Are Made

"Rain, rain, go away."

This is the hopeful chant of those who have worked long hours in preparation for Homecoming and of everyone who wants to attend the Homecoming activities.

It's worked in the past. At least rain has never kept the Homecoming parade from moving or the Pow Wow from being held outdoors.

And this year? The weatherman is wary. He predicts "partly cloudy and mild" weather for this afternoon with temperatures about 74. However for tonight and tomorrow the prediction is "considerable cloudiness with a chance of showers." For Sunday the weather will be "clearing and cooler."

Just in case the clouds really do pour forth, a "rain" committee will meet at 12:50 this afternoon. If it is raining or the clouds look threatening the committee will decide whether the parade will move at 3:30 p.m.

The committee may also meet again at 5:30 p.m. and decide whether the Pow Wow will be held in Campbell Stadium at 8:30 p.m. If not, then the Homecoming Queen will be crowned at a pep session in Montgomery Gymnasium.

In the event the parade is called off or the Pow Wow is moved indoors, an announcement will be made over radio and television stations on and off campus. The parade announcement will be made shortly after 1 p.m. if it is necessary.

AROUND THE WORLD

NEW YORK-- The round of diplomatic conferences in New York over the Cuban crisis reached a peak last night. Soviet troubleshooter Anastas Mikoyan stopping over en route to Havana invited top US officials to dinner. Attending were President Kennedy's chief negotiator on the Cuban crisis, John McCloy, and the US chief delegate to the UN, Adlai Stevenson. Mikoyan arrived in New York by plane yesterday from Moscow. He goes to Havana today to see Castro.

Castro is reported incesdes and humiliated because Premier Kruschev did not consult him before agreeing to United Nations inspection for removing Soviet missiles from Cuba. UN acting Seretary-General U. Thant returned from two days of talks in Havana without getting Castro's approval for United Nations inspection.

WASHINGTON-- US reconnaissance planes have resumed flights over Cuba. The Pentagon says they brought back pictures from two flights yesterday that are expected to show whether Russian missile installations are being dismantled as promised. No ships were reported halted by the US naval arms quarantine of Cuba during the day.

NEW DELHI-- Ten thousand University men and the women marched through New Delhi for hours yesterday. They shouted demands that the Red Chinese be driven back across India's border, tore down signs in Chinese and burned effigies. A lull continued on the fighting fronts where Communist Chinese and Indian forces are at war over disputed territory.

MOSCOW-- The Soviet Union announced it has fired a spaced vehicle weighing nearly a ton toward the planet Mars. Tass news agency says the trip will take seven months and the purpose is to photograph the planet at close range. All equipment aboard the space vehicle is reported functioning normally. At 2 a.m. EST today the vehicle is expected to be 210,000 miles from Earth. Tass says it is moving over a trajectory close to the prescribed course.

The Soviet shot toward Mars was launched in the same way the US sent it Mariner Two spacecraft off toward Venus last August-- from a satellite first put into orbit around the Earth. Mariner Two is expected to pass within 20,000 miles of Venus on December 14th.

OXFORD, MISS.-- The Chancellor of the University of Mississippi has told students that further disorders over the presence of Negro James Meredith will endanger the University's accreditation and its very survival. Chancellor John Williams warned at two special assemblies that any future disturbances could mean expulsion for those involved.

Peterson Announces Probable Starters

Cranking up for the toughest string of games in scho history, the Florida State football team has more th one thing on its mind as Saturday's homecoming b tle here with Houston approached.

First: Is this surprising 4-1-1 record of the Seminoles for real?

Second: What's this business about jinxes against Houston teams and in homecoming games?

A crowd of near capacity 24,000 is due to get answers Saturday at 2:30 p.m. when the Seminoles and Cougars tangle at Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

Probable FSU starters:

a small point to be resolved is the fact that FSU has neither scored in its last three Homecoming games nor ever beaten a Houston team. The Seminoles' past three Homecoming scores have been 0-12 to Mississippi Southern in 1961, 0-23 to Kentucky in '60 and 0-9 to William & Mary in '59. Houston has won two earlier football engagements, 28-8 last year an 7-6 in 1960.

Westcott Homecoming Performances

Journeymen, Hackett, Curtis Featured In Tonight's Shows

The Journeymen, a folksinging trio, the Bobby Hackett Quartet and comedian Dick Curtis will be featured at the Westcott Show at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. tonight.

Tickets are still available and will be sold at the door. Admission price is $2 for students and $3 for non-students.

The Journeymen are noted for mixing jokes with musical entertainment. They offer ballads and rousing folk songs concerning such assorted topics as anti-drinking, mines, cotton mills, girls and spirituals. Included in their numbers will be "Shape of Things" a musical satire on the English madrigal, "Please Poppa Don't Whip Little Benny," and a hillbilly winner, "How Mountain Girls Do Love."

The trio consists of Dick Weissman, banjo player, Scott McKenzie, featured soloist, and John Philips, "vice president in charge of gags." The performers who range in age from 23 to 25 are a young success.

Next on the program is the Bobby Hackett Quartet. Hackett, who plays feature trumpet on all Jackie Gleason records, has played with the majority of big name bands including Glen Miller, Paul Whiteman and Horace Height. Later in his career Hackett switched his line of interest to TV where he has starred on the Arthur Godfrey Show, the Steve Allen Show and the Dave Garroway Show.

The Quartet has recorded many hit albums including "Music For Lovers Only." Hackett has also recorded several trumpet solo albums for Columbia and Decca.

Dick Curtis, comedian, is third on the Westcott Show agenda. A "stand-up" comic, Curtis is well known for his riotious "Commuter" sketch. He also tells the story of his early childhood in "Mama We Killed A Mean Old Rat." He is described as a "spry fellow with dancing feet and plastic face" who is usually found brightening the night club circuit. He has also been a featured performer on the Ed Sullivan and Shelly Berman shows.

The show is sponsored by the Student Artist Series. This year a special student committee under the direction of Lou Rich, secretary of student events, has aided in the publicizing of the Westcott Show.

Zentner Plays For Homecoming Dance

...Zentner and his band which re... received the rating of "the ...er one listened-to band in ...2" will provide the music for ...ght at the Homecoming Dance. ...entner and his 17-piece orchestra ...fly 1,200 miles from the Roosevelt Grill in New York where they are currently appearing to be on hand from 9 p.m. through 1 a.m. in Tully Gymnasium.

Zentner's group has been selected as the number one band in the nation by "Billboard Magazine" and "Cashbox Magazine." This West Coast band, billed as the band "That's Breaking The Big Band Barrier," has become known for such albums as "Up The Lazy River," "The Stripper," and "The Hollywood Twist."

Zentner began to build up his musical reputation when he became featured as first trombonist in several name bands. These included the Les Brown, Harry James, Jimmy Dorsey, Billy May and Glenn Gray orchestras. He also held lead spots with the New York Philharmonic, M-G-M Studio and the Liberty Record Orchestra.

Zentner is an extremely versatile performer and is noted for his ability to play rock and roll as well as good slow dance music.

Also entertaining at the dance will be a singing and instrumental trio, the Journeymen. They will appear at the dance for a short concert after they complete their two Westcott performances.

The theme of Homecoming this year is "A Future View of FSU" and the dance committee is following through with "Future Scope Unlimited." Bright luminescent colors will be used and will be muted by dim lights. A painted mural will cover the wall behind the bandstand and a mobile will be set up.

Faculty Blasts BOC

...d of Control faculty suspensions and censorship of text mater... resulting from Legislative inquiry were condemned yesterday by ... Senate of Florida State University.

"We ... lemn the interference of the Legislative Investigation Committee in the academic affairs of the Universities. We are shocked by the attacks of the Committee. We have the right to expect that the ... defend our academic freedom," the faculty members said.

"Summary suspensions and textbook censorship resulting from. . . . inquiry into political ideas, religious beliefs and personal behavior of ... faculties . . . . .will lead to an eventual decay of all freedom of ..." stated the resolution passed unanimously by the professors.

Acknowledging the Board of Control's right to make policies, the resolution said, "We . . . question the wisdom of political interference ... niversity procedures in particular recent directives regarding pos... politically or morally undesirable elements.

The statement said academic freedom was violated by "Detailed procedures specified for selection of faculty, students and lecturers." These specifications "Impugn the motives and abilities of the administration and in effect convict them in public view of lack of respect ... and good taste."

The resolution further charged that the directives are "unenforceable" and "could serve no legal purpose other than persecution."

"The responsibility for defense of our freedom finally devolves upon ... the faculty. We declare that we will not collaborate in the destruction of our University," they concluded.

Grads Are Back

Homecoming. The grads are back. Cries of "Back when I was in school," and "This wasn't even here then" are heard all over the campus. It's good to have the grads back.

One wonders, though, what brings them back, and what makes undergraduates listen, with genuine interest, to the tales of "Way back when. . . ."

THE ALUMS, after all, are no longer a part of the main stream of University activity. They have jobs, friends and families in different parts of the state and nation. What happens or does not happen on the FSU campus has no direct effect whatsoever on their lives. Alumni did their work, got their diplomas, and are now in the outside wold.

Undergraduates have amazingly little in common with the returnees. Students are oriented toward school, period. Grads are useful as contacts for future prospects but FSU, not the business world, is the topic of student-alum conversations.

WHY, THEN, DO grads come back? And why are students glad to see them? There is a reciprocal sense of ownership between the University and its students, and this feeling does not end when the new graduate walks through Westcott gates with a diploma in his hand.

For four years, students call the campus "home." Although nominally we live with our parents, the main activity of our lives is connected with the University.

When we go, we leave four years of concentrated interest, effort and concern. In return, we discard one sense of perspective and formulate another. Most of us enter as "teenagers," but upon graduation we are to be "young adults."

THE AVERAGE GRADUATING senior has spent between one fifth and on quarter of his conscious life at FSU. Just as he has contributed four years of his life to the University, it has provided him with the key to his future career and status. The University will, in future years, express pride in its distinguished graduates, and the alums will read about the expanding school and boast, "When I went there. . . ."

Florida State University and its students, past and present, owe each other a mutual debt. Since practical considerations make it impossible for this obligation to be recognized all year long, this weekend is set aside specifically for that purpose.

It's Homecoming. The grads are back. We're glad they're here.

Doak Campbell Stadium 'Formed

Now that you have wrenched your neck out of joint trying to see the parade; have been blinded by a stray Roman candle at the Pow Wow, and are now starting to have severe stomach cramps from the barbecue, let's take time out from all the fun to mist our eyes with a little walk down memory lane.

The subject of this sentimental discourse shall be the founding of our own Doak S. Campbell Stadium, for it was indeed an event of world-wide significance. As Jethro L. Stadium, the discoverer of this structure put it, "This is indeed an event of world-wide significance."

Discovered, you ask? Yes, say I, for Doak S. Campbell stadium [illegible] not built--it was formed! In [illegible] historic times--[illegible] school became [illegible] earth around Tallahassee was [illegible] ken by a combination of epeirog[illegible] glacial erosion, igneus activity [illegible] appendicitus, res[illegible] belch.

At first [illegible] playing field was ignored by the [illegible] inhabitants--a ha[illegible] crude that they ma[illegible] like Cary Grant. These people [illegible] migrated westward [illegible] pulsory education [illegible] is now Houston, Tex.

But as I said, they paid no at[illegible] tion to the stadium, for at that [illegible] the structure was so small that [illegible] was often mistaken for a petri[illegible] canteloupe that had been stepped [illegible] As a matter of fact, the local [illegible] habitants referred to the stadium [illegible] the "groxx," which, tra[illegible] means "petrified canteloupe that [illegible] been stepped on."

FSU Alumnus Are Among Us

Fellow students, be on guard; this weekend our campus is being invaded by that insidious species, Collegium Alumnus. In fact, they may be among us at this very moment as we sit enjoying the game!

In view of this serious emergency, your Campus Defense has outlined the following program: First, you must be able to recognize Collegium Alumnus. This is very easy. The first thing to look for is a profusion of weapons hanging from the neck, ranging from high-powered binoculars to air-cooled, clip-fed, gas-operated, semi-automatic shoulder cameras. They can also be recognized by their friendliness, the look of nostalgia in their eyes, and their periodic exclamations of "rah!"

(2) If you should personally [illegible] counter a Collegium Alumnus, do [illegible] panic! Despite his [illegible] pearance, he probably only [illegible] to ask you for directions, say [illegible] nearest restroom.

(3) Familiarize yourself with [illegible] shelter areas. (note: Althe[illegible] are thoroughly useless [illegible] bably will never be [illegible] tend to impress the hell [illegible] aggressor.)

Attention, Collegium [illegible] are being kept under strict [illegible] lance at all times. In [illegible] your invasion, we have prepa[illegible] many diversions to keep you [illegible] pied. Resistance is futile! An[illegible] tempts to not enjoy yourself [illegible] be met with our full retalitory [illegible] (Besides, we want you t[illegible] money!)

Fete Soothes Tension

Coming at a welcome time in the present mess and confusion of the infamous trimester system are the annual homecoming festivities. A most memorable event of colorful festivities a chance to renew old friendships and cultivate noew ones, and a chance to see what has happened around the old stomping grounds.

Physically, the ole place has strided ahead leaps and bounds. The headaches of increased student population hardly need to be enumerated here. In short, Florida State University is a growing giant in the major colleg ranks and promises to remain progressive.

As is feasible in all situations there is always a failing or fault to be accepted. In our case it is the ludicrous system of speeding up the transference of knowledge to facilitate some clandestine ideals. Granted this system will produce more students in a shorter period of time, but at the same time does it take into consideration the quality of these students? For the most part I believe it does not, and some indication is shown in the increase of pink slips since this experimental system has been imposed.

What type of introspection give in to the absurd idea that since we needed some other system to speed up graduation we should try something that has yet to be proven as effective. Would a conscientious parent give to a small child unproved medication with any indication that it will be detrimental? Simple common sense would not warrant it.

Overt evidence is prevalent and the confusion cannot be fully blamed on the transition period itself--it goes much deeper: The trumester hasn't got it.

"Education" Is Strange

Mighty strange, some of the things which pass for a college [illegible] these days. For example, soon we shall have a Mrs. FSU cont[illegible] Mrs. FSU will represent the University at certain specified fu[illegible] can we really get a representative Mrs. FSU? From what I've seen the average Mrs. around here has her hands full enough without being Mrs. FSU, what with babies, supporting some shif'less skonk (I'm speaking from personal experience), cleaning up, cooking, and so on. The real Mrs. FSU will never be Mrs. FSU because she hasn't the time.

One may ask who was the genius who designated two different days for the purchase of student and date tickets for the Florida game. How does one get to sit next to his date under such circumstances? It was probably some big green malevolent puddy tat from the Gainesville reptilium who tought that up... another in their many steps of harassment which will receive their just rewards in another two years.

It seems that beatniks are becoming almost as extinct as the American buffalo... to whom they bear a strong resemblance.

So Mrs. Roosevelt is ill. Oh, for socialized medicine.

What ever happened to the Student Senate resolution to increase Library hours?

Film Review

Hungarian Revolution--1956

"If we perish, your turn will be the next" the last message transmitted from free Hungarian radio stations as Soviet tanks rumbled into Budapest, was the theme of the film "Hungary Aflame" which was shown on campus recently.

The movie, presented to an audience which packed the Library Lecture Hall, was moderated by an FSU graduate student who was a senior at the University of Budapest during the Hungarian uprising in 1956.

Introducing the film, the student commented that Soviet Russia is much more like a rising colonial empire than a social reform movement. Communist social theory he said, is used merely as a bait for other nations.

To support this point he noted that in Hungary Communists and non-Communists alike were eliminated when the shadow of "bourgeois nationalism" fell on them.

The movie itself gave a short history of the postwar events in Hungary which finally culminated in the rebellion. Emphasis was on Cardinal Mintzenty , Rajk, Rakosi, Nagy and Ger...

Then the picture pointed up the Polish-Hungarian solidarity which caused students in Budapest to demonstrated against the governmental overthrow in Poland. These demonstrations, which started with the approval of the Hungarian Communist Party, rapidly changed in character and turned into armed rebellion against the Communist regime.

The first shots fired at the students by the Security Police were depicted in the film, and the camera followed the violent resistance met by the arriving Soviet tanks.

Spectators witnessed the "victory celebrations" of the Budapest citizens when the first wave of Russian tanks retreated before the Freedom Fighters. The Soviets promised complete evacuation of troops.

Cardinal Mintzenty was freed, and the film showed Pal Maleter, who deserted his Muskovite superiors to join the rebel army and become the famed commander of Hungarian troops.

Then, while Moscow was claiming respect for the neutrality of Hungary, a sneak attack was launched against the supposedly triumphant nation. A second, stronger wave of Russian takns rolled into Hungary, and this time they did not retreat.

Even in the midst of the celebrations, spectators could see the destruction which had already been wrought in Budapest. Half-burned Russians lay near their armored cars and burned out tanks. Mourners wandered among the long lines of Hungarian coffins, many of which were marked "Unknown."

At this point, realizing that the rebels could not defeat the reinforcements, free radio stations in Budapest made their last broadcasts to the outside world to ask vainly for help from the West.

The Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and the Russian high command issued a safe conduct pass for Premier Imre Nagy to leave the country, but he was arrested immediately upon leaving the embassy and was later executed with Gen. Maleter.

After the film the audience was informed that General Pal Maleter was arrested at the conference table in Russian headquarters. He had been invited there to sign the armistice agreement.

Weakness In Indecision

When is an American not an American? When is an American too far to the right to be a thinking individual? And when is an American too liberal in his thoughts to be considered loyal?

Today, objectivity about ideologies other than our own is the plaintive cry of those who consider themselves open-minded. But is there a point at which open-mindedness becomes weakness? Someone has said, "I do not agree with what you say, but I defend your right to say it." At first glance, this seems to mean that one should be completely objective and open-minded toward all ideas, no matter how repulsive they may seem. But the key words in this statement are "right" and "defend." When the basic rights of free men are in danger, they must be defended!

Objectivity is noble and is a great factor in separating the thinking individual from the mass. But there must be an absolute. Even if each of us, as free people in a free society, has his own conception of absolute, there must be some criterion for final decision. Why can't we, as mature, thinking people, decide between what is right and wrong? For if we do not decide and defend that decision, we shall sink into our own confused Shades of Gray.

Happy, secure people do not wish to think of the threats to their security until the shadow of those threats are so close as to darken that security. At that point, in my opinion, it is too late to be entirely objective. An objectivity toward Communism should have been introduced into public education many years ago. It was not. Only in the past two years have I heard any serious discussion about teaching the philosophy of Communism in the public schools.

At that point, American young people should have already had a strong basis for their beliefs. A basis strong enough to withstand possible Communist brain-washing and other horrors which may lie ahead. Do we have that strength? Or are we too budy trying to decide when an American is not an American to acquire it?

Commies Would Alter Music

To the Editor:

If the Russians do take over the United States, there will most certainly be at least one favorwble outcome. The progress-minded Commies would undoubtedly do away with some of our currently popular contributions to the music world, such as "Do You Love Me Now that I Can't Dance?" which has our ambitious youth conscientiously practicing "The Chicken Scratch" and "The Bird" instead of their multiplication tables. Such themes would be changed to read "Do You Love Me Now that I Can Build a Cyclotron?" or "Do You Love Me Now that I Understand the Theory of Relativity?" and I'm not sure that even these wouldn't be improvements.

Not all American music is anti-intellectual. We have "Son, Don't Go Near the Indians," which plainly emphasizes the current need in America for a more basic and thorough understanding of genetics and sociology. Then, too, there is "I'm Going Back to School," depicting a definite United States trend back to intellectualism.

Several other popular tunes find their places in constructive American thought. One, notably, "Return to Sender," would most likely be our theme song should Russia shower us with a barrage of nuclear warheads.

Even ol' Niki himself might be forced to resort to capitalistic rock-n-roll for expression if he doesn't watch his step. The melodic strains of "You Beat Me to the Punch" might soon be heard floating above the smoke in the eyes of red-faced Russians.

Keep Them Quiet

To the Editor:

Just as cows have to led out of the pasture and into the barn in the evening, so, apparently, do some of the social animals around campus need to be led to their watering trough in the same manner. To anyone who has an evening class within hearing distance of their watering hole, this is evident, for these animals apparently come to their water to cavort and play at any time they wish. Thus students who have 7 p.m. classes have to listen the their Tarsan-like yelps and diverse animal calls. If the animals were given a master, he could lead them in their play and see that they were in and out of the water before evening classes begin. Then perhaps classes could proceed without interruption.

Cocktail Hour

To the Editor:

Matt Straub's "Diddley Hours" are a universal problem. However, most civilized societies call the hours from 4 to 6 (5 to 7 in the Eastern United States) the "Cocktail Hours" and put them to excellent use.

I thirst for a cocktail but, alas, I am a physicist and must attend the incomprehensible seminars.

Artist Series Charity Bazaar

To the Editor:

Why didn't we hear Zinka Milanov about 15 years ago? Is it because we had Lauritz Melchior (who was about 60 then)? Are all "Met" singers good? Are all the famous singers great performers for the rest of their lives? Will reviews of recent recordings and live performances from magazines such as "Musical America" and "Opera" (British publication) give a reasonable clue as to the capabilities of the artists today? Is the tenor really a disease? Is the FSU Artist Series an occasional charity bazaar for over-ripe artists, the aspiring or the unaspiring? Or is it an opportunity for the students, faculty, and townspeople of Tallahassee to be moved and elevated by artists representing the highest standards of excellence?

Florida State University Has Years Of Tradition

Any institution which has been in operation from 1857 through 1962 is bound to build up a store of traditions, and that institution located in Tallahassee, Fla., is no exception to this rule.

Florida State University, alias Florida State College for Women, alias Florida State Female College, alias Florida State College, alias Florida University alias the Seminary West of the Suwannee has many traditions.

One of the oldest of these, dating from the Florida State Female College days, is the phenomenon of the crowded dormitory steps. There is a tacit rivalry among the women's dorms to see who can pack the most couples onto the front steps during the last five minutes before closing time.

This tradition, along with many others, underwent a radical change in 1947. Up until that time, the University of Florida in Gainesville provided the male half of the step-jammers. Now FSU provides the entire couple.

Westcott Fountain, generally referred to as "The Pool," is probably the center of more traditions than any other single point on campus.

The Fountain is the starting point for nearly every major event from the Homecoming Parade to effigy-burning rallies such as the anti-Castro demonstration last week.

Homecoming Welcome

Pres. G. Blackwell Welcomes Visitors

Homecoming--a time of parades and decorations, football and the renewing of old acquaintanceships. This is what Homecoming has always meant, but more and more Homecoming is coming to symbolize a new kind of bond between the University and its students, for one of the most rapidly enlarging ideas in American education is the emphasis on the life-long relationship between the student and the University. In our day and age, when formal education is made too quickly obsolete by the rapid strides of social and technological change, the ties between student and University must continue through life if the University is to fulfill its obligations. So the concentrated four years of learning give way to the newer patterns of life-long schooling and learning. Also, the new relationship stresses more than ever the obligations of the alumni to support and foster the development of their University.

To our students, whose hard work and careful planning make Homecoming enjoyable and successful, let me express the hope that Homecoming will come to symbolize for you a continuing concern and involvement with your Alma Mater. To all, may I extend my very best wishes for a fun weekend--as well as a time to reconsider the importance and the significance of the ties between University and alumni.

"Knowledge For College" Is Remembered When

By PAT FREEMAN
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Communication by signs, spoken or written messages with any person loitering on or outside the college premises is strictly forbidden" ... and thus the demure little "freshwoman" of Florida State College for Women began her first year in 1914. This rule, along with many companions, was located in the back of a little book entitled "The Constitution and By-Laws of Student Government Association."

Common rules covered such facets as lights-out at 10 p.m., with a fifteen minute extension to allow time for the toothbrush line. Students were forbidden to slam doors or to walk heavily. There was even a rule in order to maintain strict quiet at all times in the library.

In order to leave the college grounds one had to register before 1 p.m. and be back on the grounds by 5 p.m. Only seniors were permitted to go to town more often than once a week, and no student was permitted to go to town on Saturdays. The reason for this being that people from the rural areas came in to Tallahassee on Saturday, and the town would become too congested if students ventured forth on this day, too.

Attendance at daily chapel was required, as well as church attendance on Sunday morning. Students could not receive calls from men on Sundays without first getting permission from the head resident.

Attendance at breakfast was required on all days except Monday. As an extra treat, one Monday out of each month all underclassmen could attend the movie matinee downtown, if chaperoned by an upperclassman, or in a group of three or more.

Naturally, there were to be no card parties or dances. No students could go from one hall to another during study hours. The only way to spend the night in another girl's room was to get the house president's permission. (Incidentally, the draw bridge was raised promptly at nine each night and not lowered until ten the next morning. 'Gators prowled round the moats at night, and it was unsafe to swim across. Wonder if there were any dragons?)

Time passed rapidly. The year is 1932... there have been noticeable improvements at FSCW. "Freshwomen" may now have dates on Friday, Saturday and Sunday as long as they have no more than three dates in one week. The idea was not to invite Theodore, Percival and Sigmund all over on the same evening. Students could not dance with men (☛ limiting factor) on campus or in Tallahassee unless permitted by the college authorities; neither could a student sit in a parked car at any time with a man.

Although chapel attendance was still required the only ruling on Sunday church attendance was a request that students behave and conduct themselves properly on the Sabbath.

Dorm behavior was essentially the same, with a new rule prohibiting the playing of radios in rooms. Another innovation was the prohibition of smoking in any public places. Areas were designated behind the dorms for smoking areas.

Let's leave 1932 for another significant change in the do's and don't's of FSCW. This time the year is 1937, when the The "Gold Book" came into being. This little book covered in gold served as a combination Pow Wow, Constitution, Rules and Regulation booklet. The rules were similar to those of 1932, but the golden rule booklet only lasted until 1944 ... it seems that the more thrifty-minded students were scraping the gold from the covers, selling the valuable dust to "Pauline's Pawn Shop," and heading West.

The first Pow Wow as such appeared around 1948, with rules and regulations provided. There was only a slight change: Men's rules and regulations. It wasn't a printing error, but rather FSCW had become dear old FSU... with men! The rules for male students were almost as confusing and complex as those for women, and included such items as room cleanliness, damage, when and where men could cook or keep foods, and what to do in case of illness. No less than six pages of regulations governed the hardy men of FSU.

It was in 1948 that the dorms for women began closing at 11 p.m. on weekdays and at 11:30 p.m. on weekends. It was also during this year that a most remarkable map became functional. This controversial map was a "dating chart." East campus areas were out-of-bounds for dating. Students could not date in the vicinity of Florida Hall, "A" Bldg. or behind the dorms.

In 1951 a pamphlet containing the rules and regulations appeared. But in 1955 came the now beloved first copy of "Knowledge for College." This little booklet was complete with "Sally Seminole" cartoons for careful coeds who wished to be extremely correct in college etiquette. The following year the cartoons were not included, evidently due to the fact that many students only looked at the cartoons. A few choice examples were replaced in the 1958 edition.

Now coeds, except freshwomen, have until 11 p.m. on weeknights and 12:30 a.m. on Fridays and Saturdays to stay on the outside of the dormitory walls. On certain special occasions the closing hour of the dorms is extended to 1:30 a.m.

Further, coeds may now wear bermudas or slim jims on Saturdays on campus.

At present, the "Knowledge for College" is a dignified booklet containing a few thousand don't's for the college woman, with one or two "you many, if first you..." thrown in just to confuse matters.

Freshwomen and transferring coeds must take a test on the "Knowledge for College" booklet, proving themselves thoroughly familiar with text and content. If the first exam is failed, the student must take a repeat examination, and so on until at last every woman has passed. It is rumored that some 1914 Freshwomen are still returning to try once more to pass the exam.

What will the future "Knowledge for College" contain? Perhaps students will be prohibited from going interplanetary shopping except weekends, or coeds might find a rule forbidding absences from the earth without special permission. It is even feasible that the dating chart will be reinstated, with certain planets considered off-limits to the FSU coed of 2062. Better yet, there might not even be a future "Knowledge for College."

Library Offers Degree Work For Masters

One night class a week for two years can now yield an accredited master's degree in library work for teachers, librarians and others with a college degree, Dean Louis Shores has announced.

Shores, dean of the Library School, said two night classes are on the schedule for the fall trimester. The classes may be taken for credit or audited.

Students taking the prescribed one night class per week for two years starting this fall can earn a master's degree. A student can get six hours of credit by taking one of the courses each of the first two trimesters, two by taking one night course during the first half of the third trimester, and eight by attending classes on campus during the second half of the third trimester, June 20 through Aug. 10.

Teachers who already have nine hours of pre-core work in the Library School can therefore earn the 39 hours required for a master's degree in library work in two years.

Opera Star's Westcott Concerts Are Reviewed

By CHRIS CLARKE
Flambeau Staff Writer

Both the sublime and the ridiculous were well represented at Zinka Milanov's recitals here last week. Madmae Milanov's singing reached sublimity during the course of the evenings and the autograph hunter who asked her to sign about fifteen albums and libretti was ridiculous.

Although she very patiently gave her many signatures to him we are embarrassed that he was so inconceivably rude as to ask. On behalf of the Artist Series we apologize. He was not representative of the average student we are sure.

For the most part the recitals consisted of lieder. For those who are not familiar with lieder, they are art songs. That is, they are songs written as serious compositions rather than just simple ditties. The art song is a more strict form than the opera aria and few singers are able to perform both.

Due to their difficulty, art songs are not sung so often as opera selections. This ignorance about the form of lieder was evidenced in unrest on the part of some of those members of the audience who expected to hear nothing but opera.

We have been asked why the University brought Madame Milanov here. It seems that certain of our students feel she is too old to sing. I would answer that the ignorance of those who ask such a question speaks for itself.

To be sure, Zinka Milanov does not sing as she did fifteen years ago, or even ten. But she was then, and is now, a great singer. True, she does not hold the high notes as long as she did and her power is not quite so great as it was. But there is another side entirely to the coin.

Insofar as I none of those who complained had ever heard her ten or fifteen years ago. All who had heard her had done so only on records. We ask you to remember that there is a great deal of difference between a live performance, where there is but one chance to get it right, and a recording where things can be done over and again. Then too, there is the fact that she sang not with full orchestra but with only a piano.

On the programs for the two nights were nine lieder and three arias. All were done with grace and charm. It is unfortunate that the stark realities of the concert stage and an audience for the most part uninitiated in concert going detracted from the over all effect of the recitals.

Backstage after the performances we saw and spoke with such people as Bela Urban, Robert Sedore, Joy Davidson, Elena Nikolaidi, Owen Sellers and others from the School of Music. Some were old friends of Madame Milanov and all seemed pleased with the concerts.

Finally, we say that it was a privilege and a most gratifying experience to be able to hear one who is truly great. In all probability she will retire from the concert stage before too many more years have passed.

We only apologize for the ant- and psuedo-intellectual comments that tarnished a beautiful memory.

University Symphony Concert Is Reviewed By Chris Clark

Friday night's concert by the University Symphony in Westcott Auditorium was, for the most part, a fine piece of work. Conductor Sedore seems to have held the orchestra a bit more in restraint than has been true in previous concerts. The results were most gratifying. Glinka's "Russian and Ludmilla Overture" was first on the program. A work that could easily get out of hand and become garish was well handled and carried out nicely.

We said "for the most part" the evening was enjoyable. Actually our only complaint was on the program notes. We felt last year that perhaps the notes on the Brahms First Symphony were written in a hurry and such was the reason for their abstruseness. This seems to be not the exception but the rule, however. In view of this we would remind the writer of the program notes that for the most part concert goers neither know or care for the difference between the chromatic and diatonic. We feel the average patron wants to know a little of the background of the work and the composer; not the bombasticism that usually has been provided.

Tenor Donald Jay Maxwell gave a very pleasing rendering of the difficult Mozart "Il Mio Tesoro" a piece requiring much more than average breath control. His second number, Puccini's "Recondita Armonia" from "Tosca" was taken slightly too quickly for our tastes. A little more attention to tempo would have made the difference between a good performance and a fine one.

Sedore took Smetana's tone poem "The Moldau" at a pace that was faster and more accented than is usual. However the result tended to add to the enjoyment of the poem rather than detract from it. "The Moldau" was well conceived and well executed.

After the intermission came the main work of the evening, Shostakovich's Symphony Number 1, opus 10. The seeming inertia of the first movement was misleading, for once this inertia was overcome the excitement of the work heightened and grew until the orgasmic climax. This difficulty with the first movement is inherent in the work itself and not the fault of orchestra or conductor.

The second movement, marked "allegro," began the climb from which there was no descent. Here perhaps more than in any other section dissonance was employed to create impact. The piano was a featured instrument here and in other places. The similarities in mood between the piano sections here and those in the first movement of the same composer's Second Piano Concerto are interesting. Shostakovich' chords for piano are as tension-filled and nervous as Rachmaninoff's are the opposite.

Considering the entire symphony we were most favorably impressed. As soon as the initial difficulties were surpassed the remainder was pure enjoyment.

Saving the best for last we applaud Miss Pravda Sikorski. Her piano work lent no small part to the Shostakovich. She deserved a special bow as surely as did anyone.

1962 PARADE

TEAM CAPTAIN GENE McDOWELL SPEAKS AT RALLY.

The 1962 F

The roar of strained voices and stamping feet rolled out across campus from Doak S. Campbell Stadium last night in what was described as one of the most spirited Pow Wow gatherings in FSU's history.

The crowning of Kitty Miller, a brown-haired senior, as 1962 Homecoming Queen opened the spirited rally.

A 20-year-old who plans to teach physical education in high school, Miss Miller won the queenship, thereby reigning for two days of Homecoming festivities, over four other finalists. Selection was made by vote of the student body, but the queen's identity was not announced until the crowning ceremony at the Pow Wow.

The hazel-eyed queen is a physical education major and counts swimming and poetry among her hobbies. She has been Military Ball Princess, a member of Gymkana Court and a member of Lambda Chi Alpha Crescent Court. The Physical Education Majors Club sponsored Miss Miller in the Queen's Contest.

She has been on Sophomre Council; is secretary of Garnet Key, service and leadership honorary; is a member of Mortified, another leadership organization; and has been freshman and sophomore class secretary, secretary of Senate, in the President's Cabinet as Secretary of Intercollegiate Affairs and a junior counselor.

In Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority she has been activities chairman and vice president (pledge trainer). In addition she has served as secretary-treasurer, vice president and parliamentarian of the Physical Education Association.

"It's a Whale of a Future" was the theme of the Zeta Tau Alpha - Theta Chi float voted "Best All Around" in yesterday's Homecoming parade.

"Most Beautiful" award went to Alpha Omicron Pi and Phi Kappa Tau for "The Thinker." "Robot Teacher," the Delta Gamma - Phi Delta Theta entry, took the "Most Humorous" prize.

Alpha Phi Omega and Gamma Phi Beta were "Most Original" with "A Camera," and Alpha Gamma Delta-Pi Kappa Phi's entry "Robot With Telescope" was judged "Most Appropriate" to the Homecoming theme, "Future View of FSU."

Honorable Mention went to Delta Zeta and Pi Kappa Alpha for their float, "Flying Saucer Viewing a Cougar."

Immediately following the cheering session fire-works burst across the sky signaling the grand finale of Pow Wow festivities. A two-story high bon fire was set ablaze amidst flashing flight and deafening crackle of the fireworks. Surging from the stands the fans poured into the stadium parking lot. The singing, cheering crowd -- urged on by music of the Marching Chiefs snake-danced their way around the fire with a war dance designed to insure a Seminole victory.

Horne Speaks At Banquet To Honor Tapees

Justice E. Harris Drew of the Florida Supreme Court was honored last night by Gold Key, which annually taps one off-campus man in public for an honorary membership.

The men's leadership honorary also selects one faculty member at FSU's Homecoming Banquet. The on-campus tapee this year was Dr. Michael Kasha, professor of physical chemistry and director of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics.

Garnet Key, sister group to Gold Key, selected as the woman for honorary membership Dr. Janet Wells, chairman of the women's division of the Physical Education and Recreation Dept.

Banqueters, including many Homecoming alumni, heard as the principal speaker Rep. Mallory Horne of Tallahassee, the first FSU alumnus to be selected by his colleagues as House Speaker. He will become speaker at the 1963 session.

Horne's topic was "The Role of Education as Florida Views the Future."

The spreading of educational institutions and programs throughout the state was deplored by Horne as leading only to "mediocrity."

There are simply not enough capital outlay funds to "spread to all corners of the state," he stressed. Instead of taking "the dangerous approach to complete diversity," he called for renewed emphasis on quality to make FSU and the state system "great."

"I agree wholeheartedly with the Board of Education, which is dedicated to classifying universities," Horne said. This effort which is directed at each institution offering what it is best equipped to teach on a high level of quality, will lead to all the needs of the state being met," he said.

"Education must assume an even more important role than the teaching of academics" at this institution and those on the ower levels," Horne continued. "We cannot forget that we are training the whole man," he emphasized.

Education and government must respond to the need of preparing men and women to meet the demands of the sixties, Horne said.

He called for the development of "sufficient respect for the institution and faculty" that will result in "a respect of self," "love of country" and a rise in the level of "moral and intellectual spirit.

Kasha, FSU faculty member principally responsible for establishment of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics, which is supported by a $3 million grant from the Atomic Energy Commission, was honored as "a professor who has brought a touch of greatness to Florida State University."

A citation read by Gold Key President Gene Brown said Drew, a member of the Supreme Court for the past 10 years, was chosen for his "long and diligent service to the legal profession, both on the bench and in the area of legal education."

Miss Wells, an alumna who received her bachelor's degree in education from Florida State College For Women in 1942, was selected by Garnet Key particularly for her work in FSU Homecoming. This year she was general chairman of Homecoming.

Garnet Key President [illegible] said Dr. Wells has long demonstrated the leadership, [illegible] spirit Garnet Key seeks to recognize in selecting members.

HIGH TEST, LOW TEST, NO TEST

[illegible] night I was saying to the little woman, "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" (The little woman, incidentally, is not, as one might think, my wife. My wife is far from a little woman. She is, in fact, almost seven feet high and heavily muscled. She is descended from Chiricahua Apache and holds the world's [illegible] record. The little woman I referred to is someone we found cowering under the sofa when we moved into our apartment several years ago, and there she has remained ever since. She never speaks, except to make a kind of guttural noise when she is hungry. Actually, she is not too bad to have around, but with my wife away at track meets [illegible] the time, at least it gives me somebody to talk to.)

But I digress. "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" I said the other night to the little woman, and then I said, "Yes, Max, I do think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized." (As I have explained, the little woman does not speak. When we have conversations, I am forced to do all the talking.)

To get back to tests—sure, they're important, but let's not allow them to get too important. There are, after all, many [illegible] talents that simply cannot be measured by quizzes. [illegible] penalize a gifted student who just goes a few [illegible] to be of the academic variety? Like, for instance, Gregor [illegible].

Gregor, a freshman at the New Hampshire College of Tanning and Belles Lettres, has never passed a single test; yet all who know him agree that he is studded with talent like a ham with [illegible]. He can, for example, sleep standing up. He can do a perfect imitation of a scarlet tanager. (I don't mean just do the bird calls; I mean he can fly South in the winter.) He can pick up B-B's with his toes. He can say "Toy boat" three times fast. He can build a rude telephone out of two empty Marlboro [illegible] and 100 yards of butcher's twine. Of all his impressive accomplishments, this last is the one Gregor likes to do best—not building the telephone, but emptying the Marlboro [illegible]. Gregor doesn't just dump the Marlboros out of the pack. He smokes them one at a time—settling back, getting comfortable, savoring each tasty puff. As Gregor often says with a winsome smile, "By George, the makers of Marlboro took their time finding this fine flavor, this great filter, and by George, I'm going to take my time enjoying it."

Well, sir, there you have Gregor Sigafoos—artist, humanist, Marlboro smoker, and freshman since 1939. Will [illegible] so desperately in need of talent ever benefit from Gregor's great gifts? Alas, no. He is in college to stay.

But even more tragic for mankind is the case of Anna Livia Plurabelle. Anna Livia, a classmate of Gregor's, had no talent, no gifts, no brains, no personality. All she had was a knack for taking tests. She would cram like crazy before a test, always get a perfect score, and then promptly forget everything she had learned. Naturally, she graduated with highest honors and degrees by the dozen, but the sad fact is that she left college no more educated, no more prepared to cope with the world, than when she entered. Today, a broken woman, she crouches [illegible] my sofa.

And speaking of tests, we makers of Marlboro put our cigarette through an impressive number before we send it to the market. But ultimately, there is only one test that counts: Do YOU like it? We think you will.

The snappy cadence of the Marching Chiefs, the flashing of colorful costumes and uniforms, the rapid tempos of the music and a loudspeaker announcing, "Now presenting Florida State University's own Garnet and Gold Girls--Janice Freeman and Beverly Calvert," all make up part of the action packed halftime show.

The Garnet and Gold Girls have been performing with the Marching Chiefs at football games for the past four years. Now they are both concluding their senior year in college after four busy seasons with the Chiefs.

The two coeds were chosen from a group of majorette prospectives when they were freshmen and were asked to do solo work due to their outstanding ability. Although they had never worked together, they developed identical techniques from different styles and methods.

Both Janice and Beverly became interested in twirling in the ninth grade. They both took private lessons. They had never met before coming to FSU but now have become close friends due to their long hours spent together developing accuracy and variations in performing their twirling duet.

The girls have decided to put their past four years of training to work and twirl to Europe by working on an ocean liner. They plan to sightsee and work before returning home at the end of next summer.

Last summer both Janice and Beverly taught twirling in summer twirling camps in the southeast. This year they teach junior and senior high school girls privately in the Tallahassee area. Monday through Friday, the girls practice two hours a day with the Chiefs.

Janice, the Garnet Girl, was head majorette and featured twirler with Grady High School Band in Atlanta. She appeared with the Georgia Tech Band as a solo twirler after competing with all majorettes in the area her senior year for the honor. While she was in high school, she was named Georgia State Champion as a majorette.

She is a member of Delta Zeta Beta Sigma (honorary band sorority), and is publicity chairman for the University bands. She is an elementary education major Beverly, the Gold Girl, was a solo twirler with Hialeah High School Band. She reigned as Miss Majorette of Floirda in 1957. In 1960 she entered the National Twirling Contest with the Warrior Majorette Corp of Miami. The unit won second place in the nation.

She is activities chairman of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, a member of Village Vamps, Cotillion, Garnet Key, Tau Beta Sigma, the Recreation Club, and serves as Senior Class social chairman. Beveral is a recreation major.

FSU Shows 50 Years Of Face Lifting

By LANA MURRAY
Assistant News Editor

They won't recognize the place.

This weekend, several little ladies of the Class of 1912, Florida State College for Women, are holding a reunion, as FSU celebrates its 1962 Homecoming. These ladies were graduated here just 50 short years ago.

Yet in that short half-century, the school has metamorphosed from a small women's college into a thriving co-educational university with an optimistic program of expansion.

The little ladies of 1912 will recognize just three buildings on campus from their gay college days: Bryan Hall, Westcott Bldg., and Reynolds Hall. Oldest existing building on campus, Bryan Hall was built in 1907 and was named for U.S. Senator from Florida, William James Bryan. Westcott Bldg., built two years leter, was named for James Diament Westcott, Florida attorney general and justice of the state supreme court, who left his entire estate to the University.

Reynolds Hall, named for Mrs. W. H. Reynolds, matron of the women's dormitory, was built in 1911. An annex, added in 1919, became the first infirmary facility.

In 1913, the Dining Hall was completed. In 1917, a flurry of building activity began with the construction of Broward Hall, named for Governor and later U.S. Senator Napoleon Broward. In 1918, the first Education Bldg., now the Psychology Bldg., was built, followed the next year by the Demonstration School, now Classroom Bldg. "A." The Science Bldg. and Jennie Murphree Hall (for Mrs. H. H. Murphree, wife of an FSCW president) were completed in 1921.

THE LIBRARY

The FSCW Library was built in 1923. In 1956, when the Robert Manning Strozier Library was completed (named for the late FSU President), the old Library became the home of the Graduate School, and this past spring was dedicated to Dr. William George Dodd, dean emeritus of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Another building on campus named for a former president is the Edward Conradi Bldg. (1956), now used for biological sciences. Dr. Conradi's wife, Augusta, is the namesake of Conradi Theatre in the History Bldg. (1926).

In 1928, Montgomery Gym was completed and was named for Dr. Katherine Montgomery, director of physical education. Ten years later, the Student-Alumni Bldg. was built and was named for Rowena Longmire, professor for several years.

In 1940, the University Hospital was completed and took over the services that had formerly been housed in the Reynolds Annex. Then, for a decade, no major building was undertaken.

EXPANSION

A heightened period of expansion was begun in 1950, with construction of Opperman Music Hall (named for Mrs. Ella Scoble Opperman, dean of the Music School for several years). The same year, Doak S. Campbell stadium was completed and named for the former FSU president.

In 1952, the Student Center and Geology Bldg. were built, and in 1956, Tully Gymnasium, Conradi Bldg., and the Home Economics Bldg. were completed. Sandels Lounge of the latter building is named for a former dean of the School of Home Economics. The new School of Education Bldg. and the School of Business Bldg. were built in 1957.

Latest additions to the campus scene have been the Mathematics-Meteorology Bldg. in 1961 and the Molecular Biophysics Bldg. this fall.

DORMITORIES

Dormitories not previously mentioned include: Landis, completed in 1939 and named for State Attorney-General and Supreme Court Judge Carey D. Landis; Magnolia, built in 1944 and first used a a men's dormitory; DeGraff, in 1950, formerly a coekucational graduate dorm; Florida Hall, 1952, formerly Kellum Hall; Smith Hall, 1952, named for a professor of mathematics; Kellum Hall, 1959, for once-business manager J. G. Kellum; and Dorman Hall, 1959, for an FSU dean of women.

Three frame buildings on Jefferson Street adjacent to the campus were bought in 1944 as temporary dormitories for men. One of these has recently been razed; the other two have served various classroom purposes throughout the past few years.

Thus FSU has grown...and grown.

Foreseeing even greater demands for education in the future, however, the University has embarked upon an ambitious program for the years to come.

Already approved for construction are an addition to the Psychology Bldg., in the lot formerly occupied by the School of Social Welfare, and a modern dormitory, divided into suites, which will house 540 men.

REQUESTS

University officials will request several priority buildings for the next few years from the Legislature. These include several additions to the proposed science comples on west campus; two chemistry units, one for research and graduate work, and one for undergraduate study; two physics units; an engineering science unit, and a biological sciences building. With these buildings in operation, the present Science Bldg. would be used manily for general education science courses; Conradi Bldg. would probably be given over for the use of the School of Business. Should a new Education Bldg. be built sometime in the distant future, the present building also would be utilized for science instruction.

Also to be requested are a Social Science Bldg. Fine Arts Bldg., an addition to the Library, a child development building in the area of the Demonstration School, a new home management building housing three separate units, a women's dormitory, a men's dormitory, an eight-story efficiency apartment building for married students, and an additional 322 married student apartments adjoining the west side of Alumni Village.

In the far distant future, there are hopes of construction a new administration building on what is now Landis Green.

RELOCATION

Since many sites for planned buildings are in the heart of the campus, several facilities not directly concerned with University instruction may be moved to new locations to make more room for necessary buildings. A new University hospital may be placed between the present tennis courts and volleyball courts behind Montgomery gym.

Also, the hockey field at Montgomery gym probably will be used as a building site, so that [illegible] must be relocated. University officials are exploring possibilities of placing it just northwest of Landman and Florida Halls, and rebuilding it around with new women's dormitories to be requested in future years. In this way, the field [illegible] fields, since there would be room for two--would still be close to the gym and would be convenient to the women's dorms.

If present hopes and expectations are fulfilled, this University will be a sprawling institution, [illegible] ing knowledge to ever-increasing hordes of students, when the class of 1962 returns to FSU for a reunion in 1012. They won't even have to wait that long; give this University only 25 years.

They won't recognize the place.

...dent Government now dominates ... lives of its leaders, Ken Van ...nderp, president; Johnny Smith, ... president; Gene Brown, men's ... president; and Jeannie Ferlita, ...en's vice president, but their ...kgrounds reveal a panorama of ...ing activities.

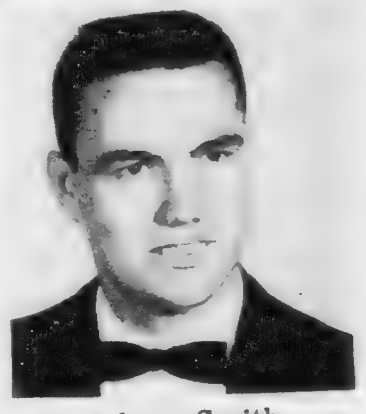
...resident van Assenderp plans to carry his work in government on after graduation by doing graduate work in either international relations or law. His undergraduate major is International Affairs.

His interest in internation politics is long standing. Van Assenderp was born in Paramaribo, the capital of Surinam in South America, while his father was a Dutch Colonial Administrator during the last vestiges of Colonialism.

Ken van Assenderp

The van Assenderp family first moved to Surface of Paradise in Australia; then to Jakarta in the Dutch East Indies. They then returned to their native land of Holland, touring the major cities of India and Europe on the way.

Leaving Holland, the family came to the United States where Dr. van Assenderp was a professor of political science at Tulane University. He then moved to FSU, where he taught until his death in 1958.



Van Assenderp feels that Student Government has helped him to learn the real meaning of politics on a state, national, and international level.

Johnny Smith, vice president, is also interested in travelling, but his trips have been confined to the United States, Mexico and Canada.

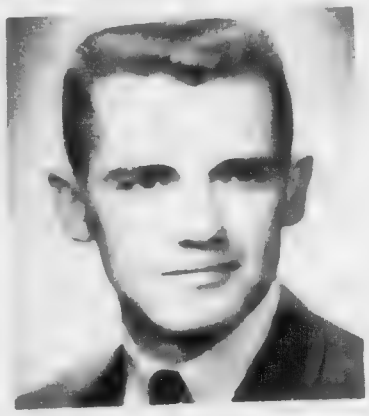
"Student Government has helped men learn the importance of working with others," commented Smith.

Smith has had a great deal of experience in working with others. Besides being vice president, Smith has been president of three organizations, Alpha Phi Omega, Smith Hall, and Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership honorary. He's also served on the executive council of Gold Key, Board of Student Enterprises, Speaker's Bureau, Circle K, Pershing Rifles, "Tally Ho" and Literary Anthology.

Johnny Smith

Smith has lived in Melbourne, Fla. since his birth. His mother has driven a school bus for the past 12 years and his father is a retired steel worker.



Tentatively planning to teach, Smith admits that he is not yet sure what line of work he will pursue. However, he stresses that it won't be politics.

Men's Vice President Gene Brown plans to go into law after graduation, probably attending the University of Florida Law School.

Brown, originally from Miccosukee, Fla., moved to Tallahassee after the eighth grade. His early education came in a school of 38 students in grades 1 through 8.

At Leon High School, Brown was treasurer of the Senior Class under Ken van Assenderp, who was president of the class. He also played football and basketball.

Gene Brown

Brown's father is a deputy sheriff of Leon County and his mother is the owner of Alice's Beauty Shop in Tallahassee.

An accomplished water skier, Brown has skiied professionally at the International Trade Fair in Chicago and specializes in the trick of kite skiing.

Women's Vice President Jeanie Ferlita plans future travels in Europe and western United States after her August wedding.

An English and history major, Miss Ferlita plans to teach in high school.

One of the busiest coeds on campus, she has been active in Garnet Key, Mortified, Speaker's Bureau, Young Democrats and junior counseling while at FSU.

She is a resident of Tampa and graduated from Hillsborough High School, where she was a cheerleader, student council secretary, outstanding senior, and senator of Future Teachers of America.

OR

Nobody ever lost an Eagle Tabsnap* under the dresser

MANY men who would like to wear tab collar shirts do not do so because they object to the tyranny of collar buttons. It is not just that collar buttons are hard to find when you need them. (Contrary to popular belief collar buttons do not always roll under furniture. The only sure way of finding a collar button is to walk around barefoot in the dark until you step on it. Now there is an experience.) No, there is something else: some men are simply not built for collar buttons. Their Adam's apples are in the wrong place. Or their hands are not the right shape for wrestling with all those empty collar button holes. So they end up wilty and out of sorts before they ever hit the street. It is the haberdashery equivalent of cutting yourself shaving. But that is a thing of the past. An Eagle Tabsnap Shirt is secured by one simple, inaudible click. As you can see from the illustration, it lies inconspicuously flat and neat. The snap enclosure is covered by the same material as the shirting itself. Eagle Tabsnaps are available in a wide range of colors and patterns, with short sleeves or regular. Yes, it appears that the collar button will join the button fly in the museum of clothing antiquities. Say, that is a good idea. If you can find your collar button please send it to us and we will start one (The Afflerbach Collection) right here in Quakertown. In return we will tell you where in your town you can find Eagle Shirts. Otherwise how would you know?

FSU Looks Forward To New Union, Pool

A $2.5 million University Union complex and Olympic - sized swimming pool will probably be the center of attraction when alums tour the FSU campus during Homecoming, 1964.

The Union and pool, which have been in the planning stages for several years and wistfully awaited for many more years by administrators and students, will be a reality by then.

Architecturally modern, University Union will not only be the showplace of campus but will serve as the center of student and University activities.

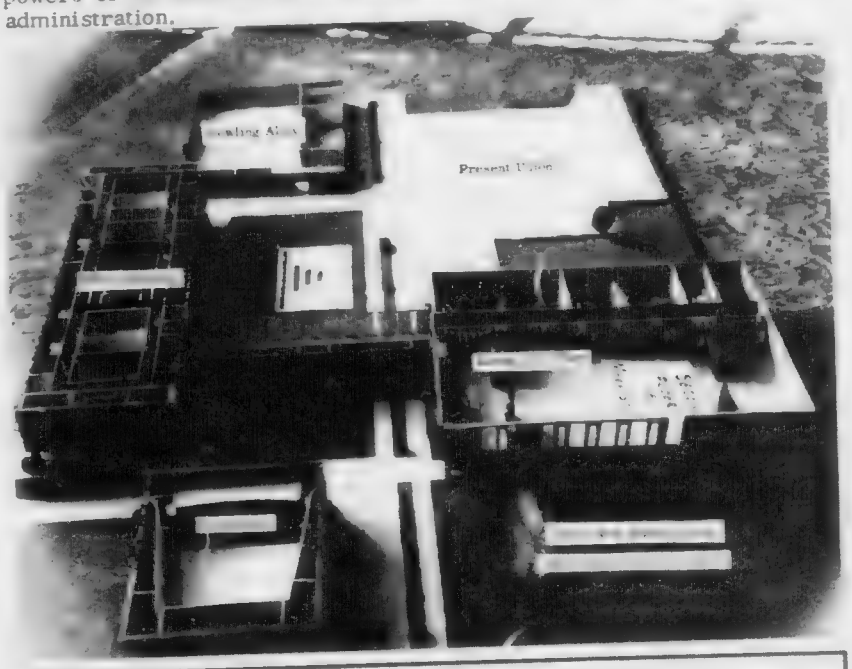
Construction of the four new buildings, which will be connected with each other and with the present Student Center to form the Union complex, is expected to start by January, 1963, Secretary of University Union Don Thigpen said. Target date for completion of the project is sometime in April or May 1964. Construction of the pool will be completed by April or May 1963.

Major areas of the Union will be devoted to recreational facilities; Student Government, student publications and Union administration offices; meeting and conference rooms; and dining facilities.

One of the principal buildings will house an auditorium for campus movies, lectures, conventions and other programs.

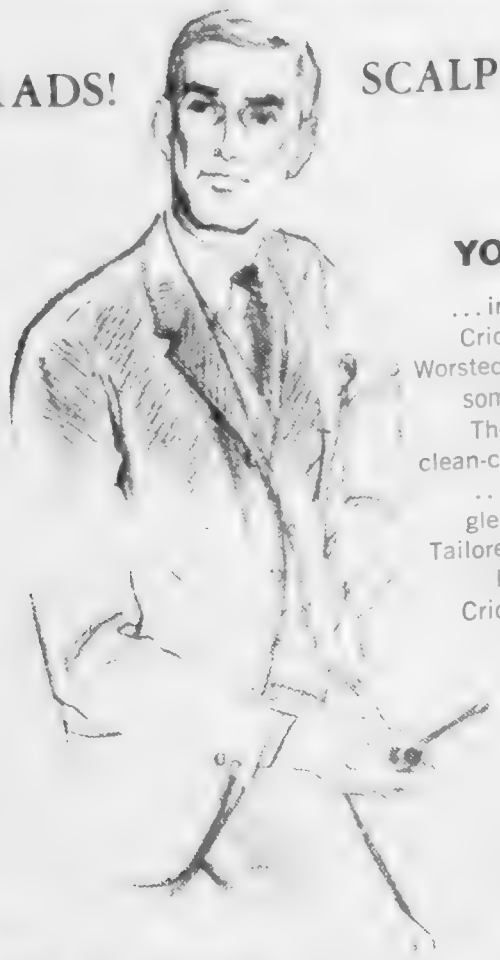
A bowling alley, billard tables and other recreational facilities will be housed in another building.

The main building which will be three stories high will include space available for rent to private businesses for shops, such as a men's clothing store, barber shop, women's dress shop, beauty salon and drug store. The top floors will have offices and meeting rooms.



The fourth unit of the complex will consist of a two-story building with dining and ballroom facilities. In addition to cafeteria-dining areas, there will be a restaurant-type facilities and rooms for private dinner meetings. The large ballroom will double as a banquet hall.

Other facilities included in the Union-complex will be space for art exhibits, reading and listening rooms, lounges and rooms for formal receptions.



The "Z" shaped swimming pool will cost an estimated $300,000. The unusual design of the pool will allow varsity swimming team practice and swimming classes to be conducted in one segment of the pool while in another there can be recreational swimming and in still another diving practice.

Plans for the outdoor pool include three diving boards and a diving tower, judging and press box, fold-away bleachers for spectators and underwater viewing windows. The pool and deck will both be heated during cold weather.

The program of the Union will be planned by the University Union Board, composed of faculty and student members. Plans concerning structure and powers of the board are now being made by Student Government and the administration.

Dr. Champion Is Appointed FSU's New Vice President

As a former accounting professor in the School of Business, Champion says, "I expecially enjoyed the beginnning accounting classes and I'm hoping that as soon as I get into the feel of my new job as vice president, that I'll be able to teach a class."

Champion is a co-author of a textbook, "Accounting in Business Decisions," which he collaborated with a colleague, Dr. Homer A. Black. The text, according to Champion, is widely used in many American universities. Champion and Black have also been active building a graduate professional program in accountancy. The first professional degree a master in accountancy, will be awarded next summer, due to the efforts of these two educators.

FSU's new vice president came to this campus seven years ago from the University of Georgia. His most thrilling experience while at FSU has been watching the University expand and grow into a major educational institution. He remarked, "When you are a part of a great system as FSU is, it really means something to see a new building go up."

Dr. Champion is a native Georgia[n] who spent his boyhood days in Tuskegee; he attended the University of Georgia for his bachelor's and master's degrees, and received his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

Organizations help to fill his already busy schedule with memberships in Kappa Sigma social fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa of which he is president of the FSU chapter, and Phi Kappa Phi. He is also a certified public accountant and is active in the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the American Accounting Association.

In addition to his new position and his active membership in organizations, he remaining time is taken up with his family including his wife and two children, Sally, 6, and John Jr., 4. And when time permits, he steals away with a fishing pole and a can of worms.

He is very optimistic concerning the future of the trimester system. "The future of FSU is promising, and I am delighted that I have an opportunity to be a part of it," he said.

Insufficient Funds Is Real Problem

College costs are rising.

Enrollment is rising.

Insufficient funds are available to keep up with these aspects of the expansion of higher education. More money is needed to pay professors, to build buildings and to help ease the financial burden of qualified students who find they cannot go it alone.

At FSU the Office of Financial Aid is trying to cope with the latter of these cost-enrollment squeezes. With an enrollment of 10,000 available who gets how much and why is a major problem.

Students are assisted through loans, scholarships, part-time work as student assistants or through a combined program, he explained.

The largest source for loans is from federal funds under the National Defense Education Act. In this program, the University puts up $1 and receives $9 from the federal government.

Over $300,000 is now available each year under this program. But currently only students in the priority categories of education, science, engineering, mathematics and modern foreign languages are being considered for the program because these funds will not stretch any further, he said.

University short-term loans, [gen]erally required to be repaid wi[thin] academic year, gave aid [to] 3,500 students last year [in a] program exceeding $270,000, reported. On campus employ[ment] of 1,000 students contributed an[d] $250,000 in financial aid. Grant[s] scholarship gifts added $[1]

Aids available to students [from] sources outside the University [in]clude scholarship and loa[n] or private organizations [and] loans.

Air Science Sets Record

The Air Science Dept. has enrolled the largest junior class in the history of FSU.

The total junior enrollment of 72 is more than twice last year's enrollment. All students who complete the Air Science course and graduate from FSU will be commissioned as officers in the USAF, since there are no longer any quota limitations for entry into Advanced AFROTC.

Male students who are already qualified or who wish to qualify for an Air Force commission may sign up for Air Science 301 in the Air Science Dept. office until the University late registration closes.

Flambeau" Looks Back Upon Its Own Past

BY SUSIE RHOADES
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Florida Flambeau" has from a small weekly tabloid ...44, to an eight column full newspaper in 1928, and now to an offset daily tabloid.

This newspaper had an almost accidental beginning. Ruby Leach, the first editor, had been hired by the "Tallahassee Democrat" to write a column of campus news. She discovered that actually there was enough news to have a newspaper on campus. Students decided they would rather have a campus newspaper than their literary magazine, "The Talisman."

A contest for selecting the name of the paper was sponsored by the advisory committee. Miss Rowena Longmire, Dr. William G. Dodd, Professor Arthur Williams and Dr. Edward Conradi and the newly elected staff.

Mrs. L. A. Yates, the first circulation manager won the contest by suggesting "Florida Flambeau." She found the name by running her finger slowly down the 'F's' in the dictionary until she came to the word "flambeau," meaning "a flaming torch." "Flambeau" represented the three flaming torches in the seal of the college.

The paper remained a tabloid until Oct. 19, 1928 when it became an eight column standard sized newspaper. Originally it had been published on Saturdays, but the day of publication was changed to Friday so that the students could read the paper before leaving the campus on weekends.

Co-editors of the 1937-38 "Flambeau" decided that the paper needed a mascot. They adopted a big-eyed dog whom one of them called "Shepard" and the other called "Hon."

Still on display in Longmire is the large sterling silver loving cup won by the "Flambeau" in 1937-38. It was presented as an award for the "Best Florida College Newspaper" by the Associated Dailies of Florida.

Upon the advent of co-education on campus and the newly acquired status of "university" in 1947, the "Flambeau" became a biweekly, published on Tuesdays and Fridays. Bob Cooksey was the first man to be made an editor on the staff.

Throughout its growth, the "Flambeau" has received awards on the national level. In 1931, 1932, 1933, 1937, 1938, 1956, 1957 and 1959, the "Flambeau" received "All-American" ratings from the Associated Collegiate Press of the National Scholastic Press Association.

This year the "Flambeau" became the first daily collegiate newspaper in the state of Florida. The Board of Publications approved this move in order to keep pace with the continuing growth of the campus. With a daily published Monday through Friday, more complete and up-to-date coverage of activities and events on campus is available to the students, faculty and administration. Coverage of important state, national and international news was also initiated this year.

The noisy half of the "pinning" ceremony is likewise centered around the fountain. Fraternity brothers of the newly pinned brother kidnap him and then proceed to the residence of the girl. She is likewise confisticated by her dormmates or sorority sisters.

Both, preferably dressed in old clothes, are then transported to "The Pool" in a horn-blaring auto caravan for what is known as a "Pool Party." When the couple has been thoroughly dunked, roommates, friends, and then passersby are alternately thrown into the water until there are as few dry people as possible on the scene.

Several days later, the fraternity presents a "Pinning Serenade" in front of the girl's residence. She appears in a white formal gown and the men sing. As the man actually "pins" her, his brothers sing the "sweetheart song" of the fraternity.

Akin to the pinning serenade is the traditional political serenade, another innovation brought in when the school became co-educational in 1947.

When political campaigns are especially close, fraternities vie for the freshmen women's votes by serenading the night before the election. Between songs they introduce their candidate and announce his qualifications.

Houston Is '62 Homecoming Enemy

THE 1962 VARSITY FOOTBALL TEAM

Cougars Hope To Scratch Seminoles For Third Win

The Florida State Seminoles will host the University of Houston Cougars this afternoon at 2:30 in Doak Campbell Stadium as the three-platoons of FSU compete in their 14th annual Homecoming Game.

In the last three Homecoming games the Seminoles have gone down to defeat, so Coach Bill Peterson and the staff are expecially looking forward to a victory this afternoon. A win over Houston would do three things:

It would give the Seminoles their first triumph over the Cougars, since the Texans have to come out on top in the last two encounters.

And it would break the so-called Homecoming jinx, which was actually created by FSU playing strong teams at homecoming.

Thus far, the Cats have a 2-4 record, but they have taken on three of the tougher members of the Southern Conference. They fell to Mississippi, 40-7, and ten nationally ranked Alabama spanked them 14-3. Then Mississippi State came through with a 9-3 triumph.

The other defeat came at the hands of Boston College. "I don't know what happened to them," Peterson says, pointing out that Houston exhibited a strong defense often and a creditable offense on several occasions during the four losses.

The Cougars have defeated Baylor, 19-0, and Texas A&M, 6-3.

Peterson's crew, on the other hand, has travelled to a 4-1-1 record. Many sports observers have pointed out that the Tribesmen should be 6-0, since the 0-0 tie with the University of Kentucky and the 7-6 loss to the University of Miami were termed "moral victories."

The legitimate triumphs were extracted beginning with the Citadel, 49-0, in the season opener. The Citadel was the champion of the Southern Conference last season. After that, Furman University toppled, 42-0. When Peterson sent the platoons against the University of Georgia, it was the first time in the Seminoles' history that FSU was favored to defeat a Southeastern Conference squad. It did, 18-0, and the Seminoles were sitting on the Bulldog goal line when the final buzzer sounded. Then Virginia Tech fell, 20-7, last week.

The Seminoles have scored 135 points in their six games, against 14 points tallied by the Hurricanes and Virginia Tech.

Past FSU- Houston highlights:

In 1960, FSU got the best of the Cougars statistically, but fell 7-6 by virtue of a fourth quarter touchdown and PAT, by a two-point FSU pass play that failed after the Seminoles stormed back for a six-pointer, and by FSU's own inability to cash in on the opportunities.

The Cougars fumbled the ball five times in the second quarter, and scored their last TD on a 52-yard TD drive that was capped by a 12-yard pass to Ken Bolin. FSU scored with less than three minutes remaining as quarterback Ed Trancygier shot a 20-yard pass to end George Tillman. The try for the two points failed.

In 1961, the bigger Houston squad prevailed, 28-8, although FSU fought madly in the first quarter. In the fourth quarter, FSU got into the scoring column mainly on the hard running charges of Gene Roberts, who carried the ball nine times in the 15 plays it took the Tribe to score. After Roberts scored from the one. Trancygier passed a two-pointer to Tom Hillabrand.

Hurling, Batting Good Points Of Litwhiler's Nine

The FSU baseball team, which advanced to the semifinals of the College World Series despite a slow start, has been drilling in preparation for the 1962 season.

Head Coach Danny Litwhiler, who will start his eighth year at FSU, has seen the Seminoles win a total of 263 games against 68 losses. In addition, the baseballers have appeared in six NCAA district playoffs and two College World Series.

But Litwhiler will be able to rely on the services of such returnees as shortstop Woody Woodward, a [illegible] from Coral Gables; second baseman Billy Williamson, a [illegible] senior from Palm Harbor; outfielder Dwight Smith, a 5-11, 195-pounder from St. [illegible], 20-year-old senior Bud[illegible] Tearle, a 6-4, 223-pounder from West Palm Beach.

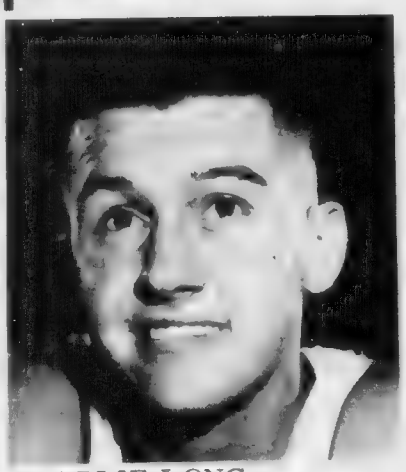
The Seminoles, who were considered a bit weak in pitching at the start of the '61 season, will have an addition to the hurling staff. Former catcher Buddy Teagle has been [illegible] the mound, Litwhiler says.

In addition to having strong pitching arms, Litwhiler's squad will also possess athletes with strong bats. Two of the top hitters, along with All-American Teagle, are second baseman Bill Williamson, a 180-pound senior from Palm Harbor, and shortstop Woody Woodward, a 175-pound, 6-2 junior from Coral Gables. Williamson led the individual record breakers in 1961, as he set three marks, one of them the homerun record. He hit eight homers, breaking the old mark by two, and even when he didn't hit a four-bagger in the final month of the campaign. Teagle set two Seminole records, as he bettered the doubles mark by one with his 11 and as he rewrote the record for number of putouts.

Cagers To Surprise Some People In '62

The 1962 cage season is less than a month away, as Head Coach Bud Kennedy's drill for the Dec. 1 contest with the University of Tampa.

Coach Kennedy, who is in his 15th year of coaching at FSU, said, "We're going to surprise some people this year, if for no other reason than the fact that nobody expects much from us."



The Tribesmen's schedule includes games with 13 Southeastern Conference opponents, including the University of Kentucky.

Four of the five starters from last year's team will be gone, and the 1961 squad was judged Kennedy's best ever. Losses include the two leading rebounders and scorers, Dave Fedor (now a starter for the Los Angeles Warriors) and Ray Swain. The team led the nation in field goal percentage last season.

Top returnees are forwards Charlie Long and Bob Ek, guard Dale Rickets and center Dale Reeves. In addition, Kennedy will have the services of a transfer student, 6-5 guard Pete Rogers of Daytona Beach. Rogers, who was once a frosh star for Georgia Tech, first transferred to Daytona Beach Junior College before coming to FSU.

Long, a 6-4 senior from Louisville, Ky., was number three rebounder and a scorer last year with 95 rebounds, 409 points, and a 13.4 scoring average. Ricketts trailed closely in both departments. The 6-7 Reeves, a junior from Louisville, Ky., and the 6-4 Ek, a junior from Jacksonville, have shown great potential.

Promising sophomores include the 6-5 Jerry Shirley and 6-3 Ross Winter, both of Mobile, Ala.; the 6-1 Pete Gonzalez of Miami; and the 6-4

CHARLIE LONG

. . . a top returnee

Starting positions have not been definitely decided, Kennedy said, but probably starters will be Long, Ek, Ricketts, Rogers, and Reeves. "But," he warns, "that could change in a minute."

Additional depth for the cagers will come from forward Cal Huge, guard Bob Lovell, forward Faurest Coogle, center Bob Rose, center Bob Gemming, and Bill Giswold, a redshirt last year.

The Seminoles finished with a 15-8 record last year, playing against such teams as Ohio State, Wisconsin, Auburn, and Florida. Kennedy's crew will be playing basically the same schedule this season, including 13 games against Southeastern Conference teams. One of the SEC foes will be Kentucky, which FSU upset two years ago.

HOUSTON UNSCATHED BY SUNSHINE TEAMS

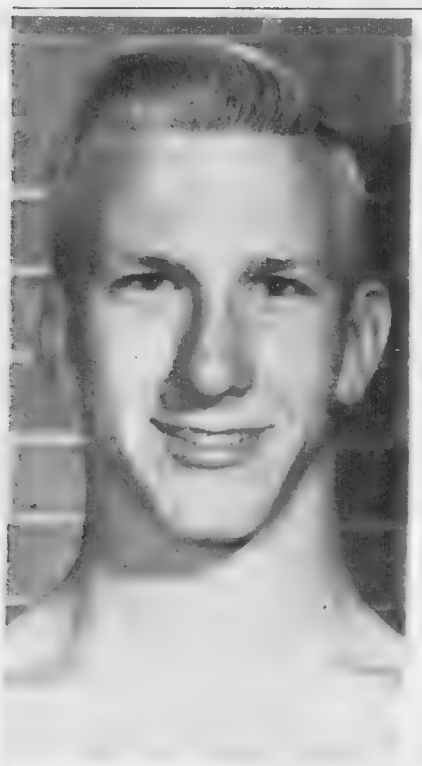
The University of Houston has never lost to a team from the state of Florida, having defeated Florida State twice, the University of Miami twice, and the 1958 FSU freshman football team once.

The Seminoles fell, 7-6, in 1960 and, 28-8, in 1961, while the Hurricanes were defeated, 7-0, in 1957 and, 37-26, in 1958.

THE 1962 FRESHMAN FOOTBALL SQUAD

Junior Tribe To Battle Paladins

The freshman football team still seeking its first victory this year, will go against the Baby Paladins from Furman University Nov. 10 in Greenville, S.C.



In the two previous outings, the fledgins have been defeated by the Mississippi Southern B-team, 35-12, and were tied by the Baby Hurricanes from the University of Miami, 14-14.

The frosh sufferred their first defeat in three years when the Southerners triumphed, but the fault was not all their own, coaches quickly pointed out.

The team did not get a coach until three days before the game when Coach Jerry Proctor joined the staff. FSU's two touchdown came after a 72-yard march in the third quarter and a fourth quarter drive. The first TD occurred when Buddy Blankenship threw 10-yards to end Elton Jones in the end zone, and then halfback Joe Petko went over from the one in the fourth quarter for the second TD. Both PAT kicks were blocked.

Against Miami, the big Seminole play occurred when Petko scooted 81 yards downfield to paydirt for a second quarter Florida State touchdown. The Seminoles, after seeing the Hurricanes score in the first act, quickly added a second TD to the scoreboard after guard Bobby Jamieson stole a 'Cane pass, setting up a tally. Fullback Ken Frazier stepped over left guard from the one for the TD with 44 seconds left.

Last year, the freshman team defeated both the Furman and Miami squads in 36-3 and 13-0 games respectively. At that time, undefeated freshman Coach Charlie LaPradd, now with the state Department of Education, saw his record marred only by a 6-6 tie with Mississippi Southern B-squad.

LEE BRANSFORD

Tankers Own Best Record

If you go by records alone, the FSU varsity swim team, with an 11-1 record, was the best team on campus last year. Known as the South's finest swim team, the Tribe is looking ahead to what could be the greatest season ever. Last year's one loss was to the Florida Gators in Gainesville. The Seminoles, swimming in more familiar waters, defeated the Gators in Montgomery Pool.

Coach Bim Stults has had the team going through workouts that have been long and tough. "We're working on distance sprints right now," said Stults, "and also trying to improve the boys' strength by having the team do isometric-isotonic exercises." The team has started taking wheat germ oil, which is an endurance builder and workouts with weights are also part of the daily program.

Preparations are being made for the season's first meet - - the Southern AAU's in New Orleans on November 17. The varsity will participate in this meet, with the frosh getting their first taste of competition in December in the annual Garnet and Gold meet, which pits the frosh against the varsity.

In addition to these meets, the team will face Georgia (twice), North Carolina, Georgia Tech, Tulane, Sewanee, Alabama, that other state school where the men need no introduction because they're so obnoxious everyone knows where they are from (twice), and East Carolina. Outstanding representatives of the team will also go to the Georgia AAU's, Florida Intercollegiates, National AAU's, National Intercollegiates, and NCAA Championships.

Stults is optimistic about the coming season but not overconfident. "We have a tough schedule," he said, "but I am pretty sure our boys can do it." Stults, who has been Head swimming coach here since the swim team was organized in 1949, has a record of 110 wins and 11 losses.

Nine Track Lettermen Return; Four Dual Meets Are Scheduled

The FSU harriers, which lost 11 seniors via the graduation lines, will have 10 returning lettermen, Coach Mke Long says.

This season the squad will compete in four dual meets, against Florida, Miami, Furman, and Tennessee, in addition to entering several larger meets. These larger meets will possibly include the Coliseum Relays in Montgomery, the Mason-Dixon Games, the Florida Relays, the Texas Relays, Penn Relays, Georgia AAU, the NCAA, and the Florida Invitational. Definitely out, Long says, is the Piedmont Relays, which clashes with the FSU exam schedule.

This team's squad will be bolstered by several athletes up from the frosh team and the fall cross-country team. Returnees from the 1962 squad include:

Several cross country tracksters will be eligible this spring, including junior Hank Raehn of Orlando and Harold Taylor of Indiana. Jerry McDaniel, a sophomore that attended Florida High, will also bolster the ranks, while Long will get added help from sophomore Clark Robinson, a discus thrower from St. Petersburg, and Denny Barton, a middle distance and distance runner from Fort Lauderdale.

Some of the promising sophs are Al Cato, a 5-9, 150 pounder; Doug Ferry, a middle distance runner, [illegible] well, a 6-0, 160 pound high [illegible] Floyd Lorenz a high [illegible] Illinois; and hurdler Ross [illegible] also a varsity basketball

JuCo's Boost Tennis Team

Led by Coach Ed Cubbon, the Florida State tennis team is preparing for the upcoming season. The slamming Seminoles are currently holding informal workouts, paying particular attention to their strokes and particular weaknesses.

The final schedule will not be available until later, but some of the teams lined up as opponents for the netters include: the Southeastern Conference schools of Georgia, Georgia Tech, Florida and Auburn on a home-and-home basis; Rollins, Florida Southern and Stetson from down state; and Clemson, Presbyterian, and Furman from the Southern Conference. Coach Cubbon added that negotiations are under way with Louisiana State; Mississippi State; the big Eastern schools of Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and Duke; and also with the Big Ten schools of Michigan, Michigan State and Ohio State.

There are 10 people trying out for the varsity and freshman squads. The only letterman is Jamey Jamieson, but he is back up by two junior college transfers, Don Caton from Pensacola J.C., and Alex Wood, of England. Up from last year's freshman team are Paul Bennett, Kenny Alcorn, Matt Suher, and Dick Fischer. Suher is the young man who participated in the Eastern Intercollegiate Invitational Tournament this year at Princeton, and reached the semi-finals, while the now departed stars Paul Scarpa and Gordy Smith were sweeping the tournament. Also back is Don Monk, a former varsity candidate who had to leave school.

Kasha: Florida's Universities In Great Danger

Kasha, professor of chemistry and director of the Institute of Molecular [illegible] FSU's dis- [illegible] of 1962. He addressed the alumni on the topic, [illegible] Science Cen- [illegible].

The speaker said that a great science center, such as the one proposed for FSU, requires a true university atmosphere for full realization. He asserted that "the atmosphere required for scholarly teaching and creative work is predetermined by an atmosphere of mistrust in the line of relations from the state government, to the Board of Control, to the administrative staffs of the universities, to the faculties."

A "substantial improvement" must be made in these relations if the university system in Florida is to be assured for the future, Kasha said. He added that a university "cannot operate without a certain professional element of trust."

MORE AUTHORITY

"In particular," Kasha declared, "the Board of Control should retain full authority for the mangement of the university system, and the university administrative officers should be granted a greater degree of authority in the execution of the rulings of the Board."

Unless this and other primary problems relationg to the development of the university and the science center are resolved, the professor continued, FSU's unparalleled opportunity for development of a great science center could lapse into a mediocre status.

Kasha suggested several other areas where improvements should be made. A board program of undergraduate sciende scholarships would help decrease the numbers of talented students leaving the state.

The building development program should be accelerated so that the "excellent staffs which the university has acquired may be adequately housed," and to prevent a weakening and possible break-up of existing departments.

UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY

The FSU science center plan calls for a grouping of coordinated buildings which, Kasha said, could be duplicated on hardly any other university campus with normally scattered science buildings. FSU science staffs will be in a unique position for new developments in such rapikly expanding hybrid sciences as chemical chysics and molecular biology, the speaker continued.

Much red tape in meeting double requirements of state and federal approval on about $3.5 million in research contracts and grants makes it impossible to purchase major scientific equipment in less than six months, and hampers many research programs, the distinguished professor declared. Much of this red tape is the result of the failure of the state to provide funds for augmenting the purchasing staff and other allied non-academic personnel, he declared.

ANTHROPOLOGY CHAIR

Kasha termed anthropology "the most neglected science at FSU," and urged alumni to consider supproting this department as a special project.

He pointed out that invaluable archaeological materials dating back 4000 years in the history of the Florida Indians are "lying on the ground, buried in shell mounds, and hidden in riverbeds," but may be permanently lost due to increased industrial expansion.

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU

Faculty Condemns BOC Interference

In the first special meeting ever called in the history of FSU's Faculty Senate, the following statement was unanimously approved and sent to the Board of Control and to the press:

"Recent directives of the Board of Control, stimulated by the activities of the Legislative Investigation Committee, constitute a serious threat to the academic freedom of our University. Summary suspensions and textbook censorship resulting from Legislative inquiry into political ideas, religious beliefs and personal behavior of the faculties of the universities will lead to an eventual decay of all freedom of thought.

"Academic freedom was purchased at the price of bloodshed and persecution in the Middle Ages. It has survived, although not without some setbacks, in religious bigotry, superstition, Fascist and Communist oppression, and, in our own country, McCarthy inspired witch-hunts.

"It is more precious to a university, especially one aspiring to greatness, than buildings, libraries, or laboratory equipment. It is like life itself, very delicate. A whisper may destroy what has been cherished for centuries. Like democracy and individual liberty, our academic freedom will not survive unless it is defended vigorously -- without thoughts of personal security. Without the freedom to teach and to learn to the best of our abilities, our presence in these buildings is irrelevant.

"No one questions the authority of the Board of Control to make policies for the University, or the responsibility which the Board of Control has to the people of Florida, and in particular to students in the universities.

"We do question, however, the wisdom of political interference in university procedures, and in particular, recent detailed directives of the Board of Control regarding possible politically or morally undesirable elements.

"In our view these directives constitute a threat to academic freedom that cannot fail to be a serious deterrent in the acquisition and retention of faculty and in the attraction of students of the highest calibre. It is not impossible that it could result in punitivie action by accrediting bodies and professional societies.

"We, the faculty, feel that the Board of Control directives of 19 October, 1962, are in violation of the principles of academic freedom in the following respects:

1. The detailed procedures specified for the selection of faculty, students and lecturers impugn the motives and abilities of the administration and, in effect, convict them in public view of lack of respect for democratic institutions, morality, religion, and good taste.

2. The faculty is required to testify as to the desirability of materials, and of persons, on the basis of concepts that have no strict meaning, are therefore unenforceable, and could serve no legal purpose other than persecution.

3. The language of the directives is punitive, lacking in respect for the generally high competence and moral responsibility of the faculty, and does not recognize that the exercise of faculty, and does not recognize that the exercise of faculty judgment is the only effective control on the campus.

"We condemn the interference of the Legislative Investigation Committee in the academic affairs of the Universities. We are shocked by the attacks of the Committee. We have a right to expect that the Board of Control will defend our academic freedom.

"The responsibility for defense of our freedom finally devolves upon us, the faculty. We declare that we will not collaborate in the destruction of our University.

"We reaffirm the tenth recommendation of the Final Self-Study Report of the Florida State University. 'toward a Distinguished University' (page 52):

'RECOMMENDATION 10: That freedom of thought, inquiry, and expression be fostered and preserved as an unassailable perogative of the University faculty.

"Kismet" Opens Thursday

The University Theatre, Opera Guild and Theatre Dance have all combined efforts to produce "Kismet" the greatest musical ever presented at FSU.

"Kismet" opens Thursday in Westcott Auditorium and plays through [illegible] performances begin at 8 p.m. Tickets went on sale yesterday at the Westcott Ticket office. Prices are $2. for non-students and $1 for students with their ID cards. The cast is composed of fifty people playing over 100 parts. There are 85 different costumes ranging [illegible] all shades of brown to brilliant shades of greens and blues.

The plot is a take off on a musical Arabian Night's Tale with Baghdad, the East's city of mystery and adventure, as the setting. The story covers the time span of 24 hours. The first act begins at Dawn and ends with dusk; the second act begins at dusk and ends with the [illegible] dawn. Hajj, the hero, pretends to be a magician. Which starts him on the path to fantastic wealth, a new love, and a clash with the forces of evil.

The original play was written by Edward Knoblick in 1911, and presented in New York City with Otis Skinner playing the part of Hajj. Movie versions were released in 1930 and 1940.

"Stranger in Paradise," "Baubles, Bangles, and Beads," "This Is My Beloved" and "Not Since Mineveh" are a few of the best known selections. The music and lyrics were composed and written by Robert Wright and George Forrest, based on themes by Alexander Borodin.

Stickler Talks On USF Dismissal Of Professor

The issue of academic freedom involved in the recent dismissal of Dr. Sheldon N. Grebstein from his teaching duties at the University of South Florida will come up for discussion tonight at a meeting of the FSU Chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

The AAUP meeting will be held in the Library Lecture Hall at 8 p.m.

Dr. W. Hugh Stickler, chairman of the Steering Committee for the FSU Self-Study Project, will discuss steps toward making FSU a distinguished institution of higher learning.

Stickler, head of institutional research, is well acquainted with the project's findings, since he prepared, with a committee, the role and scope report.

He will discuss four points relating to the final report, "Toward a Distinguished University." These points include: the self-study itself; the final report and its contents; the forthcoming official visit by representatives of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools; and what FSU can expect from the self-study and the Southern Association visit.

Crisis At Miss

The recent crisis at the University of Mississippi will be discussed Wednesday night by Duncan M. Gray, Jr., native Mississippian and rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Osford.

Gray's talk, at 7 p.m. in the University Methodist Chapel, is open to the public. He is being sponsored on campus by the Baptist, Epsicopal, Methodist and Presbyterian University Centers, and by the United Student Fellowship and Liberal Forum.

Actively involved during the crisis, Gray will give his impression of what actually happened, as he saw it. He was among those who tried to persuade former General Edwin Walker against his mob-inciting actions.

In former talks, he has spoken openly of the way state officials handled the problems, and has asserted that all Americans are ressonsible for the "deteriorating racial crisis."

Reapportionment?

TOMORROW representative government in Florida will face one of its sternest tests. It is a test which will decide once and for all whether or not the people of this state have enough interest in their system of government to make it work properly.

Appearing on the ballot in the Nov. 6 general election will be a formula for reapportionment of state legislative seats. The plan was passed by a recent special session of the legislature and subsequently approved by the federal court. It provides for an increase in membership of the Senate from 38 to 46 and the House from 95 to 135. The three-judge court ruling on this formula stated simply that it met the test of constitutional equal protection.

But a closer examination of the increased legislative membership reveals that only 27 per cent of the population would elect a majority of the house and 14 per cent a majority of the senate. These figures provoke amazement in many quarters that the court can consider such a proposal as providing "equal protection."

Added to the court's mildness in dealing with the reapportionment question are the disturbing comments made by top governmental leaders. One state official viewed court approval of such a measure as "extremely gratifying" and a prominent lawmaker quipped, "It's the best they're going to get."

Malapportionment of state legislatures is one of the symptoms and symbols of state government irresponsibility. When a group of lawmakers representing only a small segment of the population is able to completely dominate state government, not only are the constitutional rights of the majority being infringed upon, but the progress of the state as a whole is being impeded.

The November balloting will be the last opportunity for many years to come for the people of this state who wish to have a truly responsible, representative and progressive state government to raise their voices and be heard.

If we fail to defeat the proposed reapportionment plan all hopes of further assistance from the m or anyone else in wresting control of the state from the strangle hold of the minority will be lost.

The Porkchop gang will once more be free to resume its parasitic role in the affairs of our state.

End Race Into Oblivion

A highly effective tool used by the ruling elite in the Soviet Union in subjugating the minds of its masses has been the "Threat of Counter-revolution," the assumption of hostility from the capitalistic camp.

This word weapon has been used time and time again to justify dictatorial methods, the lack of consumer goods in the Soviet Union, to place a clamp on unrest resulting from disillusionment with the failure of the proletarian paradise to materialize.

When the people ask for more bread and butter, for better homes, for the goods that make life in the western world so comfortable, the rulers point to American missile bases surrounding the borders of the USSR, to American submarines completing the encirclement of the motherland, to fifty billion dollars spent annually in this country for military measures, to American bombers laden with nuclear destruction always in the air.

And why does the United States spend upwards of fifty billion dollars each year for weapons? Why does this nation keep missiles around the periphery of the Soviet Union? Why are our nuclear-laden bombers kept on 24-hour, 365-day a year alert, ready incinerate the USSR at any given moment?

Is it not because we, too, fear the aggression of a nuclear-armed enemy ready to destroy our nation the first time that we let our guard down? Do we not spend our fifty billion in reaction to increases in Soviet military might?

The key to the cold war and the arms race, which can only end in the mutual destruction of both sides and much of the world between and beside the two powers, lies in a stimulus-reaction in which the defenses of one side present a situation in which the other side sees a threat to its security.

Taking this viewpoint, the American missile bases and bomber bases encircling the Soviet Union are defenses (to our way of thinking) used to check Soviet ambitions against the security of the West. The Soviets see these as potential first-strike arms of a hostile power aimed at their homeland.

Thus the Soviets move to establish missile sites in Cuba as a defensive measure against the "aggressive" moves made by the United States. We see such moves as a threat and, acting to aleviate the danger, take measures which present a threat to the Soviet.

Americans know that they will never launch a first-strike against the Soviet Union. The Soviets cannot be sure, however, because of the assumption on the part of its leadership of "imperialist hostility."

Soviet leaders know that they will not launch a first strike against the U.S. But Americans cannot be sure because of their assumption of So hostility.

Therefore, each camp furio builds its military machine to off an attack that will never rationally decided upon by the ership of the other.

Both camps claim to be the aggression of the other, intentions on its own part and defense.

The issue is, then, not win the war, because the chance has long since become beyond means of either bloc, but to end cold war before it

At citizens of one side of the surd struggle we bility beyond that of the rest of world's people. In a way we more of a responsibility to end race into oblivion than the So people do. Living in a demo society we stand a better chance they do of making our desires kno and, if we shirk the responsib by being overwhelmed with the m nitude of the problem, the tion of civilization and the of the earth to an uninhabitable pl et will come about because we to act.

Visit Into The Past

At approximately 9 a.m., I climbed into the Time Machine. From where I sat, I could see my friends through a small, smokey window. They looked worried as they waved goodbye. After all, 500 years is a long way to go. I leaned back and tried to think peaceful thoughts. The machine began to rumble, slowly gathering momentum, and fear gripped me!

The machine reached the necessary power and rumbled steadily for 10 long hours. Back, back, back. I relaxed, finally, and tried to convince myself that I would enjoy visiting the past.

Perhaps, I really would meet a shining knight on a great white horse. I laughed again at this and opened the book that I had brought along to read. Fear clutched me agan at I thought of the people I knew, who had gone back, being burned as witches for expounding 20th century ideas. I had been warned before leaving that I must remain as silent as possible, keeping my opinions to myself.

I had not realized until then how fortunate I was to have been born in the 20th century--to have been born in a time when people could think and believe as they pleased. In a time of free elections and government by the people for the people. A time of freedom of religion and a time when students could study what they wished without having to fight religious dogmas.

The 20th century was not only a time when the majority ruled but also a time when minorities had the freedom to dissent.

I looked at my watch--7 p.m. The ten hours were over. Needless to say, I was frightened. The slowing rumble of the machine finally died completely. The door swung open and I took my first breathless step into the past. There were my friends. "Well," said one, with a wise smile, "what did you learn?" Everything was the same.

Yost Speaks On Byron

"The death of Byron was an end and also a beginning," said Dr. George Yost at the English Coffee Hour Friday. His topic was "The Aftermath of Byron's Death."

He added that the story is like a melodrama with the principle characters gone and the curtain will not go down. It is like "Hamlet without Hamlet."

After Byron's death some thought his memoirs should be burned. John Hobhouse, Byron's executor, felt that the escapades should be hushed up and that Byron should be presented at his best. Tom Moore, the only person who read them fought to save them, but the papers were burned by Hobhouse and Horton, a friend of Lady Byron.

Yost noted that those who objected to the memoirs also objected to "Don Juan", so they probably were not too bad.

Many wanted to bask in the limelight and to make money on false memoirs. Papers were written by those who pretended to have known Byron. There were many fabrications.

In 1829 Leigh Hunt attacked Byron and Moore. This was the last straw for Moore. He then wrote a good biography with true material.

Lady Byron was "treated abominably" and spent the rest of her life as the aggrieved wife, Yost said.

"Lady Byron thought Augusta should confess her guilt with her brother Byron to her. But Augusta had a high position at court and was afraid to lose it." However she did become subservient to Lady Byron, Yost continued.

Lady Caroline Lamb had betrayed Byron to his wife and implicated his sister. "She tried to get back in favor by confessions," he continued.

Houston Cougars Drown Tribe In 7 To 0 Homecoming Defeat

Bobby Brezina, Houston fullback, has a right to be smiling, because the 200-pound Cougar spoiled Florida State's Homecoming by stepping across for a touchdown. He was one of the leading ground gainers of the 7-0 contest, which was FSU's fourth consecutive Homecoming loss.

The day that the rains came down.

That was Nov. 3, 1962. Homecoming to Florida State fans. The day that the Seminoles fell, 7-0, in a hard-fought battle with the highly underrated University of Houston Cougars.

In addition, it was the fourth straight Homecoming defeat and it delayed Coach Bill Peterson getting his first winning season at Florida State.

This appeared like the year for the Seminoles to snap the Homecoming jinx (and it is a jinx or why did the rains choose Nov. 3 to fall and not Nov. 4?). Peterson had accumulated a 4-1-1 record against Houston's puny 2-4 mark. The Seminoles were riding high, and were ranked in the nation in several statistical departments.

Then how could they lose?

First off, the odds makers, who had ranked FSU at 12 or 13 point favorite, were just looking at the teams' records. They completely ignored the fact that the Houston's losses came at the hands of Alabama, Mississippi, and Mississippi State, while three of FSU's wins came at the hands of Citadel, Furman, and Virginia Tech. There was a difference in the calibre.

PASSING STOPPED

Then again, the Seminoles, normally a sharp passing outfit, were handicapped by the rain. Despite the fact that the FSU squad was playing with one arm tied behind its back, the Seminoles outpassed Houston 97 to 66 yards.

In another statistical department, however, the Cougars charged 273 yards to Florida State's 52 yards. But it only took 59 of Houston's 273 yards rushing to snatch a Homecoming victory from Florida State.

After intercepting a Seminole pass on the Houston 23 yard line, Coach Bill Yeoman's crew slammed down the gridiron to the goal in the fourth quarter.

4TH QUARTER MARCH

The march really got under way on the Houston 41, from which point fullback Bobby Brezina, who carried 14 times for 79 yards rushing, and fullback Rank Brewer racked up yaddage through running plays.

At the 41, Brezina first broke loose for a 17 yarder that took him to the FSU 41. Then the Cougars moved to the Florida State 33 via a pass from quarterback Billy Roland to Bill Van Osdel. A short plunge by Brewer, who carried 21 times for 122 yards, gave the Cougars a first down, and three plays later Brezina rushed 16 yards to Florida State's 12.

BREZINA SCORES

In two more short drives, the Cougars found themselves on the FSU two and the two drives had given them another first down. This time the Seminole defense gave way. On the third down, Brezina shot around right end from a half-foot out for a Touchdown with 4:36 left in the game.

Bill McMillan kicked the point after touchdown and practically assured the Seminoles that, even if they scored, they could only tie the game.

But FSU did not score and managed to get to the Houston 36 giving up the ball for good.

This was the third time that a Florida State team had fallen to the Cougars. The other two Houston triumphs came in 1960 when the Seminoles were edged, 7-6, and in 1961 when the Tribesmen were spanked, 28-8.

THE KICKER

Bill McMillan, the toe specialist for the Houston Cougars, capped the Houston scoring with a point-after-touchdown kick that assured Houston of at least a 7-7 game if FSU scored. FSU didn't and McMillan's boot gave Bill Yeoman's squad a 7-0 triumph.

AAUP Reacts

State university professors continue to answer back to the recent Board of Control [illegible] regarding the type of teaching materials and textbooks [illegible] and the firing of USF Prof. Sheldon Grebstein.

The chapter of AAUP passed a series of resolutions dealing with the Grebstein case and the Board's policy. FSU's chapter discussed the case in closed session. FSU's faculty senate passed a resolution on the BOC [illegible] this weekend. UF faculty senate has not met.

Dr. Seymour Block, President of the State AAUP and a UF professor, got [illegible] the battle.

[illegible] pointed for a showdown at the Friday meeting of the Board of Control. The Board is expected to define its idea of academic freedom at that [illegible] AAUP members will be present.

On Teaching Materials, Profs

Block Requests AAUP Investigate BOC Rule

UF-FSU NEWS SERVICE

Dr. Seymour Block, State President of the AAUP, said last night that he will send a letter to the National AAUP asking for investigation of the Grebstein case and an examination of the Board of Control's policy concerning teaching materials and selection of professors.

Block cited the speech of FSU's Dr. Michael Kasha as the "best weapon for maintaining academic freedom. The state can't afford to invest 100 million dollars in new buildings and lose the key to the space industry race--top quality professors."

"The Board of Control is made up of dedicated men," Block continued, "But they are not properly educated to academic freedom. If they were education to academic freedom, they would have used the right channels (in the Grebstein case)."

The case of Dr. Sheldon Grebstein involved the use of some of his teaching materials. Grebstein supposedly mimeographed samples of beatnik poetry to illustrate its poor quality. The poetry contained passages which members of the Johns Investigating Committee considered objectionable. Grebstein was removed in closed session and did not have the opportunity to testify in his behalf.

Block said he considered "right channels" in this case to be to have the committee refer objections to the BOC, which would refer objections to the President of the institution. The President would refer the case to the dean who would set up a panel of peers of the professor to make a judgment.

"I have every hope that the problem will be resolved. This is based on the fact that the Board has agreed to sit down with the Presidents of the universities and representatives of the faculty to discuss Board policy on academic freedom," Block said.

Artist Series Hosts Famous Actress Soon

Dame Judith Anderson, called by the "New York Herald-Tribune" as "our greatest living actress," will be sponsored here next Monday and Tuesday nights by the Artist Series.

She will star each night in a double bill that will include her portrayal of the sleepwalking scene of Lady Macbeth, and a condensation of "Medea '62," a modern version of the Jeffers-Euripedes classic. Performances will begin in Westcott Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

[illegible] are now being sold in Westcott Theatre for $3.50 for non-students. Students may present ID cards to obtain reserved seat tickets.

Dame Judith's performance of the mythical fury Medea has been described by one critic: "She starts with an earthquake. Then she builds to a climax." Until she opened the play, the idea of offering Greek drama to the American public was regarded dubiously.

The opening night, when the New York audience literally stood up and cheered, has been heralded as a theatrical landmark.

The two roles that the actress will play here generally are regarded as the high points of her career. They have won her two television awards as the outstanding dramatic actress of the year, and half a dozen other national awards for distinguished performance.

The Australian - born stage virtuoso will be supported by a French actress, Lilyan Chavin. Appearing as "Macbeth" and "Jason" opposite Dame Judith is William Roerick, a veteran classic actor.

Roerick is identified by millions of [illegible] TV fans as the southern colonel in the "Clear Horizon" series. He has been featured with such feminine stars as Ethel Barrymore, Laurette Taylor and Tallulah Bankhead. His Shakespearean assignments have included major roles in the Sir John Gielgud "Hamlet," in which he appears with Judith Anderson for the first time, and in the Katharine Cornell "Romeo and Juliet."

DAME JUDITH ANDERSON
. . . called "Greatest Living Actress" by the New York Herald-Tribune, will appear in Westcott next week for a two night stand.

Professors Discuss Academic Freedom

The discussion of the issue of academic freedom involved in the recent dismissal of Dr. Sheldon N. Grebstein was closed to the public at last night's meeting of the FSU Chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

The cahpter made no statements to the effect that it would pass any resolution on the Grebstein issue but that it would only familiarize itself with the case. The chapter did not say why it was closing the meeting to the public, only that it was for faculty members only.

Discussed earlier at the meeting was the final conclusion of the University Self Study report on the goals of FSU. Dr. Hugh Stickler, chairman of the study, told members of the faculty that the study had taken 20 months to prepare and that the final volume, "Toward a Distinguished University," contained 132 recommendations for the university to pursue in its quest for excellence.

In the midst of the academic freedom issue, the beginning statement of the final volume for the goals of FSU states, "The major purpose of the Florida State University is to establish an intellectual climate in which students develop respect for truth and excitement in discovery."

Continuing, the report added, "If the University is to attract properly prepared students who are determined to profit from their education, it must retain a superior teaching faculty who are themselves engaged in original research and creative work.

"Therefore, the University should continue to develop as a research and fine arts center and extend its program of public information and service throughout the state."

Dr. Stickler said the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities would be on campus next week to evaluate the self-study and to give its approval or disapproval of the recommendations for a better FSU. Stickler said that the study is necessary for accreditation of the University every ten years.

Peace Corpsman Visits FSU, Outlines Prospective Program

David M. Schimmel, operations officer of the West African desk for the Peace Corp, will visit FSU on Thursday and Friday to outline a prospective program to volunteers and faculty members.

Schimmel, a graduate of Duke University and Yale Law School, has said he is particularly interested in talking with senior students who might qualify for Peace Corps work in nearly every skill area. Teachers of all subjects at all levels are especially needed.

More than 4,000 volunteers are already at work or in training for projects in Africa, Asia and Latin America. Plans call for nearly 10,000 volunteers to be at work in more than 40 countries by the end of next year, Schimmel said.

A major emphasis during the next year will be in community development projects in Latin America. These programs call for volunteers with farm backgrounds, nurses, social workers, teachers, health workers, engineers, and physical education workers, among others.

Practical experience in many of these areas is an essential as formal training, the official said. But liberal arts graduates may qualify for many planned projects. A critical need is for teachers of math and science, Schimmel emphasized.

Volunteers must be American citizens with no dependents under 18, and must receive two to three months of intensive training at an American college or university in the customs, history culture and language of the host country. Refresher courses are given in the skills that the volunteers will use on the job. Additional training is generally given at the Peace Corps' training camps in Puerto Rico.

Volunteers serve for two years and receive a living allowance to cover housing, food, clothing and other expenses, plus a termination payment of $75 for each month of service.

Married couples are eligible if both qualify for the same project and have no dependents under 18.

Law Meeting Set Thursday

All students interested in law school may attend a special meeting on Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Education Bldg. Lecture Hall.

A faculty member of the University of Florida Law School will speak on the study of law and pre-legal education, and officers of the UF Pre-Law Club will be present to assist FSU students with organizing such a group here if there is sufficient interest.

Back Faculty

REPRINTED FROM THE "ST. PETERSBURG TIMES," MONDAY, NOVEMBER 5.

University and college professors ordinarily are quiet folk, seldom making headlines -- especially on controversial matters.

This makes particularly significant and admirable the Florida State University Faculty Senate's uncompromising denunciation of the recent State Board of Control directive to the state university system, and of the Johns Legislative Committee which stampeded the Board into issuing its ill-advised set of orders.

THE FACULTY SENATE consists of 75 professors, chosen by their fellows, to serve as the spokesmen and guidance committee for the body which is the heart of any university -- its instructional staff. Since no institution of learning is any better or any stronger than its faculty, what this group says is of vital importance to everyone concerned with the quality of Florida's universities.

It has been the new University of South Florida across the Bay, where the Johns Committe has centered its fire, and where the Board of Control has had the most disruptive effect.

ALREADY IT IS reported that several members of the faculty are seeking posts outside Florida for next year, and it has been freely predicted that no professor of stature is likely to consider a post on the Temple Terrace campus under present conditions.

The strong protest from the older institution of Tallahassee and an earlier one from the University of Florida faculty members at Gainesville, are signs of a clear and present danger to the entire university system.

The great majority of Floridians, we are certain, are aware of these dangers resulting from the inexcusable performance of the Johns Committee, and the Board of Control's failure to stand up against the pressure of this handful of legislators, and the handful of citizens egging on the legislative inquisitors.

For we are confident that it is only a minute fraction of Floridians who do not realize that this state's intellectual and its economic future depend upon a university system in which academic freedom is a living, dynamic reality -- in which nonconformits like Socrates, Galileo, Newton or Einstein would be free to pursue and teach the truth as they perceived it.

IF THIS STATE hopes to flourish, to become a leader scientific endeavor, in the political arts, in industrial achievement, in pursuits of the mind and of machine, we cannot tolerate this harassment of "dedicated men in the field of education, as St. Petersburg's Baya Harrison, chairman of the Board of Control, has called them.

Academic freedom, as we have remarked before, is a freedom of the people, freedom to have available to them the fullest and richest fruits of knowledge and learning. And it is the people of Florida with who the choice lies -- to stand behind the faculties of their universities in their demand for this freedom, or to have the mediocrity of conformism clamped upon our campuses by reactionary fanatics and uninformed politicians.

Adventure Of The Lost Paycheck

The other day was payday. Once every 30 days is payday. We wait all month for payday.

So, at the end of the month, I went downstairs, in the building where I work, to pick up my paycheck at the main desk. Even ducked out of work a few minutes early, so to have time to cash it before five.

"Hello," I said to the girl at the desk. "May I have my paycheck?" "Nope," she said. Or a reasonable facsimile. "Your check doesn't come here." "Well then, where, pray tell, does it come," I asked noticing the time creep by. "We have no idea," she replied, smiling.

I decided the problem might be one merely of administrative lag against scientific advancement. Maybe the check had come to the building our labs were in. I dashed out of our building, across the grassy plain and on to Conradi.

"Hello," I announced. "I've come for the paycheck." Something in my tone must have given away the fact the fact that I wasn't expecting to get it that easily. "Sorry," she said, slowly, a mere seven minutes before five. "Your check goes to the Graduate School." "WHY?" I asked, on my way out, running. [illegible] idea," she said.

Golden Rule Creates Laxity

To the Editor:

I think that TOTAL education is a myth. In future years we might come close to it, but everyone will never be educated.

As for lowering the level of education, why have Florida schools and universities adopted the accelerated and honors programs? Why not do away with them completely and integrate? I am sure that you haven't stopped to consider the great differences. Last year at Lincoln High (negro) only three students scored 300 or better on the Senior Placement test. Let's get these people up to normal Florida standards before we harp on integration. It appears in the past our "Golden Rule" policy of bending the standards to fit the case at hand has created a laxity among students because of social promotions, whether or not deserved in educational institutions. There is no lack of school facilities for the Negro students, only a lack of initiative on their parts to use these facilities to become educated. And--are their loose moral standards forced upon them by the white man?

When you quoted Sartre, you lifted the quotation from context. Do you feel that it is the authorization for the assumption of "The White Man's Burden?" Sartre also says, "There is no human nature, because there is no God to have a conception of it... Man simply is...Man is nothing else but that which HE MAKES OF HIMSELF."

Jennie Murphree won first place in women's on campus residences, with Gilchrist in second place, and Dorman and Reynolds receiving honorable mentions.

Best on-campus men's residence was was Smith Hall. The BSU Student House placed first in non-resident student center decorations, with the Newman club in second place.

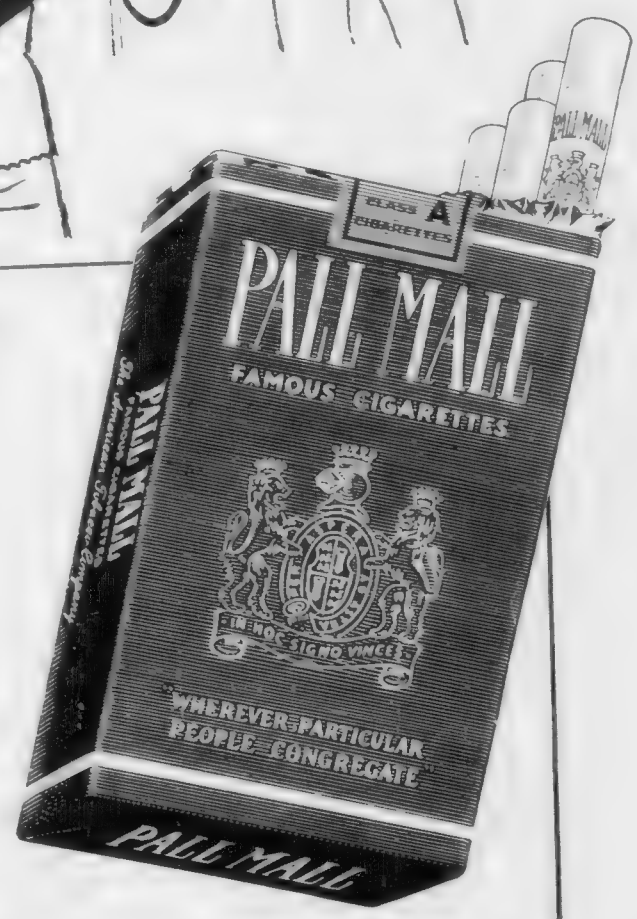
Pall Mall Presents~
GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE



HORN-RIMMED BOOKSTACKER

CAMPUS TYPE III

The Bookstacker serves the cause of classical literature in various ways. Perhaps the least of these is in keeping the rows of books properly aligned and the jackets free of dust.

Her most important contribution is in improving the environment for study, enhancing the halls of learning with her own classical form. Many a college man has discovered a previously unfelt craving for knowledge simply because he received his copy of Homer from the hand of a deep-breathing redhead who sighed, "I think Homer is the most!" Yes, it pays to take a good look at the classics now and then.

Among cigarettes, Pall Mall is a classic—famous length, fine tobacco . . . no flat "filtered-out" flavor, no dry "smoked-out" taste. Try Pall Mall and see!

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

Tribes To Face Murderers' Row

Two facts remain indisputable at this stage of the football season--one, that Florida State now has its best football team ever and two, it will face a murderers' row during the last leg of 1962.

In Georgia Tech, Florida, and Auburn the Seminoles will be fighting for their lives all the way, make no doubts about that. On top of everything, the remaining games are all on the road.

Seemingly, the Tribes should throw their hands into the air and ask, "What good is there in trying? We should only strive for respectable finishes." After being defeated, 7-0, by Houston, several Seminole chins are bobbing gently on the floor, but perhaps the future is not so dim.

Consider the fact that, although we will be playing for the rest of the year a tougher schedule than either Tech, Florida, or Auburn, each of the three opponents has met defeats and upsets. The Yellowjackets were upset by Auburn, but Tech swamped Florida; Florida was beaten by Tech, but swamped by Auburn; Auburn, to repeat defeated Tech.

So, none of the enemies is invulnerable.

If our chins are still resting on the floor, let's just review the FSU season. FSU has won four games, against the Citadel (49-0), Furman (42-0), Georgia (18-0), and Virginia Tech (20-7). Only one of the four scored a touchdown.

Then there was the 0-0 tie with favored Kentucky. We call that a "moral victory"--the same name that we give to the 7-6 victory by the Miami Hurricanes.

To Seminole fans, there remains but one defeat...7-0 to Houston.

Therefore, Florida State is not to be taken lightly, even by powers such as Tech and Auburn.

Bobby Dodd, coach of Georgia Tech, said recently, "Two years ago, we scheduled FSU to have a letup before Alabama, but now we'd just as soon play any team in the Southeastern Conference."

This is reminescent of Miami's Coach Andy Gustafson, who said "on the way to the win window," "Florida State was the toughest team we've faced this year."

Assistant Coach Jim Whatley of Georgia told the Tallahassee quarterback club recently that the SEC should cater to Florida State--and not FSU to the SEC. This shows some respect.

The VPI Coach Jerry Claiborne, who had just held Army to a 20-12 win before meeting FSU, said that the Seminoles were the best team that the Gobblers had played, including Paul Dietzel's Army. That same week an Associated Press article began, "Army remains the top team in the East over such schools as...etc."

Just as FSU expects a tough finish, none of its opponents is going to make the mistake of under-rating the Seminoles. Will Auburn? Highly unlikely, since one Florida school capitalized on errors and defeated it.

Will Florida? Nope. It seems that the Gators are even up for the FSU game. Former Flambeau assistant sports editor Vic Comolli (now a law student) reports, "All indications point to a great game here Nov. 17. It seems that for the first time ever the Gators want to beat the Seminoles, and beat them badly. Over the radio, I heard a football player say before the Auburn game that they would rather beat FSU and Miami than any one else on their schedule."

So, there it is. Three toughies, and possibly a bleak future. Notice we said possibly, because looking back over the Seminoles performances in recent years, one thing stands out:

When the Tribes want to win a game, practically nobody, except possibly the Green Bay Packers, can defeat them. Likewise, we could point out that when the Seminoles don't care too much, nearly any team can knock them off.

Calhoun Given Savage Award By Peterson

Defensive quarterback Charlie Calhoun has been named Mr. Savage by the Seminole coaching staff for his performance in the 7-0 loss to the University of Houston Saturday.

Coaches reported that the Renegade signal-caller's punting and tackling were among the few individual Seminole high spots in the contest.

Calhoun finished second in tackling, behind captain Gene McDowell. He downed nine men by himself and helped floor four others. He is also third in season tackles, behind McDowell and guard Dick Hermann respectively. He has a season total of 31 tackles and 16 assists.

Fund Projects Need Approval

All student organizations or groups planning fund raising activities of any type are required to get such projects approved by the Student Government Funds Committee.

This requirement is set by University regulations and by Student Body statutes.

Frank Milwee, secretary of finance, has reported that several campus groups have violated this regulation and may be subject to punitive action.

The rules apply to social and honorary fraternities, departmental organizations, scholarship houses, and religious groups when the sale of tickets is involved.

Information and necessary forms concerning compliance with these regulations may be obtained at room 214 Longmire.

On Academic Freedom

AAUP Blasts Out At BOC Directive

In a resolution adopted Monday night in closed meeting, the FSU chapter of the American Association of University Professors decided, "that the attention of the visiting committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools should be called to the recent directives of the Board of Control as they impinge on the issue of academic freedom in the Florida Universities."

Dr. Francis R. Allen, head of the group, said the faculty members wished to demonstrate their agreement, that the accrediting team should be aware of the BOC directives and take them under consideration.

He expressed the opinion of the AAUP, that they are concerned with the broader aspects of the directive, as it will affect all state universities.

The committee of the SACSS will be on campus Nov. 11 through 14. Whether the directives of the Board of Control could in any way affect the accreditation status of FSU has been under controversy.

A state meeting of the AAUP will be held in St. Petersburg on Saturday. Dr. Allen said he thought it "inconceivable" that the issue would not come up for discussion at that time. He added that any actin or resolution taken by the AAUP at that time would depend upon the course set by that Board of Control Friday as it meets in Jacksonville.

Liberal Forum

Norman Thomas Speaks Friday

By TED HARVEY
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Will Man Survive?" is the question Norman M. Thomas brings to FSU this week.

The noted political leader, sponsored by Liberal Forum, will speak at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Opperman Music Hall.

Thomas' speech will deal primarily with the problems of war, technology, and man's existence in the space age, as viewed by socialism. This particular aspect of socialist thought has been set forth in his book, "Appeal to the Nations."

Here is presented the problem of maintaining a state of peace in an era of great tension, and great power of destruction in the hands of men.

Man not only holds thermonuclear destruction at his fingertips, but even more destructive powers may yet be developed by technology.

The basis for aggression, he stated in the book, lies greatly in insecurity of nations and peoples, rivalries between nations, and social unrest throughout the entire world.

Thomas envisions a program of world-wide disarmament, attacking the problem at its base. To keep all nations through cooperation and an international police force.

Thus his objective is peace with its benefits, and the opportunity to build a higher civilization, Thomas' work asserted.

Thomas has been the head of the Socialist Party of the United States since 1924, and was Socialist candidate for President in six consecutive elections. Regarded as the outstanding liberal of the time, he is one of the leading figures of American political thought.

As a political writer and speaker, he has earned the designation of some admirers "champion of disarmament" and "enemy of poverty."

...plot is a take-off on the Arabian Night's Tales, complete with all the mystery, magic, wealth, and harem girls that one imagines when one thinks of the Arabian Nights.

In musicals like "The King and I" and "South Pacific" a chorus in which each person assumes an individual part and maintains that characterization throughout the production, is typical.

In "Kismet," however, one acter might be called upon to play the part of a beggar, a merchant, a herald, and a wedding guest. This is a much more direct demand on the abilities of the actors and actresses involved in the play, for they must give each character a definite personality.

The music for "Kismet" is being provided by the Opera Chamber Orchestra, which is composed of thirty people directed by Richard Collins.

The lyrics and music are based on the compositions of Alexander Borodin. Borodin was a composer during the Romantic Era in Russia (the late 19th century.) At this time, Russian music was largely affected by the Germanic movement, and was mostly copied from this.

Borodin was one of the "Russain Five" who took their inspiration from the countryside and the people. The result was a composition of the wildly flamboyant music of the Russian peasants, the gentle and violent melodies that so characterized their native land.

MUSIC FOR "KISMET"

Robert Wright and George Forrest were reminded of the Arabian Nights by this music and wrote the rhythm, harmony and lyrics to accompany a story, "Kismet," which was destined to become a smash hit on Broadway and a successful boxoffice attraction. The selections that are most famous are "This Is My Beloved," taken from D Major String Quartet; "Not Since Nievena," "He's In Love," and "Stranger in Paradise" from the "Polevetsian Dances;" "Night of My Nights" from "Piano Serenade;" and "Fate" from "Symphony."

The dances were choreographed by Theatre Dance members Robin Leeger, Annette Williams, Suzanne Lingo, Judy Riddle and Miss Nellie-Bond Dickinson, under the direction of Miss Holly Chapman.

"Kismet" begins tomorrow night at 8:15. Tickets are on sale in the Westcott Ticket Office, at $2 for non-students and $1 for students.

This love scene between the Caliph (in disguise), played by James Haygood of Atlanta, and the poet's daughter, Marsinah, played by Bobbie Lou Kaminis of Tampa, occurs in the garden in "Kismet," which will be produced Thursday and Friday nights.

Letter From Abroad

The Students' Representative Council of Monash University, Victoria, Australia, sent a statement to "major publications throughout the United States of America."

"Through the medium of the Australian Press, we have received reports describing the recent events concerning the attempted exclusion of Negro student James Meredith from the University of Mississippi. The Students' Representative Council of Monash, University Victoria, deplores the fact that students of the University of Mississippi have actively participated in upholding the racialist policies of segregationist, Gov. Barnett.

"We consider that the actions of these students constitute a flagrant breach not only of the principles of liberty and equality as set out in the Declaration of Independence but are a regression towards the worst type of fascist behavior.

"Inevitably the 'incidents' of the South will have damaging effects on American relationships with the coloured peoples of the world to the detriment of official US policy which has endeavoured to embrace and befriend all the races of the free world, no matter what their clour or creed.

"This behavior on the part of the Mississippi students is all the more deplorable in that educated people have actively expressed a primitive racial intolerance. The University educated should have sufficient foresight to be social reformers, not advocates of a partisan policy which is the antithesis of democracy."

In answer to this indictment from the Australian students, we offer an excerpt from an editorial in the Oct. 31 edition of the Ole Miss student newspaper:

"While the rest of the United States is concerned with Berlin, Cuba, and India, some antagonists on the Ole Miss campus persist in keeping their University in the headlines with bad publicity. In a so-called 'pep rally atmosphere' these students yell obscene remarks and hurl fire-crackers, eggs, and other objects at their fellow countrymen who were sent here to protect the University of Mississippi. This civil savagery is certainly not admirable to supposedly intelligent people.

"Are not these dissenting students aware of the ill-tasted, publicity and appearance of barbarism that they are so freely handing out? Are these the 'true southern gentlemen' known for hospitality and gracious living? Are these young men conscious that they have replaced hospitality with hostility for men who saved their University from destruction?"

Will FSU Listen To Thomas ?

A leading American Socialist, Norman Thomas, will speak on campus this Friday night. He is the Socialist Party's perennial candidate (hopelessly unsuccessful each time so far) for the United States Presidency.

When he steps on campus he will have hundreds of people, "broad-minded Americans", with preconceived ideas of "nasty" socialism to greet him. This man will find himself avoided by faculty afraid of Charlie Johns and his ilk, and scathed without [illegible] clouts who equate socialism with [illegible].

What I am deploring is not the intelligent and well based objections he no doubt will encounter, but the biased and misconceived opinions most Americans have of Socialism.

How can Americans rightfully criticize him without full knowledge of socialism, what it is, its good points, its evils, and its accomplishments, without first gaining sufficient knowledge of the situation.

Socialism, in Western Europe, is not the anathema it is in America, in fact it is a highly respected way of thought. Let's look at the facts:

Zinka Milanov Recital Castigated

To the Editor:

I would like to review Mr. Clarke's review of Zinka Milanov's recitals occasionally using some of his own terms.

"[illegible] lieder was evidenced in unrest on the part of some of those members of the audience who expected to hear nothing but opera."

Is audience unrest evidence of ignorance? Does expecting "to hear nothing but opera" preclude prolonged unrest when art songs are introduced? Even if the programs are announced ahead of time in newspapers and program sheets?

I suggest that other alternatives such as: the singer's labored breathing; gross modifications of vowels (e.g. [illegible] to ah), metallic, and throaty tones; inattentiveness on the part of Mr. Kunc; insecurity on climactic phrases; and generally choppy phrasing, might be considered.

Does a more enlightening perception of a concert rest upon absorbing: art songs are "serious compositions rather than just simple ditties" and "the art song is a more strict form than the opera aria and few singers are able to perform both"?

Does the probably difference between a live and a recorded performance argue against any significant change in a singer's skill [illegible] years after their 40th birthday?.. What about recorded live performances? This whole point of comparison, however, is evading and obscuring the real issue of the calibre of the artist's performance today.

Payroll Position Clarified

To Editors:

Because I so strongly feel that articles like the one entitled, "Lost Paycheck" are so uncalled for and tend to cut deeply into the pride and satisfaction of those who try to do a good job to get all concerned paid, I take this opportunity to clarify our position in the Payroll Department.

We all must operate under certain rules and regulations most suited to our duties. In payroll, if a person states they have worked at FSU previously, (as Miss Freedman did), we look up the old records in order to get the correct employee number. We received Miss Freedman's appointment the 16th of the month under the nickname of "Bonnie". After diligent search in previous records we found that none existed for anyone named Bonnie Freedman. Our next move was to call the department issuing the appointment. We were told she spelled her name Frieden. The search started again, no luck. Records for Bonnie not to be found.

Finally, the same office (NOT [illegible]) us she was the only Freedman th honors FSU (there are others records) she admitted was not "Bonnie" at all--[illegible] ly Joyce". This at last enabled u to connect the right person with th proper records.

The mystery solve diately wanted a pay told that the check would be sen to the Graduate School, required procedure by order of t Dean.

We in the Payroll Dep policy, endeavor to aid and ate in anyway possible with versity employees. We feel th Freedman did not make an to understand the situation. Perhap reading this article will help he understanding.

Seminoles Are Rated Second In Florida Football Statistics

While the Florida State Seminoles were drowning in the 7-0 Homecoming loss with the Houston Cougars, the Miami Hurricans were surging ahead in state football statistics by beating Kentucky.

But in every statistical department an FSU player is second.

In total offense, Miami's quarterback, George Mira, had a strong lead with 1,290 yards gained in 225 plays. He has a 5.9 yard average in the seven games.

Eddie Feely of FSU is second with 733 yards, gained in 118 plays. He has an average of 6.2. Warrior quarterback Steve Tensi is fourth in the state with 564 yards and a 5.9 average. He was involved in 96 plays in the seven games.

In rushing, fullback Marion Roberts, who has charged 59 times for 210 yards and a 3.6 average.

Again, Feely and Tensi are second and fourth respectively behind Miami's Mira when the passing statistics are totalled. Mira has complete 86 of 177 times for 10 touchdowns. Feely has hit on 42 of 71 attempts for 583 yards and four TD's. Tensi also has four TD's to his credit having completed 42 of 83 attempts for 540 yards.

Halfback Keith Kinderman of the two-way Chiefs has second place in the state in receiving, while end Don Floyd of FSU is fourth. Kinderman caught 22 times for 336 yards and two touchdowns. He has a 14.0 average. Floyd, also with two touchdowns to his name, has snatched 12 aerials for 214 yards and a 17.8 average.

Renegade quarterback Charlie Calhoun, who was rated Mr. Savage for his agressive play against the Cougars, is second in the state in punting. He has booted the ball 35 times for 1,286 yards and a 36.7.

In the season's accumulative statistics, the Seminoles are leading their opponents in every area except number of punts and punting yardage.

Florida State has rushed for 56 first downs to the oponents' 21. Penalties have given the Tribesmen 10 first downs, while the opponents have only gotten seven.

In yards rushing, the Seminoles are ahead, 1,194 to 789, while they lead, 1,164 to 476 in yards passing. In addition, Coach Bill Peterson's crews have averaged 4.9 yards per play, as compared to the opponents' 3.6 average.

The FSU quarterbacks have been successful with 86 of 157 pass attempts, while the enemy QB's hit on only 41 0f 101.

The three teams have been stingy with the football by refusing to permit but six pass interceptions. (They have stolen 11 themselves.) The Seminoles have lost 9 of 14 fumbles, as compared to the opponents' 10 of 21 losses.

FSU trails in the kicking game, with the opponents having 1,881 yards punting to FSU's 1,344, but the Seminoles lead in punting average. 36.3 to 36.2.

Florida State has a 59 yard lead in yards penalized, having been charged 461 yards to the opponents' 407.

FSU's Dave Fedor Has Been Selected A Warrior Player

Florida State's Dave Fedor, termed the "best basketball player ever to play for the Seminoles," has been named a member of the San Francisco Warriors, the transplanted Philadelphia team.

"I am extremely proud that Dave is among the top 12 players of the Warriors," head Coach Bud Kennedy of FSU said, "he's the first Seminole ever to play for a professional team, and it's a singular honor to Dave."

Kennedy said recent box scores of the Warriors show that Fedor has been playing, "but he understandably has not been scoring as much as he did at Florida State. He had also hurt his arm."

"In the pre-season games," Kennedy said, "Dave was averaging about 15 points per game."

Before Fedor was named as one of two rookies to start for the Warriors this season, Wayne Minshew of the Jacksonville Journal checked with Fedor concerning his progress in the professional ranks.

On Oct. 5, Fedor told Minshew via long distance telephone, "Yes, I've been playing quite a bit, but I've been hit with an injury and probably won't be able to play again for a while. I hurt my wrist in a game the other night. I was running backward, tripped, and tried to break my fall by placing my hand behind me."

"The Warriors have me playing a corner position," said FSU's top performer of a year ago. "They have me working out at that position with a couple of other rookies."

"And I think I have a good chance of making the club, although it's kinda early to say," said the FSU grad. Fedor's statement, "I think I have a good chance of making the club," amounts to near boastfulness, since he is notoriously modest about his ability.

Fedor, who was among the top college percentage shooters in the nation last season, is no stranger to the corner, having cavorted in that vicinity as a Seminole.

His best exhibition performance came against the defending Western Division champ Los Angeles a few nights ago when the lanky sharpshooter hit for 15 points. And he was well guarded by Rudy Larusso, a well-known pro basketball name, Minshew said.

Fedor's comments on pro basketball?

"Pro basketball is much tougher in every way. The defense is better. I find it tough to score.

DAVE FEDOR
. . .first pro from FSU

But, since Fedor is on the same squad with century-scorer Wilt Chamberlain, some of the pressure is taken off Fedor and others.

"Most of the defenses will sag back on Wilt and try to keep him from scoring, and it leaves the rest of us more room," he said.

Chamberlain deeply impressed the FSU alum. "Gee, you should see him. He's really something--unbelievable. It's a lot of fun to play with a guy like that."

While at Florida State, Fedor distinguished himself by tying assistant Coach Hugh Durham's game high of 43 points, and he tallied in the double figures in every game he played. In his senior year, he averaged over 20 points per game.

Furthermore, against the Ohio State Buckeyes, he held the fabulous Jerry Lucas to a mere 11 points. The Auburn Tiger Coach, Joel Eaves, said, "He's a real pro prospect," while the buckeye Mentor, Fred Taylor, said, "He's the finest cornerman we will face all year."

In addition to being named honorable mention All-American, Fedor was chosen Florida State Athlete of the Year for 1961.

Respect For Truth

Self-Study Cites Need For Intellectual Climate

By JIM SMITH
Managing Editor

The final Self-Study Report on the goals of the Florida State University has been completed and includes over 130 resolutions and recommendations toward making FSU a "Distinguished University."

A 13-member visitation committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools will arrive in Tallahassee for a final evaluation of the voluminous self-study which has taken over 20 months to prepare.

The final report states that, "The major purpose of FSU is to establish an intellectual climate in which students develop respect for truth and excitement in discovery." Future goals of FSU include maintaining a standard of scholarship which will attract students, teachers, and research scholars from all parts of the world.

FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

To maintain this purpose, freedom of thought, inquiry, and expression must be fostered and preserved as an unassailable prerogative of the university faculty. The report stated, "A state university is often subjected to pressure that would limit the free expression of view and unhampered investigation into areas disagreeable to highly vocal pressure groups. An institution succumbing to such pressure becomes a mere tool for maintaining the status quo.

"A great university can never abrogate its obligation to develop new ideas, to penetrate new frontiers of knowledge, and to create the kind of challanging intellectual climate which provides the best milieu for orderly growth and change."

One of the major recommetndations includes the extension of the physical plant for a building program costing over $66 million by 1971. Major expansion calls for dormitories for men and women, a new education building, social science building child research laboratory, fine arts building an Institute for Space Biosciences and the development of a science center which includes the relocation of all science facilities to a central area.

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

Also on the building agenda is a new administration building plus renovation for almost all existing buildins, including Westcott, Longmire, Conradi, Science, History, Business and Dodd. The Library is scheduled for two major expansions between now and 1971.

Other recommendations call for the establishment of a university press for the publication of scholarly works and research projects. All departments in the university will be encouraged to participate in research, especially on the graduate level, aimed at creative work.

Plans call for the eventual enlargement of the Library in twice its present size, with an undergraduate division in a separate building aimed at the underclass level.

Student Senate Supports Faculty

Student Senate passed a resolution backing Faculty Senate in their stand against the Board of Control recent policy in a short Senate session.

A resolution establishing a committee to work with the Morrison Food Service was also passed.

In arguing for the adoption of the resolution endorsing the faculty stand, Men's Vice President Gene Brown commented, "The basic purpose of this resolution is to show the Board of Control and especially the Johns Committee that we the Students of Florida State University feel the function of a university should be to teach students how to think--not what to think, to educate--not to indoctrinate."

STUDENT SENATE RESOLUTION 13

WHEREAS the Board of Control is recognized as possessing full authority on matters of general policy regarding our University and

WHEREAS the welfare of the University has always been a constant consideration and a reliable factor in the decisions and action rendered by the Board, but

WHEREAS the Board of Control, in contrast to stated policy, has recently handed down directives which affect and conflict with the academic freedoms so basic to our university and

WHEREAS the faculty senate of Florida State University has unanimously condemned these directives, feeling them a threat to freedom of thought, a deterrent to the acquisition and retention of an eminent faculty, an insult to the motives and abilities of the administration, and a hindrance t free expression and learning, and

WHEREAS a successful intellectual and educational future for our University is dependent upon an academic system characterized by freedom of thought and intellectual pursuit;

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY STUDENT SENATE:

That Student Senate is in full agreement with the attitudes expressed by the Faculty Senate and that we exhibit full confidence that any action they take will be executed in the best interests of the University, faculty, and students.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT:

Student Senate request that the Board of Control re-examine the factors which prompted their recent directives and modify their policy to be in accord with the basic principles of academic freedom and intellectual sovereignty.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members with the initials of the writer following the editorial.

A United Front

Florida State University, students and faculty, are now a firm, united front behind the administration in the current fight to modify Board of Control directives involving teaching materials, selection of professors and students, and investigation of guest speakers.

A Student Senate resolution, written by Vice President Johnny Smith and passed unanimously, minces no words in stating its unequivocal support of the stand taken by the Faculty Senate. It endorsed the faculty condemnation of the BOC directives and termed the policy "a threat to freedom of thought, a deterrent to the acquisition of eminent faculty, an insult to the motives and abilities of the administration, and a hindrance to free expression and learning."

THE STUDENTS ASKED that the Board of Control modify its directives "to be in accord with the basic principles of academic freedom and intellectual sovereignty."

It is totally proper and necessary that both the faculty and students of this University immediately took steps to express strong stands defending academic freedom. Students and faculty, better than anyone else, recognize that freedom of thought is vital to the provess of education. Infringement of this freedom wounds the heart of intellectual curiosity, and students are quick to recognize this.

THE PEOPLE OF the state should take note that students of this university will defend academic freedom vigorously. Parents often have an unfounded fear of college professors and look dubiously at their claims for freedom. But when the faculty is backed wholeheartedly by the future leaders of this state, the stand cannot be ignored.

The injuries this policy will cause must be fully pointed out. Students and faculty have combined to do this graphically.

Special Session Called

Flambeau News Services

Governor Bryant has called a special session of the new Florida Legislature for Friday to again consider legislative apportionment.

The legislature will convene at 11 a.m. Friday at the Capitol Building in Tallahassee.

A brief announcement from the Governor said "The sole and exclusive purpose of this session will be to consider reapportionment of the Florida legislature."

The 46 Senator, 135 Representative plan that came out of an August special session was defeated by voters Tuesday.

Bryant issued no details on what proposals he will make to the special session. He plans to hold a 30 minute news conference today, at which newsmen will seek more details.

The special call went out to the new legislators elected in yesterday's general election, as well as to those who did not have to run.

Four new men took office in the Senate. The rest of the 20 elected yesterday either won new terms or moved over from the House of Representatives.

In the House 28 men will take their seats who were not in office when the 46 Senator, 135 Representative plan was drawn up in August.

The session was called under Article 4, Section 8, of the State Constitution which prohibits the Legislature from taking up anything outside the Governor's call except by a two-thirds majority.

Following defeat of the earlier plan, Bryant commented that Florida still has an obligation to solve the reapportionment problem on "equitable and acceptable terms."

In a speech yesterday at Palatka, the Governor said he wondered "whether it is possible to find a proposal that is acceptable in Hillsborough and Pinellas county that will not draw the enmity of the other counties." Hillsborough, Pinellas and other big urban areas, which are driving for more legislative strength, voted heavily against the 46 Senator, 135 Representative plan.

The Federal Court at Miami, in ordering that the big city voters have a stronger representation, retains jurisdiction in case Florida doesn't come up with an acceptable plan.

The two Miami lawyers who threw Florida's legislative apportionment fight into the Federal Courts, Richard Swann and Peter Sobel, went back before the courst at Miami yesterday with requests.

Swann asked it to act if the Legislature doesn't within a short time; Sobel said the court should proceed to put a plan of its own into effect.

Administration Should Defend, Not Limit

To the Editor:

We can be greatly proud of our faculty's courageous stand in its recent statement. In unanimously deploring the interference of the Legislative Investigating Committee, implemented through the directives of the Board of Control, the faculty attacks the most serious threat to any real university.

The dangers of "governmental interference" are often protested, especially when it threatens the economic hegemony of powerful groups. Where, then is the outraged popular cry of indignation when a governmental agency strikes, not indirectly, but immediately and hard at one of our most crucial freedoms, that of thought itself, [illegible] sanctuaries of thought and intellectual progress?

Have we really lost our respect for the unpopular idea, for differences of opinion, for [illegible] itself? Have we already established a dictatorship of the majority? Certainly if anything is [illegible] with the essential American spirit of freedom, this is it. "Our government (controlled [illegible] in the state) is now committing the one unforgiveable sin in a free society: it is prescribing an orthodoxy." This governmental control, in the name of some undefined "Americanism," is terribly reminiscent of national socialism.

The faculty is the [illegible] university, the first [illegible] not sufficient) element [illegible] distinguished institution. Whether or not the administration, in this crisis, acts on this excellent resolution will determine whether it becomes our inspiring motto, or a contemptible hypocrisy.

I trust that the students of a great university, outside the control of a totalitarian state, will challenge any threat of this magnitude.

Freedom Is Precious Thing

To The Editor:

Not since the Middle Ages has a nation, founded on the principles of freedom of thought and and speech, seen such inquistional "witch hunts" as are now being conducted by the John's Committee. The activities of this small group of narrow-minded (if you'll pardon the expression) "leaders," will have repercussions for years to come.

Anyone familiar with Florida's educational situation can quickly realize that this state is having much trouble in recruiting high quality teachers at every level. Low salary and inadequate facilities were the main problems. Now a new threat emerges-lack of academic freedom. This is a potential problem that could make low salary a minor problem.

In a state where higher education is demanded by increased growth, our state leaders should take all necessary and possible measures to insure continued addition of high quality educators. But they have not done this. Rather they are attempting to drive away the present faculties and prevent further addition to the existing faculties.

To the John's Committee I would say: Call off the witch hunt. Men's personal lives are no business of yours. You have made your political reputation, quit trying to increase it at the cost of our educational program.

The Board of Control I ask to remember, you should direct the university system, not destroy it. It's time you represented the university personnel who are [illegible]. Students like to think for themselves -- not to be forced to accept the ideas of the men who compose the very small John's Committee.

To the faculty members of Florida's universities: Congratulations, it took much courage to place your beliefs before your jobs. Such devotion to the American principle of freedom of speech is a noble act.

To the reader I would point out that freedom is a precious thing. If we allow a small band of men to destroy it we might as well hand over the country to Khrushchev, for in effect the same lack of freedom would be present. Please take time to realize the importance of separation of education from government control, it is an extremely important and necessary separation.

Kismet Reviewed, Claimed Exciting

The first impression one gets when Richard Collins brings down his baton for the overture of Kismet to begin, is excitement. This excitement persists throughout the lavish production.

The viewer is greeted with an evening full of sights and sounds as a well balanced orchestra plays the many songs and dances in the exotic operetta.

If last night's dress rehearsal is anything like tonight's performance, the audience is in for a real treat. The combined talents of the Opera Guild, the University Theatre and the Theatre Dance, has had magical effects on all the cast participating in the giant production. It is on all their faces when performing. One can see the joy registered as the plot unfolds on stage. They don't seem to be involved as if the production were drudgery or work. But rather the excitement of the stage and the lights seems to have grasped the cast with an electrifying hold which generates to the audience.

Bobbie Lou Kaminis, playing the poet's daughter, is featured as one of the main leads in Kismet. Her performance last night during "Bobbles, Bangles, and Beads," was one of the most convincing parts of the musical stage. During this scene she is backed by a goodly sized chorus clad in colorful costumes and all lending to the number which is guaranteed to raise a substantial amount of goose bumps from the most critical theatregoer.

It is easily seen that the plot of Kismet is taken from one of the tales of the Arabian Nights, for it is filled with color, romance, and striking sets, straight out of the far east.

in all aspects the production is well worth seeing. It appears that striking sets, straight our of the far east.

In all aspects the production is well worth seeing. It appears that much time and work has gone into presenting an evening full of good campus entertainment.

The setting of the operetta takes place in old Bagdad with streets loaded with beggers and outstretched palms searching [illegible] ing merchants looking for the next customer so they may sell their day's wares.

The plot is filled with [illegible] amount of mystery, curses and romance all with an eye toward Mecca. Not to be forgotten, of course, is the ever present tradition of dancing girls and harem girls [illegible] for the pleasure of the ruling family. And for a special price, a rich man in Bagdad may have his selection of some of the finest slave girls ever to grace a stage.

'Dixie' Just Section Song

Every year there have been a few letters of protest against the playing of Dixie and the applause as the crowd stands and/or salutes as the Confederate flag is run around the field at the beginning of the second half at the home football games.

This is not a critique. It is a reminder to the students that we are Americans--first, last, and always, --and southerners (or northerners) subordinately. The Civil War is over, but the ideology, it seems, has not changed.

Why, when our National Anthem is played, does the crowd seem restive and impatient? Yet when Dixie drones out more voices are heard singing than when the "Star Spangled Banner" is played. There is nothing wrong with the playing of Dixie as long as the listeners remember that Dixie is just a sectional, traditional song, not our nation's symbol of the spirit of Americanism.

Anthropology Picks Lazarus

Col. William C. Lazarus of Fort Walton Beach has been appointed research associate in FSU's Anthropology Dept. it was announced today.

Lazarus will remain in Fort Walton where he will act as coordinator with FSU site surveys in the West Florida area. He will be available there to answer any questions about the research, according to Dr. Hale G. Smith, head of the FSU Anthropology Dept.

THREE OF GEORGIA TECH'S TOP TACKLES

FSU HAS PRIDE

Only Hurts When We Laugh: Let's Drop Homecoming

It only hurts when we laugh, Coach Bill Peterson might say, as the FSU Publicity Office tells that the grid mentor is considering a suggestion by last year's Smoke Signals.

Peterson said, "A Florida State team hasn't so much as scored a point in the past four Homecoming games here. I'm going to make a proposal to Vaughn Mancha, our athletic director.

"Next year, we won't schedule a Homecoming game. But the first time we win a home game, we'll have a guy in the press box announce over the public address system:

"'Ladies and gentlemen, this has been the annual Homecoming game.'

"Then the pressure is off for the rest of the year."

He says, "In the last few years, we have gotten off to a good start, lost our Homecoming game, and then really hit the skids. And I've about run out of ideas on how to get our men ready for a game.

"We've worked them hard, we've taken it easy, we've warned them about the up-coming game, we've not mentioned it. Last week, I thought they were showing signs of dragging after six tough weekends, so we let them take it easy.

"Trouble was, they kept on taking it easy when Saturday came."

Florida State's upcoming opponent, the Georgia Tech squad, is not taking it easy, despite FSU's 7-0 loss to Houston.

Head Coach Bobby Dodd of the Yellowjackets told reporters, "Regardless of record, this game is going to be hard to get up for. We were up for Duke and probable played our best game of the season to beat them."

Having already stated that he would just as soon play any team in the Southeastern Conference as face Alabama, Dodd said the FSU game is not just a layout.

"We can't help but be aware of the Alabama game in two weeks... not many teams can get up for every game and it will be very tough to rise up to expectations against FSU, though we all know from studying the films how good they are."

"Until the Houston game," he continued, "FSU had outplayed everybody on its schedule, including Miami, Kentucky, and Georgia. They have a very sound team, a good passing game, excellent defense, and a fine punter in Charlie Calhoun."

He also told reprters the Seminoles were "a very hard hitting team, well coached in fundamentals. . . and a team with pride in themselves."

Dodd says, "That last factor.. often beats folks."

SNYDER SWITCHED

Only a few swithches have been made in the lineups either because of the game film reports or injuries.

Junior fullback Dave Snyder moves to the starting two-way Chiefs unit, replacing junior Marion Roberts. Roberts, who has gained only 34 yards in 19 carries during the last three games, led the Tribes during most of the season. The Ocilla, Ga., gridder will replace Snyder on the defensive Renegades.

Seminole Shorts

Jackets Have 2 Best Guards In Conference

Georgia Tech probably has the two best guards in the Southeastern Conference in Rufus Guthrie and Dave Watson. Watson was given a strong preseason publicity buildup as a potential All-American, but Githrie has done better in the Jackets' five wins and two defeats. "Now," smile Yellowjacket officials, "we're going to have to swing some of the publicity to Guthrie."

SEC Universities Need Florida State In The Conference

Several people in the Southeast have been echoing Florida State's Athletic Department statements that, "The Seminoles ought to be in the Southeastern Conference."

Assuming that the Tribesmen were now in the grid loop, FSU would be ranked sixth this week.

Some of the people who have been hinting for the SEC to admit FSU are Vaughn Mancha et al. in the FSU Athletic Department; Bill McGrotha, local sports writer; various Flambeau writers through recent years; football players, etc.

This season, there have been hints from assistant Coach Jim Whatley of the University of Georgia, Athletic Director Wally Butts of Georgia, Bob Phillips, a Birmingham sports writer, plus others.

Whatley told the Tallahassee Quarterback Club six reasons why the SEC should ask FSU into the conference. The reasons include:

FSU would provide a better balanced league; FSU has better facilities than half of the SEC colleges; FSU has a larger student body than more than half of the SEC schools; FSU's present team would improve the calibre of the conference; the guarantees that FSU gives SEC teams for playing in Tallahassee equals or excells the guarantees that more than half of the SEC schools give each other; and the Seminoles have a better all-around sports program than eight SEC schools.

At the halftime of the Georgia-FSU game, former Georgia Coach Wally Butts said approximately the same thing.

Many grid observers have been publically saying that the SEC is a sick, sick conference, which could be helped by admitting centrally-located Florida State University.

Three of the sicker schools in the conference are Tulane, Vanderbilt, and Georgia. Tulane's Coach, Art Guepe recently resigned because of the poor showing of the school. This has caused comments that Vanderbilt is thinking of leaving the conference, thus leaving an opening for FSU or another school.

The Vandy officials have denied any intention of withdrawing from the conference however, thus ... ening the hopes of FSU and o... including Memphis State.

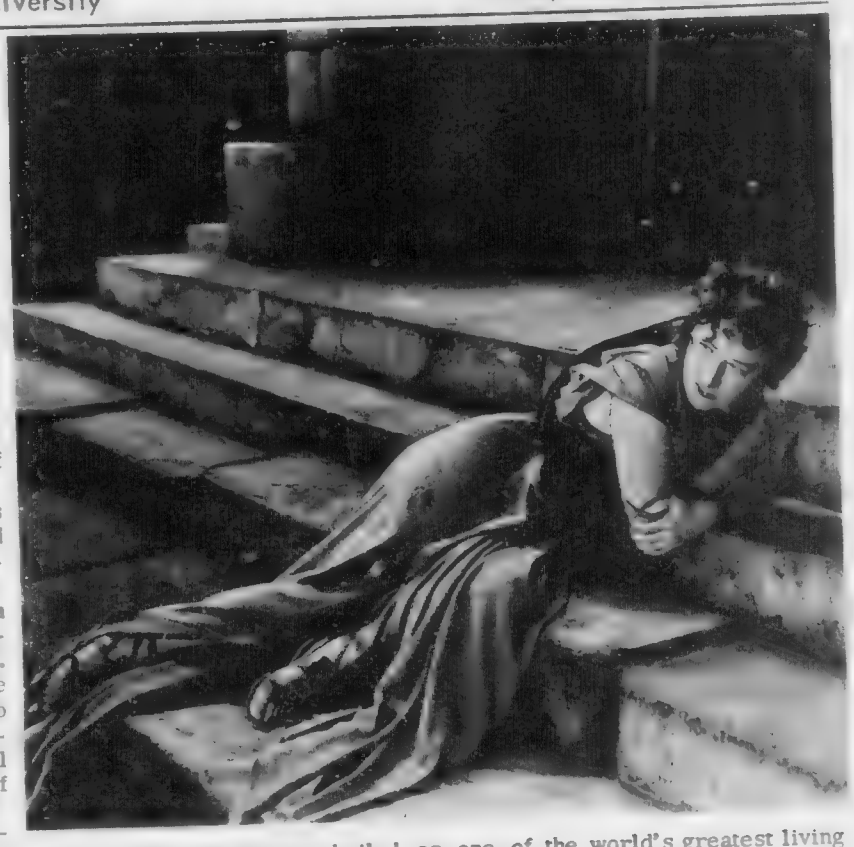
Flory Tells Of Maine Writers

"Maine Memories" will be the topic of Dr. Claude Flory's talk at the English Coffee Hour in Westminster House today at 4 p.m. The weekly social-literary hour is open to the public.



Dr. Flory will talk on the literary figures who have lived in the Maine region and have represented the area in their works.

Such local color writers as Harriet Beecher Stowe, Sara Horne Jewett, and Mary Ellen Chase, who wrote novels and short stories, and poets Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Edwin Arlington Robinson and Robert P.T Coffin will be discussed.

Maine also influences literature through summer theatres. The oldest summer theatre in the United States, in operation for 62 years, is located at Lakewood, Maine.

Many great American actors and actresses have performed in these theatres, and playwrights such as Eugene O'Neill have been summer visitors to the Pine Tree State.

Dr. Flory spent the summer of 1936 with O'Neill at adjoining lakes at the Belgrade Chain of Lakes in Maine.

Judith Anderson Portrays Macbeth, Medea Scenes

Dame Judith Anderson, one of the foremost actresses of the American stage, will be presented Monday and Tuesday nights in Westcott Auditorium by the Artist Series.

She will present each night, beginning at 8:30 p.m., two roles, "Lady Macbeth" and "Medea '62," which have have won her three television Emmy awards for acting.

"Medea," from a play based on the classical Greek tragedy of the same name by Euripedes, was written by the late Robinson Jeffers especially for Dame Judith. The poet's last theatre attendance was to see her performance in this drama, at the Wharf Theatre and Opera House in Monterey, Calif.

Critic Brooks Atkinson has described her in this play as an actress "who breathed immortal fire into the role."

Dame Judith first caught the public eye in "Cobra." Her first appearance as a classical actress was in Sir John Gielgud's "Hamlet," followed by the role of "Lady Macbeth."

Among the honors she has received was her knighthood by Queen Elizabeth II as a Dame Commander of the British Empire in 1960.

WILLIAM ROERICK

LILYAN CHAUVIN

Leading man in the FSU Artist Series performance is William Roerick, who first played with Judith Anderson in the Gielgud version of "Hamlet." His most recent television role has been as Colonel Adams in "Clear Horizons."

FLAMBEAU NEWS SERVICES

TALLAHASSEE-- The president of Bowling Green, Ohio University, Dr. Ralph W. McDonald, a nationally known consultant in higher education, has been named to head Florida's task force study of space education needs.

Dr. McDonald will direct the work of six other educators in science fields. The study was asked by Governor Farris Bryant and will be financed by $100,000 from private sources.

The appointment was announced by Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, executive director of the State Board of Control.

McDonald said: "I consider this to be one of the most significant studies in higher education going on in the United States at the present time, if not the most significant."

He said Florida is one of the major centers of space activity in the country and is expected to become a center of industry related to space.

Six other members of the committee are:

Dr. H. Guyford Stever, head of Mechanical and Aeronautical Engineering at Massachussets Institute of Technology and Chief Adviser to the Air Force on matters relating to missiles and space.

Dr. Lyman Spitzer, Chairman of the Astronomy Department of Princeton University.

Dr. Lewellyn Boelter, Dean of Engineering at the University of California at Los Angeles

TALLAHASSEE -- Governor Bryant says he hasn't heard from members of the Legislature about his sudden call for a special session but he admits with a grin that he has heard from the wives of some of the lawmakers.

Bryant said, "They don't want their vacations after the campaigning they have just gone through interrupted, and I don't blame them."

The special session call was issued late Wednesday. It caught the House of Representatives chamber in the middle of renovations. The Chief Clerk's office is being completely rebuilt and expanded, and the work is far from complete. But the staff is moving back in anyway.

The state education department had borrowed some Legislative space and these employees found themselves given the hurried heave-ho. Even the house chamber's electric voting machine was out of whack. It has to be re-wired for the new lawmakers coming in now, and this cannot be completed by today.

TALLAHASSEE-- A committee to define academic freedom for University professors probably will be named by the Board of Control at a special meeting today.

NEW YORK-- The body of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was taken to Hyde Park, New York, where funeral services will be held on Saturdav.

WASHINGTON-- The US Defense Department says its aerial pictures indicate that all medium and intermediate range missiles known to be in Cuba have been dismantled. And the Soviet Union reportedly has notified the US that all the rockets will be out of Cuba by Monday.

Nevertheless, the United States is going to seek more confirmation within the next 24 hours.

Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester says Navy ships will pull up alongside Soviet ships for close-up observation. He says it is understood the Soviet ships will cooperate.

Three Russian vessels are steaming away from Cuba, and a Pentagon spokesman indicates the first contacts may be made around daybreak today. Three other ships are preparing to leave Havana.

A Pentagon spokesman does not rule out the possibility the vessels might be boarded.

NEW YORK-- In New York, informed sources say the Soviet Union has told the United States there will be no need for inspection of outbound ships after Monday, because all the missiles will have left Cuba. This was taken to mean that Soviet authorities might object to inspection of departing vessels after Monday.

They stressed, however, that Russia did not make clear whether it was setting Monday as a deadline for ending such inspections.

The report came as US Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Kuznetsov to consider fool-proof checks on the removal of all offensive weapons from Cuba. It was their second meeting in three days.

NEW DELHI-- Chinese Communists have launched new probing attacks along the Indian border, the Indians believe the attacks may be the prelude to a new Red offensive.

With Freedom, Responsibility

We have heard much in recent days about the Board of Control, the Johns Committee, and academic freedom. The Faculty Senate has passed a resolution criticizing the Board of Control, and Student Senate has predictably followed suit. Flowery rhetoric has filled the letters columns of the Flambeau, and one student made the absurd statement that "Not since the Middle Ages has a nation, founded on the principles of freedom of thought and and (sic) speech seen such inquisitional "witch hunts" as are now being conducted by the Johns Committee."

Certainly no one will question the right of a faculty member to freedom of thought and intellectual pursuit, as the Student Senate resolution states, and certainly no one believes that the function of a University is to teach a student what to think, but it seems to me that two major points are being overlooked in all the sound and fury of righteous indignation.

In the first place, no one I have talked to has in his possession all the facts concerning the recent removal of a USF Faculty member. The outraged cries by the students, at least, seem to be some sort of a reflex action taken before all the facts are known, and before time has been taken for sober reflection. But then, this is a characteristic of the Student Senate... to go off half-cocked on important issues, and take forever on details. One can only wish that the reverse were true, and that the facts will eventually bear out the hasty resolution which reflects upon all students.

But by far the most important point to be made is that with academic freedom, there goes academic responsibility. While faculty [illegible] right to expect they will not be [illegible] harassed, so have the people of the State the right to expect that faculty members will [illegible] positions to indoctrinate the students they teach and do truly make them think.

Unfortunately, we are all human, and faculty members, as well as members of the Johns Committee make mistakes. In the twelve years I have been in college, I have witnessed, or heard of, many instances in which students have been denied academic freedom by members of faculties... instances in which a serious attempt was made to indoctrinate students into a particul[illegible] Instances in which students have be[illegible] class, or have had their grades lower[illegible] their failure to accept a professor's [illegible] in which a professor has strayed far [illegible] to make unwarranted and scurrilous attac[illegible] ideas which to him are unpopular. [illegible] cases where professors have passed off as true facts statements which were false.

Yes, the faculties of colleges shoul[illegible] demic freedom. But no University ca[illegible] great unless the student body has ca[illegible] dom too. Let us hope that all concer[illegible] problem, students, faculty and [illegible] will keep the problem in perspective [illegible] freedom apply to all.

A Day For Remembering

To The Editor:

The battle fields are marked by [illegible] teries dotted by plain white crosses. Once again the children play in the fields of Normandy, the sea gulls glide around Iwo Jima, and North Korean peasants till the soil on Heart Break Ridge. The men who fought at these sites consecrated them dear, barren and desolate. Many never went back or lived long enough to see how beautiful these places could be when touched by the spring of peace.

November 11 is Veteran's Day. It should be a day when men are remembered, both the living and the dead. We should pay tribute to the men who left families or had to foresake the gay life of college and fraternities for the regimented life of platoons and squads. We should remember the boys who enlisted at eighteen and had to spend their nineteenth birthday in a P.O.W. camp. This is what should be remembered.

History will remember the battles, let us remember the men who fought them.

On The Relativity Of Liberalism

By TIM CARR

"All you liberals seem to be opposed to states' right," an English professor in a small Tennessee college once told me. "Yet the same man you respect and worship, Thomas Jefferson, was as staunch a supporter of states' rights as any Southern governor of today."

On the surface, that professor seems to be right. Yet, there is a serious flaw in his logic. True, Jefferson was a great liberal. So were the men who forced King John to sign the Magna Carta. Yet today no liberals (and not even John Birchers) advocate a return to constitutional monarchy. This may seem an extreme example. But let's look at some others.

The 1954 Supreme Court desegration decision was loudly declaimed as reversing the separate-but-equal decision half a century earlier. In fact, the 1954 decision was merely an extension of the former judgment. The earlier litigation was not based upon whether facilities should be separate, but whether they should be equal. The judgment was that they had to be equal. There was nearly as much uproar over the "dangerous liberalism" of the Supreme Court then as there was in 1954. That "dangerous liberalism" of five decades ago is now standard practice among even those who boast of their conservatism. For the past ten years, Southern politicians have been very proud of the equal facilties which they have provided the Negro, especially in school buildings.

Look back in history and find movements which were dangerously radical in their time. Almost invariably they will have become commonplace--some have even become reactionary. With two notable exceptions, of course--the French Revolution and the Communist Revolution, both of which adhered to philosophies which were and are still dangerous.

The American way of life was made possible by a few men who had the courage to fight for what they thought was right. In the beginning of their activities, they had few supporters and many enemies. Even when the revolution had become fait accompli barely a majority of the new Americans supported it.

History hasn't stop[illegible] things which are liberal, [illegible] dangerous today will [illegible] come old hat. Look at [illegible] hower, undisputedly a conservative expanded Social Securi[illegible] which twenty years before was viewed by some as a Communist plot [illegible] overthrow the world.

A man must be able to maintain political equilibrium in an ever-changing world. To do that he must be able to ride the crest of history. He will find himself faced with what seem to be inconsistencies. But actually, they are not. The star[illegible] matter is the one who faces the [illegible] sistencies: his philosophy may have been perfectly valid a century ago, but times have changed. Emerson said, "A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of small minds."

Injuns Battle Engineers; Pete Seeks Win Season

Florida State's grim and determined Seminoles try to get off the floor and salvage a sagging season here Saturday afternoon -- and they've only picked heavyweight Georgia Tech to come back against.

FSU and Tech will tangle at 2 p.m. in Grant Field in Atlanta. Florida State (4-2-1) has never beaten Georgia Tech (5-2) in three previous meetings, the last being a 17-3 Tech victory in 1958.

A grim atmosphere has prevailed all week on the FSU practice field following a disappointing 7-0 loss to two-touchdown underdog Houston last weekend in Tallahassee. Up to that point, FSU--with a couple of breaks--might have been unbeaten in six starts. It was looking like the most successful season since the independent Seminoles took up big-time football nine years ago.

But Houston wrecked the FSU homecoming on a rainy Saturday, and now the Seminoles must play Georgia Tech, Florida and Auburn on the road to finish the year. Coach Bill Peterson has been noticeably "disconcerted."

"After the Kentucky and Miami games (FSU tied Kentucky 0-0 and lost a 7-6 decision to Miami) I didn't feel so badly," says Peterson, "because we felt we had an excellent chance to win both of them. But Houston just plain out-played us, and there was never any doubt about it.

"These men have shown me a lot of pride before, and believe me they're going to have to dig deep now and find some more of it."

Billy Lothridge, a 184-pound junior from Gainesville, Ga., is the Tech quarterback whom Dodd calls the "best I've ever coached". Lothridge leads the SEC in passing yardage and total offense. He kicks off, punts and boots extra points--and as a result has had a hand or foot in 99 of Tech's 143 points.

FSU, then, has devoted much of its practice time this week to defensing Lothridge. "You've got to stop him to stop Tech," says Peterson.

The Seminoles will have one new man on the starting Chiefs unit: Junior Fullback Dave Snyder of Jacksonville. Snyder is swapping places with Junior Marion Roberts, who moved to the defensive R unit.

WHAT WOOD BE

Florida Wins Fifth Tilt, Tide Floods Hurricanes

By JOHN WOOD
Assistant Sports Editor

Last week in collegiate football, everybody and his brother were upset, causing most predictors to fall off the apple cart. My prognastications last week were correct on 12-of-22 attempts for a .543 average.

What Wood Be has dropped from .696 to a season tally of .647. Here's wishing that everyone would settle down and play like they ought to, including the Seminoles.

Here's the way things stack up:

Florida over Georgia and Ray Graves gets a winning season.

Houston picks on little Tulsa this week--and wins.

Illinois, its belly-full of losing, will get its second win, over Michigan.

LSU's Bengals rebound over Horned Frogs of TCU.

Minnesota over Iowa the upset victor over Ohio State.

Mississippi over Chattanooga. (Then there was the guy at Ole Miss who thought the musical "Damn Yankees" had something to do with U.S. Marshalls at Julliard.)

Missouri, fresh from a victory over strong Nebraska, will stop Colorado.

Notre Dame is a little stronger than Pittsburgh.

Arkansas beats Rice.

Navy practices for Army by beating Syracuse.

Tennessee Volunteers hand Tulane its seventh defeat.

Seminole Shorts

In the three previous encounters, the Georgia Tech Yellowjackets have defeated the Florida State Seminoles each time. In 1952, the Techmen prevailed, 30-0. In 1955, the Engineers came through, 34-0. In 1957, the year that FSU played in the Bluegrass Bowl and finished with a 7-3 mark, Bobby Dodd's crew won, 17-3.

Georgia Tech quarterback Billy Lothridge is easily the biggest one-man show in the Southeastern Conference. Of the 143 points that Tech has scored, Lothridge has tallied 99 markers on his kicking, passing, or running. He is the leading rusher and total offensive runner in the SEC, and he has hurled [illegible] 5 yards.

Norman Thomas

"Man Faced With Survival"

By TED HARVEY
Flambeau Staff Writer

Man is faced with a definite problem of survival, since he has discovered the means whereby he may completely wipe himself out, said Norman Thomas Friday night at Liberal Forum.

A [illegible] ersomething which may be used to seek limited objectives [illegible] well being of one nation over another, or even for [illegible] as the furthering of democracy. It is, in itself, simply a means [illegible] mutual annihilation. Military and economic defense programs re[illegible] [illegible] controls leading to the "garrison state," he [illegible]

[illegible], built up by the "cold war," [illegible] the United States [illegible] of the evils of Communism, by regulation of [illegible] Smith and other acts, Thomas [illegible].

[illegible], commented Thomas, should consider the over[illegible] the "industrial militar[illegible]" [illegible] the effect it has on people, and the created unbalancing of the [illegible] spends hundreds of billions of dollars [illegible].

[illegible]gh thermonuclear war is unthinkable, stated Thomas, it is [illegible] possible. It could arise from accident or miscalculation, the [illegible] of madmen, or calculating men jumping at a seeming opportunity.

"If there were beings on other planets in outer space, capable of looking down at us, they would probably give odds in favor of our destroying ourselves," he said. "I do not believe such catastrophe is an inevitable fate," remarked Thomas, "nor need it be solely the result of a satanic power known as Communism." Americans are far too certain in their own self-righteousness, that they are right, and the other is wrong, Thomas said. Such an instance is the ringing of "alarm" bases and then becoming panicky when Russia plants missiles in Cuba, he described.

[illegible] peace. Thomas stated, can be made [illegible] continues. It is therefore necessary to anticipate and suggest alternatives to increasingly dangerous situations. The problem must be attacked at its base, disengaging opposing forces in the world where tension is too high, he said.

"We are no more competent to handle the incredibly dangerous than kindergarten is capable of safely handling gun powder. Our great concern, therefore has to be universal disarmament on the police level for preserving order in nations and between nations," he stated. There must be a more significant support and growth of international [illegible]nsibility as a means of keeping world order. The UN [illegible] continued, must be altered to include "world disarmament authority," capable of replacing war with law and law enforcement. Society prevents men from killing each other, states must be formed into a more responsible and mature social order.

"Without disarmament," Thomas warned, "there will be no peace." Of all the factors of the situation a hopeful program could be formed: first, universal and complete disarmament; second, disengagement of opposing world forces and natins in areas of tension [illegible] such as Berlin; third, a cooperative plan of security under [illegible] authority"; and last, a war against poverty, which is the basic causes of social unrest in the world.

Thomas explained that his stand on disarmament did not include the "insensible" idea of disarming unilaterally, or without any inspection controls over all nations.

The course, Thomas concluded, not an easy one, is the challenge of [illegible]neration, and how well it is handled should determine if man is [illegible]

AAUP Conference Deplores Board Of Control Directive

Placement of responsibility in the hands of the faculties for determining academic standards was called for by the Florida Conference of the American Association of University Professors in a two-day meeting in St. Petersburg this weekend.

In a strongly worded resolution, the conference deplored the recent Board of Control directive which has been labeled as impinging on academic freedom. The resolution called the suspension of University of South Florida professor Dr. Sheldon Grebstein "unfortunate and unjustified."

The Conference also authorized a committee headed by Dr. Lawrence Vance of the FSU History Dept. to draw up a more detailed statement on academic freedom, president of the FSU AAUP Chapter Dr. Francis R. Allen said.

In other action the AAUP commended Dr. Michael Kasha, director of the FSU Institute of Molecular Biophysics, for his statements "respecting the threat to academic freedom in our state." "We much appreciate the forthrightness with which he has pointed out the danger to higher education which is inherent in the irresponsible work of the Johns Committee of the state legislature," the conference resolution said.

The AAUP also passed a resolution lauding the University of Mississippi AAUP Chapter for its stand "in behalf of civil rights in higher education in the face of adverse public opinion at a time when such a responsible position was much needed."

"The Florida State Conference of the AAUP is deeply concerned with the fundamental issues which have become evident as a result of the recent decisions of the Board of Control. What seems to be evident is a serious misunderstanding of the part of the Board respecting the nature of the educational process and indeed the concept of pluralism (division of authority) and the freedom of investigation so basic to democracy.

"This pluralism is carried on in national and local government and should be maintained in stitutions of higher learning as a fruitful and necessary part of the academic process. There should be a due separation of power whereby a faculty of people of special competence will be given the necessary autonomy to plan and execute these activities which they are most qualified to determine.

"A university traditionally is a seat of all kinds of learning and a center for the study and evaluation of all aspects of experience. To determine the kinds of learning and aspects of experience with which students are to become familiar is a task which must not be assumed by external non-professional fiat (arbitrary action).

"We therefore deplore the Board of Control's recent directive entitled "Implementations of Recommendations of Dept. 14, 1962" which seriously overlooks the essential pluralism of academic government and which led to the unfortunate and unjustified suspension of Dr. Sheldon Grebstein.

"The Florida State Conference AAUP requests the Board of Control and others concerned to join in seeking legislative action which places responsibility for determining standards in the academic community in the hands of the faculties, those professionally qualified to exercise this responsibility."

Board Of Control Seeks Definition Of Freedom

[illegible]finition of academic freedom [illegible] sought at a meeting of fac[illegible]nbers, university presidents [illegible] Board of Control, that will [illegible]eptable to all groups.

[illegible]ard issued a statement at a [illegible]eeting Friday saying it has [illegible]rected the president of each state [illegible]versity to appoint two faculty [illegible]rs to consult with the presi[illegible]d the Board at an early date.

[illegible]e statement said the Board is as [illegible]oncerned as the faculties about preserving academic freedom but the [illegible]d also has an equal responsi[illegible]e people to insure it is [illegible]ercised properly.

Faculty members have been pro[illegible]g the actions of the Johns Com[illegible]ittee of the State Legislature and a [illegible]oard policy directive which has [illegible]terpreted as calling for clos[illegible]e over the selection of [illegible]terials by faculty mem[illegible]

[illegible]is began following the recent suspension of Dr. Sheldon Grebstein, assistant professor of English at the University of South Florida, who was charged with assigning obscene materials for advanced writing students to read for class credit. The material, according to the publisher, is used in more than 100 universities in the nation. The review which he assigned reportedly condemned "beatnik" literature and included passages which the investigation committee called obscene.

Faculty groups across the state have called the Board directive, stimulated by the activities of the legislative investigating committee, a serious threat to academic freedom, especially concerning textbook censorship.

The Board has no intention of censoring classroom material, Culpepper said. However, he added, professors should use good taste in selecting material.

Dame Judith Anderson, hailed by the New York Herald-Tribune as "the world's greatest actress," will appear on the stage of Westcott Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. tonight and Tuesday.

Each night Dame Judith will portray the sleepwalking scene of Lady Macbeth and "Medea '62," a consensation of the late Robbinson Jeffers' vivid drama of the classical Greek tragedy of the same name by Euripedes.

These two roles are regarded as the high points of her career. They have won her two television Emmies as the outstanding dramatic actress of the year, and half a dozen other national awards for distinguished performance.

The Australian-born stage virtuoso has won Broadway stardom in such hits as "Strange Interlude," "As You Desire Me," "The Old Maid," "Hamlet," "The Three Sisters," and many others. Her international acclaim has been raved in London, Paris and Berlin.

Dame Judith's opening night of this performance, when the New York audience literally stood up and cheered, has been heralded as a theatrical landmark.

Appearing as "Macbeth" and "Jason" opposite Dame Judith will be William Roerick, a veteran classic actor. He is known to millions of daytime television fans as the southern Colonel Adams in the "Clear Horizons" series. He has been previously featured with Ethel Barrymore, Laurette Tayler and Tallulah Bankhead.

Tech Ties Seminoles 14 To 14

By JOHN WOOD
Assistant Sports Editor

Georgia Tech managed a 14-14 tie with Florida State Saturday afternoon before nearly 44,000 onlookers in Atlanta's Grant Field. The first people to admit to a Seminole "moral victory" were the Georgia Crackers themselves.

In the past, the Seminoles would have gladly settled for a 14-14 tie, having fallen 30-0, 34-0, and 17-3

Editorial

Courts May Be Only Answe

Last Tuesday's general election revealed graphically that Florida's electorate is sick and tired of compromise measures, designed exclusively to protect the 'rule by minority' in the state legislature.

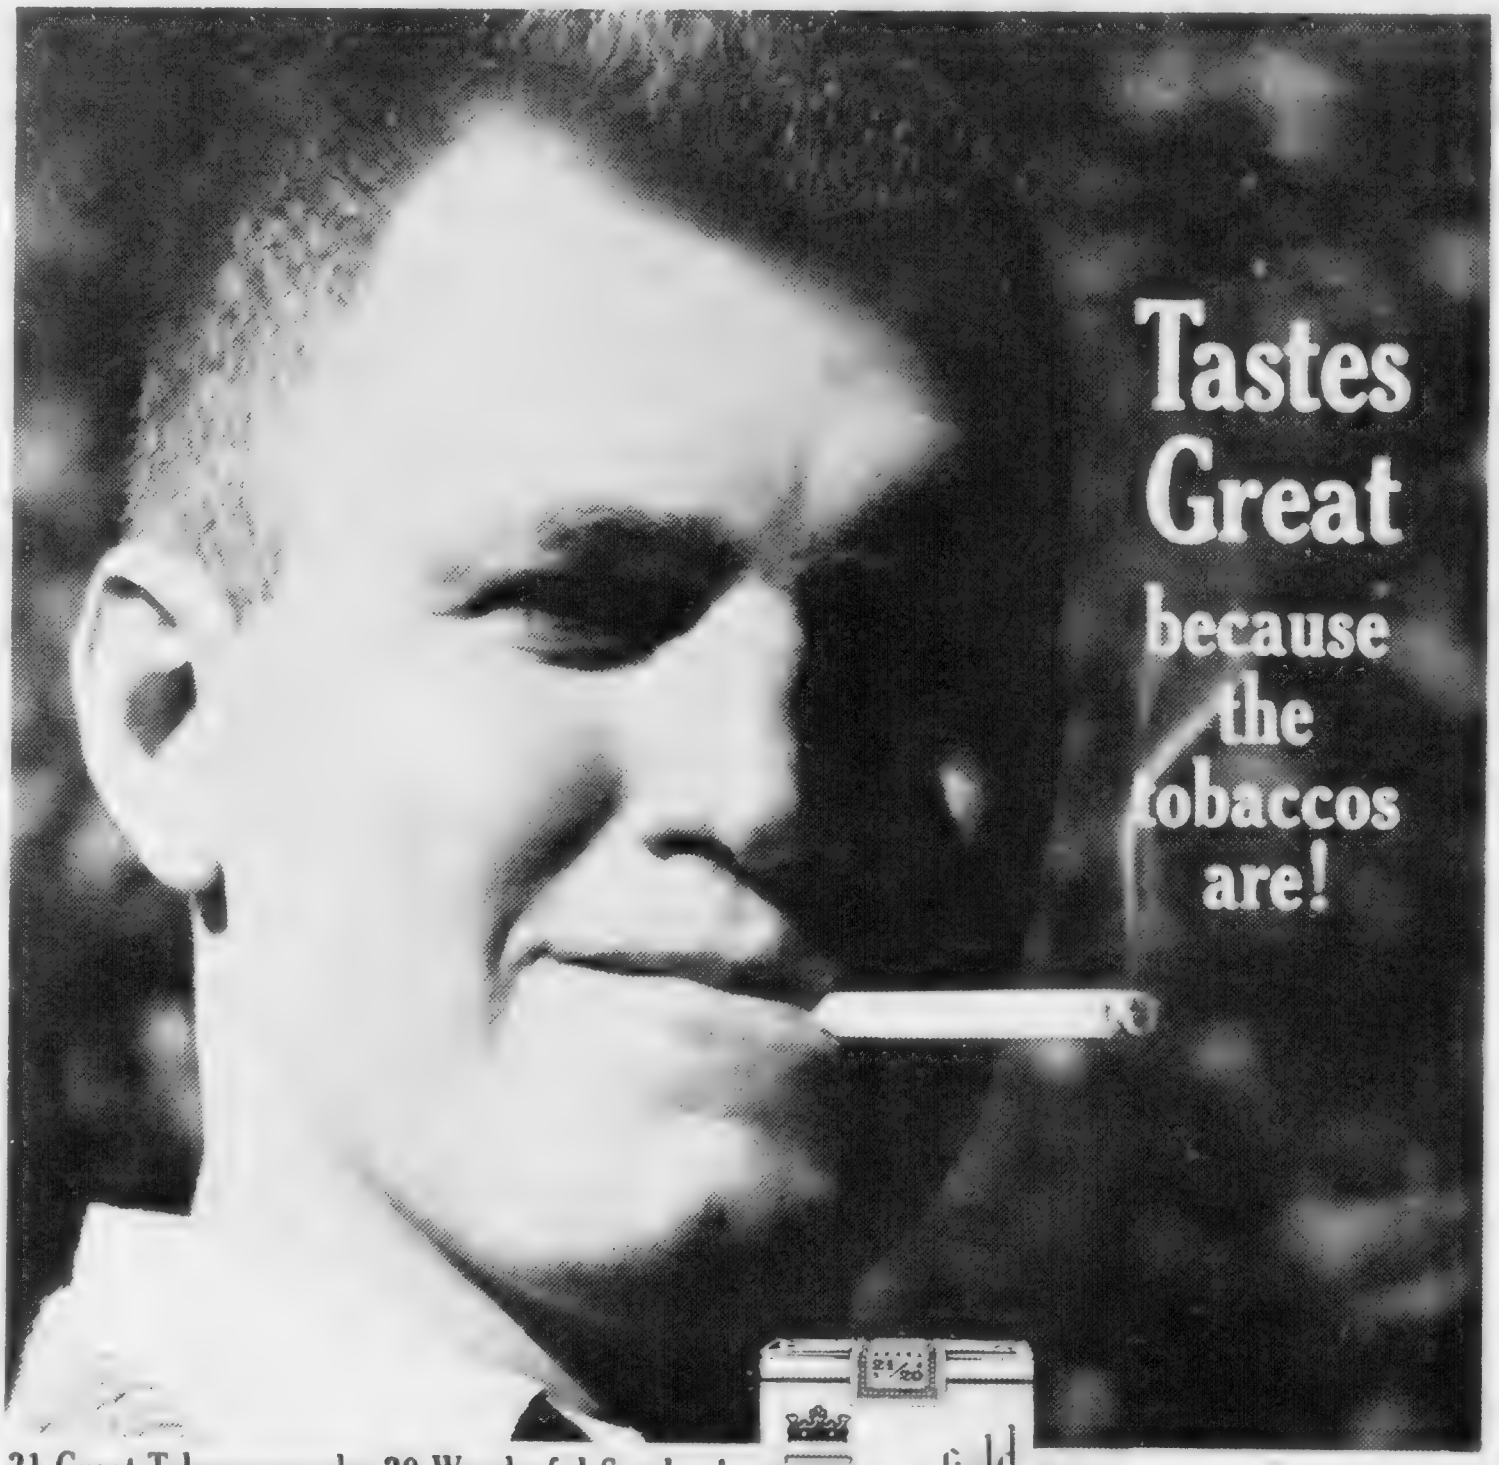
A situation under which one house member represents more than 300,000 people while anouther house member represents about 3,000 hardly achieves this goal.

During the present session of the Legislature variations of two plans, of equally poor character, will undoubtedly be debated. Gov. Bryant offered the last special session an apportionment formula under which 13.4 per cent of the state's population would elect a majority of the Senate and 23.2 percent a majority of the house.

The Pork Chop Gang's formula, calling for a 67 member Senate and a 145 member House would allow less than 7 per cent of Florida's residents to elect a majority of the Senate and less than 40 per cent to elect a majority of the House. Outstanding feature of this plan, according to rural legislators is that it would give each county, regardless of size or population at least one representative in the legislature.

With apportionment committee assignments stacked against the larger population areas of the state, having an overwhelming number of rural lawmakers in key positions, and the possibility that any plan agreed to by the special session will be simply enacted into law and not presented to the people in a referendum, the hope of representative government in the state achieved by our elected representatives is somewhat dim.

The only way out of this dismal jungle of irresponsibility in our state government will be found when rural legislators realize these things:



Counties, unlike states of the Union, are not sacred, sovereign bodies. None has divine right to a Senator or Represent[a]tive of its own regardless of populati[on]

Each legislator as nearly [e]qual as should represent the same num[ber] as every other lawmaker.

The total legislative body should not be s[o] large and unwieldy as to make efficient [op]eration an impossibility.

Since the Legislature seems unable [to] comply satisfactorily with the constitutio[nal] requirements of reapportionments, at [least] in the minds of Florida's vote[rs] lible system of automatic reapporti[on] after each census should be provid[ed]

If the Legislature is not equal to the t[ask] before them during this special s[ession] the people have only to resort to the ju[dg]ment of the courts. In view of overwhelm[ing] public opinion, it is our guess the courts wil[l] comply.

Rev. Gray Explains Ole Miss Situation

(These statements ... dith remaining at the university.)

Rev. Gray doesn't feel that the Oxford story began with the crisis in September, but that it really started eight years ago with the Supreme Court ruling on integration. "Mississippi," he said, "has the highest percent of Negroes in the Union and was considered in 1954 the last spot where integration would take place. Later, in Feb., 1954, the White Citizens' Council was ... to retard the integration movement. The opinion of the people of Mississippi at this time was ... acquiescence. In the years ... opinion changed and the Citizens' Council became representative of state opinion. From this point on the council launched a massive campaign against the so-called, anti-Christ, Communist Supreme Court and instilled this thoroughly in the people's minds, so that the vast majority believed that Meredith would never enter Ole Miss by legal means.

To illustrate some of the Citizens' Council work, Rev. Gray stated that mandatory essays on white supremacy and segregation were written in classes and that library and book censorship was common. Two of the books required for students to read were Judge Tuttle's "Black Monday" and Carlton Putman's "Race and Reason."

Rev. Gray feels that silence of the clergy was the worst thing they could have done. But he pointed out that an inter-racial committee from Oxford ... maintaining good Negro-white relations, but did not affect the crisis itself.

Meredith applied for admission to the University in 1961 and since that time his case has been in and out of court. When the federal government finally interceded, Governor Ross Barnett immediately took to the air, saying, "Every possible legal method, indeed, every possible method will be used.... Mississippi will never integrate, " Gray recounted. Throughout the state there was a fever pitch, even politicians started campaigning to see who was the staunchest segregationist, he said.

FSU Wrecks Georgia Tech In 3rd Period

in modern day football games. In games since 1903, FSU has lost two other contests.

But on this day, the Yellowjackets of Coach Bobby Dodd were contented with a 14-14 tie, especially since they managed only one legitimate touchdown drive.

FSU went into the contest, still licking its would from a 7-0 Homecoming loss to Houston, while the high-flying Georgia Tech squad boasted only two losses, both upsets, when LSU won, 10-7, and Auburn prevailed, 17-14.

Among Tech wins was a 17-0 spanking of the University of Florida. Dodd's squad was ranked about 15th in the nation, but nonetheless was completely outplayed the first half in statistics and nearly even the yartime lead of 7-0. Not until the swarming Indians had scored twice in the second half did Georgia Tech cross their goal line honestly, and on this occasion had to have it.

It was a magnificent performance on behalf of the Seminoles, who earned every ounce of prestige they gained on the carpet of browned bermuda, and who gave this young istitution its finest moment of football history.

Florida State scored both its touchdowns within four minutes in the third quarter, after attacking relentlessly Tech's margin of seven points and being driven back. Both came with numbing suddenness.

Charlie Calhoun, trying his hand at offense, ran a Tech punt back 26 yards to set up a scoring opportunity at the Jacket 34-yard line. Moments later, fullback Dave Snyder, playing his first game in an offensive role with the Chiefs, found a crack in the middle, was twice hit but broke loose and galloped into the end zone with 6:05 left in the quarter.

Almost exactly four minutes later, Steve Tensi of the offensive Warriors passed to end Fred Biletnikoff met to cover the remaining 66 yards together, with 2:01 left in the quarter.

It took the Engineers four plays to cover the last three yards of a 53 yard march to pay dirt, almost being stalled several times by the Renegades. That boy McNames plunged the last yard, which came on fourth down with the tension so thick you could cut it with a rusty knife.

Never before, in five games dating back to 1903, when FSU was an all-men's school, had Florida State scored a touchdown against Georgia Tech. In business affairs with Southeastern Conference parties, this gives FSU a record of 1-0-2.

FSU's achievement Saturday afternoon was basically defensive, holding the Tech quarterback Billy Lothridge, fifth-ranked offensive personality in the natin, to only 16 yards on his runs and harassed the poor fellow so much on his pass attempts that his nine completions of 20 attempts covered only 62 yards. Tech gained only 10 yards rushing in the first half, while FSU netted 106. ridge was wild with his pitching, [illegible] rushed nearly every play, and his receivers were not only ready and straining for thrown footballs, but they were under the constant strict surveillance of Seminole defenders who behaved like leeches.

When the final gun sounded, the Seminoles galloped off the field, the happiest bunch of Indians since firewater was introduced in the West.

Tech Game Assures Seminoles Of At Least A 50-50 Finish

No matter how Florida State does in the final two games on its schedule--Florida and Auburn--it is assured of at least a 50-50 record.

Coach Bill Peterson has a 4-2-2 tally sheet this season, and, counting each tie as one-half win and one-[illegible] loss, the Seminoles have a two-game winning margin at this time.

Two more losses would cause a split season, five wins, and five losses. Two more wins would cause the Seminoles to ignore the ties and record a 6-2-2 mark. Even another tie would give the Tribesmen that crucial half-game difference they need for a winning season.

Regardless of the finish this is the best season yet for a Bill Peterson coached squad. In Peterson's first year at Florida State in 1960, the Seminoles finished with a 3-6-1 record. In 1961, the Seminoles managed a 4-5-1 record, missing a 50-50 season by a half-game.

However, despite the 14-14 "moral victory" over the Yellowjackets the record book says that the Seminoles will have a tough row to hoe against Florida and Auburn.

The Gators lead the Seminoles, 3-0-1, but have not been holding their own in recent years. In 1959, the Gators won, 18--, in their last respectable victory.

In 1960, the Seminoles were cheated by a Gator field goal in a 3-0 contest, and in 1961 neither team crossed the goal, but kicked field goals in a 3-3 tie.

Auburn, on the other hand, has won all four games with FSU. Each team cracked a record in 1960 in FSU's 57-21 loss--Auburn for scoring the most on a Seminole team, and FSU for scoring the [illegible] Auburn since the Ralph Jordan era.

Gators Defeat Bulldogs; Tigers Nip Miss. State

The University of Florida Gators, next FSU opponents, fought off the mad Bulldogs from the University of Georgia Saturday in a 23-15 football game.

The turning point in what could have been a Georgia upset came when Gator halfback Larry Dupree stepped off 41 yards to a touchdown. In the second session, Dupree allowed Florida to wipe out an early Georgia lead, and a PAT pass to Jerry Newcomber allowed the Gators to take a permanent lead.

Just before the half, Dupree snagged an 11-yard aerial for another score.

It was Dupree's ball game all the way as the halfback charged for 111 yards of Florida's 239 total rushing. In addition, Dupree pushed his scoring total to seven TDs.

Except for rushing yardage, the Bulldogs nearly held their own, as they outpassed the Gators, 137 yards to [illegible] 9 yards. Georgia had 11 first downs to Florida's 19.

AUBURN WINS, 9-3

The Auburn Tigers squeaked past Mississippi State, 9-3, this weekend but lost the services of Jimmy Burson in the process.

Fewer Pink Slips Issued This Fall

Despite the increased pressures of the trimester system on the enlarged FSU student body, fewer "pink slips" were issued this time than in the Fall of 1961.

First trimester this year only 3874, [illegible] which is 111 fewer than [illegible].

Among the possible explanations [illegible] the change are: increased effort by students facing trimester [illegible] a rise in the quality of [illegible] to raise [illegible] entrance requirements from 200 on Senior Placement Tests to 300; or, a relaxation on the part of professors [illegible] pink slips because they are unsure of what standards to demand under the trimester system.

MANY FACTORS

Dr. Murray Kenna, registrar, commented, "There are numerous factors, many of them hidden, which may affect these figures. In short, it is still too early to draw conclusions from this information."

Another set of figures, on students dropping courses, seems to indicate a trend opposite to that of the pink slips. In the Fall of 1961, 131 students requested and were granted permission to withdraw from courses in the first eight weeks of classes. This trimester, 192 dropped courses during the same period, and the registrar's office is still processing a steady stream of drop slips.

INCREASING

Withdrawals from classes have increased by approximately one fifth so far and seem to be rising as the term progresses. At the end of the trimester, an objective analysis of grades, pink slips and withdrawals will be possible.

Although the second set of figures is taken by many to indicate that more students are cutting down their academic loads under the trimester system, no theory is likely to be proved until at least the end of this term, according to Dr. Kenna.

Tickets Still On Sale

Dame Judith Anderson, hailed as one of the world's greatest living actresses, will present scenes from Shakespeare's "Macbeth" and Robinson Jeffer's version of Euripides' "Medea." Students may obtain tickets by presenting their I.D. cards. Non-student tickets are $3.50 each.

Fallon Directs Asolo Theatre

RICHARD FALLON

Richard Fallon, associate director of the University Theatre, will direct the Asolo Theatre Comedy Festival at Sarasota next summer, Dr. Wayne Minnick, head of the Speech Dept., announced.

Fallon will take over the directorship from Dr. Arthur Dorlag, who will be unable for health reasons to direct the 1963 festival.

The addition of Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" and Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" will change the character of the festival program, which heretofore has contained only 17th and 18th century plays typical of the Restoration period, Fallon said.

He added that Richard Sheridan's "The Rivals," a success during the first season three years ago, will be presented again, along with Molliere's farce "School for Wives" and Goldoni's "The Mistress of the Inn."

The plays will be performed between July 12 and Aug. 24 in the Asolo Theatre, an 18th-century Italian opera house which was moved to Sarasota in 1949, and set up adjacent to the Ringling Museum of Art.

Professional and amateur actors assembled from university and community theatres in several states will perform in the Asolo Theatre's 57 productions. Performances will be scheduled seven nights a week, with matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Rehearsals will begin on the FSU campus on June 9, and will move to Sarasota on July 6. No productions will be offered in Tallahassee.

The Asolo Festival is jointly sponsored by the Ringling Museum and the FSU Speech Dept.

Goes To Senate

Jones Revises Election Code With Long Bill

An eleven page bill to restructure the section of the Student Body Statutes dealing with the Elections Code will be presented to the Student Senate this week. This bill which will be introduced by Louis Parnett, George Miller, Frank Ryll and Miles Williams was prepared after several weeks work by the Secretary of Elections Ron Jones.

The bill being introduced is designed to replace the form of the old Elections Code with a more concise and logically ordered form for the code. This new form can be more easily used by members of student government and those seeking election to the various offices said Jones.

Basically there are few changes in the proposed code. The name of the Elections Committee would be changed to Elections Bureau to conform with the recommendation of the Secretary of State Jim Blue.

The duties of the Elections Bureau would be clearly defined within the Elections Code. The bill provides a complete outline of all offices to be elected by the student body, which formerly were found in other sections of the Statutes.

The bill sets up a more clearly defined elections schedule and clarifies the rules for campaign expenditures. It makes legal provisions for the handling of ballots before they have been counted.

A most important change stated Jones is the clarifying of the action which can be taken against any person who violates the provisions of the Elections Code.

Not Worth Price

Recent thefts from the University book store have resulted in a number of students being suspended from school, according to Ross McVoy, Chief Justice of Honor Court.

IN THE LAST month the Honor Court has had a half dozen cases of students stealing from the Bookstore. Mr. Wheeler, manager of the bookstore, is presently keeping a close surveillance of several of his more suspicious customers and more cases may be forthcoming.

The thefts are mostly petty in nature, with the worth of the goods stolen rarely amounting to more than $10. But they can be very serious offenses when thefts are compounded over a period of time.

THE PENALTIES for such thefts are stiff. The only precedent penalty for stealing is suspension or immediate suspension. In rare cases a student is given two trimesters of Honor Court probation, says McVoy.

Students who might contemplate such an act would be wise to consider the penalty carefully and think deeply about their own moral standards. A rash deed will likely result not only in a guilty conscience, but also in a suspension. Neither is worth the price of a petty theft.

REAPPORTIONMENT

TALLAHASSEE--House members from Florida's 5 largest counties agreed in principle yesterday on a reapportionment plan to provide 105 House members and 52 Senators.

But another group of lawmakers from counties which rejected last proposed reapportionment plan failed to reach agreement in principle on any proposal.

Both special groups met in Tallahassee after Governor Farris Bryant and the House laid the burden of finding a new reapportionment compromise on the members from those counties which rejected the 46-senator plan last week.

The separate actions of the subcommittees, and their difficulty in even agreeing in principle on anything, illustrated the difficulty of finding any legislative apportionment plan that suits any large number of voters at the special session.

The subcommittees at work yesterday afternoon were established by the House in an attempt to try the new approach of finding out the minimum demands of the urban counties, rather than trying to determine just how much representation the small counties will yield.

The House originally established only a single subcommittee, headed by representative Woodie Liles of Hillsborough county. But that group immediately split into 2 other groups, with the 5 largest counties operating as one unit, and all other counties rejecting the 46-senator plan proceeding as the other.

The large county plan of 105 House members--proposed by Representative Quentin Long of Broward county--also would call for multiple votes for big county legislators. The House total vote would be 236. The 52-senator plan would be based on Governor Farris Bryant's proposal for 45 senators, plus 2 or more senators from the most populous counties.

Bryant, in his talk to the legilature, complained the urban counties joined in killing proposal after proposal and that its representatives now should find a plan their voters would accept.

The Senate's reapportionment committee was told that sure death at the polls faced any redistricting proposal that failed to make up at least one house on a population basis.

Big county senators, whose counsel the committee sought as it prepared to consider the first 3 reapportionment bills, said bluntly that just tossing more weight on the legislative scales would not mean a greater voice for the populous areas.

Governor Bryant also proposed that the legislature turn out 2 plans for reapportionment and give voters a choice between them.

Peace Achieved Through Work

An age old demon again raises its head from the depths of human fear and selfishness -- this time threatening not merely man's appreciation of himself and his neighbors, but all that he has achieved in his centuries of evolution -- threatening his very existence. Ethnocentrism has always been a barrier to understanding and a precipitator of hate, but today it becomes the more formidable prophet of a certain mushroom-shaped cloud, which casts the shadow of its possibility across the international affairs of men.

Ethnocentrism is a fact of life. It has existed as long as human societies have existed, and it has served a function. But it has often overstepped the bounds of reasonableness; to wit: Charlemagne's militant Christianity, the "superior race" of the Nazis, former British and American imperialism; and presently Communism, and the fanatic elements of right-wing Americanism.

A nation is not an isolated entity. True, we are all Americans, and should be thankful for the opportunity of living in a relatively free society -- free, among other things, to help shape our own futures, to worship as we please, to express our views, and to gain an education. But we are all citizens of a wider community -- that of mankind, wherein we find others than those who agree with our views, and live on or near our standard.

Is humanity worthy our loyalty? Perhaps from the other perspective, are we worth the loyalty of humanity? I hope the answers to both questions are yes. Fortunately, we have at least a few [illegible] who think from a wider perspective than the United States and ITS interests. Stuart [illegible] independent candidate from the United States from Massachusetts, writes in his campaign literature:

"If nuclear war comes, we can have no victory; we cannot save our children, our [illegible] our ideals. Our weapons can destroy [illegible] they cannot save our land."

Hughes goes on to suggest some admittedly but very feasible measures to end the [illegible] the arms race. They include a declaration first strike; renunciation of first strike; gradual abandonment of bases abroad; all nuclear tests, and recognition [illegible]

As alternatives to the arms race, [illegible] strengthening the United Nations [illegible] finances; repealing the Connaly reservation World Court, increased technical and [illegible] aid to emerging nations without regard [illegible] alignment, and planning a transition [illegible] sent military-industrial complex to a peacetime economy of truly free enterprise.

Perhaps this is the wrong approach. [illegible] beings have been known to be in error; however, [illegible]. Talk is plentiful, but without some sort, it becomes dead. Talking about it will not achieve it; it must be worked for. The historical approach has shown to be insufficient so why continue it? Of cours, if mankind is worth it . . . . . .

'Moral Support' Hampers Integration

To the Editor:

I have lived with the people of both races in the North and in the South. I was born and raised in the South, i.e. in Alabama, Florida, and Georgia. I have also read and listened to many arguments and descriptions of the racial problem and its history. I know the "Southern Negro" well and would like to challenge the implication that he presents a special problem prohibiting an integration similar to that in the North. I also challenge the worth of "moral support" and the true leanings of the so-called moderate integrationists in a movement that demands action.

Challenge: The mass of Southern Negroes aren't ready for integration for socio-economic reasons only.

Rebuttal: There is even now a group of people more numerous than the Negro population yet in the same socio-economic class which is enjoying the privileges, opportunities, and human dignity of integration--the lower class whites who, in the South, are easily recognized by manner of speech, dress, and illusions of being a superior race.

Rebuttal: Their culture is already built--their culture is American culture. Inasmuch as they have built separately it has been mostly forced it direct and horrible violation of their rights as citizens by southern whites.

Challenge: Active integrationists are crusaders, idealists, do-gooders, psychologically disturbed agitators, etc., who are only interfering with peaceful gradual integration.

Rebuttal: The movement is characterized by orderly and non-violent action. It is based on legal rights and the practicality of the reasonable ambitions is demonstrated wherever integration is in the norm. For integrationists are many, if not most of our respected citizens.

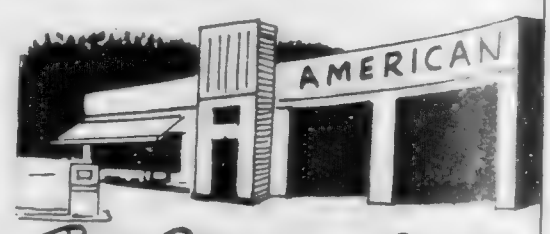
Challenge: We (the South) have problems to solve first.

Rebuttal: The attempts by Southerners to solve them in eight years would hardly elicit a thinking man's sympathy. The "100% integrationists" who offer their moral support to integration and their sympathy to an inhuman people are, in effect, giving their physical support to segregation. YOU ARE WILLING TO DO THINGS WITH EITHER RACE, BUT NOTHING FOR EITHER RACE. You live in a soda shop world of spiritaul abstraction: in your existential I-Thou world, you blithely ignore the here-now world. The active integrationist doesn't share your blind faith in inevitable progress. The active integrationist would like to tell the pseudo-intellectuals, pseudo-liberals, pseudo-integrationists [illegible] home to Mother at [illegible] 224-9480 to really [illegible] confuse workers with [illegible] would steal their honors

Letter Of Appreciation

To The Editor:

I would like to take the opportunity through the Flambeau to express my appreciation to the administration, faculty, staff, Army and Air Force ROTC Officers and student of Florida State University from always making my visits to FSU so pleasant.



As Florida's Naval Aviation Procurement Officer for the past two and a half years I have had the distinct pleasure of guiding and counseling many FSU students on serving their military obligations in the Aviation Branch of the Navy.

It is with deep regret that I find myself making my last official visit to your great University on 12-16 November. I hope all of the students who have planned to see me on campus and my many friends will stop by my recruiting trailer, located in front of the FSU Post Office, for a much appreciated visit.

Lenson Announces Asian Art Series

...performing artists representative of the cultural arts of Asian countries to FSU under a newly initiated Asian Artist Series program were announced today by Dr. George A. Lensen of the History Dept.

Lensen said that the first program in the presentation in March, will be a company of Indian dancers who specialize in the ancient court dances of the Mughal Empire.

The Asian Studies Fund, a special revolving fund, is a cooperative project of the History Dept., the Film Club of the university and a group of local citizens of Tallahassee. In bringing performers to this campus, Lensen said, the FSU Asian Studies Program will work in conjunction with the Asia Society Performing Arts Program in New York City.

...and their plans call for an admission price of $2.50 for non-students and $1.50 for students. Two Asian Artist Series nights will be held each year. The North Indian ... group of Bharatiya Kala Kendra, appearing before American audiences for the first time, will be at FSU on March 28 at 8:30 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

The company has been highly praised throughout India and on a special invited tour of Russia for "purity of style," and "brilliant technique," not only in these dances but in the little known dances of the Indian gypsies.

FLORIDA WANTS TO WIN NEXT ONE

FSU Played Best Game Against Tech

Despite getting a 14-14 tie, the Florida State Seminoles came out on top in the coaches' comments from Bill Peterson of FSU and Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech.

When Peterson was shaking hands with Seminole fans at the Tallahassee airport Saturday night, he'd greet the congratulations with, "They played a good game."

In fact, he added, "It was our best game of the year."

"The best thing our men showed me," he continued, "was their tremendous pride under trying circumstances (such as the Tech TD scored on an interception)."

Dodd had warned the Yellowjackets of FSU's pride before the contest, telling them that it was a dangerous factor that can "Beat you every time."

Describing the game itself, Dodd was rather neutral at the start, "Nobody won today but the fans. They saw a mighty exciting ball game."

But then he expanded, "Florida State is one of the better football teams we have seen this year. Florida State is as tough defensively as anybody." Some of the teams on the Tech schedule? Florida, LSU, Tennessee, Auburn, and Duke.

Why was Tech, a two touchdown favorite, only able to tie the Seminoles?

Besides the Seminoles playing their best game, Peterson said at first that he did not believe Tech was playing one of its better games, but that he was not sure.

Then he said, "Maybe they were looking ahead to Alabama."

Earlier, Dodd has said that this would be a hard game for the Yellowjackets to get up for, expecially after the Duke contest.

Then again, although not mentioned by the coaches, apparently FSU's Homecoming defeat was a factor. The Tribesmen were obviously wanting a "victory" after losing their fourth consecutive Homecoming game, to a strong team that was rated an underdog. And perhaps the Yellowjackets thought, "Any team that can lose to Houston can be beaten easily by Georgia Tech."

The future effect of the contest? It has probably caused the oddsmakers to refigure the margin for Saturday's contest between the University of Florida and FSU.

However, Peterson warns that it will take the same effort to beat Florida as it took to hold Tech to a tie.

Although the Gators were felled, 17-0, by Tech, they rebounded against the Auburn Tigers, 22-3, two weeks ago; and the Tigers had previously upset the Yellowjackets 17-14.

In the Southeastern Conference, the Gators are rated above the Yellowjackets. In the conference, Florida has won four games and lost two, while Tech has won three, lost two, and tied one. Overall, the Gators have a 5-3 mark, while Dodd has a 5-2-1 tally.

So it will be a dog-fight all the way.

* * * * *

For a change, it seems that the big, bad Gators are up for the contest, and have been accusing the Seminoles of conducting a "Hate Florida" campaign.

Several Gator gridders have stated that, if they had to choose the two games on their schedule that they'd like most to win, they'd select Miami and Florida State.

This was reflected by the crowd of Gators that saw the 22-3 upset of Auburn University. When the game was over, the announcer said, "Ladies and gentlemen, here is a score you might be interested in. Florida State lost to Houston in its Homecoming game, zero to 7."

To quote an FSU alum in the Gator law school, "Their crowds went wild with cheers."

This alumnus heard several Gators say, "We'll stomp them, 30-0, when we play them."

The Gator paper further reflected this chip-on-the-shoulder attitude. Says their sports editor, "The Florida FSU game is not until Nov. 17, but those friendly Seminoles are wasting no time working themselves into a frenzy of hate. An issue of their student newspaper recently printed a five-column banner with the friendly greeting, 'Go to hell, UF; go to hell.'"

While the sentiment might well be ture, the sports scribe completely ignored that (1) there was no such headline, (2) the banner was a banner that appeared at the 1961 UF game, and (3) the banner was shown in a picture in a Tally Ho ad -- not quite the same as reported.

The Gator scribe says admiringly that FSU does like to dress well, however, pointing out that the Chiefs, Renegades, and Warriors wear different costumes. "Chiefs, an Indian head of their helmets, plus all-white socks; the Renegades wear a tomahawk with garnet stripe socks; the Warriors have an arrow and gold-topped socks," he quoted an FSU publicity release.

And then added, "I have heard that the fourth team, the Squaws, wear blue taffeta jerseys and feathers in their helmets."

He does end on a kind note, "One thing you can't knock the Seminoles about is their spirit. Close to 8,000 students turned out at the Tallahassee airport following FSU's 7-0 loss to Miami, and held a pep rally right on the runway."

The count was just a bit off, and the correct number might be closer to 200 to 300, but the spirit still can't be knocked.

The Gators, who, they would profess, certainly haven't been conducting a "Hate FSU" contest, editorialized thusly in a headline over the FSU Homecoming story, "Ha, Ha Houston 7/ Florida State 0."

Surrealism, originally a French [illegible] movement of the 1920's, did [illegible] reach the United States until the [illegible]. The movement's American followers have never been numerous, since it collapses as an organized group with the advent of World War II.

A basic belief of the movement was that man is more accurately revealed in his unconscious, instinctive actions than in his daily behavior.

Curator Gordon comments, "Today, orthodox surrealism seems very nearly dead as a movement, but the surrealist fantasy and spontaneity which it released in the art of our time still flow in many diverse directions."

Liberal Forum

Dobson, Riggins, Lock Tongues

TED HARVEY
Flambeau Staff Writer

[illegible]ent, Liberal Forum presented a panel discussion between [illegible], chairman of the Young Americans for Freedom, and [illegible], president of the Young Peoples Socialist League. [illegible] was initiated on the implications of a speech made by [illegible] Khrushchev shortly before his visit to the United States. [illegible] introduced this exerpt from the speech: "We cannot expect [illegible]ricans to jump from Capitalism to Communism, but we can [illegible]r elected leaders in giving Americans small doses of [illegible], until they suddenly awake to find they have Communism." [illegible]tated that the quote meant exactly what it said, and that the [illegible] socialism in the United States is leading the country down [illegible] socialism.

[illegible] replied by clarifying the differences between revolutionary [illegible] as found in the Communist nations, and evolutionary democ[illegible]cialism as advocated by Socialists in the United States. "[illegible] life," inquired Dobson, "to know a little about your Socialist [illegible]. How can you achieve the ends which the Communists seek, [illegible]rain from using their methods of gaining power? Where has this democratic socialism been successful? How can socialism compare to the success of the market economy?"

[illegible]lutionary democratic socialism, answered Riggins, is by nature, [illegible] to maintain and work through the democratic process, and is [illegible] only very unlike communism, but stands unalterably opposed to the Communist Threat.

The socialist idea, continued Riggins, is based on the idea that the [illegible] and most efficient method of operating our large industries and [illegible] and controlling resources is through central control and management under the government. Democratic socialism has succeeded most noticeably in the Scandinavian countries, and in instances such as the TVA in the United States.

[illegible]ing Riggin's defence. Dobson commented that the success of [illegible] under socialism cannot be compared to the much greater [illegible] of the market economy. The TVA, he asserted, is successful [illegible]rely because of the support by federal tax money drawn from other areas. "This he added is simply robbery by the ballot box, of those [illegible] produce."

Final Summary Tomorrow

Accredation Team Upholds Academic Freedom Debate

Freedom from political interference and support of academic freedom are very vital, Dr. Herman Spivey, vice president of the University of Tennessee and member visitation committee here, said.

Dr. Spivey's group, an accrediting team for the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, has been on campus since Sunday, studying FSU's self-study. The members of the team include top administrators from several of the South's leading universities.

Tomorrow at 10 a.m., the comittee will hold a private conference with President Gordon W. Blackwell to give him a general summary of what will be included in the report they will prepare. Until that time, the committee's findings are being kept confidential, and information at that time will be at the discretion of the FSU president.

The report will be sent to the president in about a month, Spivey said.

Commenting on political interference in the state university system, Spivey said, "The amount of damage done by the Johns investigating committee is obviously much greater than the amount of protection by trying to identify some irregularities.

He said that his group has heard a lot about the presently raging controversy over the Board of Control's recent directive concerning academic freedom. He indicated that this may be justification for losing the accreditation of the institutions involved, a consequence about which many people have speculated.

Spivey, a student of literature, is a personal friend of Dr. Sheldon Grebstein, the University of South Florida professor who was suspended because of certain reading materials he selected for classroom use. He said that he had recommended Grebsteing for teaching positions.

Spivey emphasized that his committee's purpose is not to pry, but to find and report weaknesses, so that improvement can be made in those areas.

Knowledge For College Topic In Women's Senate

The regular business meeting of Women's Senate yesterday afternoon was devoted to bills introduced regarding amendments to Knowledge for College.

Bill I, reading, "You may iron and use hot plates from 6 a.m. until one half hour past regular closing time," was introduced, discussed and referred back to the committee for further study under Senator Marsha Orth.

Bill II which read, "You may type in a student room from 7 a.m. until one half hour past regular closing time was passed.

Bill III which stated, "Students may use lights at their own discretion except for freshmen women beginning their first term of college, who for the first four (currently six) weeks must turn their lights off by deadlines," was defeated.

A lengthy Sophomore Council bill was introduced for discussion by Senators Joyce Killian and Louise Bone. It was unanimously passed.

Barbecue Club Meets Tomorrow

A satire on the Cuban situation and two chapters from a novel about a 13-year-old boy in the post-Civil War South were read by their authors and then criticized at the last meeting of a new off-campus free-lance writing group.

Joe Rice, one of the members of "The Thursday Evening Barbecue," says of the group: "We don't serve barbecue. We read literary efforts and then barbecue each other's material verbally. We serve coffee."

Rice said the group meets alternate Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. at his home, 1029 Carrin Dr. "The next meeting is scheduled for this Thursday night," he said, "and the group has room for more members."

His phone number is 224-4772.

Black Saturday Draws Near

Don't forget Saturday Dec. 1 That is the day when classes will be held to make up for Friday, November 23 which is part of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Since this part of the Turkey vacation is not scheduled on the regular school calendar, classes will convene on the following Saturday, Dec. 1, following the vacation.

For those with crying towels, classes will be held all day Nov. 21, which is the day before Thanksgiving.

U F - FSU Glee Clubs Combine Before Game

The men's glee clubs of FSU and the University of Florida will join forces on Friday, Nov. 16, to present a concert in the university auditorium in Ganesville.

The combined performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. Included on the program will be a medley of the schools' songs arranged by Richard Powell, assistant director of the FSU male glee club, The Collegians.

Today's Weather

The weather forecast for today is sunny and mild, with a low in the morning of 38, and an afternoon high of 70. There is a possibility of light frost in low areas during the early morning.

Flory Speaks On Maine

By MICHELLE JOHNSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

"A potpourri of impressions and a few minutes of antidote to trimesterism," Dr. Claude R. Flory described his talk to the English Coffee Hour last Friday.

"I hope you didn't come here to be intellectually stimulated," he added. Title of his talk was "Maine Memories."

"Maine," he said, "is a land of many lakes hollowed out by glaciers. The rock work looks as if it had been planned." He described Rocky Pond, where he fished, as being ringed by beaver houses.

In Andover, Me., Flory visited the site of the lauching of the satellite Telstar. He said that, chosen by Telstar scientists as an isolated and protected spot, Andover now accommodates 2,500 cars a day.

The great antenna, which has the precision of a fine watch and is on tracks, was built during a severe winter under a large synthetic balloon structure. The satellite itself, he said, is amazingly small--34 inches in diameter "with a modest little aerial looking like a bad spring."

Another of his memories, Flory said, is his visit to Maine homes of writers, such as that of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in Portland. The Harriet Beecher Stowe house in Brunswick now is the location of one of the finest Maine restaurants.

Maine was also the home of Sarah Jewett and Mary Wilkins Freeman, two short story writers. Dr. Flory read the climactic paragraphs from "Butterfly Time" and "The Parson's Love" by these authors.

Of the theatres in Maine, Lakewood Theatre is one of the most notable. In operation for 62 years under the same family, he said it is somewhat informal because it is so far from urbanity. There Dr. Flory talked with Allen Luden of "College Bowl."

Pedestrian Manners

Among the things young people attend college to attain are the social graces which enable them to become compatible in the adult world. Courtesy and good manners are among these qualities. They extend into almost every facet of life at FSU, both in our interpersonal relationships and as we deal with the general public. Occasionally the necessity for these qualities is discovered in perhaps the least suspected areas.

Conduct as a pedestrian while navigating roadways both on and surrounding the campus is one such area. During any weekday prior to the convening of classes or immediately following their conclusion, may stand on any sidewalk and recoil in horror as student pedestrians descend like vultures on unlucky motorists who have the misfortune to be passing by or though our campus at that time.

Arms loaded with books and completely engrossed in conversation, students mob the streets. Red lights, cross-walk lanes, moving vehicles--nothing seems to prevent or slow their movement. Should the unsuspecting vehicle operator dare to toot his horn, reminding walkers not only of his presence but of his right-of-way his fate is sealed. With a dull, defiant glare in their eyes, their hesitant, but progressive gait become a painful crawl. The motorist is doomed to further frustration.

We ask you now--what are good manners?

Communists At FSU?

To the Editor:

It is obvious according to Mr. Dobson's poll that communism is running rampant at Florida State [illegible]. If some of the questions asked on patriot Dobson's poll more than half of these people answered as Communists and Communist dupes would. Where is this going to lead us? Are we going to let this ever growing majority suppress the patriotism and Americanism of Dobson and his followers. I believe immediate steps should be taken to strike this scourge from the university. Possibly a committee made up of loyal Dobson and others [illegible] Americans as students. The policy of this committee would be to screen out dangerous subversives such as Communists, atheists, liberals, negroes, and other deviants from the social order. The organization would also have the power to suspend any student who is undemocratic enough to oppose this American group or support these subversive organizations. Only through a program of this type can our American society have the rights and freedoms granted to us under our constitution.

Chris Clarke Defended

To The Editor:

It is unfortunate that there are some students on this campus who, after hearing their first opera last year, now feel capable of heaving coarse criticisms at Zinka Milanov following her recital. They also attacked the leading undergraduate authority on opera, Chris Clarke, who has devoted his time and knowledge in giving his fellow students a greater understanding and appreciation of the musical arts. Thus I must request that Tom MacDonald and the rest of his club kindly discontinue their great dissensions.

Solution To Soda Shop Crisis

"Let's forget the world," yelled Clyde, "and concentrate on more important and profound matters!"

The mob of underclassmen ceased chanting the list of basic requirements, and turned to stare at the bowlegged figure in a slightly bedraggled Roman toga.

Clyde resumed his oratory... "What I want to know is what's going to be done about the Soda Shop crisis? The realm of the Devout SS'ers has been overrun by infidel hordes bearing bribes of silver and sacrifices of green trial schedules. We must have more room!"

The milling crowd dispersed frantically as a Sophomore nobleman charged their ranks, brandishing a lethal weapon: a Humanities text. Within seconds, the area resembled a bloody arena. Finding himself deserted by mankind, Clyde turned to the Sycamore trees:

"Fellow Sodamites, we must solve the fire space shortage problem by rational means. Would you care to hear my modest proposal?"

Whispering softly, the trees at last consented by nodding multicolored leaves...Clyde bowed, then smiled to himself and said:

"Thank you, dear friends. Here, then, is my solution. First, we might try tearing down the sacred walls surrounding our inner clan, and following that French major, Jean Rousseau's plan, retreat to Dame Nature as the natural abode for all Soda Shoppers."

The trees shuddered violently. Squirrels scampered to the safety of nearby buildings. White-coated men from the Psychology department shouted with glee-glee-glee as they grabbed butterfly nets and ran in pursuit of the fleeing creatures. Clyde returned to the subject under consideration.

"I feared you might not approve, so I have a better ideer. We can put tables and chairs outside, and call it 'La Shoppe des Sodies'...Aha! Eureka and Geronimo, I have the answer!"

Clyde turned and raced to the entrance of the sacred den, where students were fighting over the contents of a curious little garnet and gold box. Ignoring the screams of the dying, Clyde presented his ID card and entered, first bowing three times to "The Great High Priest" in Westcott. Climbing upon a coffee-smeared coed, Clyde addressed the noisy congregation saying:

"Hear ye, O Faithful Sodamites. The poepulation explosion has been resolved. A few of you more recent converts among our ranks will remember having heard of the great brick city called Longmire. Here many sacred and beloved shrines, such as the "Fabulous Alumni Rock" may be found. We, devout pilgrims, will move our Soda Shop into this building, and place all shrines such as the "Great and Fabulous Alumni Rock" in the space we now occupy. Math Society To Meet Here

Some 150 research mathematicians, most of them from the Southeastern states, will be in Tallahassee Nov. 16 and 17 for the 549th meeting of the American Mathematical Society.

Sessions for contributed papers will be held at 4 p.m. on Friday, and 10 a.m. on Saturday, according to Dr. Morton L. Curtis, FSU professor of mathematics and chairman of the meeting committee.

Thirty-eight papers on recent research conducted by the participants will be submitted during the two-day meeting, which is being held at FSU for the first time. Included in those attending the meeting will be Dr. John W. Green of the University of California at Los Angeles, secretary of the American Mathematical Society.

Registration for the meeting will be held in Room 303 of the Math-Meteorology Building.

Nikolaidi Stars Tonight In New York's Town Hall

Elena Nikolaidi, professor of voice, will present a recital in New York's Twon Hall tonight. The Concert was arranged for the mezzo-soprano as the result of popular demands made to the Columbia Artist Management and Miss Nikolaidi's personal manager, Andre Mertens.

This is Miss Nikolaidi's first appearance in Town Hall in more than three years. She appeared there several times before joining the FSU music faculty in 1960. Her accompanist for the current performance will be Ryan Edwards, an FSU graduate now working professionally in New York.

Miss Nikolaidi's six-number program at Town Hall includes the aria, "Parto, my tu ben mio" from Mozart's "Clemenze di Tito"; a song cycle "Frauen Liebe und Leben" by Schuman; "Geburt Christi," "Pieta," and "Stillum Maria" from "Das Marien-Leben" by Hindemith; two selections by Ravel and two contemporary Greek songs by Riadis.

One of the honors that has come to the internationally known mezzo-soprano is that of honorary title of "Kamersaggerin" bestowed to distinguished singers by the governments of Austria and Germany.

A native of Greece where she received her early vocal training, Miss Nikolaidi make her initial appearance in New York's Town Hall in 1949, and her Metropolitan Opera debut during the 1951-52 season. Before that time she made an opening night appearance at the San Francisco Opera in 1950-51. During the 1958059 season she was featured soloist on CBS television.

Feely Is Chosen Co-Captain Passing Lead Goes To Tensi

Quarterback Eddie Feely of Gainesville has been named co-captain for the Florida game, and the foxy field general is expected to continue to stick his name in the FSU record book.

The gritty little 5-7, 154 pound signal-caller became FSU's all-time total offense man last weekend when he produced 40 yards in a 14-14 tie with Georgia Tech. Feely's output--with two more games to play this season--is 2137 yards, surpassing the former career mark once set by Nelson Italiano during 1950, '51, and '52 (2129).

Feely had previously broken Joe Majors' record for passes completed.

So now Feely, a former Gainesville High star, will go before the home folks this weekend as he takes aim at another career record: total yards passing. Feely has 1554 yards in almost three years, while Majors had [illegible].

Statistics released here today, strangely, found sophomore quarterback Steve Tensi of Cincinnati taking over the FSU passing lead from Feely. Tensi, who connected on a brilliant 66-yard scoring play against Tech, has rolled up 659 yards in the air to Feely's 612.

There were no other major changes in the FSU figures. The tough Seminole defense still ranks as one of the nation's toughest, yielding an average of only 3.6 yards per play from scrimmage.

Says Spivey, Evaluation Committee

FSU Makes Enormous Progress

Florida State University has made enormous progress," stated Dr. Herman Spivey, Vice President of the University of Tennessee and member of the accrediting team for the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

"By and large, FSU is quite a superior institution with a few weak spots [illegible]."

Spivey had just finished conferring with President Gordon W. Blackwell about the results of the visitation committee's finding in a closed session. The official report, which is confidential, will be sent to Blackwell in a [illegible].

[illegible] the nature of the report, Spivey would not reveal in concrete [illegible] but gave indications of the nature of the study.

"[illegible] year, every Southern university makes a study on what it is doing and what it wants to do," Spivey commented. "Then it calls in outside people to evaluate this. The outside educators come from many diverse backgrounds and study the universities' plans and progresses."

Spivey said that the committee generally found FSU's plans to the future to be generally very good and that they included some very exciting ideas.

"We spent the majority of our time studying how these plans should be realized," commented Spivey.

The evaluator refused to list concrete areas where FSU excels or where the university is weak. He indicated that these would be carefully ennumerated in the committee's report to Blackwell.

Spivey also refused to comment further on his recent statements regarding political interference and its relationship to the accreditation of the university.

"We have studied academic freedom," commented Spivey. "It is important, but it is only one of a hundred different things which we consider."

Spivey did indicate a concern over political interference in a general sense.

"People handling a university, the faculty and administration, ought to be allowed to devise the best ways and means to develop a grest university without interference from people not associated with the university," stated Spivey. "They should help be responsible, of course. But they should be given the freedom to use their judgment. Theirs is an informed judgment."

Spivey generally spiked talk of the possibility of losing accreditation in the near future.

"Even if that recommendation was made, the school would be given at least a year's warning before action was taken."

Spivey was very pleased that the students feel the faculty is competent and reliable. He remarked that it is good that the student feel the faculty should have freedom from outside interference.

Baum Heads Space Group

Dr. Werner A. Baum, FSU dean of the faculties, has been named associate director of newly-launched studies aimed at making Florida first in Space Age education.

Dr. Baum will take a leave of absence from FSU, effective Nov. 21, to begin his new assignment with the Florida Space Era Education Study being conducted for the Board of Control.

Baum will work with Dr. Ralph W. McDonald of Washington, D.C., the director, in supervising the work of four task forces of scientists, engineers and educators.

He will resume his duties at FSU when the studies are completed. His assignment is scheduled for completion by March 1, in time for requests for programs to be submitted to the 1963 Legislature.

An internationally-known meteorologist, Baum came to FSU in 1949 as head of the Meteorology Dept. He later served as director of university research and dean of the Graduate School before being named dean of the faculties in 1961.

The task force will look into Florida's needs and opportunities in the fields of science related to space, oceanography, engineering instruction and a science and engineering information center. Outstanding scientists, engineers and educators from throughout the nation will serve as consultants.

Baum announced the appointment of the first task force in oceanography and hydrographic engineering, which this week is working with a nationally-known consultant, Richard Vetter, executive director of the National Academy of Science, Washington. The group is visiting campuses of Florida universities.

Among those named for this task force is Dr. Albert Collier, director of the FSU Oceanographic Institute.

The four task forces will hold a general meeting at FSU next Monday at 10 AM.

Jones Faces Honor Court

The Student Body Honor Court will meet tonight in the Honor Court room [illegible] Longmire in regard to charges brought against Ron Jones, Secretary of Elections, and the Elections Committee by Marshall Gifford, F SU student.

Gifford charges that the Secretary of Elections of his own accord, exceeded his duties and authority by setting forth the regulation that, "All candidates for office, whether they won or lost their respective campaigns, were obliged to submit to the Secretary of Elections an itemized list of all expenditures occurred during the campaign."

The Statutes provide in regard to Elections that (705.2-A) that "No student shall be issued a certificate of election who does not submit to the Secretary of Elections a statement to the effect that he has complied with the campaign expense limits, as set forth in section 705.1."

Statute 705-C states that "The Elections Committee shall, by and with the consent of the President, have the authority from time to time to issue, amend, or rescind suitable regulations to carry out the provisions of this act."

Gifford contends that the Secretary of Elections and his committee overstepped their bounds in setting forth the regulation without "due consideration of the appropriate parties, thereby jeopardizing the well being and rights of those parties involved." He further contends that such action should have been passed with the consent of Senate.

President's Letter

Everyone is looking forward to the FSU-UF football clash this weekend and expecting the spirit of the game to exemplify the best in competitive attitude between the two schools.

To prevent any recurrence of last year's post-game demonstration on the field which was embarrassing to both institutions, all spectators are being required to stay off the playing field at all times.

Only authorized personnel are permitted access to the field at any time. Students not observing this requirement will be referred to the discipline committees of the respective schools.

Pep Rally Is Tonight

A Gator-Giggin' pep rally will be held in Westcott Circle tonight at 9 o'clock, Bill Harnage, head cheerleader announced.

It had previously been announced that the pep meeting would be on Landis Green.

In addition to the cheerleaders and the FSU Marching Chiefs band, speakers at the rally will be FSU Vice President John Champion the president of the FSU Alumni, Edward Eissey, and Coach Bill Peterson.

After the pep rally, there will be a snake dance, with music supplied by a combo.

A "Good Luck" message is being prepared and will be located on Landis Green, in a tepee operated by the Freshman Flunkies, Harnage added.

Any students who would like to wish the Seminoles well as they clash Saturday with the Gators may sign the message after 11 a.m. today. Student Body President Ken van Assenderp will deliver the "Good Luck" decree to the FSU team just before the game Saturday.

A Strong Stand

Urban senators and representatives have floundered in any attempts to come forth with a workable plan for adequately reapportioning the state. They have offered weak plans in a weak manner. The "Pork Chop Gang," which is anything but weak, has slapped down their suggestions.

This is certainly deplorable. "Pork Choppers" for years have controlled any reapportionment attempt so tightly that urban efforts have been futile.

But the "Pork Choppers" are not the only power block in the state now. Another voice, which may ultimately be the strongest, has spoken up and condemned their reapportionment. The other power block consists of the urban voters of the state.

URBAN LEGISLATORS, backed by the voters, now have the cards to demand that equality of representation be realized. They are in the position to put forth a strong, fair plan, and fight for its acceptance. Instead they are keeping their role of weak sisters and playing footsie with the majority block. Some of them are talking of supporting the block if it will back Gov. Bryant's plan for a 46 members senate.

Urban legislators, however, would be wise to recognize the wishes of their constituents. These voters smashed down the last proposal for reapportionment because of its inequalities. They may well do this again if their representatives compromise too much.

The second power block in the state, urban voters, are not going to look kindly upon legislators who fail to take a strong stand for their right to be equally represented.

FLAMBEAU NEWS SERVICES

TALLAHASSEE -- Governor Farris Bryant said yesterday he couldn't go along with any move that would take from the voters the right to ballot on legislative reapportionment. Considerable talk drifted around during the special session that the legislature should reapportion by statute, which requires only a simple majority vote, if the three-fourths majority required for a constitutional amendment cannot be marshalled behind any plan. Bryant's office said the re-affirmation of the Governor's position was asked by several newsmen. In the prepared statement, Bryant said he couldn't "Agree by the passage of a statute to withdraw from the consideration of the people of Florida the question of reapportionment.

"Their disapproval on November 6th spoke louder than the legislature, the courts or the administration. A decision was made by the legislature in August to submit this question to the people for a referendum and we cannot now, just because we disagree with the result of that referendum, withdraw it from them."

TALLAHASSEE -- A Dade County legislator told a House Committee yesterday that the urban fight for more representation was based mostly on principles and was not a dollars-and-cents matter. Small county legislators, in questioning representative Carey Matthews Jurior, showed they regarded reapportionment as a struggle over tax revenues.

Lumber Yard Veteran?

The other day, while fighting my way out of the History Building, I saw a striking sight. There flay-footing her way down the steps in front of me was a petit little sophomore all aglitter in her sorority pin, and dressed to the hilt in the latest of Philly phashions. She was my ideal for a beautiful and gracious young lady, except --- she walked as if she had loaded lumber in a lumber yard all summer. She made more noise and achieved a greater degree of angle with her feet than a 300 pound drunk.

Upon making the observation I chortled to myself [illegible] follow this petit [illegible] flapped her way [illegible] (though not merely to admire her walk). But my [illegible] stand the effect and I soon [illegible] to the ground sea sick.

The climax came [illegible] tured straight up to me with a hopping motion, got up real close looked me straight [illegible] said, "Tweet! Chirp!!" This was enough for me. I reeled home [illegible] hid!

Crouching in one corner of the darkest of closets, I cried to myself, "How can any female, who spends much time and many dollars on cosmetic crap, overlook something as important as the manner of walking? How can she hope to attract any of the gentlemens such as me if she looks like a cowboy from the distance?"

[illegible] will! I thought, so I peeked out my window at the sorority house near by to see if the coast was clear. AAAAaaaghhh!! There were fifteen girls carefully walking up and down the sidewalk. All of a sudden [illegible] to ring [illegible] lightning, and a [illegible] me. Then, instantly everything came quietly [illegible] bered no more.

When next I regained consciousness, a kindly nurse in a white blouse was leaning over me whispering, "The [illegible] a time of it. He's still quiveri[illegible] Then she turned around and walked away!!

Communism Class Adventure

I just got out of my Communism class. I love my Communism class. It is taught by my favorite professor: Dr. John McCotter. He is so smart, intelligent, and cute--so says the girl sitting beside me.

Something interesting happened in class last week. Dr. McCotter announced he had discovered a simple means of truly fighting Communism. I greatly rejoiced when I heard this; it would be perfect material for another one of my series on Communism. Just then he said something about "unimportant tripe" that clogs up the editorial page of the "Flambeau" with ideas on fighting the Commies.

I was greatly insulted and thus concluded that I would listen carefully to what he had to say so that I could find something wrong in his approach which would enable me to write a column against him, that is, against him next trimester when all the grades will be out and there will be nothing he can do about it except write a letter to the editor.

Dr. McCotter started his lecture on the fifty points of his simple solution. However, after the first thirteen points my pen ran out of ink. Before I could get a new cartridge in that... thing I had missed the next twenty-three points. (The trimester system has made the poor professor talk so fast these days.)

After class I asked the girl beside me if I could borrow her notes so I could pick up the points I missed. She merely said, " 'Unimportant tripe' columnist!" turned her nose up, and walked away. Confused, I walked off in the same direction, asking myself, "What do this McCotter got that I ain't got?" She seemed to overhear me and said, "Just read his columns in the 'Flambeau,' and you'll see." Well, Doc writes for the "Flambeau," too. Perhaps he will soon be writing his "simple article that will settle every major issue in the [illegible] today." We'll see! We'll see!

Flambeau Forum

To the Editor:

Friday night, I listened to Norman Thomas speak. I have long respected Mr. Thomas as an orator and a debator. He is the most eloquent spokesman for his point of view in the world.

I therefore did not hesitate to participate in the question and answer period that concluded his speech. I asked him to defend his position as to why, in a televised New York panel discussion, he stated his opposition to allowing Lincoln Rockwell, American Nazi leader, to speak in Union Square, while defending Gus Hall, chairman of the Communist Party in America, in his right to speak on college campuses.

A man whom I had never before encountered stood up before the audience and announced, "Mr. Thomas, there is a planned group here tonight asking you questions they have worked up in advance..."

At the very least, my implication as a part of a planned conspiracy to ask the speaker "loaded questions" was an erroneous, malicious and dangerous slander. My first instinct was to challenge him to substantiate the charge, but rather than further disrupt and embarrass the speaker, as this man had done, I had to relinquish the opportunity to vindicate myself of the slander.

Because the "Flambeau" is an objective though partisaned newspaper, I hope it will provide me the chance.

This man would no doubt disapprove of the tactics of Joe McCarthy and others. Yet in his ungrounded totally untruthful accusation, he has become a champion of those tactics.

Last summer, when a responsible fellow was in charge of the [illegible] People's Socialist League, I lent my time to them and their meeting facilities, not because I agreed with what they had to say but because I believed (and still do) in freedom of speech and freedom of association.

Because I knew and liked this person and defended his rights to his ideas, and he defended mine, I was accused by some of the more fervent rightists as "helping that Communist front."

Now this man is gone. [illegible] now runs YPSL. I would still help them if they came to me. Why? Because I still believe in those essential human values.

Nevertheless, some of the [illegible] are illiberal in the worst possible way. They demand objectivity from others and refute it for themselves. But there are the courageous few.

The president and vice president of Liberal Forum and most of its members who defend the rights of those with whom they disagree are representative of the rising new breed of honest liberals. They are to be congratulated. They deserve all our respect and admiration.

Witchhunting, namecalling, heckling, making absurd and baseless indictments is without justification, left or right. It is dangerous. It is unnecessary. It is despicable. It is insane.

Colberg: Human, Material Capital Needed

Dr. Marshall K. Colberg discussed "Human Capital as a Southern Resource" last night in a Presidential address before the Southern Economic Association meeting in [illegible].

Dr. Colberg is Professor of Economics and Head of the Department at FSU, has been on leave for the past two years doing research on a book on Human Capital.

In his talk Colberg dealt with the uses and misuses of people as an economic resource. He was particularly concerned with the development of an educated and economically more useful population, and noted many similarities between human capital and material capital. "Both are necessary for growth and development of the South, and both need to be conserved," he commented. His studies indicate that, with a few geographical exceptions, substantial policy changes may be needed if the South is to achieve its maximum economic potential.

Dr. Colberg said one of his findings is that the South's segregation of schools, coupled with the demand for universal public education, "seems to have stimulated a remarkable amount of investment in the education of colored women in the region." About 50 per cent more college degrees are being earned in the South by colored women than by colored men.

This development has been stimulated by the fact that the typical Southern negro school teacher earns nearly the same salary as Southern white teachers. This is in contrast with the situation in certain other areas where segregation is less complete, but economic discrimination is greater. "Thus there are strong economic reasons for suggesting that rapid desegregation in elementary schools and high schools is unwise," Colberg argued, "for it would contribute to the wasting of a valuable Southern resource--its educated negroes." It is unlikely that many teaching jobs will be available quickly to these persons in the North, which now employs relatively few non-white teachers."

Dr. Colberg also expressed concern over the development of Southern universities because of their special role in developing human capital and in attracting "human capital intensive' industries. He stressed that development of the South's university systems must be accelerated to enable effective competition with other areas of the nation.

He also suggested that particular attention needs to be paid to the fostering of adequate professorial staffs. "Heavy teaching loads which conflict with research and scholarly activity can cause an "erosion," rather than a growth, of professorial knowledge. This process can result in an "outmigration of human capital" from the South even without a movement of educated persons," he concluded.

Pall Mall Presents~

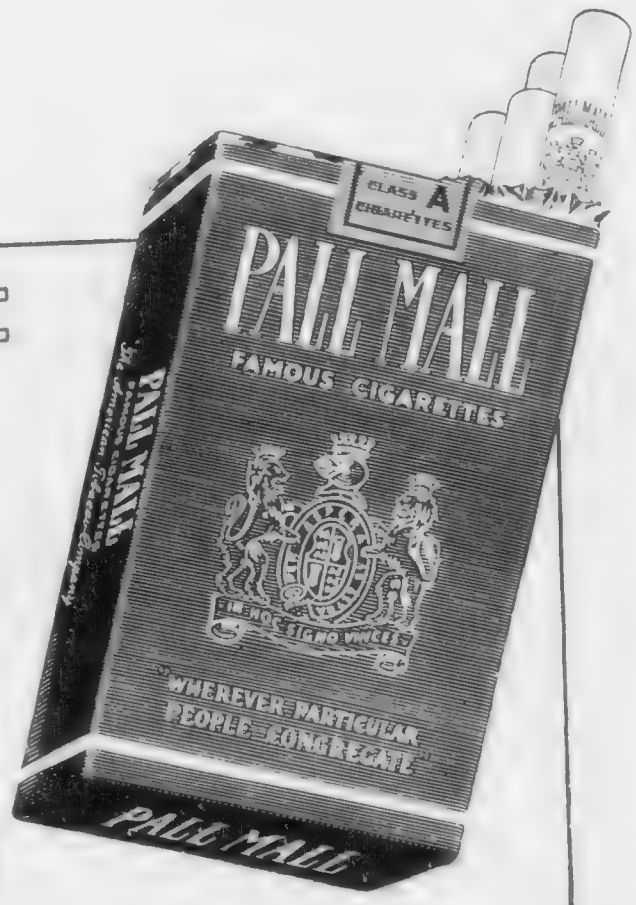
HIGH-FLYING GYM-DANDY



CAMPUS TYPE IV

Few sights in all the world of girl watching are as breathtaking as the unexpected observation of a Gym-Dandy in midair maneuver. Plato might well have had the Gym-Dandy in mind when he wrote, "When a beautiful soul harmonizes with a beautiful form, and the two are cast in one mould, that will be the fairest of sights to him who has the eye to contemplate the vision."

Although the Gym-Dandy is a joy to behold even while tightening the laces of her sneakers, she must be seen in action to be fully appreciated. The same thing is true of a Pall Mall. It's a long, firm cigarette in a handsome package, but it must be tasted to be fully appreciated. Try Pall Mall and see

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

Now in its second year, the AAUW program is supported by a $225,000 grant from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund. In 1962, 18 women attended 13 universities including Florida State University, Emory and the University of Houston, under provisions of this program.

Scholarships are open to women over 35 who live in the south and who want a career in college teaching, and can devote full time to study. Academic fields are generally in the arts and sciences area.

Approximately 90 institutions are participating in the program.

Applications may be made to Mrs. Thomas Kelsal, coordinator, College Faculty Program, 2401 Virginia Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Student Senate Hears Presidents' Letter

Student Senate was presented a letter from Bill Trickle, Student Body President of the University of Florida, and Ken van Assenderp, FSU Student Body President, yesterday concerning festivities at the FSU-UofF game this Saturday.

The letter invited all students to attend the presentation of Peter, Paul and Mary at 8 p.m. and the dance which follows. The highlight of the dance will be the presentation of the FSU-UofF football trophy to the victorious team.

The football trophy is a piece of the goalpost which was torn down last year by members of the FSU Student Body. It is now customary to engrave upon the attached plaque the names of the victors, and to present the winning school with the trophy.

Also to be presented to the winning team are the carved Seminole relics which have become a legend called "Makala." The "Makala" figures were donated to FSU and the UofF jointly, and are exchanged annually.

Included in the letter from the two student body presidents was the following statement: "We are proud that the past four years of football rivalry between our distinguished universities has created a mutual respect and appreciation on the part of the two student bodies. We know that all our fellow students will strive to continue this wholesome competitive spirit without degrading incident."

Chiefs Join Gators

The FSU Marching Chiefs will join the University of Florida Gator Band this Saturday for a combined performance during the pre-game show of the FSU-UF football game in Gainesville.

Both bands will play "Americans We" by Fillmore under the direction of Richard Bowles, director of the Gator band. Dr. Manley R. Whitcomb, director of the FSU band, will direct them in "The Star-Spangled Banner".

The Chiefs, led by drum major Rober McLendon, will perform a "Dixieland Jubilee." After moving down field to "The Suwannee River March," the band will perform a short precision drill to a sequence of "Dixie" and "Suwannee."

The band will form a large stage, while playing "Hot Time in the Old Town." Three minstrel acts will follow: a two-baton duet by the Garnet and Gold Girls, Beverly Calvert and Janice Freeman; to "Hello My Baby;" a soft shoe dance by the FSU majorettes, directed by Jo Ann Beazley, to "Shine On Harvest Moon; and a trombone number called "Lassus Trombone."

The minstrel sequence will draw to a close with a salute to fans of FSU and Florida.

Bartlett Writes On American West

A new book, "Great Surveys of The American West," by Dr. Richard A. Bartlett of the FSU history department was published this week by the University of Oklahoma Press as Volume 38 in its American Exploration and Travel Series.

A 90-year-old, partly destroyed diary which Bartlett found in the Library of Congress, helped him uncover details in the famous diamond hoax of the West. In one chapter of the book, Bartlett describes the diamond hoax as "the greatest fraud ever perpetrated in the West."

The fraud, perpetrated by prospectors who had seeded a remote valley in western Colorado with rough diamonds and rubies, was exposed in 1872 by scientists of the 40th Parallel Survey conducted by Clarence King.

According to the diary, King and his party learned of the area to which prospective investors had been brought and placed it under intensive examination.

"King soon announced the discovery of an interesting mathematical fact," said Bartlett. "Where there were a dozen rubies there was sure to be one diamond. Nature certainly didn't work like that, so they brought out their sieves and tried the earth that surrounded the table rock.

"They soon discovered that they could only find gems in places where the earth had been disturbed. Patches of soil that had not been touched in years, if ever, failed to yield anything more than quartz grains."

The evidence of fraud became conclusive when certain ant hills containing rubies were located, always with a footprint nearby and a hole in the side of the hill. Other undisturbed ant hills bore no rubies.

The 40th Parallel Survey, a survey of a 100-mile-wide area of the West along the route of the Union Pacific Railroad, is one of four government surveys of the West between 1867 and 1879 whose history is recounted for the first time in this new book.

The others are the surveys of the Yellowstone, leading to the establishment of Yellowstone National Park, by Ferdinand Hayden; the Colorado River basin exploration by the one-armed Major John Wesley Powell; and the survey by Lt. George M. Wheeler who mapped many of the important passes and peaks of the West. These survey groups eventually were merged in the U.S. Geological Survey.

Dr. Bartlett's interest in the government surveys began during research studies at the University of Colorado. He holds a B.A. and Ph.D. degree from that university and a master's degree from the University of Chicago.

Prior to coming to FSU in 19[illegible] Bartlett was an instructor at Texas A&M College and [illegible] information librarian with the Legislative Reference Service, Library of Congress.

Directly tied in with other areas mentioned is general knowledge, which plays a part of personality, skill, and growth. The communications field is looking for more than just a collection of facts housed in a human mind, Herp emphasized; it wants and needs enthusiastic young people with a love for their work and the desire to grow with it.

Herp said, "Most people find the word professionalism hard to define. It seems to me the difference between the amateur and the professional is one of discipline in dealing with the skills acquired in order to maintain high standards. "They (professionals) do not put on "company manners" only when faced with an important assignment and throw them off for the rest of the time. Without discipline one can never reach the status of a true professional."

Burton Speaks At McNeese

English language has become a significant weapon in the cold war, Dr. Dwight L. Burton, nationally prominent educator, declared at McNeese State College Friday night.

Speaking in the college auditorium at the first Fall Educational Conference sponsored by the McNeese division of education, the professor of English education at FSU said, the "linguistic front is as important as a militaristic front."

Noting that English is rapidly making progress toward becoming the international language, he asserted "there is no doubt that in linguistics the United States is ahead of Russia."

Keyed to the conference theme, "Trends in the Language Arts," Burton chose for his subject "English Language Learning in Today's Context."

He recommended that emphasis upon English language usage should be given "top priority" at elementary school level, and that formal analysis, an approach to language through grammar, be postponed until junior high school level.

He stressed that the study of language should be carried through the entire school system. "We cannot compartmentalize our English language," he asserted. "It is all-pervasive, a vehicle for our thinking, and as such should be taught not only in the English class, but in every class."

Burton cited as "three touchstones toward effective rhetoric," clear thinking, a desire to communicate, and control of skills to make communication effective.

On Saturday, Burton developed the theme "Literature and the Examined Life: Implications of Elementary and Secondary Teachers of English."

Pointing out that literature "has an important place in living," he discussed the teaching of literature from elementary grades through high school in terms of three dimensions: developmental, humanistic, and form.

Among developmental dimensions he cited literature as an aesthetic experience, a means of extending literal experience, an escapte or vicarious experience, and a synthesized experience contributing to an understanding of the complexities of human nature.

The humanistic dimension, he pointed out, involves consideration of literature as a means of understanding life and the fundamental concepts which have engrossed man through the years.

He cited the role that tales, fables, and folklore can play in early grades, classic and Norse mythology at a later level, and literature stressing the "concerns of man" for the junior high pupil.

At senior high school stress should shift to the major modes, romantic, comic, tragic-ironic, as they are employed to deal with human experience, Burton asserted, illustrating his points with reference to specific literary works.

Burton concluded with an analysis of literary form, such as poetry, the novel, or drama as a means of developing skills in perceiving meaning or gaining what he termed "imaginative entry" through which a pupil may use his experience to identify himself with the literature.

FSU Closes Grid Drills

The FSU Seminoles have been having hits and misses this week during drills in preparation for the University of Florida Alligators.

On Monday, the three teams ran through several new plays and phases of the kicking game. During the closed practice, the squads practiced in sweats.

This was the third time this season that the Tribesmen have shut the gates to outsiders. When they were preparing to meet the University of Kentucky and the University of Miami, Head Coach Bill Peterson locked the doors, in order to bar Hurricanes and Wildcats.

The psychological condition of the team has been bothering the FSU mentor just as much as the physical condition.

"I would say that the boys have a lot of confidence for this next game," he said Monday. The confidence came, of course, because of the 14-14 tie with the Georgia Tech Yellow jackets.

At the first of the week, Peterson was worried about the Seminoles possibly being cocky since they might be slightly favored in the Florida-FSU game. If so, "They will have to learn to play as a favored team," he said.

Against the Houston Cougars in Homecoming, the Seminoles were favored and lost, which bears out his fears. Since the, however, oddsmakers have tabbed FSU a six-point underdog, the closest predicted margin between the schools since the series began. (If FSU had been given an edge, it would have been the second time in its history that it had been favored over an SEC team.)

Florida, "a very unpredictable team," will have the advantage of a home field also, Peterson said.

Despite worries about over-confidence, Peterson said the team looked pretty good.

Racquettes Defeat Rollins Net Squad

In their first match of the trimester, the FSU Women's tennis club got off to an impressive start Saturday by trouncing a visiting Rollins College team, 15-0. Only four of the matches went three sets.

Gail DeLozier, defending the number one singles spot, defeated Rocky Sullivan, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3. Both of the coeds are long-time tennis competitors from Louisville, Kentucky. Kathy Spence, in the number two position, dropped the first set to Nancy Wilson, but rallied to win, 1-6,7-5, 6-2. Other results were Judi Dunn over Lin Morss 6-4, 6-2; Norma Moore defeated Ann Davidson 6-2, 6-1; Chris Padgett outlasted Judy Bond 3-6, 6-4, 6-3; Ann Lake took Vinnie McKinney 6-0, 6-0; Carol Ann Castell pulled a 6-1, 6-1 victory against Stevie Brewer; Linda Ingalls defeated Betsy Newton 6-0, 6-1; Rene Washington defeated Hope Glenn 6-1, 6-0; and Karen Oldenburg wrapped up the singles with a 6-0, 6-3 victory over Cindy Rush.

The visitors fared little better in the doubles competition. DeLozier and Spence stopped Sullivan and Wilson 9-7, 6-3; Dunn and Moore defeated Morss and Davidson 6-4, 3-6, 6-0; Lake and Gail Greene won over Bond and McKinney 6-1, 6-2; Padgett and Castell smothered Brewer and Newton 6-0, 6-0; Oldenburg and Kit Logan dropped Glenn and Rush 6-1, 6-4.

Baby Seminoles Slate Preview

The FSU freshman basketball team will give fans a sneak preview of the 1962 season at 8 p.m. tomorrow night in Dalle Tallahassee when they go against Gulf Coast Junior College in a pre-season game.

The Baby Seminoles, reputed to be one of the tallest and fastest frosh teams in FSU's history, will feature such cagers as Bill Phillips, a 6-8 center from Okeechobee, 6-7 forward Jim Wallace of St. Petersburg, and 6-7 forward Gary Schull of Pompano Beach.

WOOD PILE – John Wood

Are Seminoles Scared?

Are our ferocious football players scared?

They are if you take the word of the Sports Editor of the Florida "Alligator," Jared Lebow. In a "News Release" he left on the Flambeau Sports Desk during a Tuesday visit, he reported:

> A last minute plea by Eddie Feely to be released from this Saturday's game with the powerful Florida Gators was rejected by head coach Bill Peterson (sic). Feely was the 40th member of the FSU squad who has tried to quit since viewing films of the Florida-Auburn game.
> A minor revolt was quelled by the campus police last night when the players tried to leave the campus. The entire team was locked in their rooms and chained to their beds."

While we were reading this "news release," the Gator fan said, "Well, actually we are up here to see if any of the Seminoles want any scholarships to UofF."

"Say," we asked, "do you have any more Feely's or Russom's that we could steal from you?"

The subject was changed.

Like it or not, the Seminoles must play Florida this weekend. The team they will be facing is favored by seven points and has managed to trounce Auburn and Georgia in their last two games. They are unpredictable.

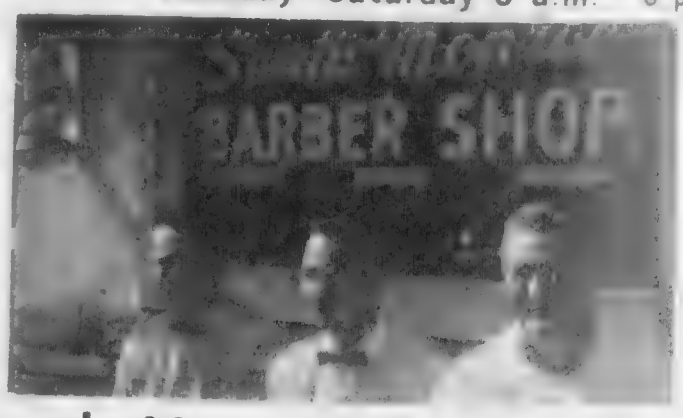
The tables this year appear to have turned. Last year, it was a fired up FSU team that held a more highly rated Gator band to a 3-3 tie. This year, from all indications, Florida appears to be the most fired up bunch, even though we have a consistently better team. Last week, they only beat the University of Georgia by eight points, because they were eyeing us for this week.

The one question which those of us who are interested in this school should face is whether this team can get "fired up" for the second straight week, after the rough season they have faced so far. Do the team members care enough about establishing a tradition within these ivy-covered walls, or having a winning season against all odds, or silencing the skeptics in the nation who explain away our victories, moral or otherwise, as luck?

If the team wins, it will be under consideration for the Gator Bowl again, after the loss to Houston at Homecoming had knocked them out of consideration. The team and the university will also achieve recognition as truly the equal of the other state universities, both in the minds of the people of this state and the press of this state. With a Gator scalp on our scalp-pole, we can be assured of at least equal space in Florida newspapers.

For five years now, Seminole supporters have been valiantly striving to achieve equality in the eyes of everyone. We have arrived nearer our goal every year now. This does not mean that we will lose the title of "that girls' school in Tallahassee," but it will sure do a lot to erase the aura of immaturity and will be a gigantic step to big-time football.

Well, my wish of last week came true. Most of the nation's college teams settled down to play like they should, including our own Seminoles, who played like the great team they are.



Last week, I was correct on 20 out of the 24 I tried for a weekly score of .833. This year I have hit home on 64 out of my 92 guesses for an average of .695. This percentage is only one point below my average for two weeks ago.

Thanks to a sports editor who goes crazy with a pair of scissors in his paws, several games were left out last week. One was prediction of FSU over Georgia Tech, and the other predicted a Wisconsin triumph over Northwestern. These were not included in the percentages, but were taken out of the sports editor's hide.

My predictions for this week are scheduled to appear in the Flambeau tomorrow, unless the editor finds his scissors in the Westcott pool.

Seminoles Offer Top Bounty For Gator Hides

The Florida State Seminoles will battle the University of Florida in the fifth annual FSU-UF football game tomorrow afternoon at 2 in Gainesville's Florida Field. Both teams go into the contest anticipating a victory that could insure them a winning season.

The Tribesmen, who have a 4-2-2 record, need only one more triumph, or even a tie, to push them into the win-season column, while the Gators are insured of a split season regardless of the outcome of Saturday's contest.

The predicted outcome, according to the oddsmakers, gives Florida a six-point margin, which is the smallest difference that the Gators have had since the series began, but both coaches rate the game a "horserace."

Coach Bill Peterson said that Florida will have the advantage of a home field, and the Gators three teams have been taking the game seriously for possibly the first time ever.

FSU's laurels have come in these contests: a scoreless tie with Kentucky, a 7-6 loss to Miami, an 18-0 triumph over Georgia, and a 14-14 tie with Georgia Tech. On the other hand, Florida has shown good ball-playing in these contests: a 19-9 win over Mississippi State; a 22-3 upset of Auburn, and a 23-15 win over Georgia.

Both teams have taken easy victories--FSU from The Citadel, Furman, and a tougher-than-expected Virginia Tech; Florida from Texas A&M and Vanderbilt.

Each team has met at least one heartbreaker. Florida State used the crying towel after the 7-0 loss with Houston, while the Gators saw a 21-9 halftime lead vanish in the 28-21 loss to Duke. Georgia Tech blanked UF, 17-0, and Louisiana State romped over the Gators, 23-0, in two games they were expected to lose.

Peterson made no changes in the lineups from last week's list, so the following will take to the field for the two-way Chiefs:

Florida's Coach Ray Graves has had a fair share of bad luck with injuries this season, but he is sending this group onto the field Saturday:

Driving Safely

Students attending the FSU-UF football game Saturday should exercise extreme caution while driving to and from Gainesville. Highways leading to that city will be clogged with fans from every part of the state.

It would be foolish, yea even trite to espouse such phrases as "If you drink, don't drive or if you drive, don't drink!" We know some FSU students will drink... and drive. We can safely assume that in spite of this, most will return unscathed, at least from activities along the highway.

However, we're a big university now--the odds have gone up. Odds-makers now say all of us won't make it back. Maybe it will be only one person, and he or she will only be slightly injured. It could be many and they might all be dead.

TALLAHASSEE-- The House Apportionment Committee has turned loose three proposals, throwing the whole tangled redistricting issue into a [illegible].

By dumping the plans onto the House floor, a deadlock could develop today and block passage of any legislative reapportionment plan.

The committee turned out a plan calling for 67 senators and 115 house members. A big group of small county house members is supporting [illegible].

The House committee also sent out a 36-senator, 135-representative proposal championed by many large county legislators led by representative Fred Karl of Volusia County and Carey Matthews Junior of Dade county.

Under ordinary circumstances, such a plan could not have emerged from the House committee but Karl spent most of the day lining up votes and seeking help from Governor Farris Bryant and House leaders.

Karl said since this was the first plan any substantial number of [illegible]-county lawmakers had ever rallied behind, it should be placed before the House membership for consideration. The committee agreed.

HAVANA- - Prime Minister Castro and Soviet Deputy Premier Mikoyan reportedly have ended their prolonged talks in Havana. And Castro has sent a message to acting secretary - General U Thant of the United Nations reflecting his position in light of the talks.

Sources in Havana say Castro has agreed in principle for making his five points a separate issue in the face of US demands for on-site inspection-- rather than pressing them. These five points include a demand that the United States give up the Guantanamo Navy Base.

NEW YORK-- At the UN sources say Castro threatened to shoot down any US reconaissance plane flying over Cuba.

The UN chief executive summoned chief US delegate Adlai Stevenson and gave him the contents of Castro's statement. And Stevenson arranged to meet last night with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Kuznetsov.

Thomas Riggins

Socialism Not A "Dirty Word"

Florida State University and the student body at large were privileged a few days ago by the opportunity of hearing Norman Thomas speak on our campus. The leader of the Socialist Party in the United States spoke on the subject of man's survival in the thermonuclear age. The audience responded by giving the Socialist leader three [illegible] ing ovations. When the speech was over the the speaker and his audience had gone their separate ways, what effect could we say had been produced? I for one would think that to a great many people who heard Dr. Thomas the term "Socialism" would seem a lot less dirty. What Dr. Thomas had done was to present his views on a complicated current issue--views shaped and formed on the foundations of Democratic Socialism such as are expressed by the leading Socialist group in the United States. To many people likely to equate socialism with communism and thus to build up an intense dislike for socialism, Norman Thomas' visit and his lecture seemed to be a revelation. The term "Socialism," which has heretofore received a harsh hand for any and all far-left radical proposals, [illegible] parties, [illegible] "Socialists," became in need of a new working definition. The question asked of Socialists now is, "What sort of socialist are you?" rather than, "Are you a socialist?" Many people have remarked that after hearing Thomas speak they were much more sympathetic to socialism and did not think it could be "dirty" at all.

The American brand of Democratic Socialism, as expressed by the SP-SDF and YPSL, under the leadership of Norman Thomas, 1) is dedicated to building a society at the service of human needs, 2) is hopeful of doing this by means of social ownership and democratic control of production and distribution, 3) is opposed to all minority social rule such as capitalism and communism, 4) supports the voluntary participation of all people, regardless of race, creed, or national origins, in building the type of society we all wish.

What Thomas' visit leaves us with is the hope that no term be [illegible] restrictive, yes or even [illegible] to any broad set of [illegible] political [illegible] that is [illegible] impression.

Norman Thomas had a great effect on listeners. To [illegible] to talk with a great [illegible] one who has given the service of [illegible] orable event to [illegible] anywhere.

Dobson Gets 'Idealist' Tag

To the Editor:

Mr. Dobson: After hearing you air your "conservative" views in a debate with Socialist Tom Riggins, [illegible] the Liberal Forum, I could not but admire your courage and conclude that you, sir, are an idealist.

Do you really expect persons who are accustomed to leaning on someone else or on some governmental body to learn "to stand on their own feet"? Do you really expect special-interest groups to put aside their selfish aims for the good of the country? Do you earnestly believe that the day is coming when radical utopians will admit that human society is not only imperfect but imperfectible, that the fault is not in our institutions but in ourselves, and that "if man would cultivate the individual virtues, social problems would take care of themselves"?

Come now, Mr. Dobson, don't you realize that ideals are to be speculated on and thought about, not to be tested and tried, not to be put into practice? Tell me, Gerry, how does it feel to be an idealist living in the midst of (ugh! I shudder to use the term) realists?

Sign Letters

The "Flambeau's" policy on acceptance of letters to the editor has been published frequently on this page. We have attempted to encourage students to voice their opinions and to print as many of their views as possible. Some letters submitted by students have not been published, however, and questions have been raised as to the reason.

Our policy statements make it clear that all letters must be signed by the author.

When it is specifically requested and the situation warrants such consideration the letter will be printed with a signature line of "name withheld."

University To Expand Into Smokey Hollow

"The University must have room to expand and we must help. It is our second largest industry." said City Commissioner Sam Teague. Thus initiated the plans for the expansion of the Florida State campus area.

The university is considering the area between Woodward and Copeland streets and between West Tennessee and Brevard streets. All totaled this adds up to six blocks above Tennessee and four blocks deep, north from Tennessee.

The city commission, upon the request of FSU Pres. Gordon W. Blackwell, said it will apply for federal funds to survey the area.

The campus development in this area would not include commercial enterprises, according to Louis Cook, city planner, who is coordinating plans between the City and the University. As Cook is now working on the Smoky Hollow urban renewal project, work on the FSU survey will not begin until after Jan. 1.

APPLY IN JANUARY

At any rate, preparation of the data required for the application for federal funds will take about a month, because the eligibility of the area for urban renewal must be documented, Cook commented. The application must also include a tentative budget covering acquisition and reuse of the area, and tentative appraisals of the land of intended reuse.

Football Concert Set Tonight In G'ville

The combined University of Florida and FSU Men's Glee Clubs will present a Football Concert in the University Auditorium at Gainesville Friday at 7:30 p.m.

This marks the first time the two Universities have joined choral groups in presenting a concert, according to Mr. Guy B. Webb, director of UF's Singing Gators. Planned as a cultural exchange with the FSU Collegians, directed by Dr. Ramon E. Meyer, the concert will present outstanding literature in male glee club repertoire.

A highlight will be a medley of school songs at the close of the program by the combined forces of 80 voices. The medley was arranged and will be conducted by Mr. Richard D. Powell, a graduate student in composition at FSU and assistant conductor for the Collegians.

Centered around Stephen Foster's well-known song, "Way Down Upon the Suwannee River," are familiar songs of campus life at both Universities: "Orange and Blue", "A Hymn to the Garnet and the Gold," "We are the Boys from Old Florida," "The FSU Fight Song," "Fighting Gator March," and "Garnet and Gold."

The Glee Clubs will each be heard in separate groups of classical selections and in songs of a lighter vein. The Collegians will present numbers by Vittoria, Christiansen, Vaughn Williams, Gaines, Thomas, and selections from Leonard Bernstein's West Side Story. In their first group they will sing two selections from Randall Thompson's "Testament of Freedom," with words by Thomas Jefferson.

The Singing Gators will sing many of the numbers they recently presented on a fall tour to St. Petersburg, Orlando, and Sarasota. Works by Hassler, Handel, Berlioz, Purcell, Persichetti, Luboff, Cassler, Ferguson, a 15th Century French Song, and "Brahm's "Lieder und Romanzen" for male chorus will be heard.

Center of the conflict is the love of both the elder son and the father for the voluptuous blond mistress that each wants. When the father is killed, blame falls on the eldest son.

Freshman Grid Squad Seeks First Victory Tonight From Furman

By SHIRLEY HARDISON
Flambeau Sports Writer

A squad of Baby Seminole footballers traveled to Greenville, S.C., yesterday in pursuit of their first win of the season. Under the coaching of Bill Proctor, the freshman team of 1962 is facing Furman, one of the heaviest teams on their schedule, but the Florida Staters outweigh their opponents in poundage and running ability.

The FSU team, which was to "firm up and have lots of potential" for the season, is in the spotlight in South Carolina, under the leadership of quarterbacks Buddy Blankenship and Elton Revell.

Proctor is new in the coaching field at Florida State; he was handed the freshman team approximately three days before the opening game with Mississippi Southern and feels that the loss suffered by the team, combined with the tie with the Miami frosh "aren't indicative of the kind of talent here at this time" and that the "team actually had better talent than their opponents."

The probable starting lineup for the game tonight has Max Wettstein and Elton Jones at end; Larry Strobal and James Stone will down tackles for the contest. They are joined on the line by guards David Logan and David Pitts, while the center position id downed by Jay MacMathews. The backfield includes quarterbacks Blankenship and Revell; halfbacks Andy Nobles and Howard Ehler, while the fullback is scheduled to be Ken Frazier.

This will be the last game of the season for the Baby Seminoles as well as for the Baby Paladins.

Alligators Are Different Team

FSU is not playing the same team that Georgia Tech played in that 17-0 contest earlier this season in Gainesville.

FSU Head Coach Bill Peterson said, "Florida is not the same team they were earlier. It is a team which has improved from week to week. Their defense, particularly against running, has been one of the most impressive things about them. And they have the enviable knack of getting 'up' for a big game. We expect anything and everything from Coach Graves' team--and believe me, I have the greatest respect for the job that man has done this year."

Placement Continues Next Week

Seniors and graduates who haven't picked up a 1963 College Placement Annual may do so at any time, in the Placement Office, Room 08 Longmire.

The occupational directory which lists approximately 2,000 employers who recruit on college campuses, is free of charge.

The Placement Office also has secured reprints of the Recruitment Advertising Section of the "Boston Sunday Herald."

Monday and Tuesday, representatives of the Gril Scouts of America will interview women interested in professional scouting. Ashcraft-Wilkinson Company will interview business and liberal arts majors interested in sales on Monday.

To be eligible for interviews, students should register with the Placement Office and pick up company literature.

America's sixth largest Life Insurance Company and twentieth largest corporation is installing a special Sales Training program in the Tallahassee area. Junior, Senior, Graduate or Veteran men who have at least one academic year to complete before graduation and are over 21 may apply.

Jazz Concert Set For Sunday Night

A Jazz Concert will be sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha, Men's honorary music fraternity, Sunday at 4 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Peterson Says Tribes Are Calm And Determined

What does the 1962 game mean?

The Gator Bowl Committee in Jacksonville said that the winner will be considered for a bid in the Dec. 29 post season game.

The winner will be given two awards, the Governor's Cup and the Makala Trophy. The Tallahassee Quarterback Club presents the cup, which was held for half a year at FSU and half a year at Florida last year. The West St. Petersburg Exchange Club presents the Makala Trophy, which is a 200-year-old Indian carving.

A win could give either Florida, which has a 3-0-1 series record, a greater lead over the Seminoles in the series, or it could let the Seminoles grab their first football triumph over Florida.

The trend seems to be pointing towards a FSU victory. In the first contest in 1958, the Gators finished, 21-7, but not before Bobby Renn returned a kick to set up the lightning-fast first TD of the game.

EDDIE FEELY

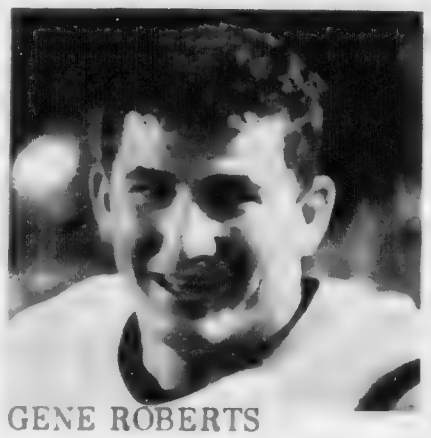
In 1959, the Gators prevailed, 18-8, in the last big victory.

In 1960, Florida had to use a toe specialist to defeat the Seminoles. as it barely came out on top, 3-0. The next year, both teams used field goads to knot the score at 3-3. It had become the time of moral victories for the Seminoles.



And the term "moral victories" is what caused many people to think that this could be FSU's year to win. Although the oddsmakers say that UF had a touchdown margin, because of its rougher schedule, FSU has been given a better chance to win by non-gamblers--especially after the "moral victories" over Tech, Miami, and Kentucky.

Peterson said, "How a group of 20-year-old men can be so calm and determined over a game this big has me puzzled, but that's how ours have been all week. I worried Sunday that everybody would get cocky about the 14-14 tie with Tech, but apparently our men realize the tremendous job ahead of them and sworn to dedicate themselves to it--forgetting everything else that happened previously."

Regardless of the outcome, Peterson said, "I am conviced that this is a very, very good football team... nothing will change my mind about that."

The season captain for the Seminoles has been McDowell, but the little fox, Eddie Feely, will be game captain when he plays before a hometown crowd.

In this contest, Feely has a chance to hurl for 95 yards needed to match the career mark of Joe Majors. Feely trails Majors, 1-649 to 1,554, in most yards passing. Feely has already rewritten two Seminole records, total career offense and pass completions in a career.

GENE ROBERTS

. . . top rusher

However, Saturday's spectators will also have to keep their eyes on quarterback Steve Tensi of the offensive Warriors. Tensi took the passing lead for a season away from Feely in the Georgia Tech contest. The big one that gave him a total of 659 yards, as compared to Feely's 612 yards, was a 28-yard aerial to end Fred Biletnikoff, who ran 66 yards to the goal.

Tensi has hit on 47-of-91 attempts for five touchdowns, while Feely has been on target 45-out-76 times for four touchdowns.

On the ground, Peterson's top gainer is Gene Roberts, a fullba the Warriors. Roberts has 247 yards for a 4.4 scored a safety.

Florida, however, is not w its threats. Seminoles their eyes stepped on it against the He has tallied two touchdow was name day by state sports writers. seaso yards for a 5.9 average, wh good enough for first place Southeastern Conference.

Tankers Slate Competition In AAU Meet

By SETH BRAMSON
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State's swimming Seminoles leave today for New Orleans to participate in the Southern AAU's in New Orleans. The meet will be held at the Tulane University pool and will be attended by teams throughout the south. A number of Southeastern Conference teams will be represented at the meet.

Fourteen swimmers will make the trip along with assistant coaches Paul Thompson and Denny Flendreau, and head coach Bim Stults. The swimmers participating include Dick Acosts, Ron Bissland, Tom Brandley, Mark Cohen, Pete Combs, P. Davis, R. Davis, Gene Dayton, Bob Durocher, Doug Kruger, Bill Lawrence, Jim Mullaly, Paul Neff, Risto Pyykko, Dale Smith.

According to assistant coach Flendreau, "It looks real good for FSU to take the meet. We figure to do real weel in most events and should not be hampered by te drive over to New Orleans."

At the same time, Coach Stults made public the swimming schedule for 1962-63. Stults said, "We have one of our toughest schedules in years. We are working hard and really pushing, and a good season should be in order. I don't want to be over optimistic, though, because we do face some really strong teams."

The frosh will swim in meets before the two Florida meets and possibly in the Georgia AAU's. They may swim other schools that have freshmen teams. Georgia Military Academy and state high schools could also very likely be foes of this year's frosh.

LETTER PRAISES TRIBE EFFORTS

A letter from the land of Yellowjackets:

To the Editor:

I would like to give my sincere congratulations to Coach Bill Peterson and the Florida State football team on possibly the biggest game they have ever played against Georgia Tech last Saturday. It was definitely the finest team effort I have ever seen in football.

Being a transfer student to Tech from Florida State, FSU really made me proud. The team has had a sensational year, needless to say, and it could very well finish up the year with wins over Florida and Auburn. I wish them all the luck.

Denson Sees Hate Campaign During Saturday's Big Game

Let Nov. 17 go down as the day that FSU lost, 20-7, to the University of Florida and the day that UF showed that it does want to win against FSU. In the past, the Gators have walked to the stadium with a patronizing air about them and smugly said, "Oh, yes, I suppose a victory over Florida State would be nice, more or less." There was none of this indefiniteness in the Hate FSU campaign that the Gators carried on all week long.

For the first time, Seminole fans saw "Stew FSU" stickers on the bumpers of G-ville autos. The same battle cry had been burned into the grass near the FSU end zone.

At pep rallies, the Gators has breathed their "hatred" of Florida State. Their student body president assured them that UF would beat the hell out of FSU. Not too many people cheered when he said so, but when a Gator gridder said the same thing, the crowds responded nicely.

(Only a handful of football players appeared at the pep rally with Gator coach Ray Graves. It is said that he appeared embarrassed.)

At this rally, a cheerleader shouted to the crowd, "We'll show those girls in the endzones," thus rubbing in the fact that FSU was once FSCW and that Florida purposely gave the Seminoles the worst seats in the house.

It was a suspenseful day, for the Gator publicity office apparently believes in "whisper campaigns." During most of the first half, the board was hay-wire, and no one in the end zones could tell what down it was or how much time was left.

The student newspaper built up to a frantic frenzy with many sports articles pointing out that the fourth FSU team was the Squaws, that Ray Graves would try to keep the score down, that FSU was a special threat because it had various emblems painted on its helmets, that Sammy Seminole had been hanged several times in effigy. The Alligators' editorial pointed out that girls would riot at football games, but that proper suave Gators would not take to the field. A cartoon by Orange Peel editor emeritus had this caption be-

They're here at last!

Student - Faculty directories will be put on sale Monday and Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., for 75¢ each.

Cabaret Artists, Marc et Andre, Due Soon

Two young French cabaret singers will appear in Opperman Auditorium Dec. 3 under sponsorship of the Modern Languages Dept.

"Marc and Andre," two popular young vocalists who do their own arrangements, will present the show as part of thier current American tour. The program, comprised of two parts of approximately 45 minutes each, will be drawn from a large repretoire of folk songs, "chansons francaises," and modern songs.

A French newspaper, "France Observateur," said of the duet: "These two singers, who are also actors, have something to say, something which expresses with as much humor as sensitivity, the absurdity of today's world, and that certain kind of tenderness which humanity nonetheless inspires. In this under taking, Marc and Andre have found a personal style, apparently characterized by cold irony, under which one easily detects the true heart beat."

Tickets will be on sale in Westcott Ticket Office and from modern languages students at $1 for students and $1.50 for non-students.

Flambeau Editorials

Administrator's 'Duty'

No roses will be cast at the feet of President John Allen of the University of South Florida for his action in reinstating recently ousted professor Sheldon N. Grebstein. Through reinstatement Dr. Allen was correcting a wrong he had committed. For this he should receive no praise.

The continuing controversy over academic freedom has revealed the need for more effective leadership in our colleges and universities to protect their faculties. This job naturally falls to university administrators. It is true that much of their time and energy is consumed by coordination and supervision of the administrative functions required to operate a university. However, they are charged not only with shuffling papers, selling the needs of the university to the public and hiring teachers, but they must also create an atmosphere wherein classroom educators can utilize to the fullest their time and talent in education of the youth of America.

In one Florida university that atmosphere has been destroyed by the continuing threat of political intimidation and faculty knowledge that the administration will yield to the pressure. In other universities the questions 'how safe is my position?' . . .'will the administration yield to intimidation?' have immediately arisen.

Classroom educators from every part of the state united in indignation at Dr. Grebstein's dismissal. By their own form of intimidation the administration of the University of South Florida has been forced to yield once more, thankfully in the right direction.

One of the gravest duties and responsibilities of university administrators is to protect the dignity, security and right of its faculty. If they fail in that capacity it will not be necessary for 'special legislative investigating committees' to function in destroying our educational system. It will crumble of its own volition.

'Live On Knees Or Die On [illegible]et'

A funny thing happened to me on my way to Dame Judith Anderson's performance: I was stopped by a serious looking lady at the lobby of Westcott auditorium and told to go back home, change my sweater, and put on a coat and tie if I wanted to see Dame Anderson perform. Needless to say, I did not see Dame Anderson perform.

A long list of reasons were offered by the serious looking lady, obviously following instructions, to bar me from attending the performance without coat and tie: It was semi-formal. Instructions had appeared in the "Fow Wow" regarding attire. What impressed me more, final decision had been reached by the Dean of Men's office on what the students were to wear at Dame Anderson's appearance.

At this moment, I declare my complete ignorance on the "Fow Wow" issue. In respect to the instructions emanated from the Dean of Men's [illegible] attire, I feel that they affect my intellectual freedom as a registered student at this university, aside from considering them a product of middle class snobbery, with no place in an institution of higher learning whose ultimate goal is to achieve that status of "a great university."

If there is going to be defiance and gallant stands against the John's Committee, let it be a stand in favor of the individual who refuses [illegible] wearing a piece of cloth on his cl[illegible] of respectability and knowledge. If the "Harvardians" want to wear sneakers and "blue jeans" at a piano recital, let them; and let this be outside the jurisdiction of the Dean of Men's Office.

I strongly believe that an artist [illegible] Dame Judith Anderson would [illegible] by the sight of a sweater, or [illegible] for that matter, in Westcott auditorium the night of her performance. I doubt that Da[illegible] as small as those who are trying, [illegible] way, to make this "a great university" as the phrase goes.

'Academic Freedom' Forgets Parents

My "academic freedom" has been impinged. I am now being told that because I am a student at Florida State University, I am part of a "firm, united front behind the administration in the current fight to [illegible] ers." This quotation is from the opening statement of a Flambeau [illegible] pearing in the issue of November [illegible] beau editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student [illegible] ..."

very reason I object to the implication of the said editorial and to [illegible] passed by the Student Senate like a dose [illegible] ution nor the editorial speaks for me. I have read the Board of Control directives and am in perfect accord with it. I applaud the actions of both the Board of Control and the Legislative Investigation Committee. Those professors and students who feel that a university [illegible] control in matters directly relating to their behavior and the quality of their instruction, etc. are forgetting the role that a lot of common, ordinary mammas and papas play in the purview of higher education. If their Johnny is going to read literature profuse with four-letter words, they would at least prefer that it not be made a part of his classroom instruction. The statement that "the function of a uni[illegible] how to think -- not what to think, to educate -- not to indoctrinate" sounds fine. YAF. Student Poll Defended

To The Editor:

We should like to correct some misconceptions held by Robert Jordon in regard to the recent student opinion poll conducted by Young Americans for Freedom.

The poll was not, as implied by Mr. Jordan, "Gerry Dobson's poll," [illegible]t represented the thoughts and efforts of many members of YAF. In sponsoring the poll, a YAF intended no sinister conservative plot, but attempted to make the poll as objective as possible, and to report the results in an accurate and fair manner.

The purpose of the poll was not of a partisan nature. YAF was attempting to create more interest in pol[illegible]

[illegible] Editor:

If, as Robert Jordan claims, Gerry Dobson has been conducting unilateral polls, then this is startling news to young Americans for Freedom. . . .

The pollw as an opportunity for students to register anonymous answers to straightforward questions dealing with vital issues of the day. . .

YAF is not organized to throw a protective cordon of jack-booted storm troops around the university to defend against red infiltraters; and certainly we are no about to dabble in socialist techniques of people control through the registrars office or any other agency.

Briefly YAF is part of a national organization of American interested in sound conservative principles of government with emphasis on attainment of a proper well balanced perspective of the relationship between the government and the governed. Among other things YAF is concerned with the Red threat to our way of life.

Honor Court Upholds Elections Com., Gifford To Present Expense Statement

Elections Committee's action ...ard to establishing rules and ...ning elections was ...ld by the Honor Court last ...day night.

...charges were brought against ...committee by Marshall Gifford, ...student. He charged that the El...ns Committee had overstepped ...boundaries in stating that students who did not submit to the Secretary of Elections a statement saying that they had complied with the campaign expense limit would not be issued a certificate of elections.

Statute 705-C states that, "The Elections Committee shall, by and with the consent of the President, have the authority from time to time to issue, amend, or rescind suitable regulations to carry out the provisions of this act."

Gifford contended that the Elections Committee had the power to enforce statutory amendments, but not to create new rules and regulations which would ...amendments. "It is superfluous and converse to what the Senate meant and not in the best interest of the students," Gifford said.

The Elections Committee contended that they were not amending the statutes, but rather supplementing it. They further argued that submitting such a statement was not a hardship to the candidates. "There has been no way to penalize over-spending, which is another problem," Ron Jones contested.

The Honor Court concluded and declared that the regulation of the Elections Committee was suitable because the action was instrumental to the Committee in their functions; the purpose was to use the expense accounts as a means of investigating the way money is spent during the elections; and it was a regulation enforced during one election and not made a binding part of the Statutes.

Fightin' Gators Tromp Seminoles, 20-7

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Sports Editor

The University of Floirda decisively reversed a trend Saturday afternoon when they exploded in the third quarter to surge ahead of Florida State, 20–7, in the fifth annual FSU–UF game.

This quarter gave UF Coach Ray Graves a winning season (6–3 to date), and gave the Gators a 4–0–1 lead in the FSU–UF series.

But Florida State students thought this was their year when they saw the Seminoles chalk up the first touchdown of the game in the second quarter.

For pure showmansip, hardly any other part of the game could match this first FSU score. In the first play of the second quarter, the Tribesmen were rooted at the 50 yard line. and the Chief quarterback, Eddie Feely, began the first of several spectacular plays.

Fading back, he saw that the Gators were rushing hard, but escaped by running around left end for 16 yards and a first down at the Gator 34.

Fullback Dave Snyder charged three times with the ball to move the Seminoles to the 24, but, on the last run, fist flew a few seconds after Gator quarterback Larry Libertore knocked Snyder out of bounds. The officials decided that Snyder was in error and penalized the Tribes to the 39.

Once again Feely went into action. With precision blocking by halfback Keith Kinderman, the Little Fox scooted from the 39 to the 25 in 14-yard run. Kinderman hit the line for two yards, and then a pass fell incomplete.

At this point, FSU was charged with an offsides penalty, and left the Tribesmen in a fourth down situation at the Gator 29. Coach Bill Peterson who has conservatively ordered punts in most fourt down situations decided to go for it.

And this is where the showmanship came in.

Feely went back to pass, but he was being charged around the right. Quickly he ran to the left, shaking loose a Gator who had grabbed his leg, and then, noting a receiver down field, he quickly shot a 25-yard pass at the last second.

Downfield Ken Russon was waiting for the ball, but as he ran to catch the aerial, he was hit across the knees. Diving through the air, the ball bounced in his outstretched hands. He caught the ball when the pigskin began its second bounce.

Sitting on the four-yard line, Kinderman ran for no gain, but UF helped out with a five-yard offsides penalty. The ball was moved to the two, and then Kinderman stepped over right tackle for six points with 11:03 left in the second act. Doug Messer added the PAT when he split the uprights.

Later in the quarter, UF's Bob Hoover returned a Charlie Calhoun punt to the Seminole 21. Then he stepped off six yards, and Larry Dupree pushed on down to the nine. Avery Sumner charged through to catch Jim O'Donnell for a loss, and the Gators were stopped two plays later. Sophomore Jim Hall was going to attempt a fourth down field goal, but FSU captain Gene McDowell made a hole in the line and blocked the kick.

The next Gator effort in the second, however, netted a TD. This came after Bruce Starling reconvered an FSU fumble on the 25. After Dupree lost two on a run, quarterback Tom Shannon hit Tom Kellyn at the 15.

FSU led, 7–6, in the half and it was still anybody's ball game, but in the third quarter the outcome was decided.

After Frank Lasky broke through the line and caught Feely for a 15-yard loss, Calhoun punted a 30-yarder into the wind. Clarke grabbed it at the 37 and picked up blockers as he ran to the sidelines, where he was preceded by a phalanx of Gators. They easily knocked aside the last Seminole between the goal and the Gators Clarke broke the backs of FSU with a 63-yard punt return.

The third Gator TD came on a sustained drive from the UF 35. In 10 plays, the longest being an 11-yard pass, the Gators snipped off short yardage. A run over left tackle by Ron Stoner gave the Gators the TD, and Shannon ran for the two-points. The scoreboard registered, 20–7, the final score.

FSU was predicted to lose by only one touchdown instead of two, and for a while it appeared that the Tribesmen would bounce back and cut down the scoring margin.

After the Gator kickoff, the Warriors exploded with a series of passes, with quarterback Steve Tensi hitting ends Hank Sytsma and Fred Biletnikoff and halfback Winfred Bailey.

A pass from Tensi to Biletnikoff moved FSU to the 13 and he was nailed four yards later by [illegible] Dodd. Then [illegible] to the seven.

neath a drawing of a Gator patting the head of a curly-haired girl who was pulling at the UF goal post: "No, no, Honey. First downs don't count. You've got to score."

During the week, word leaked out that the cheerers were cooking up something special.

When the two teams came onto the field for the warmups Saturday, the "special" was revealed. UofF, which has imitated Florida State in the three-team system, a football game devoted to the legislature, etc., had tried to duplicate FSU's Sammy Seminole... because the "special" surprise was a student dressed in a black Gator costume, having a large red tongue. Unlike Sammy Seminole, the Gator didn't flip, but just looked lethargid--much like the original lizard that was sleeping beneath the Century Tower.

What kind of day was it, as far as the spectators were concerned?

In addition, the loudspeakers weren't speaking too well and few Seminoles knew what the referees were throwing flags for and who was carrying the ball.

For about four minutes of playing time, the clock showed one second left in the first half.

At the halftime, the Marching Chiefs retained their record of never losing a halftime show. Although one Marching Chief said the show went off better when it was first performed in Atlanta, the FSU group nonetheless exhibited better marching and musicians.

UF, dressed in gaudy blue suits with orange capes (vaguely resembling musical "Supermen"), strutted with porcelain-colored tubas and "cute" yellow balloons, which floated into the air at the end of their Disney-like routine.

School spirit lifted its head when each university souted its respective cheers--UF hollered "Go, Gators, Go," the high-schoolish "Two Bits," "Florida State, Gator Bait," etc. FSU fans shouted, "Freshmen Flunkie," "Scalp 'Em," "What's for Sale, Gator Tail," etc.

It was evident that spirit remained on the field throughout the game. Seminoles flipped through the air trying to block punts, a few bouts of fisticuffs broke out, Gainesville QB Eddie Feely was playing halfback with the Warriors, and then he went in as a defensive quarterback in his last game before a hometown crowd.

When the contest ended, Florida coach Ray Graves shook hands with Feely on the field as did FSU's Bill Peterson and then the two coaches congratulated each other on "games well played." While the mentors talked to reporters, the UF team imitated FSU once more by running through the goal posts to their dressing room.

Committee Studies Honor Bill Today

The Judicial Rules committee of the Student Senate will meet today at 4 p.m. to consider arguments concerning a bill which would provide a prosecutor in cases brought before the Honor Court, and would make available a defense cousel to any defendant asking it.

The bill, introduced in Student Senate by Gene Brown, Men's Vice President, would amend certain sections of the Student Body Statutes dealing with the Honor Court.

Bill Grant, chairman of the Judicial Rules committee, explained that major changes which would be effected if this bill were passed would be:

(1) The Attorney General of the Student Body would serve as prosecutor and investigator for the Student Body in all cases before the Honor Court. At the present time, there is no provision for a prosecutor; the court acts as prosecutor and tries the defendant too.

(2) A defense counsel and three assistant defense counsels would be provided, who would serve at the request of any student requesting assistance in preparing and presenting his case before the Honor Court. They would be appointed by a committee consisting of the dean of students, the heads of Government, History and Business Law Depts., and the president of the student body.

Under present regulations, a defendant can choose a person to speak for him, or one of the justices of the Honor Court may be appointed by the Chief Justice to speak in behalf of the defendant.

Grant said that Ross McVoy, chief justice of the Honor Court, sees the present court system as constructed under the premise of building the moral character of the student being tried, rather than prosecuting him. The bill under consideration would alter this somewhat, and, according to McVoy, might tend to take the defendant's mind from the moral lesson of the Court, and place the emphasis on the abilities of the prosecutor and the defense attorney.

Grant added that he believed Brown's purpose in drafting the bill was to put "more punch" into this part of the honor system.

The chairman of the Judicial Rules committee said that no decision will be made on the bill today, but that the purpose of the meeting is to allow the parties involved to present their views, so that the committee can "hash it out."

Lacayo Writes On Spanish

Dr. Heberto Lacayo, associate professor of Spanish, is the author of a booklet on variations in pronunciation of the Spanish language in his native country, Nicaragua, which has just been published by Universidad Iberoamericana in Mexico.

The 33 page booklet represents several years of work. During two summers he spent some 16 weeks in Nicaragua interviewing residents in various regions for comparisons of their pronunciation.

Field work for collection of data for the publication was sponsored by the FSU Research Council. Working with a magnetic voice recorder he brought back many voice samples of Nicaraguan Spanish.

The booklet is part of a linguistic atlas of languages spoken in America that is being compiled under the sponsorship of the American Linguistic Society. Professor Emeritus Tomas Navarro of Columbia University, director of the linguistic atlas project, has praised Lacayo's publication.

Entitled "Come Pronuncian el Espanol en Nicaragua," the booklet is concerned with both the pronunciation and intonation in Spanish spoken in Nicaragua. Lacayo plans to publish later notes he has recorded about vocabulary and syntax in Nicaragua.

Lacayo joined the FSU Modern Languages faculty in 1948. Prior to that he served as chairman of the Spanish Dept. at Russell Sage College, Troy, N.Y., and on the faculties of Syracuse University and University of Southern California.

He received the bachelor of sciences and letters in 1921 at the Institute Nacional, Nicaragua; M.A. in Spanish at the University of Southern California in 1929; and the doctor en letres in Spanish at the Universidad Nacional, Nicaragua.

Western Dilemma

With Communist China's invasion of India, the Western world is once again at a critical point in its war with world communism. Since 1945 we have stood idly by and watched 'border conflicts' and 'internal political struggles' develop into major wars of Communist aggression and Communist take-overs through subversion and creation of internal chaos.

Only in frighteningly few instances has the West reared back on its heels and screamed "enough-- no farther." It was done in Korea and in Lebanon in 1958 when President Eisenhower, over threats of war from Khrushchev, landed 5,000 Marines at Beirut to insure political stability in that country. It is once more being carried out in Cuba.

These are events of which we can be proud. However, along side this pride the instances of our failure to take the initiative in thwarting Communist aggression thus allowing thousands of miles of territory and millions of human beings to be drawn behind the Iron and Bamboo curtains, causes the glimmer of pride to appear almost insignificant.

We try to forget names like Hungary and Dien Bien Phu. But new ones like Laos, Viet Nam and now India come roaring out to remind us of our failures.

Communist China is in the process of launching an all-out war against India. They may take their time and only gobble bits of India's territory at a time, but their course in undeniably clear. Communist forces will nibble at Laos, Viet Nam and India, perhaps so slowly we will find it difficult, according to our system to justify retaliation.

But one day we shall all awaken to find these countries completely swallowed by Communist cancer. Our cry will be as it always has . . . ."it will not happen again. They will go no farther. But, on our present course, they will and we will allow it.

With India and Cuba the United States and the Western world has another chance. We have bared our teeth and begun to growl in Cuba and at least grimaced in India by sending token shipments of military supplies.

This is a time when the free peoples of the world should not be fooled by slow movement of the Communist monster or its various and sundry diversionary tactics. Our inspiration should be the pitiful crys for help of the students in Budapest and the corageous French toops, surrounded and doomed at Dien Bien Phu.

If India falls, freedom in Asia will be lost forever. And we have only to look increasingly closer to home and ask . . . who's next?

Kennedy Cuba Blockade 'Criminal'

From both a humanistic and moral standpoint President Kennedy's blockade of Cuba has justly been termed "criminal." The same terminology can be applied to Khrushchev for deliberately baiting the United States by establishing a Soviet base in the Western Hemisphere.

Tax Cut Would Stimulate Industry

By TIM CARR

The graduated income tax, when it was first introduced, was a necessary move -- both from an humanitarian and an economic viewpoint. The rich were getting richer while the poor were being exploited shamefully.

But now we have the most affluent nation in the world. The income of the average American family recently exceeded $5,000 per annum. We still have a few isolated areas of extreme poverty -- but this poverty is induced by lack of industry, rather than exploitation by industry.

A recent study by the First National City Bank in New York stated that if the national income tax base were raised to 23 per cent from the current 20 per cent and not graduated the government's tax revenue would remain the same, and maybe even increase.

This, of course, would mean that the very small minority of Americans whose income is presently taxed up to 91 percent would become filthy rich. This is inherently repugnant to most Americans, since extreme wealth has always been associated with extreme poverty. But this money would be spent on goods and services, investments and industrial expansion and would create far more productive jobs than if it were poured into the vast government hodgepodge of unproductive paperwork and administration.

A very important point must be made here: A standardized, ugraduated income tax has none of the inequities of a system based on unit taxes, such as sales taxes, in which the lower income brackets are severly penalized. The extremely high graduated income tax became a way of life during a time when the problem was one of natinal survival. Our problem now is inability to expand. The extra cash freed to those who are willing to invest and spend should provide the impetus needed for rapid expansion.

The economic [illegible] income tax[illegible] extra three per cent in taxe[illegible] rapidly be offset by a greate[illegible] of money and [illegible]

Gators Mistreat Mascot

Whatta' [illegible]ucha' fraks! Of course I am referring to those beasties across the state who keep alligators for pets instead of canaries or goldfish. Which leads to an interesting and little known fact about Gatorland.

The U. of F. (oof, if you prefer) was given a pair of small alligators to keep as mascots. They lasted only a short time, mainly because the students were so appreciative that they enjoyed playing all kinds of wonderful games with these two 'gators. Some of these games included "hit the alligator on the snoot with a broken bottle," "paint the alligator rainbow colored," "spear the alligator," and finally the most playful of them all, "chop off the alligator's tail."

The administration got tired of these games. They also got tired of asking Ross Allen, who donated the 'gators, to come and repair them. It was finally decided that the area where the alligators were kept should be fenced in. This was done but it might as well have not been done. One of the "oof's" oaf's busted the fence, chopped off the gator's tail and made himself a very pretty pocketbook. Needless to say the alligators are no longer living at the "oof."

Even if they didn't keep alligators for pets they would still be fnks. F'rinstance: why did our team sit on their side of the field? Why were our [illegible] end zones? And [illegible] out sunglasses so we could [illegible] their band uniforms without [illegible] blinded?

TODAY'S NEWS ROUNDUP

TALLAHASSEE--Still hopelessly divided on reaching a legislative reapportionment compromise, the Florida House met 13 minutes yesterday afternoon and quit until today.

The Senate, meanwhile, was to hold a night session beginning at 8 p.m. This was originally scheduled to receive whatever plan the House might approve during the afternoon.

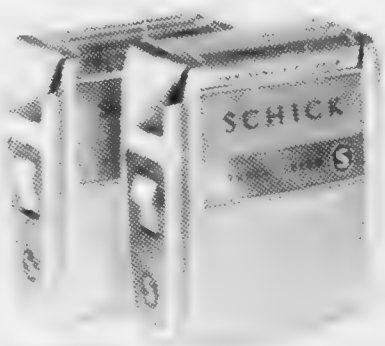
House Speaker Mallory Horne of Leon County is growing increasingly pessimistric that any agreement can be reached.

Leaders from both large and small counties agreed that no plan had a chance of attracting the required 72 votes to pass in the 95-member house. Thus, the deadlock which developed Friday carried over into another week.

WASHINGTON--The United States has told the Soviet Union it hopes for a satisfactory answer on withdrawal of Russian bombers from Cuba by today. The Soviets were told it would be helpful to have a clear cut reply by the time President Kennedy meets neesmen this evening. His news conference will be broadcast live by radio and television.

At the United Nations, Cuban delegate Carlos Lechuga has called on Acting-Secretary-General U Thant and protested the arrest of a Cuban by the United States. The Cuban--Santiesteban Casavova--is charged with taking part in a sabotage plot. According to Havana, he had the status of a diplomat and should not have been arrested.

WASHINGTON--India's ambassador to Washington called at the White House yesterday and presented a letter from Prime Minister Nehru. The envoy later told newsmen Nehru had appealed to President Kennedy for more U.S. military aid in the border war with Communist China. The latest reports from New Delhi say Indian defenses have crumbled in the Se-Pass of the Eastern Himalayas after a battering by a force of 20,000 Red troops. The Chinese are now only 25 miles from the plains of Assam, an important and populous region.



OXFORD, MISS.--Former Major General Edwin Walker is back in Oxford, Miss. where he was arrested for his part in the integration riots two months ago. Walker appeared with three attorneys and is expected to be on hand tomorrow for a court hearing involving federal charges of inciting insurrection.

Seminoles Had Some Bright Spots Saturday

Hagood Clarke (35), who returned a 63-yard punt return that "broke FSU's back," carries for short yardage before Dave Synder cuts him down.

DUPREE CHARGES

Halfback Larry Dupree charges to the FSU35 in the first quarter before Ken Russom (22) grounds him. Coach Bill Peterson said that FSU's defenese during the drills before the contest were geared to stop the Gator halfback. Going into the contest, Dupree was the top rusher in the Southeastern Conference.

After a 20-7 loss to arch rival, the University of Florida, there is a tendancy for Seminole fans to look for bright spots in the fourth loss to the Gators.

And find them they can, although it is impossible to tag this defeat "a moral victory."

Florida coach Ray Graves said after the game that he had more respect for the Seminoles after the Gators had won than before the two teams met. He stressed the fact that Chief quarterback Eddie Feely was who they focused their defense on during the practice. He termed Feely a tricky runner or passer that could do a lot of damage--and managed to do so on several occasions.

FSU's kicking game completely surprised the tricky Gators. The UF student newspaper's sports editor peeked in at the closed FSU drills and announced proudly to the world that Renegade Charlie Calhoun was on crutches.

But although the Renegade was playing at 95 percent capacity in the contest, he booted five times for a whopping 45.4 punting average. In addition, his last effort traveled 64 yards before Seminoles targed it near the UF goal line.

The kickoff completely threw the Gators. Three weeks ago, Head Coach Bill Peterson noticed a lad kicking a football into the endzone on an empty practice field. He took his name, dressed him out for the Georgia contest and revealed the toe specialist Saturday.

Les Murdock was his name, and his kickoff landed in Florida's endzone, and the Gators didn't have a man near him.

After the FSU TD, Murdock kicked off again, and once again the ball sailed to the end zone, but this time the Gators three men lined up on the line.

CORE Holds Integrated Rally

BY MAXWELL COURTNEY

"Freedom Now" was the topic of Miss Priscilla Stevens, presently a graduate student at Banks Street College in New York City, as she spoke to an integrated audience in Tallahassee last Sunday evening.

Miss Stevens, who is an active participant in CORE and the sit-in demonstrations, began her speech with "Freedom now...I don't want freedom tomorrow. I want freedom now." Miss Stevens felt that many people have the wrong definition of freedom. She felt also that freedom is not something to be boxed up and that there is physical freedom as well as mental freedom.

"I am living proof that there is hope," said Miss Stevens. "Many people feel that I am rushing things, but so much time has been wasted and I am trying to make up for that time. I don't want to be old when I get freedom--I want it now."

"My belief that all people are the same started many years ago...and if given the chance Negroes can forget that they are Negroes. Through love anything can be achieved." Miss Stevens stated that man lives freely by his readiness to die.

Miss Stevens wondered how a person could call himself a Christian and feel the cause of freedom is not right. "Do you think Christ would have done that?" is a question she asks when people start booing, jeering and calling her names. "We can't wait on future leaders, we must have freedom now ...as long as there is life there will be integration, not token but completely."

Children don't know about color barriers until they are taught, and people learn to hate just as they learn to love, Miss Stevens asserted.

"If there is a lower class I am in it, if their are people in jail then I am not free...this is our cause, not my cause," she said.

Noisy Pump Resembles Locomotive

A vacuum ultraviolet spectrophotometer on the fourth floor of the new Molecular Biophysics Bldg. is so noisy that scientists have posted this sign on the closed door of the laboratory:

"Enter if you wish: the door is closed to keep the noise inside and not the people outside."

The instrument, one of five in the country (all the others are at government-sponsored laboratories) keeps us a constant chug-chug somewhat resembling the sound made by an old steam locomotive with the throttle open on a straightaway.

The noise is made, said Dr. Michael Kasha, director of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics, by a pump churning the air out of a cylinder with one-inch-thick steel walls within which is maintained a vacuum approaching that of outer space.

So efficient is the pump, he says, that a pressure approaching one-billionth of the air pressure in the room outside is maintained within the barrel-size tank.

Such a vacuum is needed, said the physical chemist, for experiments with the high energy ultraviolet radiation which another part of the machine generates for experimental purposes.

The combination of principles developed by an American scientist, Paul McPherson, and a Japanese scientist, Y. Tanaka, in the one machine makes it an unusually handy device for study of the effects of ultraviolet radiation on biological and chemical systems, he said.

And since FSU has the only one possessed by a university the Institute has had as a guest investigator for the past four months a graduate student, George Holzwarth of Wesfield, N. J., who is working on his Ph.D. degree at Harvard.

Holzwarth has been studying the effects of high energy ultraviolet, radiation on materials similar to proteins (protein analogs called synthetic polypeptides). He completed his work at FSU this week and returned to Cambridge.

Kasha said oxygen and other molecules in the air absorb ultraviolet rays and therefore the most effective exposure to such radiation can be achieved by expelling the air.

THE MOST TALKATIVE GAL

... on the fourth floor of the Molecular Biophysics Bldg. at Florida State University is "Leila McPherson," the name scientists have given to the McPherson vacuum ultraviolet spectrophotometer. George Holzwarth of Westfield, N.J., shown operating the machine here, has been conducting experiments of the effect of high energy ultraviolet radiation on protein analogs.

Seven From Brazil Here For A Week

Seven Brazilian educators yesterday began a week-long inspection of the teacher education program in vocational education at FSU.

The visitors, all from Sao Paulo province, are spending three months in the United States under auspices of the US Office of Education.

The Brazilian group, he said, is interested in providing education to take care of a need for technicians and skilled and semi-skilled workers in industry created by the demands of rapidly increased industrialization.

In the group are Douglas Escobar Bueno, educational counselor for Getulio Vargas Technical School; Alvaro Pestana Catao, principal of the Pedalogical Institute of Industrial Education; Osmar Salles de Figueredo, principal of Jundiai Industrial School; Arnold Fioravanti, principal of Industrial School of Vila Maria; Luis Carlos Fernandes Mattos, principal of Albert Einstein Industrial School; Paulo S. Suzuki, educational technician, Vocational Education Department, State of Sao Paulo. Two interpreters are accompanying the group, Miss Sylvia Moraes and Orlando Aqueda.

Be Thankful

On the eve of the Thanksgiving holidays,many students suffering from trimester strain claim that there is little to be thankful for except the few days' rest and the free meals afforded by the vacation.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY, in his statement and press conference last night, pointed out that the entire American nation has a great deal to be grateful for on this particular Thanksgiving. Only a few weeks ago, the President virtually committed the United States to world war in the event that the Soviet Union failed to back down over Cuban weapons.

Shortly after the American quarantine, Soviets agreed to remove the missiles from Cuba. Yesterday, Khrushchev personally agreed to remove the controversial bombers still on the island. Florida students watched troop carriers pour through Tallahassee en route to our home towns, yet the situation is now so much improved that the President and his family intend to spend Christmas in Florida.

ANOTHER of yesterday's national developments deserving of gratitude is Kennedy's executive order that there will be no more discrimination on the basis of race, color, creed or national origin in housing developments owned or financed by the United States government. As the President pointed out, this nation's motto is "Equal opportunity for all." All citizens should be pleased to see their government refusing to support, even indirectly, commercial ventures which are contrary to this basic principle of American democracy.

If the New World had not offered equal opportunity to the religious minorities of Europe, there would be no Thanksgiving. It is extremely appropriate that the President's executive order be announced on the eve of this native American holiday.

WE CAN BE GRATEFUL for these recent national developments and for the very fact that we are able to celebrate a holiday with our families. Although it is easy to forget strong emotions once they have passed, we should try to remember that, only a few weeks ago, many FSU students and their families seriously doubted that they would still be alive at Thanksgiving.

Now, if we all get home and back to school safely, we will indeed have a reason to give thanks.

AROUND THE WORLD

TALLAHASSEE-- The Senate has passed and sent to the House an amended reapportionment proposal calling for 46 senators and 146 representatives.

With the measure went the hopes of Senate leaders for a break in the impasse that prevented action on reapportionment during nearly two weeks of deliberations.

The Senate proposal is an amended version of the plan passed by the House earlier yesterday. The Senate increased the size of the House from 135 to 146 but left the Senate untouched at 46.

The House plan approved automatic reapportionment after the 1970 federal census. Under it, 32 per cent of the voters would elect a majority of the House.

The amended plan inched its way through the Senate with exactly the 29 votes necessary for a three-fourths majority.

NEW DELHi-- Communist China is moving to halt the border fighting with India. Radio Peking says the Communist forces will stop firing against Indian troops along the disputed Himalayan border at midnight. The Chinese say their troops will withdraw back of lines held before the border dispute broke out into large scale fighting.

Indian Premier Nehru has said the first essential for a settlement of the border question is the restoration of the Indian position as of September eighth, when the Chinese began their latest big offensive.

However, the border fighting between India and China continued yesterday. Battered Indian troops were trying to hold on to hastily-erected defense positions in the path of an apparent Communist drive toward the Assam Plains. The Chinese won a major breakthrough on the Himalayan frontier and were reported fighting south of the captured town of Bomdila.

Woes Of John And Pocahontas

A Thanksgiving Story

A long time ago when John Smith first chased Pocahontas around the teepee, the local wise men of the settlement thought it unwise to let John have his way and marry someone out of his race.

"Nay, nay, thou shalt not take one's spouse of another color," said the learned ones, "for it breeds discontent, maladjusted unnormalities, and bad lookin' kids."

"I care not," said John, "For I have chosen my partner to help me through the wilderness and conquer the great vastness beyond the yon banks of the might,

And so, out fr... and of the mighty Ja... tas and the steadfast John embar... They first set up loghousekeeping ... yon banks of the mighty Chesterpe... Bay, and soon be... own settlement. Fortunately ... them and for all f... combined, the pr... were not white or ... tiful pale pink as ... the winter on the banks of the Riviera.

Then one day winter set in. It got cold on the Chesterpeak, and Po and John suddenly found themselves without food, clothing and warmth.

Po decided to use her ancestral arrangements and contact her father who came running with ... ingredients to sustain ... daughter for a few months during the winter.

Unfortunately for John, he was ostracized. Po's old man ... enough food for ... wasn't going to feed a ... burned kids.

Po, not being of the same temperament as her pa, let ... sunburned ones have some of the food. They set themselves up a long feast table to begin eating some of the goodies that pa had ... hadn't eaten for days. ... lasted and lasted until it began to get warm again and spring began to appear. Then John and Po began to gobble up the feast that pa had set even faster and lo and behold it was gone.

John decided he better get out and start planting a fall spring crop ... maybe go out and shoot a few wild turkeys, (seems a large settlement across the river somewhere had a large feast back in November and shot up all the birds,) and the ground was too hard to plant corn (or anything for that matter).

Then the wrath of God ... on this lovely pair and ... a monstrous cold wave that ... through the countryside and enveloped the land for the next three months.

John and Po had the distinction of becoming the first lost settlement in the history of the English Colonies.

Anyway that helps fill up some space on the editorial page and I hope everybody has a happy turkey.

Thanksgiving: Thanks, Tradition

It is traditional for Florida State University students to attend classes the day before thanksgiving. This tradition was initiated again today, without any more success.

It is also traditional to give thanks for things at this time of year. And what are you going to be thankful for?

Oh, I am going to be thankful for all sorts of little things. Like the fact that I can read and write. I get to read seven more chapters for government, and write nine pages for German. I am thankful that I can add and subtract, in honor of which I am going to learn five more theorems for calculus. I am thankful that I will not have to come in at eleven on weeknights. I will come in at ten-thirty.

I am thankful that I got my paycheck. I am thankful that my ride home is going to Miami instead of San Francisco this year. I am thankful that I will get some home-cooking for a while, even though I will have to be the one home, cooking.

This year, I am thankful that the women in the night director's office were kind enough to take me back to my dorm when the policeman was too busy looking for his car to do so. I am thankful that Tallahassee is making this brave effort known as the Trimester, to catch up with the rest of the world. I am thankful that America is the kind of country where freedom of the press is such an important principle that even the Democrat is allowed to publish.

And most of all, I am thankful that the professors at FSU are standing taller than the Board of Control.

Transition in life and thought fascinated Emerson, Reaver said. He tried to keep his thinking a continual adventure, and he utilized proverbs freely to the end.

Children's Book Wins Praise

The latest children's book by Ann Kirn of the FSU Art Dept. faculty has been chosen by the "New York Times" as one of the 100 best books for children in 1962.

The book, "Two Pesos for Catalina," was written and illustrated by the FSU assistant professor of art. One of Miss Kirn's earlier books, "Full of Wonder," was chosen one of the 10 best illustrated juvenile books of the year by the "Times."

"Two Pesos for Catalina," Miss Kirn said had its origin when she and several fellow artists went to Taxco, Mexico, for three months of study in silver making five years ago.

From sketches made at that time she has drawn the illustrations for the book about a little girl who has been given two silver pesos by a lady tourist and how she spends them. At the end of the book is a Spanish vocabulary.

Her interest in children and their books stems from a career both as artist and teacher. She once taught the second grade of a school in Missouri and later worked in fashion illustration in St. Louis.

She studied art at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, the St. Louis School of Fine Arts and Columbia University. Miss Kirn has been a member of the FSU Art Dept. faculty for 15 years.

Auburn Is Their Swansong

Tribes Gear For Tigers

The Florida State Seminoles, still seeking a winning season, took it easy in practice Monday and Tuesday, largely because of injuries to several gridders.

Head Coach Bill Peterson said that Y.C. McNeese, a utility center with a chronic knee, will miss the Auburn game Saturday. In addition, captain Gene McDowell, tackle Jim Sims, and John McConnaughhay are nursing injuries, but are expected to play.

Peterson said the Seminoles had their heads up after last week's 20-7 loss to Florida and that morale was good. He said the Tribesmen would practice just as hard for Auburn as any other game.

He announced these changes in lineups:

Sophomore Don Floyd will move to end on the two-way Chiefs, and he will be replaced by sophomore Fred Biletnikoff on the offensive Warriors.

Phil Spooner, who alternated with Jim Loftin on the Warriors, will share left half with Keith Kinderman on the Chiefs.

Fullback Marion Roberts, who was bumped from his spot on the Chiefs two games ago, regains his position, sending junior Dave Snyder back to the Renegades.

Baby Seminoles Fall To Furman

The Baby Seminoles lost their final game of the season in Greenville, S. C., Friday night against the Furman Paladins, 21-14. Joe Petko made the first FSU touchdown in the first quarter and Russel Fischer scored the second FSU touchdown in the third quarter.

Shorter Fall Exams Due To Trimester

Final examinations will be cut from two hours to an hour and a half because of the increased pressure of the trimester system.

"The trimester system cut downs on the number of days available for final examinations from seven to six," reported Dr. Lawrence Chalmers, Asst. Dean of Faculties.

Chalmers gave two reasons for the change: conflicting tests and the number of examinations a student would have in one day.

Massive examinations of all sections of one course primarily caused the conflicts, stated Chalmers. These examinations, numbering 75, could not be scheduled in a six day period without conflicts.

"The Council of Deans was also concerned about the possibility of a studefit having more than three examinations on one day," Chalmers stated. "There is some thought that even three are too many."

Chalmers listed several suggested alternatives which were discarded by the Council of Deans. They are (1) extending the examination period to Sat. Dec. 21; (2) adding an additional night examination until 11 p.m. nightly; or (3) utilizing Sunday, Dec. 16, for examinations.

"All of these involed considerable sacrifice on the part of both students and faculty," Chalmers commented. "Cutting the examination length was the only alternative on which any agreement could be reached."

Examinations, however, can be supplemented by auxiliary tests given the week before if the instructor feels that the shorter period greatly hinders the effectiveness of the exam.

Chalmers stressed that the shorter examinations may not be permanent.

"We are going to see how they work, evaluate them, and then study the results," Chalmers said.

Future possibilities may be to begin the trimester a day earlier or curtail the number of courses with massive examinations.

Beginning the trimester earlier would cause problems with registration possibly falling before Labor Day.

Daly Speaks To Class Today

Paul A. Daly, currently on loan to the Peace Corps from the Agency for International Developments, will speak to Home Economics' classes today.

Daly, who is serving as a Special Assistant in the Agriculture Division, was questioned last night by a panel on WFSU-TV. Daly will be available for personal interviews today.

Especially qualified to speak on the challenge of Peace Corps service, Daly has a personal knowledge of many of the areas where Volunteers will serve. His work with A.I.D. as a Livestock Advisor brought him to India, Burma, Laos, Thailand, and China. His last position was as Livestock Advisor to the Royal Lao Government Veterinary Service where he coordinated his work with that of the International Voluntary Service, an organization which places agricultural experts in underdeveloped countries under conditions similar to that of the Peace Corps. As a result of his work in North Laos, cattle production has increased to the point that beef can be exported for the first time since World War II.

A native of Florida, Daly graduated from the University of Florida in Gainesville with a degree in Animal Husbandry and Nutrition. He served in the United States Navy for four years with the bulk of his time spent on the mainland of China. After the war, he worked as a cowboy, herdsman and rancher in the United States.

As one of the outstanding Peace Corps Representatives, Daly has recently been traveling to colleges and universities in the South. Although he has been speaking to classes in language, history, government and international affairs; his primary concern has been with people in the field of agriculture.

Collegians, Symphonic Band Feature Varied Programs

The FSU Symphonic Band will present a program made up largely of the music of contemporary America on tomorrow evening.

Conducted by Dr. Manley R. Whitcomb, the band will appear in Westcott Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. The concert is free and open to the public.

A newly completed band work by Ellen Taaffe, candidate for a master of music degree in composition, will be performed for the first time on the program. Miss Taaffe, a student of Dr. John Boda, has titled her composition "Essay for Band."

Also on the first part of the program will be the Johannes Brahms Variations on A Theme by Haydn.

Symphonic Concert

The work of a group of musicians often referred to as Broadway-Hollywood composers make up the second half of the program. Robert Russell Bennett's second composition for band, "Symphonic Songs," will be performed. Bennett's abilities have been demonstrated in such Broadway shows as "South Pacific" and "The King and I."

The first composition for band by Julian Work, another Broadway arranger, called "Portraits from the Bible," will be played. Ending the program will be the overture for "Ben-Hur," an arrangment for band of some of high spots of the Ben-Hur movie score by Miklos Rozsa.

The Collegians, the men's glee club, will present a varied program including the Randall Thompson "Testament of Freedom" on Friday evening.

Directed by Dr. Ramon E. Meyer, the 36 singers will perform at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

The program will open with an A. T. Davison arrangement of "O vos omnes" by Ludovico Tommaso da Vittoria, two selections by Heinrich Schutz, and a southern folk hymn arranged by Paul Christiansen.

The choral group will also present "The Turtle Dove" by Ralph Vaughn Williams with Grady W. Toler as soloist, and a Russian folk song with Richard D. Powell singing the solo part. Harold Gray and Stephen Smith accompanists, will be pianists for "This Train" by Christopher Thomas.

Collegians Concert

After intermission the singers will present the four-section Randall Thompson number which opens with "The God who gave us life gave us liberty at the same time; the hand of force may destroy but cannot disjoin them."

Composed in honor of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, it was first performed at the University of Virginia in 1943. Texts are from selected writings of Jefferson.

Justice Or Law?

The Florida State University student court system, in evolving its present elaborate structure, has failed to take the last vital step to a mature judicial system. We have been so concerned with regulations and laws that we have neglected that quality which should be the very essence of a court--justice.

SUSPENSION IS a University's equivalent of capital punishment, yet the Honor Court is bound in almost every cast to recommend this punishment if the defendant is found guilty. There is a "special cases" clause regarding cheating through the court can hand down a lesser penalty. The other Honor Court offenses, lying and stealing, have no such qualifying phrases.

A student convicted of stealing may be suspended from school at the discretion of the court. This decision may or may not take into consideration the circumstances surrounding the theft or the value of the item stolen.

IF STUDENT JUSTICES are to be entrusted with meriting out the severest punishment a university can offer, every possible step should be taken to insure justice, not mere legal proceedings. In our zeal to punish the guilty, we must also be sure to protect the innocent. Justices should be more important than the law, for laws are made to serve justice.

State and federal courts in the United States make very careful distinctions among crimes of varying severity. In those courts grand larceny is punishable by a jail sentence and petty larceny by a fine and restitution.

THIS DISTINCTION is not made here. A thief is a thief, under our system, and convicted thieves are suspended from school. At what point does theft become such a threat to the University community that we must brand a student for the rest of his life with a notation on his permanent record, "Suspended for stealing?"

Before we use this, our most powerful weapon, we should be sure that the offense is worthy of the punishment. Petty theft is not deserving of the same punishment as premeditated cheating or stealing examinations. Nevertheless, a student, never before convicted of stealing, can be suspended from Florida State University for the theft of a single item whose retail value is less than one dollar.

Suspension for such an offense is an obvious violation of the trust placed in students by administrators who allow student courts to handle such cases. Such misuse of authority, if it persists, can and should lead to a drastic loss of power by student courts.

Bus Travelers Special Breed

Part of the required curriculum at this school should be an all-night bus trip from Tallahassee to Jacksonville. Only then will the gay, gaudy, hollywoodish facade of life in North Florida be torn away to reveal the bare essentials. This trip would be especially useful in cheering up those students who labor under the illusion that Tallahassee is the worst spot in Florida.

Those people that frequent long-distant buses are a special breed. Whereas the subway rider sits and sways with a blank expression on his face, and the train passenger remains cooly aloof, the person that rides a long-distance bus has a basic desire to get acquainted. This is exemplified by such types as the old codger that always sits in the first seat and talks the driver's ear off. If the people that frequent buses are thus unique, then those who make the Tallahassee-Jacksonville run are truly special. In fact they are clods--anyone that wants to go to Jacksonville is.

At night, hurtling toward Jacksonville through patches of low-lying fog, one gets the impression that there is nothing outside his window but darkness. On the day-time run you find out you were right--there is nothing outside your window. The trip does offer these exciting features, however:

1.) Lake City. The bus stops here for twenty minutes so the passengers can refresh themselves with cold coffee and donuts that are extremely valuable for the high potency penicillin mold they bear. The people of Lake City are obviously hard workers -- their bus station smells like sweat.

2.) Monticello. This little town is sure to give you mirth, for some prankish college students returning from the battle of Olustee have cleverly moved the city hall into the middle of the highway.

3.) Jacksonville Expressway. This complex of ultra-modern highways begins about thirty miles outside of town. It is intended to ease traffic congestion in the city by cleverly speeding all incoming vehicles through the town and into the St. John's River. Of course the b... driver is not fooled by this, a... makes it into the city. This is ... from being a bless... however, ... it is then that the passengers ... cover to their dismay that the... really is no Jacksonville--just ... Prudential buildi... rrounded ... expressways.

Trimester: Academics Time

What a short four days. Four enjoyable, relaxing days away from the ever-present trimonster and all you have to show for it is two-dozen turkey sandwiches.

Getting back to the trimonster system, which we can hardly get away from, is rough and with all the added academics there won't be much time for anything else. There won't be time for letter writing most of all -- who does anyway? To keep in the spirit however, the following two examples follow the "before" and "after." The first, a couple of days before Thanksgiving vacation and the second a couple of days after.

BEFORE:

Dear Folks:

Two days, twelve hours and 33 minutes till I leave here. Yea'. Can't wait to get away.

I've been so busy thinking about studying lately I haven't had much time for anything. Supposed to have a date with this sorority girl my roommate lined me up with but, had to cancel out -- she quit school two weeks ago.

How's my dog, cat ... salamander and little ... ? I can't find my blue shirt, ... and without it I feel out of ... I have any idea where I might have put it? Can't find anything in this room, it's a mess. I think my roommate left this morning ... ma... still be sacked out, haven't had time to look for his bed to see if he's still in it.

Gotta go, have to read: Dante's 'Inferno," two chapters in Humanities, two chapters in public relations, one chapter in marketing, one chapter in R.O.T.C. and write a twelve page paper for tomorrow.

Send money.
George

AFTER:

Dear Folks:

Mom! Send more ... sandwiches. I gave all the ... to a guy to clean up my ... Better get me another blue shirt, still can't find it. Can't find anything, the room's too clean, it's disgusting.

Dad! Before vacation ... of us guys locked the housemother in her room and when we came back she was still there. Do you think they can kick me outta school

Don't expect me home ... Christmas, I don't think the ... time in the trimester for it. We ... ve class this Saturday so they ... to call off the football game.

I haven't had much ... to do much except study. I do ... however, take a break and go downtown and look at the Christmas decorations -- and laugh, it breaks the monotony.

I'll see you next summer.

Socialize Natural Resources

Social ownership of natural resources is one of the most important arguments favoring the establishmnet of socialism. The land and mineral resources of our country are absolutely essential to our continued existence. That something so important should be in private hands is illogical in the extreme.

The government now owns all uranium mines and controls all production of atomic energy. TVA is a combination of social and private ownership: these socialist measures have produced successful refults. Similar arguments can be used to support nationalization of coal and petroleum industries and other related ones as well.

The mineral resources of the American continent were laid down eons ago and should be socially controlled for the benefit of society rather than the personal benefit of private landloards or corporations. The federal government should have title to all mineral deposits and should administer them for the social benefit of all Americans.

As too the government as an agent of society should own and use the forests and reforested lands of the country rather than allow precious natural resources to be manipulated by state, local and private interests.

As for farms and faem lands, private landlordism should be abolished and title depend upon use. Co-operatives should be established for machinery ownership, and large plantations and the like should be collectivized and run by society. Our precious natural resources and lands are far too valuable to consign to individual ownership and management--society as a whole should own and democratically control these important areas of our national life, the continued existence of which depends upon them.

Johnson says he expects the committee to decide on a plan by 10 or 11 in the morning. The Senate adjourned until ten a.m. today. The House until 9:30.

WORLD NEWS

NEW YORK--Top U.S. negotiators met with Soviet trouble shooter Anastas Mikoyan last night in the hope of learning Fidel Castro's price for a Cuban peace settlement. Acting Secretary-General U Thant brought the Russians and Americans together at a private dinner a few hours after the first deputy premier returned to New York from a 24 day visit to Havana.

Mikoyan said on his return that the possibility of improved relations between the United States and Cuba has been opened up during recent weeks, but he declined to amplify.

The dinner meeting took place as the U.S. government publicly attacked a new Castro proposal for U.N. inspection of military bases both inside and outside Cuba.

A State Department spokesman called the plan an attempt to avoid adequate verification of the removal of Soviet offensive weapons from Cuba.

NEW DELHI--The Indian government has rejected the key provision for troops withdrawal which Red China tagged to its cease-fire proclamation on the Himalayan frontier last week. The problem is the Ladakh area, where India insists that Indian troops return to frontier posts. A boost today in the American airlift of 1,000 fresh troops to Indian front lines appeared to raise the chance of resumed fighting.

GENEVA--Another impasse at Geneva--the Soviet Union offered to end all nuclear tests by the end of the year but again rejected the international inspection the West demands. The resumption of the 17 nation disarmament conference--with a hopeful message from President Kennedy--indicated all the old East-West differences are little changed.

A-V Method Demonstrated

A new audio-visual method of teaching foreign languages will be demonstrated at 3:45 p.m. Saturday in the Library Lecture Hall.

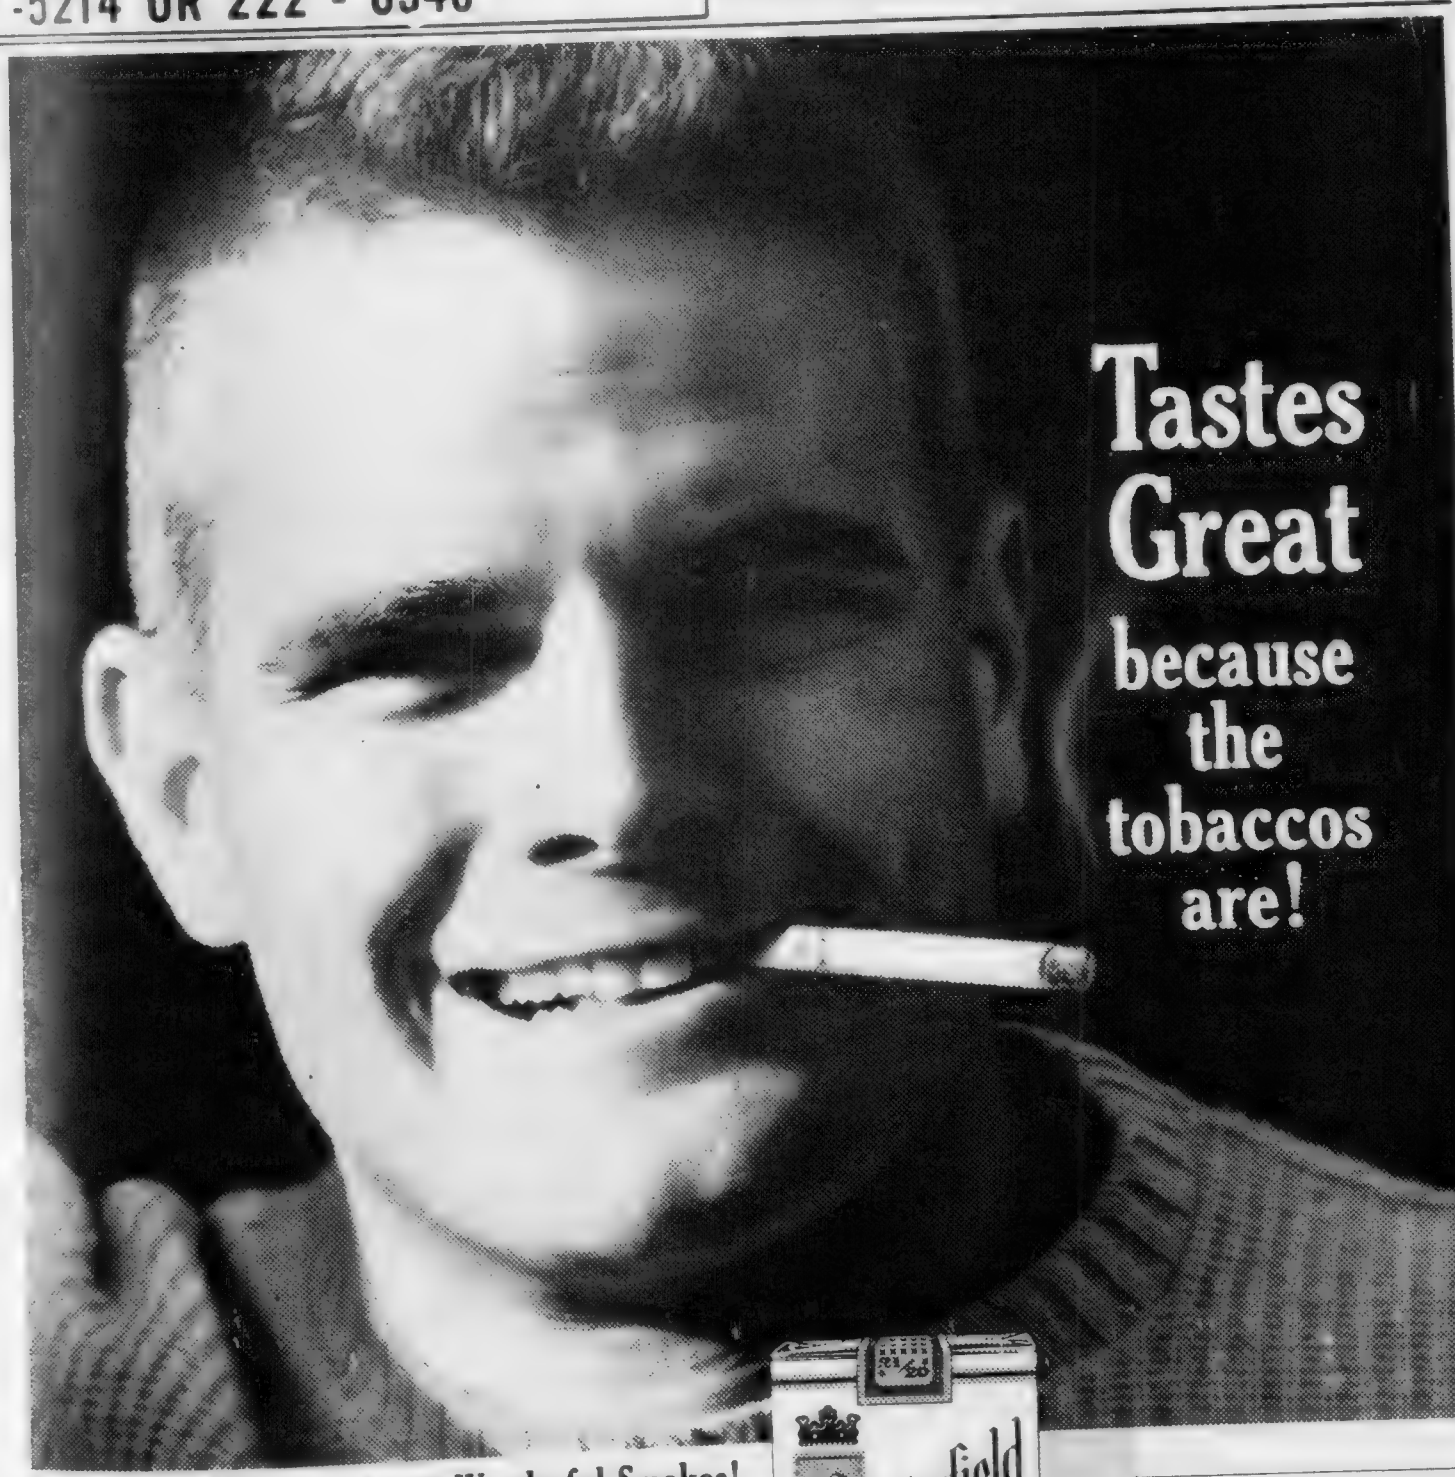
Mrs. Elisabeth Eptking of Converse College will demonstrate and explain the "Saint-Cloud" techniques. This "voix et image" (voice and image) system relies heavily on tape recorders, as do most other modern methods, but it also emphasizes movies, slides and film strips.

The system, developed by a team of psychologists, educators and linguists at L'Ecole Normale Superieure de Saint-Cloud, France, has been used by Mrs. Eptking in her work with various NDEA institutes for foreign language teachers.

International Student

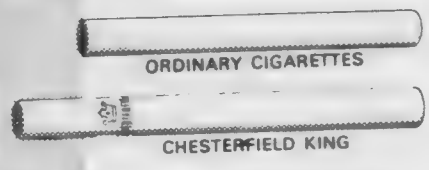
FSU Grad Receives Grant

One of 10 international students to receive American Home Economics Association scholarships to study in the United States during 1962-63 is a graduate student of home economics at FSU.



Nora Chintamani, whose home is in Allahabad, India, holds a bachelor of home sciences degree from Allahabad University and a bachelor of education degree from Lucknow University. Her professional experience has been in teaching home science subjects to government employees from Punjab, Bihar and Uttarpradesh being trained as social organizers at the Agricultural Institute in Allahabad.

Dr. Helen Cate, professor and head of food and nutrition, is directing Miss Chintamani's course of study under the $1000 fellowship. As one of the 12 cooperating universities in the program, FSU provides waiver of tuition.



Miss Chintamani plans a career in teaching upon returning to her homeland. She said that she feels her course of study in dietetics will provide the technical background in nutrition and management in institutional food service to enable her "to be a pioneer in the field" in her country.

Since the AHEA international scholarship program was initiated in 1930, 169 students from 43 countries have participated. Purpose of the program is promotion of international understanding and cooperation through service to families and homes throughout the world.

Funds for the international scholarships of the AHEA are provided through contributions of members, affiliated college clubs, state and local home economics associations, and the honorary home economics societies, Omicron Nu and Phi Upsilon Omicron.

THE 14-14 TIE WITH AUBURN MEANT

Seminoles Rally To Tie Auburn Tigers, 14-14

AUBURN-FSU TIE
*(A Four-Act Play)
Act I

Scene--Auburn's gridiron before 20,000 spectators.

Enter FSU and AUBURN teams.

Soothsayer: Auburn's legions are brimful; its cause is ripe: the Seminoles improveth every day; Auburn, at the height, is ready to decline.

Sports writer: Aye, but the action goeth slowly. Already half of the first act is gone.

Russom: Aye, Chief chief. (He catches and is downed 57 yards down the field.)

Soothsayer: But soft! What halfback through yonder line breaks?

Sports writer: It is Keith Kinderman and he carrieth for five yards from the Auburn 20 before he stoppeth.

Soothsayer: You got a bad lisp, kid. Look, they've boggeth and have a fourth down. Will Peterson kick?

Peterson: To kick or not to kick, that is the question. Whether tis nobler to try for a first down or a field goal--

Soothsayer: He decideth. Look, Doug Messer shalt try from the 2". Alack, he misses, and Auburn taketh over.

Sports writer: George Rose runneth for three yards, and quarterback Jimmy Sidle prepareth for the next play.

Soothsayer: The Auburn line doth withhold FSU breaking through and tackling him. A vanguard doth protect him. He shakes off one Seminole and runneth like hell for the goal line 77 yards away. Ah, celerity is never more admir'd.

Sports writer: Woody Woodall adds the extra point, and FSU hath past a miserable quarter.

Act II

Soothsayer: Runs by Rose, Sidle, Larry Laster, and Tucker Frederickson have pushed the Tigers to the FSU 37. Look, Sidle hits Simpson with an 11-yard pass.

Sports writer: They that stand high have many pass catches.

Soothsayer: Tis not enough to let Laster run to the 17, but they support him after with a personal foul to the eight.

Sidle (on field): Here comes the ball, noble Frederickson. O! So light a foot will surely run the distance to the goal.

Sports writer: The mutable, rank-scented Tigers have scored again and FSU trails, 14-0, with that Woodall kick.

Soothsayer: Courage, man, the hurt cannot be much. There's still the second half.

Act III

Scene--Auburn is on its 22.

Soothsayer: The Sidle pass slides like a skimming rock over water into the arms of fullback Dave Snyder.

Snyder: The play's the thing wherein I'll catch the pass of a king. Though this be stealing, yet there is method in 't to get me to the Auburn 13.

Sports writer: Three downs have passed, and Feely is back to pass. From the seven, he hits Jim Loftin for a touchdown. Costly thy passing habit; with Messer's kick, they trail only 14-7.

Soothsayer: Something's rotten in Cliff Hare Stadium. Yon Tigers are playing like kitty cats.

Act IV

Soothsayer: Five minutes and 45 seconds are left.

Sports writer: FSU punteth from Auburn's 47.

Soothsayer: But there's a special providence in the fall of a punt. It hits at the Tiger 10, bouncing off yon Frederickson.

Center Bruce Darsey: With all my crimes broad blown, as flush as May, I pounce on the ball at the [illegible] be cruel, so FSU can now [illegible] noble team.

Soothsayer: Three [illegible] passed. The bright day [illegible] we wait for Feely's pass.

Sports writer: The game [illegible] hath hit John [illegible] end zone. Messer's kick is [illegible]

Shug Jordan: Tribesmen, [illegible] line is sharper than the sword, [illegible] runs outdistance all the teams [illegible] Georgia, whose record rides on [illegible] winning winds, doth give us a belly-ful of fighting. Howl [illegible] howl, howl!--O, you Tigers are [illegible] of clay. The game's gone forever. [illegible] know when one is tied and when [illegible] wins. We're [illegible] (exeunt all.)

Varsity To Face Freshmen Tonight In Cage Contest

Occasion is the annual varsity-freshman game, to be played at Tully Gym at 7:45 p.m. Admission is free.

It'll be the final tuneup for varsity Coach Bud Kennedy's Seminoles, who lost four of five starters from last year's 15-8 team. And fans will also get a look at what Kennedy calls "one of our more talented freshman teams."

Kennedy has named the probable starters for the season, which FSU opens here on Dec. 1 against Tampa University. At center will be either 6-7 Dale Reeves of Louisville, Ky., or 6-5 Jerry Shirley of Mobile, Ala.; at forwards are 6-4 Charlie Long of Louisville, Ky., and 6-4 Bob Ek of Jacksonville; and at guards are 6-5 Pete Rogers of Daytona beach and 6-1 Dale Ricketts of Versailles, Ind.

Long, a 6-4 senior from Louisville, Ky., is expected to be the big star. Last season, he was the team's number three scorer and rebounder. He hit 49.2 percent of his field goal attempts for a 13.4 average. Ricketts, 6-1 senior from Versailles, Ind., was a part time starter who hit 55.4 percent from the field. Rogers, a 6-5 junior from Daytona Beach, at one time had a promising career ahead of him at Georgia Tech-- where he played on the frosh squad--but dropped out. He comes here from Daytona Beach Junior College.

"Usually, you have a pretty good idea of what's in store," says Kennedy, "but not this year -- not for us. I just have no basis for comparison, no way to tell how we might do. We are a distinct question mark."

Kennedy feels he'll have "one of the best benches ever," and its thanks to the pre-season work of several sophomores: namely, Shirley, Huge, Bob Lovell, Ross Winter and Pete Gonzalez.

"We're just about where I anticipated we would be at this stage," says Kennedy, who'll send FSU into a schedule featuring 13 games with Southeastern Conference teams "But we can't do anything about experience until we get into the season."

Starting for Coach Joe Williams frosh will be center Bill Phillips (6-7, Okeechobee), forwards Gary Schull (6-6, Pompano Beach) and Jim Wallace (6-7, St. Petersburg), and guards Bill Peacock (6-4, Campbellton) or Kenneth Hey (5-10, Shawnee Mission, Kan.) and Ken Leakey (6-1, Ft. Wayne, Ind.).

Adolf Karl Reviews Paintings

By SUSIE RHOADES
Flambeau Staff Writer

Surrealist art is "as beautiful as a chance meeting of a sewing machine and an umbrella in an operating room," Dr. Adolf Karl in a recent review of modern paintings on exhibit at the University Art Gallery.

Andre Breton, the founder of surrealist art in 1924, defined it as "pure psychic automatism, by which it is intended to express the real [illegible] thought."

Surrealist and fantastic art may be further defined as the art of the unconscious mind, stated Karl. This is the culmination of the ideas of Sigmund [illegible] that man's mind works on [illegible] unconscious level which is consciously through the recollection [illegible].

The feeling of surrealism is produced by the denial of the real world in the "twilight zone" of a dream world. This is done by eliminating the limiting factors of the real world: weight, mass, time and the atmosphere. A shock value is given to the paintings in an attempt to annoy [illegible].

Most paintings have a grayish-blue color scheme that breaks the mood. The titles of the paintings are sometimes poetic and dreamy, such as the [illegible] on display: "Virginia and the Grotto," "Departure through the Umbrellas," "Young Onion Rearing Toads," and "Vanity Fair."

Student Directories

The sale of Student-Faculty directories by the University Religious Council will continue today and tomorrow at three locations.

After tomorrow the directories will be sold at Bill's Bookstore and the University Bookstore.

Just A Small Touch

By JIM SMITH
Managing Editor

A touch of Paris' left bank is coming to FSU this Monday. Marc et Andre will present a program of "la chanson francaise" based on poetry, fantasy and freshness or all of Paris or all of France.

French "chansons" are quite different than what would be known as American folk songs. The chanson is based on philosophical context and often is filled with sociological overtones, while its American counterpart is usually made up of a traditional conformity obsessed with romance.

The songs of Marc et Andre will present a vignette or a spice of life set to music. After hearing these two traveling French artists, one can only conclude that these two must be products of France. The songs they sing are witty, melodic and biting with added garnishes of the tender. Their songs have been described as a beautiful contemporary panorama of an art, that in French "chanson literature," is by no means unimportant.

When Marc et Andre are not traveling from country to country presenting their program, they are busy with the Theatre National Populaire where for more than ten years they handled all musical arrangements and accompaniments. Other times they are busy planning programs for their most famous "Cabaret de l'Ecluse (the dam-lock) located in the heart of Paris and noted for its superb entertainment.

Some of the songs Marc et Andre will present to FSU audiences Monday night in Opperman Music Hall, include "The Crazy Complaint," "Paris at Five O'clock in the Morning," "The Dog and the Herring," "Take No Wife," and many more.

As an example, some of the lyrics of "The Musketeers" goes something like this: "They were four... a pair of brothers, a pair of fathers and since the fathers were brothers the pair of sons... were a pair of cousins. The profession of musketeers is hereditary, but they only had two horses and every knows a musketeer without a horse is like a priest without a prayer book. People outraged threw rocks at the pair of musketeers on the pair of horses. But one day, after a murderous melee, the fathers died and the two son musketeers began to chase barmaids which caused them to become son-fathers of a pair of little musketeers.... So there was a pair of sons... a pair of fathers... and if this story exasperates you, reread Dumas Sr., the father of Dumas Jr.... It never ends!"

Another little ditty or shall we say "chanson" goes, "During the month of May, I took on (a wife) and I am in a state. The first night she scratched my mug so I took old clothes and went into the cow-shed but the black cow turned on me and hit me in the nose... the woman and the cows are all after me, so listen ... take no wife in the month of May."

Not all the chansons that Marc et Andre will sing will be humorous, for as one song "News" proclaims, "The peasant sings behind his plough: two women drink in a bar; a child dies; on the shore of the flowing Seine two young people embrace: a hundred miners groan at their labor; a regiment passes on, of which only ten men will survive; and the sun shines... on...."

General admission is $1 for students or $1.50 for non-students. Tickets may be purchased from wandering French students or at the door. House lights dim at 8:15.

Hollander Speaks On US Image

A noted Dutch sociologist and authority on the culture patterns of the U.S. will discuss "The Image of the United States in the Netherlands" tonight.

Dr. A. N. J. Den Hollander, director of the American Institute of the University of Amsterdam and president of the UNESCO Center of the Netherlands, will speak at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall. The lecture, open to the public, is being sponsored by the Sociology Dept.

Dr. Meyer F. Nimkoff, head of the Sociology Dept., said the visiting professor is completing a tour of American universities. Den Hollander, who is restuding conditions in this country which were the subject of previous research, accepted Nimkoff's invitation to lecture at FSU.

He will meet with graduate students in sociology this afternoon, Nimkoff added.

Den Hollander has studied in his native country and in Germany, England and France. He did field work in the U.S. as a fellow of the Rockefeller Foundation in 1930-32, resulting in the publication of his "The Rural Poor Whites of the Southern United States."

He was head of a UNESCO social science team in East Pakistan in 1952-53, and was organizer and honorary president of the Third World Congress of Sociology in Amsterdam in 1956.

Editor of three Dutch sociological journals and author of a number of books and articles, the international sociologist has spent his life studying the culture patterns of the U.S. and other parts of the world.

Freshmen Eligible For Honors Program

Freshmen with high academic records at the end of their first trimester at FSU are eligible to join the Honors Program in the Division of Basic Studies. Students who have completed no more than 19 semester hours may participate in the Honors Program starting in January.

The advantages of the Honors Program for freshmen include the availability of special honors sections in many courses with limited enrollment, increased faculty-student relationships, and extra-curricular programs. Faculty honors advisers also have small counseling loads.

For the University as a whole, the Honors Program in the Division of Basic Studies, the College of Arts and Sciences, the School of Music and the School of Education all serve to put the emphasis on good scholarship. These programs recognize and encourage high quality education for all students and faculty on campus.

Most honors students are enrolled in the Basic Division Honors Program at the beginning of their freshman year. Others, with 14-19 semester hours credit, may be admitted if they hwve achieved an overall average 3.5 or better in their academic subjects at the University. Grades in physical education and ROTC are not included in this requirement. Students with an overall academic average of 3.2 to 3.5 may also qualify for the Honors Program if they had outstanding high school records (3.5 academic grade point average or a Florida Twelfth Grade Test score of 450 or a C.E.E.B. score of 1100).

Interested students should contact the Honors Program office, 121 History, as soon as possible before Christmas holidays. Final grades for this trimester can be checked only for those students expressing a desire to join the Program before the end of this trimester.

Questions about the Program may be directed to the Director of Honors, Paul J. Piccard of the Government Department faculty or to Mrs. Bobbye Davies, the Program's Executive Secretary. Faculty Honors Advisers include: Robert Beard, Philosophy Dept.; Chalres Edington, Biological Sciences; Elke Frank, Government; Katherine Hoffman, Chemistry; Russell Reaver, English; Grover Rogers, Engineering Science; William Rogers, History; and John Spratt, Music.

Christmas Festivities Begin Sunday At President's Home

The annual Christmas party given by officers and senators of the undergraduate classes at the home of FSU President and Mrs. Gorden Blackwell has been scheduled for Sunday afternoon from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

Honor guests include 16 class sponsors, 25 administrative officers, student body officers and student cabinet members.

Dr. Richard Fallon of the Speech Dept. will read Charles Dickens' "The Christmas Carol," and the G-Bach string trio will play during the social hour and for carol singing.

The following Sunday, Dec. 9, President Blackwell will flip the switch to light a giant Christmas tree on his lawn at 7:30 p.m. Undergraduate class officers are organizing a caroling group to sing as the tree is lighted, and any group planning to carol on that night may join in singing at 7:30 around the tree.

President and Mrs. Blackwell will be at home to carolers Dec. 9, 10 and 12 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Groups planning to carol should register their intention with Miss Marie Williams so that the total number may be distributed during the three nights.

Members of Omicron Delta Kappa honorary fraternity will assist with courtesies each evening.

Campus Movie

"Flying Leathernecks," starring John Wayne, Robert Ryan, Don Taylor and Janis Carter, will be the campus movie shown Friday and Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members with the initials of the writer following the editorial.

Trod On Asphalt

Florida State University has been blessed with a beautiful campus. The green rolling lawns dotted by well kept shrubs and pine trees surround traditional red brick buildings. By any standards, FSU's campus is among the most attractive in the South.

But its beauty has been and is presently being marred by unthinking and uncaring students.

Green lawns around the campus are scarred by impromptu paths worn brown by students who will not bother to use the sidewalks as they walk to class.

Graphic examples of the work of these people can be seen in front of the Business Building, in the enclosure of the Student Center, behind Longmire Building and on Landis Green. Other examples become more noticeable daily.

Both administration and students are partially to blame. Paths which rightfully need sidewalks sometimes go wanting of university action. Fences, which would keep students from crossing certain areas, are needed in more places. These fences need repair work in a few instances.

But the primary blame must be placed on the students. A campus which has sidewalks in every direction and for every course that a student might fancy would be a cement jungle. Fences along every sidewalk to keep students off the grass would give FSU the prison atmosphere.

Rather, students need to realize that a beautiful campus will remain beautiful only as long as they make the effort to care for it. Trodding on asphalt, not grass, on the way to class will insure a more attractive campus.

REAPPORTIONMENT

Tallahassee -- The latest effort by the Florida Senate to break the reapportionment deadlock has failed.

On the eve of the special session's final day, prospects appeared very uncertain whether an acceptable reapportionment would be found.

A much-debated plan calling for 38 senators was defeated by one vote in the Senate late yesterday. The upper chamber immediately adjourned until today, following the House which had quit several hours earlier.

The proposal would have reapportioned the Senate into 38 districts within the framework of the state constitution. This could be accomplished by statute instead of constitutional amendment, a more difficult procedure.

The defeated measure made no effort to reapportion the House.

The bill got to the Senate floor as a twice-amended proposal sent over from the House. It had been given a good chance of passage by Senate leaders even though opposition was strong.

The Senate's action meant that the reapportionment fight will go into its 20th day tomorrow with the lawmakers apparently no nearer to agreement than when they started November 9th.

The House did nothing all day while waiting for the Senate to move and finally gave up and left.

Defeat of the amendment was followed immediately by a motion to reconsider, as forces opposed to it sought to kill it permanently in a second vote while the often-obscured alignment of the lawmakers was apparent.

Proponents engaged in fancy parliamentary maneuvering in an effort to reach the 5 p.m. adjournment time before the 2nd vote was cast. They failed. The bill died the 2nd time by the same margin.

Herrell's bill was the amended House proposal. It did not reach a vote yesterday but could be called when the Senate reconvenes at 10 today.

Liberal Smear Job Baseless

I am just about fed up with the kind of liberal attack characterized by the Gallagher and Sheen performance of Messrs. Jordan and Sealy.

First we have Jordan, who, without benefit of any facts, tells the campus just what Young Americans for Freedom stands for, i.e., to "screen out dangerous subversives such as Communists, atheists, liberals, negroes,...". Then, once we have the aims of YAF firmly in mind, back comes Sealy, who enjoyed the wonderful letter "satirizing the Birchite attack on America". Sealy then, using Jordan's material as quoted above, "just can't stop laughing at the idiotically absurd statement--all Negroes are dangerous subversives. . .,"evidently implying that this is the opinion of Young Americans for Freedom, or the "Birchites". It's swell when one guy tells you what your organization stands for, and then another uses it to show how "absurd" it is.

All right you two, enough. It's about time someone kept you honest. The two of you have made some charges, but have evidently forgotten to include the evidence upon which your pontifications are based. How about telling us all upon what you base the following pronouncements:

...that, as implied, YAF considers "atheists, liberals, negroes" as subversive. . .that, as implied (and this is known in the jargon as guilt by association), that the John Birch Society and YAF are the one and the same. . .that their slogan is "peace by '64, with or without people or freedom". In this case, we will excuse you if you claim ignorance of the meaning of quotation marks. . .and, if you are in an especially ambitious mood, you can tell us where you got the fiction that George Washington was an atheist. Or is the rewriting of history part of your racket, too?

Such drivel and false charges as you two dish out are the kind of [illegible] son a Johns Committee deals.

A Communist At FSU ?

TALLAHASSEE -- (AP) Representative Leighton Baker of Lake County has called a cloumn in the Florida Flambeau "Communistic," advocating government control of all natural resources.

Baker distributed copies of the Flambeau column by John Riggins to members of the House of Representatives, saying it was similar to writing in the Communist Manifesto. He said: "If this kind of thinking prevails in our colleges and universities, we won't need to reapportion. We won't even need a legislature."

COMMITTEES: AN AGONIZING RE-APPRAISAL

To those of you who stay out of your student [illegible] because you believe the committee system is [illegible] for inaction, let me cite an example to prove that [illegible] properly led and directed, can be a great force [illegible]

Last week the Student Council met at the [illegible] of Veterinary Medicine and Belles Lettres to [illegible] a new doormat for the students union. It was [illegible] desperate problem because Sherwin K. Sigafoos [illegible] students union, threatened flatly to quit unless a [illegible] was installed immediately. "I'm sick and tired [illegible] dirty old floor," said Mr. Sigafoos, sobbing [illegible] Mr. Sigafoos, once a jolly outgoing sort, has been [illegible] steadily since the recent death of his pet wart hog [illegible] been his constant companion for 22 years. Actually Mr. [illegible] is much better off without the wart hog, who [illegible] viciously at least once a day, but a companionship [illegible] is, I suppose, not lightly relinquished. The [illegible] Mr. Sigafoos a new wart hog -- a frisky little [illegible] ears and a waggly tail. But Mr. Sigafoos only [illegible] and cried the harder.)

He only turned his back and cried the harder

But I digress. The Student Council met, discussed the doormat for eight or ten hours, and then referred it to a committee. There were some who scoffed then and said nothing would ever be heard of the doormat again, but they reckoned without Invictus Millstone.

Invictus Millstone, chairman of the doormat committee, was a man of action -- lithe and lean and keen and, [illegible] a smoker of Marlboro Cigarettes. Why do I say "[illegible]"? Because, dear friends, active men and women don't have time to brood and bumble about their cigarettes. They need to be certain. They must have perfect confidence that each time they light up they will get the same gratifying flavor, the same Selectrate filter, the same soft soft-pack, the same [illegible] flip-top box. In brief, dear friends, they need to be sure it's Marlboro -- for if ever a smoke was true and trusty, it's Marlboro. Get some soon. Get matches too, because true and trusty though Marlboros are, your pleasure will be somewhat limited unless you light them.

Well sir, Invictus Millstone chaired his doormat committee with such vigor and dispatch that when the Student Council met only one week later, he was able to rise and deliver the following recommendations:

1. That the college build new schools of botany, hydraulic engineering, tropical medicine, Indo-Germanic languages, and millinery.

2. That the college drop football, put a roof on the stadium, and turn it into a low-cost housing project for married students.

3. That the college raise faculty salaries by $5000 per year across the board.

4. That the college secede from the United States.

5. That the question of a doormat for the students union be referred to a subcommittee.

So let us hear no more defeatist talk about the committee system. It can be made to work!

Disciplinary Actions Taken By Dean, Court

A student accused of cheating on an economics examination was found guilty and sentenced to immediate suspension from the University recently by the Honor Court.

Three cases involving stealing from the University Book Store also were tried by the Court. One case was referred by the Faculty Review Committee back to the Honor Court. The other two cases concerned the taking of watch bands from the store.

One of the students was sentenced to one trimester of University suspension beginning in January. The other was given two trimesters of Honor Court probation under the Court's policy of giving special consideration to first-trimester freshmen.

The appeal of a decision made by Men's Judiciary concerning suspension of a student's privilege to operate an automobile in Leon County was reviewed. The decision of Men's Judiciary was upheld by Honor Court.

Two cases concerning deliberate deception in the use of I.D. cards were heard, but have been returned for consideration by the Faculty Review Committee.

Three undergraduate men students recently were suspended from FSU for "conduct unbecoming a university student," in disciplinary action taken by the University.

Suspended were James Atha, John Glasgow, and Doug McSheey.

The men were found guilty of carrying beer into a men's residence hall, Smith Hall, and subsequently creating a disturbance. Campus police were called to the scene and "suffered considerable verbal and some physical abuse," according to Dr. Donald Loucks, Dean of Men.

DEAN OF MEN

City police were then called to subdue the students, who were reported to be under the influence of alcoholic beverages.

In another recent University action, a male student who has confessed to having broken into and entered four filling stations in Tallahassee has been suspended from FSU. The student, Spencer Payne, is now awaiting sentence pending a pre-sentence investigation by law enforcement officials.

In a fifth case, involving a male graduate student living in Alumni Village, the University has expelled the student for "conduct considered unbecoming a student at this institution."

Red Cross Recruiter Here This Week

Miss Hazel Breland, assistant director of personnel-recruitment for the Southeastern area, American National Red Cross, in Atlanta, will be on campus the remainder of this week to interview graduating students interested in various positions in the field of welfare and recreation.

Those who wish to talk with Miss Breland may make an appointment by contacting the Placement Office, Room 08 Longmire Bldg.

The Red Cross recruiter said that careers in the organization are open to men and women who are U.S. citizens, are in good health and have world-wide mobility. Preference is given to college graduates, she emphasized.

She mentioned that, because of recent increases in the armed services, greatest needs are at present for young women to do casework and recreation with the armed forces and men to serve as Red Cross welfare workers at military installations.

Young women selected as recreation workers may serve in a clubmobile program in Korea, or conduct recreational activities for persons in military hospitals in this country and overseas. Experence in group leadership, music, drama, art or handicrafts is heapful, but sufficient training is provided after employment to make a general educational background and an aptitude toward recreation suitable foundations for the beginning worker.

To carry out programs of welfare services in military hospitals, the Red Cross also employs as social workers young women with degrees in social welfare, socialogy, psychology, or related fields. On-the-job supervision is provided by professional social workers.

Young men employed as welfare workers by the Red Cross are assigned with armed forces personnel wherever they serve and perhaps will be better prepared for the positions if they have already had military service, Miss Breland said.

Grid Graduate Holds 2 Jobs

Now that football season is over, what will the graduating gridders do? They might follow the path of a former Florida State great, Tony Romeo, who was the highly-touted end that graduated in 1961.

Romeo, like many football collegiates, headed to the ranks of professional football teams; and, like gridders have done in the past, he is downing defensive end for the Boston Patriots, who are high in the Eastern Division of the American Football League.

But unlike other gridders, Romeo does something special with his day off, his day of rest.

On Sunday, this rugged athlete walks into the Ruggles Street Church in Boston and works at his other profession--Baptist minister for a 118-member congregation.

Romeo, 6-2, 220 pounds, is in his second year of pro ball and is one of the leading pass receivers for the Patriots, but a recent AP story says the FSU grad never forgets that he is also a minister.

The president of the Patriots was reported to have said, "Boy, you keep playing like that and you'll have converted half the team." This was after the Boston triumph over Oakland.

But Romeo looked at it differently. The AP quoted Pres. William Sullivan, "He looked me right in the eye and said quietly, 'I don't want to convert people into Baptists, I just want them to be good Christians."

Why does a guy work as a bruiser and a Baptist?

"It's paying my tuition at Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth, and for my wife's tuition at North Texas State College," Romeo said.

"During the off season," Romeo said, "I preach four times a week and I put on revival meetings whenever I can."

Fire Reported

Four pieces of equipment from the Tallahassee Fire Department were called to a grease fire in the kitchen of the Suwannee Room yesterday about 3:45 p.m.

The fire, which apparently started from overheated grease drippings on a grill, was extinguished by kitchen employees shortly before firemen arrived. Fire department personnel stood by with extinguishers for about an hour to insure the blaze did not reignite. No damage was reported.

Daly Speaks On Peace Corps

By PAT FREEMAN
Flambeau Feature Writer

Are you of above average intelligence? Over 18? Are you in top physical condition? Do you enjoy working with people? Are you mature and emotionally stable? Do you possess any skills? Do you have an aptitude for learning languages? Do you like to work?

If you think you measure up to these qualifications, then you have just met the basic requirements of a Peace Corps volunteer.

Paul A. Daly, special assistant in the Agricultural Division of the Agency for International Developments, listed these basic Peace Corps qualifications in a speech to seniors in home economics Tuesday afternoon.

Daly explained the need for volunteers with skills in home economics in many of the 42 developing countries now being served by Peace Corps volunteers. "Today," Daly said, "there are positions for 100 home economists before February."

At present, there are over 200 professional home economists in 20 countries performing the same tasks overseas as are necessary in America. Child development, specialists in dietetics, textiles, merchandising, nutrition and industrial management, home demonstration agents, and even home and family life counselors are presently serving as volunteers overseas.

The average age of Peace Corps workers in the fields of home economics is about 28; the oldest volunteer formerly was dean of home economics at Iowa State University before she volunteered for work overseas.

Daly gave a panorama of the different duties and aspects of Peace Corps work. He said the Peace Corps' history began with a group known as the International Voluntary Services, a group of college graduates in field work overseas working in close cooperation with today's Peace Corps.

What the developing nations of today lack is not capital or labor, according to Daly, but rather the technological skills and know-how. These nations are not requesting materials, loans or gifts, but have asked for skilled individuals who are capable of showing the new nations how to develop on their own.

Daly mentioned that Americans were being requested in the fields of education, public health, agriculture and rural development, technical services, and councseling and advisory fields.

Other letters told of workers developing plumbing skills, which up until Peace Corps duty had been latent. The letters mentioned how poorly prepared women of Peace Corps host countries were in the traditional skills. But it seemed that even before a member could begin to instruct the women, the men had to be consulted and informed of what the volunteer hoped to teach the women, and the benefits of improved sanitation, nutrition and medical knowledge.

American history and policies are taught as well as the host nation's language, culture, songs, dances, and customs. Also there are classes in health and physical conditioning. These courses are given in universities in the United States for eight hours a day, six days a week during the three month training period.

The volunteer may not leave America fluent in the language of the host country, unless it is a Spanish or French speaking country, but learns the language once he has reached the host country. Conversation classes are taught by native instructors who are changed every hour.

Daly stressed the point that a volunteer can continue work on either a master's or a doctor's degree while doing field work, getting actual credit ffrom many universities for research and skills acquired. Credits up to 14 hours are available in languages as well as political science research, child observation research, and many similar areas applied while on duty.

Duty lasts for two years, with the five months of training counting as part of the period. The choice of where field work is done usually is up to the volunteer. During the two-year time, the government deposits 75 dollars in an account opened in of the two years, the returning individual has $1800 in the bak, to enable him to continue schooling or further plans.

Dr. John Carey, acting assistant Dean of Men, is the Peace Corps' contact for FSU, and can supply additional information concerning the Peace Corps.

Flambeau Forum

Socialism's Cost Preventive

To the Editor:

I wish to answer the plea for nationalism of natural resources, written by John Riggins in Tuesday's Flambeau.

Upon first reading, I though that Mr. Riggins was in jest, but upon rereading the article I find that he was serious in his sales pitch for nationalization. Nationalization (per Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary) has the same meaning as to communize private property.

All thinking Americans are aware of the dangers of irrational usage of our natural resources, and none more so than private American corporations and landowners, who are engaged in constant conservation and research to preserve our natural resources. Why are these money making giants (or "manipulators" as Mr. Riggs (sic) calls them) concerned with this problem? Simply because their survival depends upon their efficient usage of their privately owned natural resources.

Mr. Riggins states that "---the government as an agent of society should own and use the forests and reforested lands to be manipulated by state, local and private interests." Further, "---that the federal government should have title to all mineral deposits and should administer them for the benefit of all Americans."

Wake up, Mr. Riggins! You are stating that private property (as far as natural resources are concerend (sic)) is obsolete and inefficient. How you draw the line and exclude housing, food production and distribution and frying pans is not clear to me. I do not see any instance where the federal government has or could efficiently replace private individuals and firms in the allocation of any resources. It has been done, but at tremendous cost to the taxpayers, who by the way are all Americans.

I should like to state one hypothetical example of the federal government's efficiency vs. private individuals and firms. Nearly 7 million persons are fed daily on the island of Manhattan, all of the food is brought in and seemingly everyone has what they want and can afford. I really would like to see the federal government take over this simple task of transporting and distributing food to those 7 million. Which do you think would be the most efficient?

John F. Bussman

Peace With Russia A Dream

To the Editor:

Just why Mr. Riggins' unfounded statement that Cuba is "no danger except of a propagandist nature" is absurd. Has Mr. Riggins any knowledge of geography and missiles? At the speed missiles travel, they could annihilate Miami, Jacksonville, Tampa, Pensacola, and numberous air and naval installations in a matter of minutes.

Consider the propagandist value which Mr. Riggins seemingly ignores. Castro's saber rattling and insults to the U.S. had made this country look more weak and complacent than it is. Nations of this world have been watching the actions of the U.S. I feel they see nothing but a Pyrrlic victory for the U.S. What we have done (or failed to do) has not spelled out a victory of Cuba over America--a ridiculous thought anyway--but of communism over democracy--Russia over the U.S. This has indeed been a source of valuable propaganda to the Russians.

To pull U.S. forces out of Turkey would be deserting the staunchest ally the U.S. has in the Middle East. We would be leaving the country to the mercy of communist infiltration and aggression.

Peaceful co-existence is a dream that will never materialize. The systems of a Republican government and communist tyranny cannot indefinitely "co-exist." Khrushchev has made it plain that he does not intend to live with the U.S. but to rule over it.

The thought of nulcear war is a horrible one but I would rather risk a war than to live under communism.

It if fitting I think to close my letter with a remark made by the great Winston Churchill: "You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory, because it is better to perish than to live as slaves."

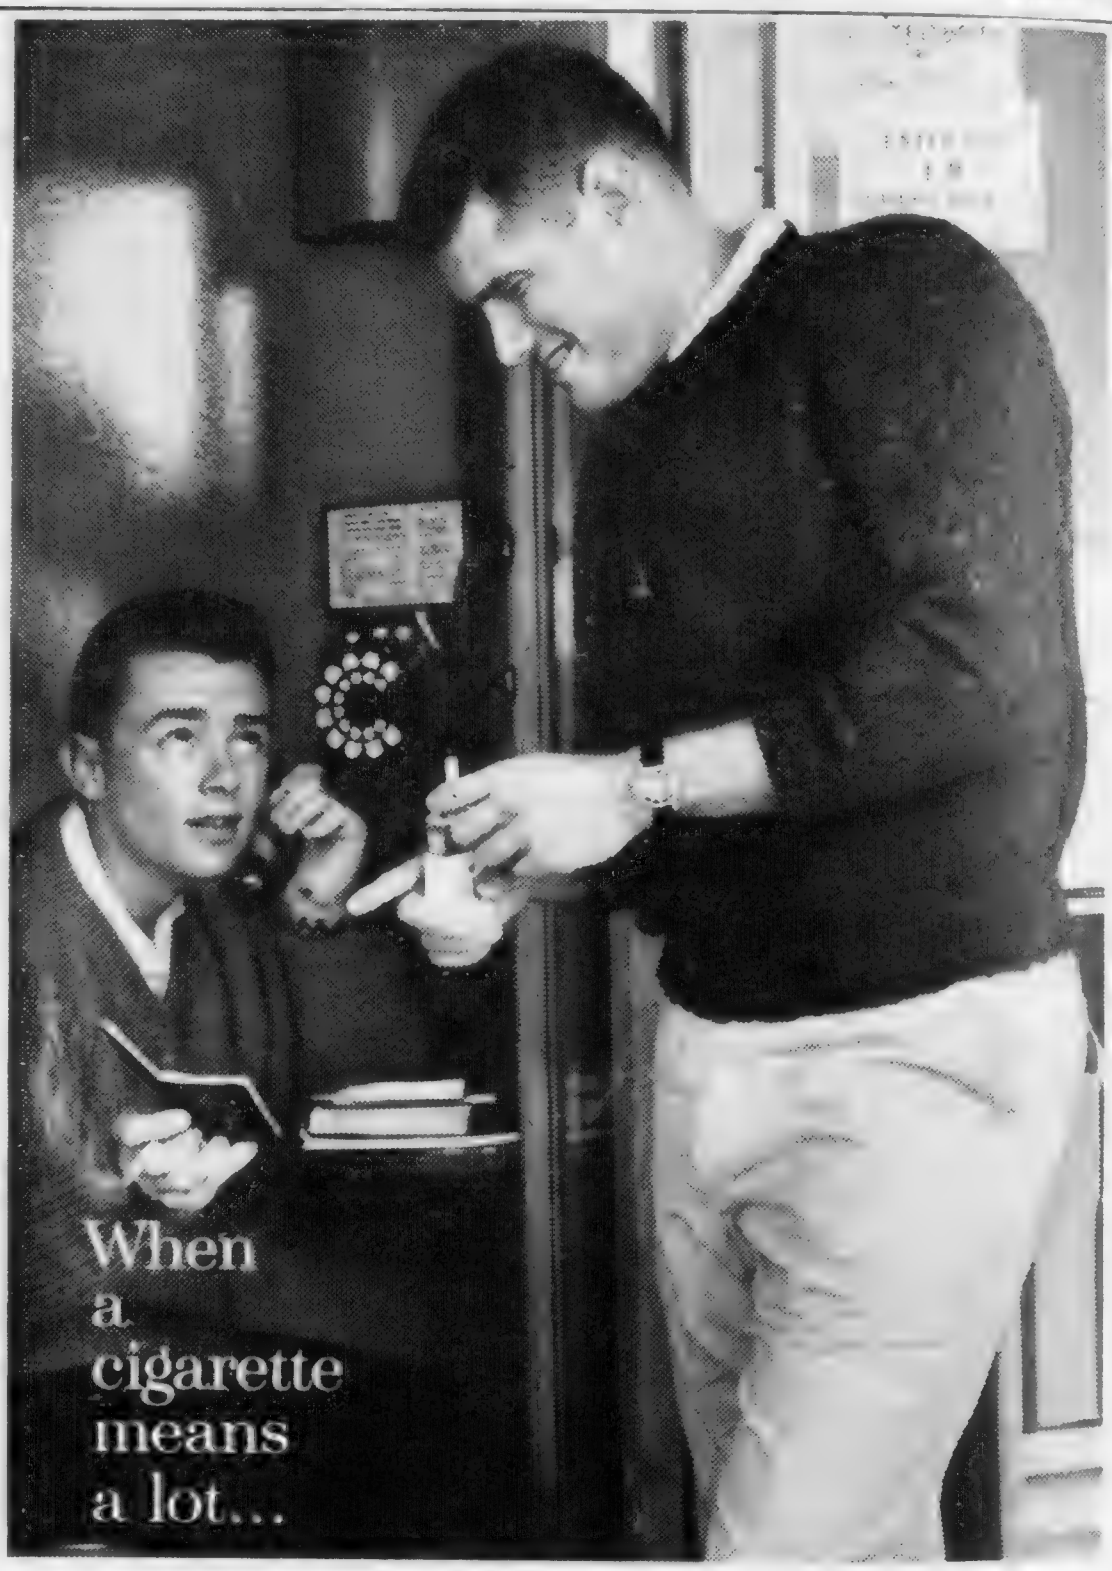
Charges Against Liberals Refuted

To the Editor:



I would like to congratulate Mr. Gerry Dobson for his vaguely documented article in which he gallantly charges against the State Department, Fidel Castro and the liberals of today.

May I ask Mr. Dobson what are his solutions to the problems which our foreign affairs officers so "stupidly" handle?

If the author of "Liberal Unmitigated Gall" cares to define what he means by "today's liberals" much might be gained. After all, we come to college to learn, among other things, unbiased definitions.

Finally, I want him to know that I am with him 100 per cent in his disdain for those who "quake in [illegible] at the thought of an atomic atta[illegible] It is true that an at[illegible] war [illegible] cost many millions of h[illegible] plus uncoutable s[illegible] vivors. Formerly, the rule specified only that those entering aftdr the house is closed for the night must sign in before 1 p.m. the following day.

Another bill passed by Women's Senate to add a rule to "Knowledge for College" states, "You may iron from 6 a.m. until one half an hour past regular closing time."

Both bills passed unanimously.

A third "Knowledge for College" bill was introducted, concerning the wearing of Bermuda shorts and slim jims on campus and to business establishments immediately adjacent to campus.

It will be referred to the Social Standards committee which will be chosen next Tuesday. Nominations for non-Senate members of the committee were made at the meeting.

The bill concerning wearing sports clothes, if passed, would read, "Bermuda shorts and slim jims may be worn on campus and to business establishments immediately adjacent to campus which are frequented almost exclusively by students listed as: The Corner, Sweet Shop, University Inn, and The Mecca.

"These may be worn all day Saturday and after 6 (p.m.) on the weekdays (M.T.W.Th.F.). This attire should not be worn off campus unless the wearer is attending an outing where this attire is appropriate or participating in a sports event."

Senator Joyce Killian, president pro tem of Women's Senate, presided.

Senate Passes Election Bill, Fills Seat, Selects Comm.

Senate recommended that Student Body and Class Officer election dates be changed to February and March instead of the current April and May, in its meeting yesterday. The bill was passed and sent to the Secretary of Elections as a recommendation in view of the current time conflict of the trimester.

Alice Marshall was elected and sworn in as a new senator in Clyda Stokes' position

In further business, Senator Tom Sisco introduced an unwritten resolution in regard to a recent column written in the FLORIDA FLAMBEAU that was questioned by a member of the Florida Legislature. Sisco stated that the disagreement to the article was on the grounds that it was socialistic and unAmerican, and stated that his resolution read that Senate declare that the Flambeau editors refrain from printing and supporting such material.

Since the resolution was not formally introduced into Senate, an informal discussion of the matter followed, without a formal motion or any decisive action taken. A five-member committee, headed by Vice President Johnny Smith was appointed to meet with the members of the Legislature Sunday afternoon to discuss the matter.

FSU Judo Club Is Entering 4th Year

Look out for the 97 pound weakling. He may be a member of the FSU Judo Club, which is in its fourth year at this university.

When Mitch Cantwell formed the club four years ago, little was known by Americans about judo. Since then, however, the sport has grown by leaps and bounds throughout Florida.

Two state-wide promotional tournaments are put on annually by the Florida Judo Black-Belt Association, in addition to one invitational and numerous district tourneys.

Last year, the National Colle Judo Federati group sponsors college tournam throughout the U.S. Also last FSU Judo Club was recognized icialy as a school-sponsored or ization. Since then, the club participated i meets, as well as the first A Florida Collegiate tourna which was sponsored by the versity of Florida.

FSU finishe seven college in that tourna

Anyone inter formation about the FSU should come by in Tully Gymnasium at 4 on Tuesdays or Thursday 10:30 a.m. on Saturdays.

Legislature Attacks Flambeau, Editorial Policy Under Fire

During the past few days, charges concerning the editorial policy of the Florida Flambeau have been hurled from the floor of the Florida Legislature. The student newspaper has been labeled as communistic, atheistic, socialistic and Un-American.

The battle was touched off by a column which appeared in Tuesday's edition of the Flambeau by a columnist John Riggins entitled "Socialize Natural Resources." The controversy as to the Flambeau's Editorial Policy began when freshman legislator Leighton Baker of Lake County lunched on the FSU campus and read a copy of that day's Flambeau.

Returning to the Capitol for the afternoon session of the legislature Baker reprinted the article and had it circulated among the legislators. The reprinted article also had by its side, the Masthead which bears neames of the paper's staff.

In his article, Riggins advocated "Social ownership of natural resources." He maintained that "our precious natural resources and lands are far too valuable to consign to individual ownership and management--society as a whole should own and democratically control these important areas of our national life, the continued existence of which depends upon them."

On the House floor, Baker called the column "communistic," saying that it was similar to writing in the Communist Manifesto. "If this kind of thinking prevails in our colleges and universities," he said "we won't need to reapportion. We won't even need a legislature."

News media picked up his comments and circulated them around the state. By Wednesday noon several newspapers radio and radio stations had called the Flambeau office asking for comment on the reports.

Editor Ben Sharp explained the "Flambeau's" editorial policy and made the following statement:

"Mr. John Thomas Riggins, President of the Young Socialists League, is writing a series of columns dealing with the basic concepts of socialsim. I feel that such columns are valuable to students in their knowledge of the subjects. The Flambeau regularly prints columns dealing with issues ranging from arch-conservative to arch-liberal."

"We have always stood for the rights of students to discuss freely issues of their choosing as long as they remain in the bounds of good taste and libel and do not deal in personality attacks on individuals. We will continue to allow our students to voice their opinions in the Flambeau. I stress that we do not necessarily agree with this, or other statements written by columnists, but we do staunchly defend their right to express these opinions."

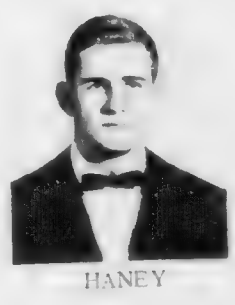
During Wednesday's session of Student Senate, Senator Tom Sisco attempted to introduce a resolution "Pertaining to Un- American Ideas Presented in the Flambeau." The resolution said members of the legislature read copies of the "Flambeau" and members of the Senate had become "exceedingly alarmed by the support of socialistic, communistic, athiestic and other Un-American ideas on the editorial page of the Flambeau."

Sisco proposed that since the Senate must appropriate all monies for FSU that the Student Senate direct the "editors of the Flambeau to refrain from printing any of the above mentioned un-American ideas."

The resolution was ruled out of order since it exceeded the authority of the Senate. Senate informally considered the merits of the resolution and an attempt to amend, making it in order, failed for lack of a second.

Copies of Sisco's proposed resolution were printed and distributed to members of the State Senate during Thursday's evening session.

Adding to the heat of the controversy, a joint statement of campus chapters of young democrats and young republicans was presented to the Senate by Senator Bill Young of Pinellas.



The statement asserted "whereas of late there has been much criticism of the editorial page of the Florida Flambeau the Young Democrat and Young Republican clubs

Eight Tapped To Gold Key

Eight undergraduate men were tapped for membership in Gold Key last night.

The eight are Ron Boersma, Charlie Calhoun, Chuck Cutajar, Lucky Fox, Tom Haney, Gene McDowell, Kelly Reid, and Joe Rogers.

Founded at FSU in 1947, Gold Key is a leadership honorary composed of junior and sophomore men. New members are tapped in the fall and spring of each year on the basis of outstanding character, leadership and scholarship.

Each year at Homecoming, Gold Key announces the selection of two honorary members, one from the University and one from public life. Chosen this year were Dr. Michael Kasha, director of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics, and Justice L. Harris Drew of the Florida Supreme Court.

Ron Boersma, secretary of Inter-Fraternity Council, has been president and treasurer of Pi Kappa Phi, is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, the Newman Club, and has a 3.09 overall average. Charlie Calhoun, officer of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, is quarterback on the football squad, Back of the Week, in the nation's top 10 punters, on the football Board, and an officer in the accounting honorary.

Tom Haney is president of the Junior Class, vice president of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, has a 3.3 overall average, and is past president of Phi Eta Sigma.

Gene McDowell, is a member of Alpha Council and Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, is Most Improved Lineman, Lineman of the Week, and is an Army R.O.T.C. officer. Kelly Reid is a member of Arnold Air Society, Honor Court, an R.O.T.C. officer, past Chairman of University Party, and Colonizer, President and treasurer of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

Joe Rogers is a member of Alpha Council, Arnold Air Society, R.O.T.C. officer, FSU wrestling team, the football squad for two years, Phi Delta Theta fraternity, and an Honor Court justice.

Gene Brown, Gold Key president commented, "Each of these men exemplify the Gold Key ideal and have made valuable contributions to our University.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members, with the initials of the writer following the editorial. Columns and Letters to the Editor reflect only the opinion of the writer.

Americanism In Deepest Sense

"Florida Flambeau" policy has been questioned on the floor of the Florida Senate and House of Representatives. Our policy, which we feel is clear and direct, needs reiteration.

THE OPINIONS EXPRESSED on this editorial page, whether in the editorial sections, in columns, or in letters, do not necessarily express the opinion of the student body, the faculty or the administration of Florida State University.

The editorials, which are always clearly designated as editorials express the opinion of the staff of the "Florida Flambeau," no one else.

Columns and letters submitted for publication express only the view of their writer. These, and all written materials, must be in good taste, free from libel, and must refrain from personal attacts on individuals. Within this scope, we select the material that is to be printed.

THE PHILOSOPHY WHICH guides us in selecting materials for publication can be best expressed by the often quoted statement of Voltaire:

"I may disagree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

The first ten amendments to the constitution, the Bill of Rights, clearly supports this philosophy when it provides for freedom of the press, a basic tenent of Americanism.

Under this concept, we feel one function of a college newspaper is to provide a place of free discussion among students. All ideas, short of sedition, have a place for discussion. On this page, opinions are advanced and statements refuting or supporting it are heard. The idea that cannot stand up under rigorous challenge is not worthwhile. Here, ideas are challenged.

A MELTING POT of ideas, each provoking others, stimulates intellectual curiosity, aids in the formulation of student opinion, and teaches students to think for themselves. This editorial page is such a melting pot.

Freedom of expression in the "Florida Flambeau" is not un-American, as some would have the Legislature believe. It is Americanism in the deepest sense.

Do Profs Force Ideas?

It seems to me that the concept of "academic freedom" has undergone quite a metamorphesis during the last several years. In te old days (for those of you who like to hop of statements of mine, here is a golden opportunity; I obviously want to return to the colonial era) academic freed meant freedom of inquiry; the freedom to pursue new lines of thought, and the freedom to do the original research. let the chips fall where they may.

But lately we are being told that academic freedom also includes the freedom to teach or advocate any idea without suffering the consequences. To a person who, as I do, believes that a large part of the purpose of education is to pass along the culture of the society, such an idea is repugnant, because there can, under the "new" academic freedom, be no guarantee that this will be done.

Those who demand the right to teach any idea in our schools and colleges demand a right given to no other group in our society. We often hear an analogy made between freedom of the press and academic freedom: "If a newspaper edito[r] the right to say anything h[e] in his newspaper, why sh[ould] the professor have the right [to] anything he wants in the [class] room?" But the analogy is not v[alid]. Aside from the point that free[dom] of the press is guarant[eed] Constitution and "academic [free]dom" is not, there remains the [ques]tion of a society's right not t[o] ideas rammed down its throat a[gain]st its will; if a society does [not] like the editorial policy of a pa[per] it need not buy it. If merchants [do] agree with the stand taken by a pa[per] they need not advertise in it. [This] is the reason "The W[orld] [Tel]egram" has a million circulation. Yet "a[ca]demic freedom" demands for [its] proponents not only the r[ight] teach any idea, but also p[ro]to guarantee that they will n[ot] the consequences if their e[m]is dissatisfied with the serv[ice] is receiving. One would think [it] would be up to the teacher t[o] a market for his ideas.

To use an example mention[ed] a reader of the Tampa Tri[bune] it's as if a housepainter had freedom to decide what color would paint your house, an[d] were bound, under "painting fr[ee]dom" to accept and pay for wh[at]ever color he, in his position an expert in the field, decided up[on]. Persons who are appalled at a thought nevertheless defend same sort of a setup in educati[on].

Octamester Proposed

The predicted future enrollment at this institution is fantastic. Therefore, I would like to submit to the faculty, students and various non-campus organizations, whose opinions are usually influential, this new educational system-- the Octamester. Under this system, eight months of the year would be set aside for school (the remaining four being reserved for psychiatric treatments.)

Education under such an advanced system might produce certain rather strange conversations. Like. . .

"But sir, this isn't my diploma!"

"Don't argue, son, keep moving."

or maybe. . .

"I graduated in May."

"My class, the class of January, was a great class. Yes, sir, the class of January, a good class, that January class. I was a January graduate. Yes sir. . . ."

In this age when the educated man is on the way out and status symbols, such as college diplomas on fine parchment, are on the way in, I'm sure this system would set the precedent. It might take our students out of the books but it would sure put FSU on the map. Until then--keep moving.

'Unwashed' Are Blasted

A sense of angered amazement struck me the other day when I read a certain letter in the Flambeau. Here was a fellow complaining because he was denied entrance to a concert the direct reason being his state of highly informal dress.

To kick a trite old adage around, "There's a time and place for every thing." I don't wear my tux to tinker on an engine nor do I likewise consider wearing my engine tinkering clothes to a symphony concert.

In thinking on this situation I came to distinguish between "beatniks" (people who are trying to defy a conformist society) and people who just have beards. Several incidents also came to mind.

At various Longmire Coffee Concerts I have attended, there are usually several of this sort. One in particular was so "society defiant" as to purposely plant himself on the floor between towo empty chairs and extend his hairy feet so that at least 20 people could savor their beauty.

Let me define "this sort." I (and many other people) do not find beards and mustaches out of place, unless that is, they are so gross they literally straggle in the air and shriek, "Look at me! I belong to a beat!" Beards and mustaches were once acceptable to everyone and they show a good chance of regaining their former acceptance. But--- the wearing of grunty clothes and slovenly sandals to concerts and university lectures never was and never will be, socially acceptable. Yes, I know, these people are trying to defy a conformist society; but why don't they do it on an intellectual level for once? Some people mistakenly connect grossness of dress with freedom of mind.

This "role of the unwashed" seems to be a subconcious desire to be publicly noticed. Excuse the "unwashed" term which I'm sure doesn't apply to the majority of this minority, but what else are people in general to conclude from their appearnace?

The wearing of good clothes is much more a matter or courtesy than of the "sheep instinct." By spending a little extra time on my attire I am showing someone that I though enough of him to dress up. In fact, it is an insult to show somebody that they are not worthy of your best attire on an occasion such as this. Imagine the look on a beat's face if the solo violinist with the Cincinnati Symphony appeared on stage in blue jeans. Imagine the thoughts a beat would have if his girl showed up in a sweatshirt raggity tennis shoes, and a combed-once in a lifetime hairdo to meet his parents or someone of the same sort for the first time.

To the beat: If you're going to revolt against a conformist soci[ety] and set traditions and can't do [it] intellectually, then you should [at] least be whole hearted [in] nonintellectual forms. [Before] shake everyone's hand (it is a pa[t]tern of society the same as dre[ss] is); never think of riding in a ca[r] don't consider the thought [of] riage (also throw awa[y] rice, the cake, pictures, the moon -- all these being establishe[d] by tradition); and last of all - you dare kiss your girl [in] You'll be performing a custo[m] society as old as society [it]self.

Peace Means Conquest

Thomas Riggins' column "Kennedy Cuba Blockade 'Criminal' " proposes that "the complete withdrawal of American bases in Turkey (as much a danger to Russia as is Cuba to America--i.e. no danger except of a propagandist nature), along with the abandonment of the U.S. base at Guantanamo, for complete Russian withdrawal from the Western Hemisphere" would be a "rational solution" to the Cuban situation.

This would only be rational if the definitions of peace by the West and Communist powers coincided. But they don't coincide. The West's definition is nothing like the Communist's, which is, as stated by Dr. Fred Schwarz of Australia, "that golden consummation when the progressive force of Communism totally overwhelms American imperialism and climaxes in Communist world conquest.

By definition, 'peace' is Communist world conquest." Yes, the Communists want "peace," but with such a concept how, may I ask, can any educated American think it rational to have a complete withdrawal of American missile bases (or any bases) from Turkey or any other part of the world? The very fact that US missiles are spread all over the world and right at Mr. K's front door would make the Russian leader think twice before attacking the US in order to promote what he feels is peace.

The next point I wish to comment on is Mr. Riggins' statement, "[It] is insulting to our intelligence [to] maintain that Soviet bases in Cuba in any way greatly affect Russia's war capacity."

It is apparent that if the USSR were to plan an attack against the US, she would make her principle targets areas our military installations so as to try to stop US retaliatory potentiality. It is estimated that Soviet missiles shot from Russia would miss their targets by ten to one hundred miles in the US. This would not destroy missile bases underground. Thus missiles planted in Cuba would add to their accuracy.

One might argue that it is estimated that the USSR now has six to twelve submarines with the ability to deliver missiles with nuclear warheads. This may be true, but the Communists are intelligent enough to try to get as amny missiles as close to the US as possible in order to gain on this accuracy, that is, if they think they might have to attack. It is interesting to note here that the Communists hope to make the US fall internally but feel if they aren't successful, the US will have to fall externally. Thus Cuba is a desire to Moscow's eye.

Consider Academic Freedom

...e Editor:

...ite, to a degree, I am able to ...reciate the feelings which Mr. ... has apparently experienced when ... wrote "Which Freedom, Res...sibility," I feel that he has dis...ed the issue of "academic free... ..." through oversimplification. ... not arriving through "reflex ..." without some knowledge of ... During the past three weeks, ... been in and out of the state ...tol building several times in...erviewing members of the "Johns ...mittee" staff and laying my ... on such documents ... the state constitution, Senate Bill ...38-XX (which created the Flori... Legislative Investigations Com...ttee), and the published report of ... investigation of the University ...

...y rate, Mr. Dobson seems to ... that "academic freedom for ...dents" and "academic freedom ... professors" are mutually ex...sive. He indicates that, if pro...sors are given this "academic ...edom," (i.e., if they are freed ... the suspicious eyes of those ... would pry into their vocabular... their religious beliefs or the ... of them, or their ideological ... merely because these items are sometimes discussed in the classroom) that there will necessarily be a trend which abridges the "academic freedom" of the student.

I feel that this is not the case. In my opinion, the professor's "academic freedom" should consist of considering any point of view about any subject he feels ought to be discussed. (This is with the assumption that such things are one's religious beliefs may be intimately related to the study of, say, physics; or that such things as homosexuality are related to a study of, say, sociology.) On the other hand, I feel that the student's "academic freedom" is to close his ears, even though this might be at the expense of his "grade." This is with the assumption that the student is to be graded on his consideration of a particular topic, and not on whether or not he agrees with the point of view which he is to consider.

If these "academic freedoms" exist under the assumptions cited, they are not mutually exclusive. If such freedoms at FSU are to remain free from investigations of the type presently being carried out in this state, there can be no Scopes trials at FSU.

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor and student comment are welcomed by the "Flambeau." We firmly believe that students should have an organ through which their opinions and views can be aired.

We will attempt to print all letters received that meet standards of good taste, conciseness of thought and quality of presentation. In addition, letters must be held to a maximum of 250 words.

At no time will letters containing material which is libelous or in bad taste be printed.

Under 21 Discrimination

To The Editor:

I am discriminated against. Because I am a member of a minority group against which great prejudice exists, I am denied entrance into certain places of business, I am unable to purchase certain things I desire, and in most places, I am even denied the right to vote.

I have never drawn governmental welfare; I have never been arrested for a felony; my I.Q. is well above average; and, I am putting myself through college. Why should I be discriminated against. Some of the members of my minority group, I must admit, have exhibited social irresponsibility. The crime rate in my group may be quite high, but why should I suffer for this? You must remember, also, that this irresponsibility is entirely due to environmental factors. We wouldn't be this way if we hadn't been kept down over the years. If we were given the equal rights and privileges that we deserve, we would quickly become responsible, civic-minded citizens. I demand equality.

The best way for our minority to gain equal rights is, of course, to march boldly into those places of business that refuse to serve us, then sit down and wait until they do. We must also organize into a strong pressure group so that we can hire expensive lobbyists to work for us in Washington. We must hold converntions in the areas that are strongholds of discrimination against us, and there, ignoring all local customs and traditions, we must vehemently demand equality in everything. Prejudice must end.

If you too are a member of this minority, join with me to fight for freedom. You can help stamp out prejudice and discrimination. Become a member of the NAAPT (National Association for the Advancement of People under Twenty-one.)

Jones commented that "Sen. Sisco's disregard for the proper channels which are available for handling any legitimate complaint against an FSU publication is indicative only of the senator's lack of understanding of our student government."

"This whole matter has been stretched completely and unjustly out of proportion and has resulted only in harm to the University," finished Smith.

SISCO MAKES STATEMENT

Tom Sisco, student senator and president of the FSU chapter of Young Republicans said last night he regretted the student body had misinterpreted his actions concerning charges of atheism, communism and socialistic ideas in the Flambeau and hoped the bad publicity which has come about had not been through his efforts.

By approaching the legislature, Sisco said his intention had been to "clear up ideas held by the majority of the state legislature that students at FSU were encouraging and supporting communism, atheism, and socialistic ideas."

Sisco blamed most of the misunderstanding on his failure to give notice to the university administration and student government leaders of his intentions. "Too much attention has been given to this situation and I hope it soon blows over." he said.

With regard to future action, Sisco said many legislators have asked him to stay in contact with the situation and advise them from time to time on "further developments with regard to Communist, atheistic and socialistic ideas at FSU."

Sisco revealed an invitation had been given to him to sit with the next session of the Florida Cabinet to discuss the situation. At the present time, he said he did not know if he would accept the invitation.

HS Students Score High

Twenty-nine students of the Florida High senior class made [illegible] of 400 or more on the [illegible] test this fall, Dr. Joseph L. [illegible] Jr., director of the University school, announced.

The 12th grade test is used [illegible] selective admissions procedures of universities. State universities require a score of 300 for priority in admissions and housing.

Eighty-four seniors took the test late in October, Hooten said. A score of 400 represents the 50th percentile; therefore, 20 percent normally should make above the score.

Forty per cent of students likewise should make above 300, Hooten noted, but in the Florida High class this group included 58.3 percent. Seventy percent made the median score of 250 or higher.

Bill Belford (B.A., 1960) got off to a fast start with the C&P Telephone Company in Washington. After a brief training period, he was put in charge of six salesmen handling the needs of 8000 business customers. Under Bill's leadership, his group added nearly $50,000 in additional revenues per month. Later, Bill was promoted to Assistant Sales Manager and assigned the job of organizing a special sales group. Again, success.

He was then loaned to the Executive Department to do a special study on wages and working conditions in the community. The thoroughness of this survey influenced his promotion to Personnel Supervisor, his latest step up!

"Ernani" Broadcast Tomorrow

Guiseppe Verdi's "Ernani," will open the Metropolitan Opera's 1962-63 broadcast season tomorrow, at 8:51 p.m. on WFSU-FM.

Based on a drama by Victor Hugo, "Ernani" was premiered March 9, 1844, in Venice. Its first performance by the Metropolitan Opera took place in 1903; its last revival there was in 1956. Because of the revolutionary character of the plot -- the opera is set in early 16th Century Spain-- it had to be altered somewhat by the composer before the premiere.

"Ernani" is one of the few early operas of Verdi to remain in the repertory. Since the music is not as familiar to operagoers as that of other Verdi works, a discussion of the opera will be presented during the intermission Saturday by "Opera News on the Air."

Participating in the discussion will be Thomas Schippers, Metropolitan Opera Orchestra conductor; Henry Butler, stage director; and Leontyne Price, Giorgio Tozzi and Cornell MacNeil, performers in the cast.

Other intermission features to be heard are "Biographies in Music," which this week will present the life of Ernestine Schumann-Heink, and the Opera Quiz.

Carlo Bergonzi is cast in the title role of "Ernani." Chorus master is Kurt Adler, and Milton Cross will serve as host and commentator for the 23rd. consecutive year.

Pilot Clubs Underwrite FSU Scholarship House

The Florida District of Pilot Club International has underwritten the purchase of an additional residence at FSU women students receiving scholarships from the Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation.

The Foundation already has seven residences--four for men and three for women, where students, now numbering 150, live rent-free, prepare their own meals and take care of housekeeping as they study. The students are selected for outstanding scholarship, character and financial need.

The residence will be known as "Pilot House," according to Miss Mildred Parrish of Tallahassee, member of a statewide committee which arranged for underwriting the purchase. Miss Parrish, a former governor of District Four (Florida), said Pilot has about 1500 members in 50 clubs in Florida. It is a service organization for executive business and professional women.

Mrs. Gene Elliott of Tampa, second lieutenant governor of the district, visited one of the Foundation houses while on an official visit to the Pilot Club of Tallahassee. The committee which arranged for underwriting the purchase was appointed by the District president, Mrs. Margaret Enns of Winter Haven.

His Cambridge Unit has been responsible for many developments, some practical, others of purely scientific interest. His research has concerned itself with the role of nutrition in mammalian reproduction, improvements of the means of semen storage for artificial insemination, and the transplantation of the mammalian early embryo.

Mann believes that transplanting early embryos holds much promise in animal breeding. One of the recent experiments of his Unit, for instance, showed that the early embryo can be safely, though temporarily, transplanted into an entirely different species.

It was found, for example, that the embryo of an ewe bred in England can be transferred into the reproductive tract of a suitable prepared rabbit doe, and that this animal can serve as a convenient 'living incubator' of the sheep embryo. After air transportation to South Africa, the embryo can be re-transplanted into a common South African breed After five months' gestation, the offspring is a purebred English lamb.

Mann's wife, Dr. Cecilia Lutwak-Mann, also works on behalf of the Agricultural Research Council. She is interested in similar problems and plans to do experiments while at FSU on Florida animals, especially the opossum. Her recent interest has been in the toxic effects on embryos of drugs administered to the mother.

The British Medical Journal of Oct. 13 printed an article by her about her work in which various drugs, among them Thalidomide, were administered to pregnant rabbits. Her significant contributior was that the effects of the maternally transmitted drugs could be shown in the embryos by means of a very simple and rapid microscopic method.

Mann himself is responsible for some 200 publications, principally concerned with fundamental studies which relate to the metabolism of male gametes, and certain farm animals.

He came to FSU, where he is a visiting professor in the Institute of Space Biosciences, because of the work of FSU Professor Charles Metz, whose research has been on the immunological aspects of reproduction. Such a collaboration is of "immense value," the visiting British scientist said, as it will enable both of them to gain insight into animal reproduction on a comparative basis.

Mann, 54, has gained many honors for his research. Most recent was one bestowed by Queen Elizabeth, who made him Commander of the Order of the British Empire (CBE), a distinction much valued in the British Commonwealth. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society, and of Trinity Hall, Cambridge; he holds doctor titles in medicine, philosophy and science.

He has pursued a research career in Cambridge first as a Rockefeller Foundation Research fellow, later as a Beit Memorial fellow, and since 1944 he has been a member of the Scientific Staff of the Agricultural Research Council, and Cambridge University.

Football Team Finishes With A Winning Season

Sports fans in the State of Florida have been surprised recently when they heard Coach Bill Peterson say that he was not pleased with this football season--the first time since 1958 that the Seminoles have finished with a winning season (4-3-3).

Leo Coughlin of the Pensacola Journal heard Peterson at a speech Monday when Peterson said, "Myself and the coaching staff at FSU were not happy with our season."

Coughlin said, "Bill, who is a nice guy, said this at a Seminole boosters meeting Monday night and when he mouthed words he was greeted with a chorus of disagreement."

Obviously, the fact that the Seminoles had a winning year would cause boosters to say this was a good year, but Peterson disagrees?

Why?

Because with a little improvement here and there, the Seminoles could have been 9-1 this season--and, without the rain, and with a little more sharpness on Homecoming, undefeated.

In the State of Florida, the Seminoles did not help their record too much. The Tribesmen did trounce such visitors as The Citadel, Furman and Virginia Tech, but they also saw defeat from Houston, Florida and Miami.

Miami is termed a "moral victory"--although Peterson says there is no such thing. Nonetheless, the Tribesmen were the better team that day, although it was a fumbling team that lost the ball six times to the squad ranked ninth in the nation.

In the state of Georgia, the Tribesmen are now well respected, having tied all-mighty Georgia Tech and swamped Georgia. And in Alabama, the Seminoles exploded and came from behind to knot the score, 14-14, with the Auburn Tigers. To top it off, the Seminoles fought Kentucky to a 0-0 standstill at the first of the season.

At the Boosters meeting, Peterson said that the Georgia and Georgia Tech games were the most memorable.

"They're the ones that made people recognize FSU football has reached big time."

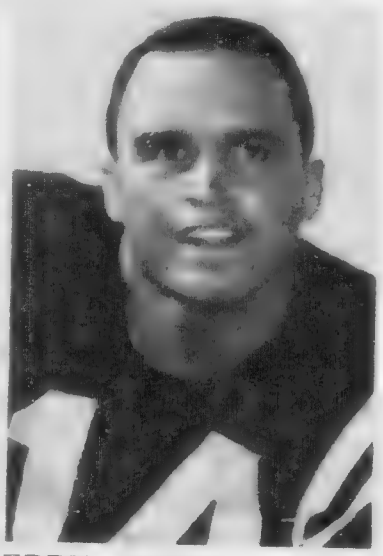
"We figured it would be tough winning--or tieing--any of the SEC teams. They're all recognized football powers and we had to meet all of them on their home grounds."

But when the clock ran out on the Auburn contest, the Seminoles had completed their most successful season against SEC teams, and they have now defeated or tied every SEC team they have played in their history--with the exception of Mississippi, which FSU has played only once (in a 30-0) loss.

Peterson himself says the players like to think of this year as a 7-3 season.

The most spectacular game of the FSU team undoubtedly was the finale in which they came from behind to tie Auburn. Although the Georgia Tech score was the same, 14-14, the Seminoles had to show a more determined effort against the Tigers.

Against Tech, they struck twice in the third to command a one-touchdown lead. Tech did the tieing. But against Auburn, the Seminoles were trailing, 14-0, at the half, and then pushed the Tigers all over the field the second half to get a 14-14 tie.



One of the results of the Seminoles performances was that Peterson was approached by several universities for head coaching positions. He refused and did not allow his name to be in the running for Art Guepe's old spot at Vanderbilt University.

Disinterested sports fans might say, as Coughlin of Pensacola did, "Being the coach at Vanderbilt lends more prestige to a coach's position than being the honcho of Florida State."

Peterson cleared this up by saying, "I want to be here when FSU hits the top in football. We have a wonderful school at FSU. I want to go with FSU."

He continued, "FSU will be in the SEC before long. Maybe this year--it could happen--this year, but by three years we feel sure it will be."

FEELY, SNYDER ARE CO-BACKS

In an unprecedented move, two Florida State football players, quarterback Eddie Feely and fullback Dave Snyder, were selected Co-Backs of the Weeks in state-wide voting by the Florida Sportswriter Association.

President Bill Kastelz, also sports editor of the Florida Times Union of Jacksonville, said that Feely was chosen because of his offensive play against the Auburn Tigers, while Snyder was selected because of his two pass interceptions.

Snyder's second interception set up Florida State's first touchdown against the Tigers. The first TD came when Feely hit halfback Jim Loftin in the end zone. The second touchdown came on an aerial from Feely to end John McConnaughhay.

Baby Tribe Challenges Manatee JC

Florida State's freshman basketball team will play a 17-game schedule beginning tomorrow night when the Junior Tribesmen take on Manatee Junior College.

The game will start at 5:30 in Tully Gymnasium as a preliminary to the FSU-Tampa varsity contest.

The Baby Seminoles, coached by Joe Williams, play most of their games at home. This is the first season at FSU for Williams, who was a former coach at Ribault High School in Jacksonville.

The probable starting lineups for the frosh are 6-8 Bill Phillips of Okeechobee at center, 6-7 Jim Wallace of St. Pete and 6-6 Gary Schull of Pompano Beach at forwards, and 6-0 Ken Leaky and 6-4 Bill Peacock of Campbellton at guards.

The average height of the 62 freshman squad is 6-4; and, if Phillips, Schull, Wallace and Peacock, can maintain their average high school average of 22.7 points per game, the frosh could tally a possible 91 points in the opener.

In the pre-season varsity-freshman game, the Baby Seminoles were soundly spanked by the more experienced varsity cagers in a 77-46 contest. Two freshmen scored in double figures, however, as Schull and Peacock each bucketed ten points.

The 1962-63 schedule:

Manatee at Tallahassee, Dec. 1; Chipola Junior College at Tallahassee, Dec. 3; University of Florida frosh at Tallahassee, Dec. 6; Jacksonville University frosh at Jax, Dec. 8; University of Alabama frosh at Tallahassee, Dec. 10; St. Johns River JuCo at Tallahassee, Jan. 19; Florida frosh at Gainesville, Jan. 23; Jax frosh at Tallahassee, Jan. 26; Alabama frosh, Jan. 28; Chipola at Marianna, Feb. 4; Old Southern Foods at Tallahssee, Feb. 9; Gulf Coast JuCo at Tallahassee, Feb. 11; Pensacola JuCo at Pensacola, Feb. 15; Whiting Naval Base at Pensacola, Feb. 16; Gulf Coast JuCo at Panama City, Feb. 22.

Most Reaction Favorable

Flambeau Position Upheld By State Wide News Media

By OTIS WRAGG
Flambeau Associate Editor

Recent attacks on the Florida Flambeau have continued to stir reaction around the state. Although varied in degree, almost unanimous support of the Flambeau's stated position and the principles of a free and objective press has been shown.

The St. Petersburg Times speaking editorially in yesterday's issue defended the "Flambeau" and commended the editors for their stand. The Times cast doubt on State Sen. Wilson Carraway's ability to "pass judgment on principles of Americanism." Carraway had publicly stated he planned to speak to FSU President Gordon Blackwell about the "communistic" editorials in the student newspaper.

"Editors of the Florida State University student newspaper. . . have spunkily told Senate President Wilson Carraway that their editorial opinions are those of the editors, not of the university, nor of the student body, and that they're entitled to utter them.

"Perhaps the Flambeau editors have taken into account the fact the Sen. Carraway long has been a leader of the Pork Chop gang which, in violation of Florida's Constitution and of the legislator's oath of office, have denied the basic principle of self-government--equal protection of the laws by equal representation --- to the majority of Floridians.

"The editors -- and the public -- might well ask just who Senator Carraway is to be passing judgment on principles of Americanism.

"Neither the commonwealth of Florida nor the Republic are endangered by a college student's expressed opinion of socialization of natural resources, however fallacious his reasoning may have been.

"But both the state and the nation are endangered by the disregard of legislators for freedom of expression both by student editors and by members of the university faculties.

"Academic and press freedom are both involved in this case. We hope the editors of the Flambeau and the university administration stand

Elves Premiere In Conradi

A cast of FSU players will romp for the enjoyment of Leon County third and fourth graders tomorrow through Saturday, in an original play on a fairy tale theme.

Written and directed by Sammy Kilman, a graduate student in speech, the play will be performed at 11 a.m. for five performances and at 1 p.m. Tuesday and Friday. There will be no admission charge

An hour in length, "The Cobbler and the Little People" features six happy little elves who cavort across the stage, including one that "flies through the air with the greatest of ease."

A flicker effect will give an unrealistic atmosphere in the pantomime sequences.

Kristy and Kevin, the children in the story, are played by Ann Angel and Pat Winter. The villain, Rhett Bryson, threatens the happiness of the children's home with his evil activities. The cobbler and his wife are played by Ken Richart and Mary Byrd, and Nathan Dowdy has the part of the king.

In the role of the elves are Elaine Smart, Louise Beddingfield, Linda McWhirter, Judy Hildebrand, Ashley Ahl and Gail Robertson.

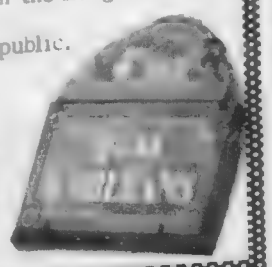
MARC

"La chanson francaise" will make its Tallahassee debut tonight at [illegible]:15 p.m., as two popular young French singers brings a bit of the heart of Paris into the heart of Tallahassee.

Marc et Andre, a pair of traveling cabaret singers, will appear in [illegible]pperman Music Hall. They will present a program of "chansons," [illegible]ar, songs based in poetry, fantasy, philosophy and social problems, as well as other folk songs and modern romantic ballads.

It was announced late last night that for the second time Marc [illegible]dre received the Grand Prix de la Chanson in Paris, which is equivalent to receiving an Oscar in the United States for the best musical score for a movie. They have been arranging for [illegible] accompaniment for the past 10 years.

Marc et Andre have been praised by music critics and newspapers throughout France.



Tickets, which are being sold at Westcott Ticket Off and at the door, are $1.00 for students and $1.50 for non-students.

This afternoon, the national French honorary, Pi Delta Phi, will sponsor a reception for the visiting artists in the Large Lounge of [illegible] from 5 to 6 p.m.

The reception for the chanteurs is open to the public.

ANDRE

Glee Club To Give Christmas Vespers

FSU's Women's Glee Club will present its traditional Christmas vespers concert at 5 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 9, in Westcott Auditorium.

The vespers program, which has been given since December, 1916, presents the religious mood of Christmas in song. The five-part program tells the Christmas story as expressed by composers from early to contemporary times.

Miss Betty Jane Grimm, director of the 68-voice choral group, has dedicated this year's program to Dr. Irvin Cooper, professor of music education, because of his "love for and contribution to music."

Cooper's arrangements of "O Come All Ye Faithful" and "Silent Night" will be performed on the program.

Two compositions by Dr. John Boda of the music faculty and three by graduate student Richard Powell of Tampa will be presented. Boda's compositions are "Before the Paling of the Stars" and "Babe of Beauty" with text by Lois Schnoor of the music faculty.

One of the selections by Powell is being performed for the first time. It is "The Prophesy" with text from Isaiah. His "One Little Manger" and an arrangement he made of "Joy to the World" will be on the program.

Opening the program will be "Benedictus" by Palestrina and it is concluded with the singing of "Benediction" by Lewis Ossinsky. Written by an FSU graduate who is now practicing law, the Ossinsky work was premiered by the Glee Club in New York's Town Hall last June. Ossinsky attended the performance.

Soloists will be Barbara Higginson of Zephyrhills, Jean Spradlin of Leesburg, Rose Christie Wildes of Jacksonville and Michele Ann Davenport of Jacksonville.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the student body as a whole or the administration of the Florida State University. Editorials represent the opinions of the editorial staff of the Flambeau with the initials of the writer following the editorial. Columns and letters to the Editor reflect only the opinion of the writer.

Southern Freedom

Sidna Brower, editor of "The Mississippian," student newspaper at the University of Mississippi, has been "reprimanded" by a resolution adopted by the student activities committee of the Student Senate for failing "to counter the distortion by the national press of the image created" of the "Old Miss" student body.

Miss Brower has been a naughty girl. According to an Ole Miss spokesman, she has not expressed the opinion that those around her would like the paper to express. She has not advocated integration, but she has not defended segregation. She has definitely condemned violence on the part of a few students in their efforts to preserve segregation.

The resolution, which will be voted on by the Senate tomorrow, has no real effect. Miss Brower will remain editor of the paper. But it points out a very real problem in Southern college journalism-- cohesive forces on campus newspapers.

The problem is not totally regional; suppression pressure exists all over the nation. But it is particularly prevalent in the South, where a college newspaperman is faced with so many forces that he should not offend.

The cases are numerous, even among large universities. Smaller school newspapers are so completely censored that they never have the opportunity to "get out of line."

At Auburn University, past "Plainsman" editor Jim Bullington was harrassed for his stands on the racial issue. The administration did not defend him, but led the charge against his freedom to print. He was not ousted, but defamed. A pleasant, "safe" editor was named this year.

At the University of Alabama, "Crimson and White" editor Mel Meyer's scalp was sought by the Ku Klux Klan for his support of James Meredith. Joan Wolcott, editor of the Gamecock at the University of South Carolina took a similar stand and received similar treatment. Neither was ousted or has refrained from expressing his views since.

These are only a few cases, but they serve to point out a type of freedom characteristic of the South --- freedom to be harrassed on every side.

Unfortunately for the harrassers, such college newspapermen have strong wills and hard ideals. When pressured, they do not abdicate their positions, but defend them strongly. Freedom of the college press is too precious for them to do otherwise.

Socialism, Not Communism Expressed

In view of the recent behavior of certain members of the student community and others, I feel that a short explanation of my intent and my political rights is due.

In the past week there has been wide press and radio comment about two articles that I published in the Florida Flambeau, one of which expressed my views on the naval blockade of Cuba and the other my advocacy of social control of natural resources. As to the rightness or wrongness of these positions, little concern has been paid.

What has drawn attention was my right to publish such views in the student newspaper. The main critique leveled against the opinions I expressed was that they were "Communistic." There has always been an element of confusion amongst those unacquainted with Communism and socialism as to the differences between these rival politico-economic doctrines.

The views I published were "socialistic" and based upon the general views of the Socialist Party, U.S.A., which is associated with such great Americans as Eugene Debs and Norman Thomas. Socialism of this type has long been an ardent foe of the International Communist Conspiracy. After the Hungarian Revolution was surpressed, socialists suffered severe reprisals for their part in helping to formulate and aid it. The Socialist Party is federeated with the Socialist International and helps to restrict and expose Communist political maneuvers throughout the world.

But what is even more important than this was the fact that local student political groups who claim to support the "American" way of life attempted to bring about censorship of "those editorials expressing the unAmerican ideals of Communism, atheism, and socialism." Under our Constitution and traditions it is certainly not un American to express liberal and radical views.

Part of the greatness of America is based on the fundamental liberties of religion, speech, and the press. Atheism is a personal matter of individual belief and as such is neither American nor UnAmerican. Socialism, while a radical minority viewpoint, is certainly not unAmerican unless Americanism consists of being a Republican or a Democrat. It advocates democratic social control to be actualized only after a public mandate provided by national elections to ascertain the will of the majority.

As for Communism, it is only un-American in the sense that it is an imported belief (like Christianity) from Europe. Communists should be allowed to behave and act as they wish, being only "un-American" when they attempt to suspend the liberties of others or deny to the majority or minority to dissent with them their constitutional rights and liberties, but to adopt a viewpoint can be "eo ipso" [illegible]

Finally, I should like that for those who [illegible] my views "Communist" similar statements are [illegible] Communistic literature "Communist Manifesto" [illegible] I can only reply that a [illegible] larity of opinion [illegible] trate a unanimity [illegible] munists also advocate [illegible] motherhood, eating, etc., non-Communist conserva[illegible]

The particular [illegible] quoted from my columns m[illegible] as well have been referre[illegible] "Book of Acts" as to the [illegible] ifesto." I can only hope that i[illegible] future, criticisms will be le[illegible] at what I write because [illegible] rary evidence or beca[illegible] structure of my argument [illegible] cause of my right to write.

Flambeau Attack Un-American

To The Editor:

"Un-American" in my opinion too, Mr. Legislators; but to direct the "editors of the Flambeau to refrain from printing any of the . . . Un-American ideas" is just as "Un-American."

The first amendment to our Constitution speaks on this very subject:

"Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press. . ."

The concept of freedom of speech and press assumes an intelligent public; assumes that the reading public has the capacity to accept or reject all that this freedom will bring forth. Some people think the American public is [illegible] perhaps this is true, but those who allege that the reading public of the Flambeau are unable to do this should not attack the paper, but should attack our whole educational system--whether they realize it or not this is exactly what they have done. This University has been insulted, this student body has been insulted. Those who are yelling, "don't print that" are, in reality, yelling "the students of FSU are not intelligent enough to see through that, as I, incidentally, am."

Basically, the problem lies with the constituencies of the legislators. These are the parents of the students at FSU. Parents, for reasons quite natural, cannot accept the fact that their college children are grown up, or should be. They want to shield their "child" from the "evils" of the world. The parents will not always be here to shield us, and if we are not allowed to study these Un-American ideas ourselves, it will be a fine country when we are running it.

We all tread democracy, but too few seem to have faith in it, as this uproar illustrates. Let us practice what we preach. I personally believe what we preach a lot more than what we practice, and I think it is much less dangerous. John Stuart Mill, in his "On Liberty," told us lucidly what the goal of democracy is, let us strive for it, not slip back from it in fear:

"If all mankind minus one were of one opinion, and only one person were of the contrary opinion, mankind would be more justified in silencing that one person, than he, if he had the power would be justified in silencing mankind."

Blackwell said older programs in city planning stressed the spatial arrangement of physical facilities and tended to be in schools of architecture and engineering. "Newer programs," he said, "responsive to the actualities of planning needs and the leadership of the professional planning organizations, have stressed the basic social, economic, and political processes of planning, and have tended to center in schools with strong graduate programs in instruction and research in the social sciences."

Through the years, Blackwell said, FSU has sent "outstanding young people into careers in public administration at all levels of our complex governmental system."

Blackwell said FSU's Institute of Governmental Research is currently in a period of program re-examination and restaffing under a nationally-recognized new director, Albert L. Sturm.

"Evolving plans of the Institute call for more intensive research by staff members embracing a wider range of governmental studies than has been undertaken in the past. Potentially, such a program may encompass not only problems and issues of major importance to Florida State and local government, but also those relationg to the southeastern United States and possibly to wider areas.

"At the same time," Blackwell emphasized, "the Institute acknowledges its public service responsibility and reaffirms its intention, within available resources, to render continuing assistance and service to public officers and agencies."

Blackwell Appointed To Education Post

The appointment of FSU President Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell to serve a one-year term on the Commission on Administrative Affairs of the American Council on Education has been announced.

The commission will meet in Washington Thursday and Friday of this week. It was organized for the purpose of disseminating information and advice related to key problems of college and university administration.

Other college and university presidents who will serve on the commission include Dr. H. K. Newburn, Montana State University; Dr. Sharvy G. Umbeck, Knox College; Dr. Edward H. Litchfield, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. Allen Wallis, Univeristy of Rochester; Dr. James M. Hester, New York University; Dr. John Millett, Miami (Ohio) University; and Dr. Tom L. Popejoy, University of New Mexico.

shoulder-to-shoulder against this newest invasion of freedom," the Times said.

State Representative Leighton L. Baker sent a copy of the controversial column advocating socialization of natural resources to his home town newspaper "The Daily Commercial" in Leesburg.

In printing the article in the letters to the editor section, editorial page editor Emmett Peter commented "As much as we disagree with Mr. Riggins' conclusions, he has the right to express them in public print. We see occasional copies of the "Flambeau" and. . .there seems(to us at least) a balance of both liberal and conservative ideas. Our tolerance as human beings can be gauged by our reaction to ideas with which we do not agree."

Controversy over the "Flambeau" was discussed by "The Palm Beach Post" both editorially and in front page news story.

The news story told of an expected meeting between Senate President Carraway and President Blackwell "in an attempt to curtail editorials in the college paper."

Editorially the "Post" agreed with Rep. Baker's outraged declaration that, "If this kind of thinking prevails in our colleges and universities, we won't need to reapportion. We won't even need a legislature."

"And if that's the kind of stuff our youngsters are learning and/or preaching at FSU, maybe we should bring back the Florida State College for Women," the "Post" said.

Cagers Open Season By Scalping Spartans

By JOHN WOOD
Assistant Sports Editor

In the opening game of the 1962-63 cage season played before 3,500 Tully Gym spectators, the Florida State basketball team started the season with a bang in defeating Tampa University's visiting Spartans, 92-60.

After a first half fizz out, the team managed to hit on 68 per cent of its shots after intermission.

Jerry Shirley, a Mobile, Ala. sophomore, hit 9-of-12 field goal attempts and finished the evening with 21 points.

Charley Long, lone returning starter from last year's team, bucketed 14 points and junior Bob Ek added eight to the cause.

After a nervous start, the Seminoles broke out with a profusion of errors. Not a free-fouling team last year, the players committed 27 infractions, but managed to distribute them evenly enough so that no one fouled out. Leading at one point, 26-18, the Seminoles permitted Tampa to gradually catch up and nab the lead at halftime, 31-30, on a three-point play by Chuck Andrews.

FSU players sank only 31 per cent of their shots in the first half action.

In the last half, however, eveyone seemed to overcome his butterflys and start hitting. An indication of the hot-shooting that went on in the second half can be observed in the periodic scores: with 7:06 left in the game, FSU led 67-57.

With the last half splurge, they ended the evening with an overall percentage of 49.4 per cent, just a shade below their nation-leading average of 51.2 per cent last year. The Seminoles failed to capitalize on their opportunities at the foul line, hitting only 55 per cent of the free throws against Tampa's 68.4 per cent.

This marked Florida State's 21st victory in 30 starters against the Tampa Spartans. Tampa showed up this year with three starters from the '61 team which finished with a 15-11 record last season and lost to FSU by 28 and 21 points in two starts.

Shirley also pulled down 11 rebounds. Junior center Dale Reeves plucked 12 off the boards as the Seminoles dominated the backboards.

Dan Boyt, Tampa's 6-8 center got 13 points, and 6-0 guard George Shary had 14.

The Seminoles' next match will be against the Valdosta State quintet tonight at 7:45 in Tully Gymnasium.

After the Tampa contest, Assistant Coach Hugh Durham said this of the upcoming game:

"We really shouldn't have to 'get-up' too much for this next game, because if we can't beat Valdosta State in a normal game, then something is wrong. If we get beaten by Valdosta, then we're going to have a pretty bad year, I'll tell you."

In Valdosta's first game of the year, the Georgian's romped over Rollins College of Florida, 109-70. The Rollins squad failed to win a contest last season.

Frosh Down Manatee Chipola Injuns Next Seminole Victims

by BOB DENSMORE
Flambeau Sports Writer

In order to raise their school's spirit for the Chipola JC-FSU game 27 Chipola Circle K members are planning on dribbling a basketball from Marianna to Tallahassee. The members plan on alternate dribbling, leaving Chipola at at 4:30 in the morning and arriving here about 4 in the afternnon in time for the 5:30 clash.

Chipola's team will arrive in town sporting a 4-0 record. Their most recent victory, 85-67, was inflicted upon Central Florida JC of Ocala.

The FSU Frosh cagers mowed down their first opponent Saturday night when they defeated Manatee Junior College, 72-43, in Tully Gymnasium.

Florida State, which had a 39-16 lead at halftime, was paced by the shooting of center Bill Phillips, who tallied a game high of 19 points on eight field goals and three free throws.

Three FSU cagers tied for second place in Seminole scoring. Forward Mike Kingsbery, guard Bill Peacock, and guard Kenneth Hey sank 10 markers each.

Manatee, which now has a 0-3 record, had two men in double figures, as Ritchie Richardson and Ron Altman scored 13 and 11 points respectively.

HAPPY TALK

As we all know, conversation is terribly important [illegible]. When lulls in the conversation run longer than a [illegible] one's partner is inclined to grow logy [illegible] casionally one finds it difficult to keep the talk going [illegible] when one is having a first date with one. What, then, [illegible]

If one is wise, one follows the brilliant example [illegible] Thurlow.

Harlow Thurlow prepares. That is his simple secret. When Harlow is going to take out a new girl, he makes sure that the conversation will not languish. Before the date goes to the library and reads all 24 volumes of the encyclopedia and transcribes their contents on his cuffs. Thus he makes sure that no matter what his date's interests are, he will have ample material to keep the conversation alive.

Take, for example, Harlow's first date with Priscilla Gasser, a fine, strapping, blue-eyed broth of a girl, lavishly constructed and rosy as the dawn.

Harlow was, as always, prepared when he called for Priscilla and, as always, he did not start to converse immediately. First he took her to dinner because, as everyone knows, it is useless to try to make conversation with an antsy coed. Her attention span is negligible. Also, her stomach rumbles so loud it is difficult to make yourself heard.

"Wash your cuffs and be my love!"

So he took her to a fine steak house where he stoked her gullet on Black Angus and mounds of bread and [illegible] and battalions of petit fours. Finally the dinner was over and the waiter brought two finger bowls.

"I hope you enjoyed your dinner, my dear," said Harlow, dipping into his finger bowl.

"Oh, it was grandly dandy," said Priscilla. "Now let's [illegible] some place for nuts."

"Later perhaps," said Harlow. "But right now I think we might have a conversation."

"Oh, goody, goody, twosies-foosies!" cried Priscilla, looking everywhere for a boy who can carry on a conversation.

"Your search is ended, maidam," said Harlow, and back his sleeves and looked at his cuffs to pick a likely topic to start the conversation.

Oh, woe! Oh, lackaday! Those cuffs on which Harlow had painstakingly transcribed so many facts—the secrets of he had noted such diverse and fascinating [illegible] cuffs, I say, were nothing now but a big, blue blur.

Poor Harlow!—splashing around in the finger bowl, had got his cuffs wet and the ink had run, and not one word was left. And Harlow—poor Harlow!—looked upon his cuffs [illegible] out in a night sweat and fell dumb.

"I must say," said Priscilla after several silent hours, "you are a very dull fellow. I'm leaving."

With that she flounced away and poor Harlow was too crushed to protest. Sadly he sat and sadly lit a cigarette.

All of a sudden Priscilla came rushing back. "Was that," she asked, "a Marlboro you just lit?"

"Yes," said Harlow.

"Then you are not a dull fellow," she cried, and sprang into his lap. "You are bright! Anybody is bright to smoke the perfect joy of a cigarette as Marlboro which is just chock-full of yummy flavor, which has a Selectrate filter which comes in a soft pack that is really soft, and a Flip-Top Box that really flips, and which can be bought wherever cigarettes are sold [illegible] states and Duluth . . . Harlow, tiger, wash your cuffs and be my love."

"Okay," said Harlow, and did, and was.

The makers of Marlboro cigarettes, who print this column at hideous expense throughout the school year, are very happy for Harlow—and for all the rest of you who have discovered the pleasures of Marlboro.

The University Singers, directed by Dr. Wiley Housewright traditionally presents a program at ... season of the year. This time the group has ... a contemporary work built around the text ... the Jewish Sabbath morning service. Willard De- ... of Norfolk, Va., will be soloist and Rabbi A. M. Granison of Temple Israel in Tallahassee will present the readings.

Ernest Bloch, a native of Geneva, formerly a music teacher, was able through an endowment by a San Francisco art patron to give up teaching to devote full time to creative work. The Sacred Service was written in Switzerland in 1934. Later in the same year it was presented in New York where it was conducted by the composer.

Bloch has described his composition as the essence of his life experience as man and artist. He wrote of his work: "It is not my purpose--to attempt a 'reconstruction' of Jewish music, or to base my works on melodies more or less authentic. I am not an archeologist. I hold it of first importance to write good, genuine music, my music."

Structured along the general lines of the Sabbath service, the work utilizes responsive readings in which the cantor chants a phrase and the congregation answers or echoes it. The rhythms and melodies of Sacred Service are, however, more varied than those of the traditional Jewish chant.

On Editorial Policy

Flambeau Upheld By Student Govt.

Student Body President Ken van Assenderp and Johnny Smith, Vice President, will send a joint statement on student government's position in the current controversy raised over Flambeau editorial policy to all members of the Florida Legislature.

The letter, supporting the "Flambeau's" policy of printing a wide variety of student opinion, "reaffirms its belief that each man's idea presents a different facet of the truth," stated van Assenderp.

"We are in accord with John Stuart Mill's statement 'If all mankind minus one were of one opinion, and only one person were of the contrary opinion, mankind would be no more justified in silencing that one person than he, if he had the power, would be justified in silencing mankind.'"

Van Assenderp also plans to make it clear to the legislature that Sen. Tom Sisco was not speaking for the student body when he referred to "Communistic, atheistic, socialistic, and other un-American ideas" in the "Flambeau."

The decision to write the letter came out of a meeting with Sen. Wilson Carraway, President of the Senate. Van Assenderp, Smith, Men's Vice President Gene Brown, Sec. of State Jim Blue, and "Flambeau" editor Ben Sharp represented the student body at this meeting.

"Nobody has worked any harder for Florida State University than I have," Carraway told the students. "I hope you won't let these people embarrass the delegation (Leon Country delegation)."

The delegation also spoke with Rep. Richard "Dick" Mitchell who expressed concern over possible injury to the University. "The Leon delegation looks at FSU as its own baby," Mitchell said.

The "Flambeau" plans to send copies of issues following the publishing of the controversial Riggins column to all legislators, Editor Ben Sharp announced. "This will give them a more accurate view of the varying degree of opinion the 'Flambeau' represents."

Joint Statement Denounced By Clubs

A statement purported to represent the Young Democrat and Republican clubs on campus made to the State Senate which attacked Un-American ideas in the Flambeau was denounced yesterday as not representing an official act of either organization. The alleged joint statement was signed by Boyd Wynne, vice president of Young Democrats, and Thomas E. Sisco, president of Young Republicans.

The statement said in part "whereas of late there has been much criticism of the editorial page of the Florida Flambeau, the Young Democrats and Young Republican Clubs wish to go on record as stating that we do not agree with editorials expressing the Un-American ideals of communism, atheism, and socialism."

According to officials of both organizations neither club held legally constituted meetings during the time the statement was drawn up. Young Democrats President Al Milton said, "There were not enough members present to have a quorum. Under our constitution the joint statement cannot stand as an official act of the Young Democrats."

Bob Rackleff, member of the executive board of Young Republicans, said, "The statement made was not formulated at any properly constituted meeting of the FSU Young Republicans." Rackleff added that to his knowledge no member of the club was present or consulted concerning the action of the club's president, Tom Sisco.

"I am personally against socialization, but I don't feel we should run and hide from it," Milton said. I strongly support the paper's position in what it has done. To condemn the paper's right to print the article would be throwing away one of our basic freedoms--freedom of the press," he said.

Martin and Rackleff said both organization are considering calling special meetings to discuss unauthorized use of its name.

AIR STATES AT FORUM:

'South To Accept Socialism'

... ED HARVEY
Flambeau Staff Writer

... South gradually tending towards ... acceptance of socialistic thought, ... the picture presented by Dr. ... Hair of the History Dept. ... night at a joint presentation ... Liberal Forum and the Young ... Socialist League.

... For many years, Dr. Hair said, ... South has been considered an ... area of traditional conservatism. ... With little change, the conservative ... background of the Democratic Par- ... Protestantism, racism, and a ... rural frame of mind, has continued. ... presently, he indicated, opinion is ... being inflamed to oppose and roll ... back the welfare and socialist leg- ... islation which has developed during ... the past 50 years. "Old passions of reconstruction are aroused, with the terrible trio, Lincoln, Sherman, and Stevens, replaced by big brother, little brother, and Earl Warren.

Yet even so, the Southern electorate is no longer allied to conservative and laissez-faire thought. For the past half century, the South has greatly supported the growth of welfare legislation, even though vocal opposition has been greater in this area than in any other.

"It is the greatest irony that the conservative South has actually done so much to allow liberal and socialist ideas to be implemented," Hair asserted.

Though it is claimed that known Marxists or socialists rarely won elections, there is, Hair stated, the instance of Huey Long, whose personal rule gained popular support

April Exercise Optional

Students who plan to graduate in December should advise the Registrar's office whether they wish to attend the commencement exercises on April 20, 1963, Dr. Murray W. Kenna, registrar, announced.

All diplomas for December graduates will be mailed shortly after the close of the first trimester, he said.

Grade Value To Change

Physical education requirements will be changed and graduation hours increased as a result of a resolution that has been passed by the Faculty Senate.

The new policy will go into effect Jan. 1, 1963.

Under the new resolution, the physical education requirement will be reduced from four trimesters to three trimesters, and one semester hour of credit will be granted for each course successfully completed.

Because of this change, the overall university requirement for graduation will be increased to 125 semester hours.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the student body as a whole or the administration of the Florida State University. Editorials represent the opinions of the editorial staff of the Flambeau with the initials of the writer following the editorial. Columns and letters to the Editor reflect only the opinion of the writer.

Call For Collins

As the whirlwind of confusion has finally settled at the state capital, it falls empty and silent once again, and we can view in retrospect the accomplishments of the latest session of our state legislature. Probably as most of us expected their activities can be summed up in one phrase--"Nothing ventured, nothing gained."

The people of Florida have been searching in vain for some sort of constructive leadership out of the present fog of a mal-approtioned and un-representative state government. At the polls and through the courts the electorate have expressed their dissatisfaction with our law-making body and demanded that action be taken. Their cries have repeatedly gone unheeded. With no alternative in sight the Federal court will tackle the problem of equitably apportioning the legislative seats. This action will solve some of our problems, all but the most important--leadership. The court can force the creation of a more representative legislature but it cannot produce good leadership necessary to make it function properly.

Rather than criticize our present "leaders" and point out their ails we would like to offer an alternative.

With the election of a new governor facing us in the not too distant future, political hopefuls have begun to spar. Voters are beginning to size up these men with the hope that one of them will finally lead to fulfillment of its almost unlimited potential.

There is one man not presently in state politics we believe could provide the kind of leadership Florida voters desire. That person is former governor Leroy Collins.

At present Collins is holding down a $100,000 a year job as president of the National Associatin of Broadcasters. There have been rumors of late that he is seriously considering a return to governmental service. Indications are he might wish to serve in the U.S. Senate, but it is our hope the citizens can prevail on him to return to his former post in Tallahassee.

Certainly no one in this state has done more to help Florida to realize its potential than the former governor. With 20 years of legislative experience Collins spent six years as governor in a running battle with the legislature over reapportionment. He has fought for an equitable tax structure and has been a continuous friend to education.

Conservatives Should Quake, Too

Isn't it a comforting thought to know that we as a nation are safe as long as the conservatives keep their little wits about them and refuse to be very disturbed at the thought of nuclear war?

What are the grounds for this statement? Do "stable" conservatives actually believe that as long as we remain calm, continue to stockpile nuclear weapons, and regard the United States as the center of the universe, that everything will turn out okay? That is, if you consider the loss of "... millions of human lives plus uncountable suffering to the survivors" as okay. Perhaps it is thought the only way to prevent nuclear war is to continue headlong and headstrong with the arms race, in the insane belief that a superior "deterrent" force is the only defense.

Give Porkchoppers To Alabama

How does this sound? Take five North Florida counties and give them to Georgia and Alabama. This is not my own idea, but I really agree with it. After all, what better way would there be to get rid of the porkchoppers and put them up where they belong--in our two neighboring states. This was the proposal appearing in a story in the Sarasota NEWS, Nov. 29.

A Sarasota businessman sent wires to Senate President Carraway and House Speaker Horne suggesting that Jefferson, Leon, Wakulla, Franklin, Liberty, and Gadsden counties be given to Georgia; and Jackson, Calhoun, Holmes, Washington, Bay, Walton, Okaloosa, Santa Rosa, and Escambia counties be given to Alabama. He said the counties are not part of Florida's growing greatness, but that they are a part of the past.

In continuing, the businessman stated, "These counties all west of and including Jefferson County, constitute an important part of the reapportionment opposition." This is surely the truth. After all, what would the porkchop counties do without the cash rolling in from Dade, Pinellas and Hillsborough counties? They'd have to make their own gra...

Flambeau Forum

Flambeau, FSU, Miss Real Issue

To the Editor:

The "Flambeau" as well as other officials at FSU have seen fit to put this entire matter on the emotional basis of Freedom of the Press, but this is not the question. The true question now is the editorial policy of the Flambeau. At this point I am reminded of a story President Abe Lincoln used to tell when his enemies tried to change an argument for their own benefit. "If you call a tail a leg, how legs has a dog? Five? No, calling a tail a leg don't make it a leg."

Our founding fathers set up our four freedoms as a guarantee to the people of the United States that the government would not encrouch upon the rights of citizens and their private enterprise system.

There is no one person that cherishes and values hi freedoms and citizenship more highly than myself. And it is because of tose freedoms that I question the policy of the Flambeau.

In our American system today, if I don't like the views supported by a newspaper, I as an advertiser don't have to advertise in it. As a consumer of the newspaper, I don't have to buy it if I don't like the views expressed on the editorial page.

The Flambeau is supported entirely by funds collected from each student at registration time. It is included in the $113 fee. Neither you nor I as students at FSU have a choice whether or not we will support the Flambeau with our money, we must--is this Freedom of choice?

Let's return the Flambeau to repo... on campus activities rather th... philosophy on International, Natio... and State affairs. We can read new... stories in the New York Times ... the Tampa Tribune about those m... ters, but no other newspaper in ... world will print news on FSU ca... pus activities.

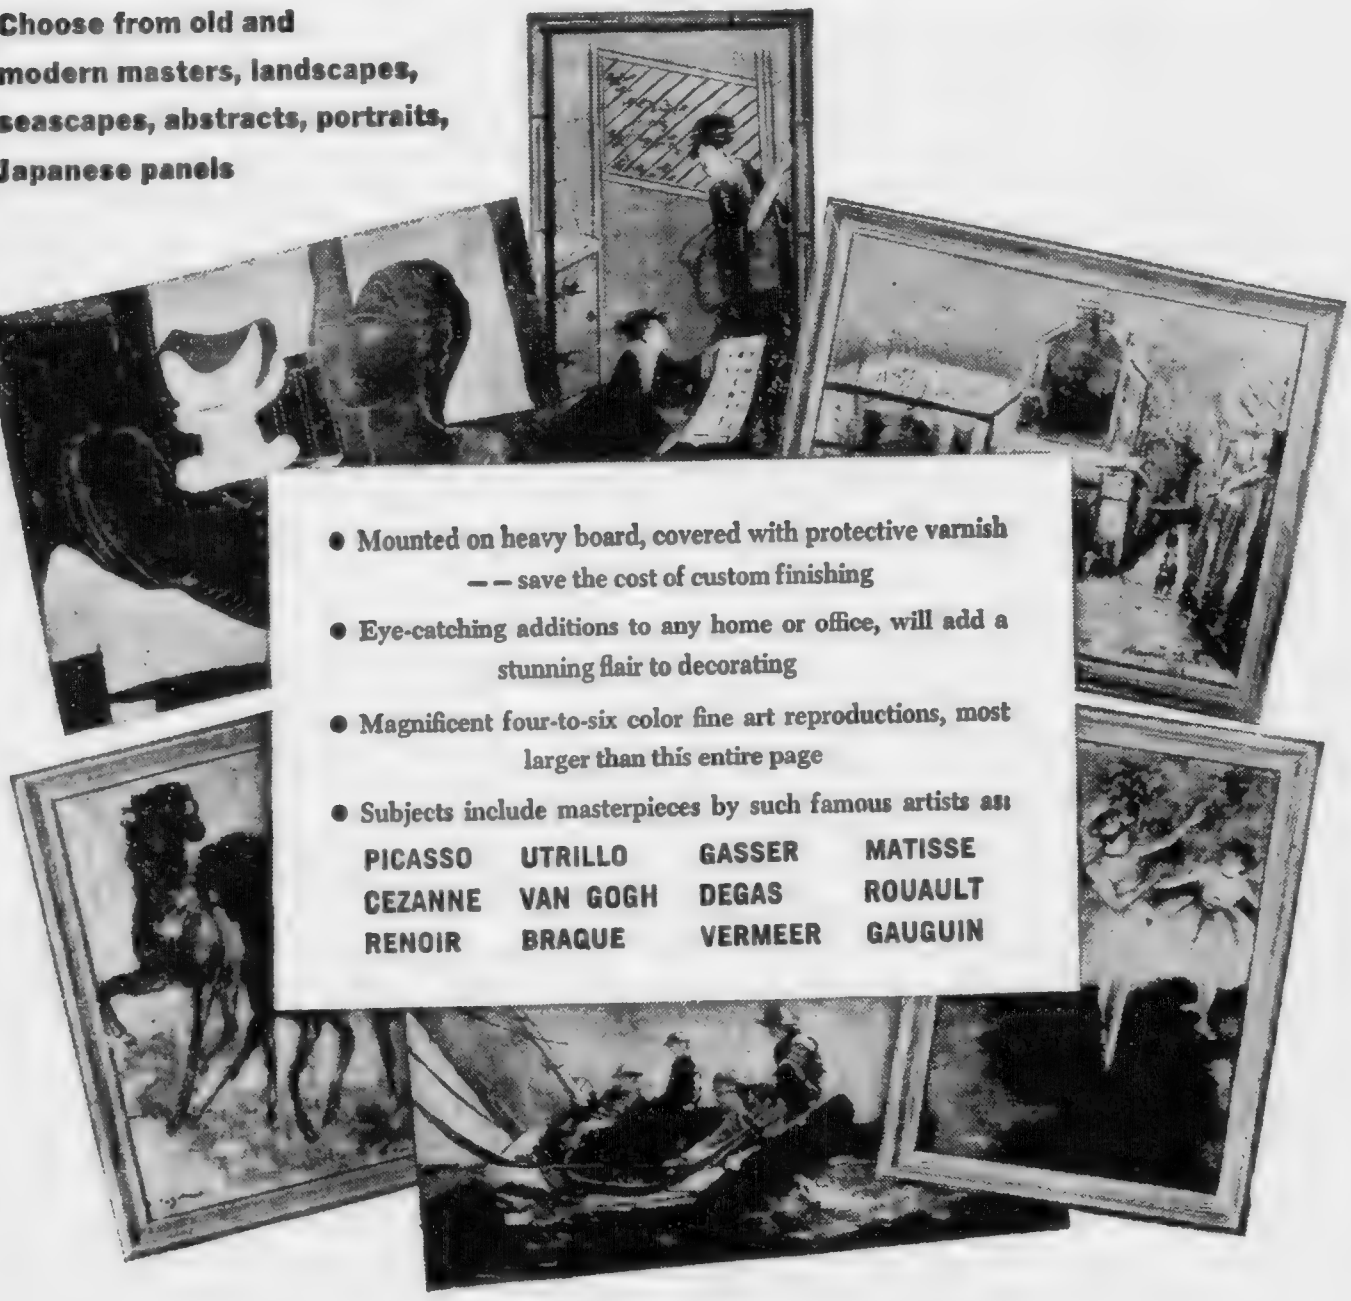
YPSL 'Regrets' Views

To the Editor:

We, as members of YPSL (Young Peoples Socialists League) are extremely regretful that our political views do not coincide with those of Mr. Sisco. We are even more regretful that, on these grounds, he dismisses them as "unAmerican." We wonder on whose authority he and his cohort set themselves up as supreme arbiters of Americanism on campus? Does Mr. Sisco think that the Republican and Democratic parties represent the only "American" views in our community? We hope not. We hope he is gaining more from his college educati... than this.



We have been accused of "athe... ism." We ask forbearance ... his part, should he discover any am... us who deviate from his religio... views. We promise that if he wi... not, as his Christian duty dictates, ... report members of our group ... the "state" legislature any more, we ... will recruit the services of a south... ern white protestant to teach us the true way. "There is life in the blood of the lamb" is there not Mr. Sisco? And such tolerance, too.

Today's News Roundup

FLAMBEAU NEWS SERVICES

TALLAHASSEE--While a new effort began to reapportion the legislature without turning the job over to Federal judges, procedure for organizing the state lawmaking body for the regular session got underway in Tallahassee.

As the first step in trying again to conform to a court order that the more populous counties have a bigger voice in the legislature, Senate and House leaders set up a new reapportionment committee.

A three-judge federal court in Miami ordered the legislature reapportioned by the April 2nd regular session.

Senate President Wilson Carraway and House Speaker Mallory Horne, saying they preferred the legislature to do its own redistricting, appointed three members from each house to try to work out the problem.

The House members are Wilbur Boyd of Manatee County, Hal Chaires of Dixie County and Lawton Chiles of Polk County. The Senators will be named today, Carraway said.

Both legislative leaders said they wanted the committee to begin work immediately and provide an answer by the end of the week.

NEW YORK--U.N. delegate Adlai Stevenson has denounced a "Saturday Evening Post" article which said he differed with President Kennedy on action needed in the Cuban situation. Stevenson said the article misrepresented his views. The White House earlier had praised Stevenson for his role in the Cuban situation and said his job at the U.N. is secure.

NEW YORK--The U.S. has joined U.N. Secretary-General U Thant in warnings that the U.N. will be ruined if member nations fail to raise needed funds. The Assembly's budgetary committee has opened hearings on the payment problem--complicated by the refusal of several nations to pay for Congo and Middle East operations.

WASHINGTON--The Peace Corps plans to shift its primary operational area from Africa to Latin America by 1964. Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver predicts there will be no difficulty in Africa as a result of the change in emphasis. President Kennedy suggested the operational shift, which would tie in with his program of shifting other U.S. interests to Latin America.

through his "share our wealth" scheme.

Wilson, Roosevelt and Truman, who together managed to give welfare legislation a firm place in the country, he continued, gained and continued in office greatly through Southern support.

Wilson was of Southern background, and his liberal and socialistic ideas were initially advanced by the Southern congressmen. Roosevelt, who really began the welfare state, retained much of his southern support even when he had alienated more conservative elements. Truman continued to be backed by these elements.

Clearly, while vocally attacking socialism, sothern conservatives are either insincere, or incapable of maintaining laissez-faire economics, the speaker said.

Five Home Games On '63 Slate

The 1963 Seminole football schedule, featuring three games with Southeastern Conference teams, has been announced by FSU Athletic Director Vaughn Mancha.

A battle with the University of Miami before a possible crowd of 60,000 fans in the Orange Bowl will open the grid slate.

The schedule:

Sept. 20--Miami at Miami
Sept. 28--Texas Christian in Tallahassee.
Oct. 5--Open Date
Oct. 12--Wake Forest in Tallahassee.
Oct. 19--Southern Mississippi at Mobile, Ala.
Oct. 26--Virginia Tech in Tallahassee.
Nov. 2--Furman in Tallahassee
Nov. 9--Georgia Tech at Atlanta
Nov. 16--North Carolina State in Tallahassee
Nov. 23--Auburn at Auburn, Ala.
Nov. 30--Florida at Gainesville

The schedule shows three SEC members (Georgia Tech, Auburn, Florida), two from Atlantic Coast Conference (Wake Forest, N.C. State), two independents (Miami, Southern Mississippi,) two from the Southern Conference (Furman, VPI) and one Southwest Conference team (TCU).

SIX RETURNEES

FSU met six of the '63 foes this season--defeating VPI, 20-7; and Furman, 42-0; tieing Auburn and Georgia Tech, 14-14 each; and losing to Florida, 20-7, and Miami, 7-6. Dropped from the schedule were Georgia, Kentucky, The Citadel and Houston. It's the first time FSU has ever scheduled TCU. The Seminoles last met Southern Mississippi (then Miss. Southern) in 1961, Wake Forest in 1960 and North Carolina State in 1957.

Not including games of Saturday, Dec. 1, the ten FSU foes had a 1962 composite record of 49 wins, 43 losses and three ties. The records to date in 1962: Miami 6-3, TCU, 4-5, Georgia Tech, 6-2-1, North Carolina State 3-6-1, Auburn, 6-2-1, Florida 6-3.

BEST SCHEDULE

"We believe this is one of the most attractive schedules we've ever had," says Mancha. "It's representative, with several teams from different parts of the country. And most of the opponents usually bring colorful teams."

The date with Miami on a Friday night could draw the biggest crowd in FSU history. For one thing it's the 1963 opener for both teams. And Miamians will remember the '62 contest, when 45,000 spectators saw FSU fumble six times and lose, 7-6, despite dominating play most of the evening.

Playing four games at Campbell Stadium and six on the road, FSU had perhaps its best year at the gate in 1962. An approxiamte total of 300,000 saw the ten games. Biggest crowds were for the Florida (46,000 sellout), Miami (45,000) and Georgia Tech (46,000) games. Smallest, strangely, was for FSU's homecoming game with Houston when rainy weather kept it to only 16,500.

Which game will be homecoming and which are night games will be announced.

Pall Mall Presents~
GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE

SWEET-TOOTHED CUPCAKE

CAMPUS TYPE V

The natural habitat of the Cupcake is the Home Economics kitchen. She believes, as her mother did, that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. While this viewpoint might be considered unsophisticated by many of today's more enlightened male students, none of them has ever been known to turn down a tin of her Fudge-Frosted Nut-Filled Brownies. She really has a way with a dish and, as you can see, she's quite a dish herself.

Just as the Cupcake has found the perfect recipe for Frosted Brownies, the makers of Pall Mall have found the perfect recipe for a delicious smoke. Taste Pall Mall's natural mildness and see what we mean.

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying,
so downright smokeable!

Plyler, New Director Of Physics Dept.

Dr. Earle Plyler, chief of the Radiometry Section of the U.S. Bureau for the past 10 years, has taken over his new duties as head of the FSU Physics Dept.

Plyler succeeds Dr. Robert A. Kromhout, who has held the position for two years. Kromhout asked to be relieved of his administrative responsibilities to devote more time to teaching and research.

A graduate of Furman University, Plyler also holds an M.A. degree from Johns Hopkins and a Ph.D. degree from Cornell.

The position at FSU is Plyler's first with a University since World War II. He expressed enthusiasm about what he said universities--and only universities--can do in furthering scientific knowledge.

"We are living in an age of science," he said, "and only those countries which put great emphasis on science will be great 30 years from now, or perhaps even 10 years from now. In the United States sufficient scientists are being graduated to double the number every 10 years.

"it is interesting to note that the number is doubling in Western Europe every 14 years and in Russia every seven years."

He noted that 70 per cent of research money in the U.S. is for space and military agencies, with only 30 per cent for other fields. The scientist expressed his concern that research related to civilian uses be increased in this country.

"In the long run countries which place heavy emphasis on such research will outdo us industrially unless additional attention is given, as only universities can give it, to basic research related to civilian needs."

Plyler's principal research interest is infrared spectroscopy. Recording the infrared spectra emitted by various substances constitutes a way of "fingerprinting" the substances, the scientist explained. The spectrometer enables scientists--there are about 6000 of them engaged in this field in the United States--to analyze quickly and accurately the identity of molecules. The research is of particular use in the chemical industries, including rubber and petroleum.

The physicists's present interests are determining molecular structure, or the space relationships of atoms in a molecule (of use in synthesizing larger molecules); the measurement of molecules in the atmosphere; and the interactions of molecules on collision.

Plyler has held positions as an assistant professor at Furman University; assistant professor, associate professor and professor at the University of North Carolina; research physicist at the University of Michigan, and physicist with the Bureau of Standards.

Campus Chest Donation To Aid The Blind

BY MARSHA LYNN
Flambeau Staff Writer

Fourteen million people in the world--equivalent to the combined population of New York City, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles--must use their hands as their eyes.

In order to aid in the relief of these sightless people, the Campus Chest committee has decided to donate a portion of the proceeds from the Jan. 23-29 drive to the American Foundation for Overseas Blind, Inc.

AFOB, a non-governmental organization, was created in 1915 to provide a comprehensive adjustment and training program for soldiers of Allied armies who were blinded in battle. Since then, its program has expanded to include aid and services to advance the educational, vocational and cultural opportunities for blind persons throughout the world. In 1959 the Helen Keller World Crusade for the Blind was launched to expand public awareness of and support for the Foundation's activities.

Education and employment are the foremost concerns of the AFOB to enable the blind of four regions--Europe, Middle East-Africa, Far East and Latin America--to become independent and self-sufficient.

As a part of its global service program, the Foundation maintains a staff of field workers to counsel governments and private agencies on the development of modern services for their blind children and adults. This organization also conducts special studies to determine the programs required for social and vocational advancement of blind within individual countries.

To aid in meeting these program needs, AFOB sends shipments of educational equipment and appliances including braille slates and writers, embossed globes and maps, arithmetic frames, "Talking Books" (recorded literature) and specially-designed games to schools and agencies for the blind.

Through these programs, AFOB allows countless blind people to achieve productive citizenship and gain self-respect.

Morality Concerned With Values

By MICHELLE JOHNSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The study of Camus is a subjective one and a search for values, Dr. Allen Thomson said at the English Coffee Hour last week.

He spoke on "The New Morality in Literature: Camus and Joyce." Albert Camus and James Joyce were concerned with tensions and change.

Literature often treats a question of morals, and many pieces moralize, Thomson said. Tennyson was concerned with the immortality of the soul, and evolution seemed to deny this to him. His revolt was against the method of research in which he tried to convince himself of the reality of the supernatural.

Browning was writing of the same issue, the speaker pointed out. "God's in his heaven--All's right with the world!" He too writes of doubt and separates men from animals by their power to oubt.

"The cynic grows out of the disillusioned idealist. He becomes negative to escape," Thomson continued. Joyce was disillusioned by his own religious life. Camus chooses to reconstruct reality but rejects hope as wishful thinking.

The New Moralists do not preach. Their beliefs are based on unscrupulous honesty, and they are not concerned with perfestion. "They are unpopular because they call a spade a spade."

"Camus is a man without God because atheism now means nothing to us but a synonym for Communism."

He takes man's fall as a striking off on his own but he must pay a high price for it. "As his intelligence grows so does his evil."

"The romantic does not begin by doubting but by questioning. They ask only to understand the values."

"Joyce wanted to record his own spiritual journey as did Dante. The Joycean rebel is also going toward something."

Sen. Thurmond Here Saturday

Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, former candidate for U.S. President, will speak Saturday night on "Communism vs. Freedom."

Sponsored jointly by the FSU Young Americans for Freedom, Project Awake and Operation Information, Sen. Thurmond will appear in Westcott Auditorium at 8 p.m.

A leading conservative, Sen. Thurmond carried four states and received 39 electoral votes as the States Rights Democratic candidate in the 1948 Presidential election.

Tickets, being sold at several downtown business firms and on campus at the Mecca, the University Inn, and by members of YAF and Project Awake, will be $1 for non-students and 50¢ for students and their wives.

Right To Believe Defended

To The Editor:

As an American (I hope that still means something), I am revolted with fear and disgust at the recent Un-American "American" patriotism of certain persons in our state government. I fail to see that an American citizen should be threatened with the removal of certain of his rights because he believes in a different economic system.

If a person or group plans to overthrow an institution for the protection of human rights, by all means throw the "skids" to him or them. We Americans cannot allow anyone to take away our freedoms which our fathers and our fathers' fathers fought and died for.

However, Mr. Riggins and the Flambeau staff are not even suggesting the overthrow of the rights of their fellow Americans; and yet certain old women, under the guise of state officials, are ready to press the panic button and accuse everyone of being communistic. Of course, the legislators' only interest is the well being of their countrymen, and no politics enters into their movement.

It might be of interest to these "old women" that there is a difference between socialism and communism, but I doubt their interest. Great Britain is, without a doubt, a socialist nation, but even more democratic than the US. However, I can't recall their Socialist Party being investigated every week, or being accused of being communist for thinking of a new way to sell potatoes.

I hope that I will at some time be able to protect my fellow Americans from this Un-American "American" school of thought in my state government.

Suppression Is Un-American

To The Editor:

Mr. Tom Sisco is suffering from a well-developed case of "What is good for General Bullmoose is good for every-body" fever. Certainly we as students have no choice whether or not we support the Flambeau--no more choice than whether or not we support athletic scholarships or a marching band. But Mr. Sisco, the fact that both you and I, as well as both Mr. Dobson and Mr. Riggins, must all support the Flambeau entitles us ALL to equal editorial representation. Your suggestion that the Flambeau stop printing ideological ideas that conflict with your own is by far more Un-American than anything you might hope to repress by such means.

I Like FSU; It's American

To The Editor:

I like FSU. I like the campus, I like most of my fellow students, I like most of the graduate students, I like most of the professors; but I especially like the way some students and professors fight back when their -- and our -- academic freedom is cahallanged.

I do not believe that I am surrounded by Communists, atheists, homosexuals, or any other degenerate or subversive group. Pardon my ethnocentrism, please; but I think the faculty, staff, and student body here are fairly intelligent and in agreement with "Americanism" -- whatever that is.

Of course I am only one person but certainly there are others with similar views. I feel, regardless of the blubbering of a few individuals, that I am part of an imperfect but nonetheless damned good university which is always becoming better.

Sisco Stand 'Righteous'

To The Editor:

In the last weeks, I have sat back and watched, in my opinion one of our greatest student representatives, belittled by different persons, without anyone speaking in his behalf.

I know personally that at no time has Mr. Sisco apologized for his actions and I don't blame him. Sisco's stand is a righteous one and one that shouldn't be belittled. The only thing that he regrets, and I along with him, is that the students of FSU allow themselves to be pushed into an opinion by a barrage of adverse articles.

The pen is mightier than the sword -- especially when controlled by such an editor. I now ask [illegible] -- Ben Sharp, to explain why [illegible] we, as full-time students and [illegible] as a paid employee of u[illegible] our time and money on Inter[illegible] -National-State affairs, wh[illegible] read it in the Tampa Tribune, [illegible] sonville Times-Union and numer[illegible] newspapers, whose sole job [illegible] reporting of such new[illegible] are we going in competition [illegible] these newspapers? And if Mr. [illegible] left mere Publicity chairman, w[illegible] attend some of the [illegible] lican's meetings - I'[illegible] Mr. Sisco, being president and [illegible] mally speaking for that grou[illegible] some questions to ask [illegible] answer me, Caesar Ben.

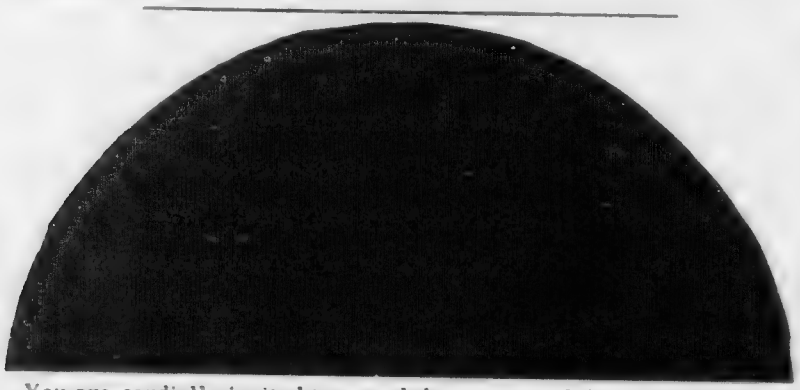
Marc et Andre Reviewed

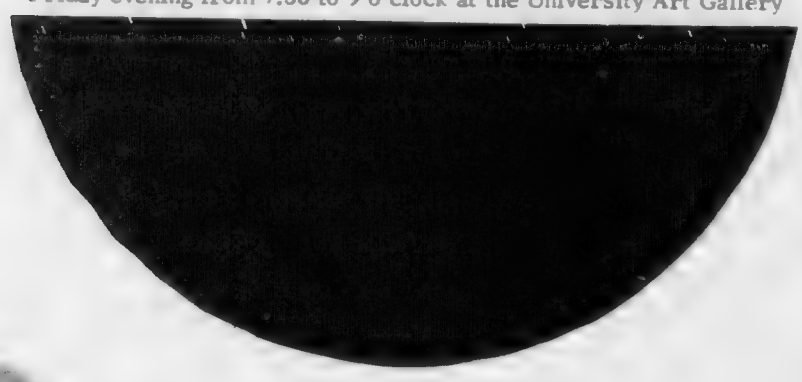
By JIM SMITH
Managing Editor

Marc et Andre packed Opperman Music Hall Monday night until its sides bulged. They not only packed the Hall, but held a captivated audience to a delighted two hours of fine polished showmenship, rarely seen on stages anywhere.



It is a fine credit to those two performers who came to FSU, spoke nothing but French, presented two hours of music, all in French, and did it all with only a bare stage to augment their talents. This was a rare treat, indeed. Professional calibre of these two performing artists was clearly shown as they sang through 28 songs in a foreign tongue, and were able, by sheer European charm, to convey to the audience the ancient art of the French Chanson.

If one could not understand French, they were entertained by the joy of watching them perform. It was refreshing to watch and listen to an entirely different kind of music.



It was evident that Marc et Andre were being received by their audience by the enthusiastic applause following each chanson.

It was refreshing to see foreign talent perform at FSU. More of this kind of entertainment should be budgeted. It would give more understanding and a better perspective to students taking foreign languages as well as those not in related fields. It is good to see and hear the performing arts of other countries. There is much abundance of it and when it is performed, live, its appreciation triples.

Much credit for the evening's performance goes to the translated program. Without it, much of the meaning of the songs would have been lost. But with a small knowledge of the song from the translation, plus the versatility of the artists, Marc et Andre proved that language has no barriers.

New Machine Speeds Reports

Florida State University has ordered a new IBM 1401 data processing machine which Registrar Murray W. Kenna said will speed grade reports and other processes more than five-fold.

The machine will be installed by next July 1, Dr. Kenna said, and will replace about one-half of the equipment now used for the same purpse. The system will operate by tape and cards.

Kenna added that the University of Florida began using the same equipment this year and that Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Massachusetts and many other schools either use the equipment or have it on order.

The IBM 1401, he said, will rent for between $37,500 and $68,000 a year, depending on the discount which is allowed.

In addition to being much faster than present equipment, the new data processing configuration will be far more versatile, Kenna said.

FLORIDA-FSU MATCH SLATED THURSDAY

Seminoles Breeze Past Valdosta

The Florida State Seminoles won the game that Assistant Coach Hugh Durham said they should win, when they defeated the Valdosta State basketball team in a 65-42 contest.

The Seminoles, who now have a 2-0 record, will be facing one of their biggest opponents of the year Thursday night in Tully Gymnasium when they clash with the cagers from the University of Florida.

Actually, this Valdosta game has been viewed as a warmup for the Gator contest, but still Coach Kennedy said the game was not as smooth as it should have been.

The Seminoles did not run through the offensive patterns well, although the team dominated the boards.

Over 52 percent of the Tribesmen's shots from the floor went through the nets, while the Rebels were held to a 37.8 percent effort. At the foul line, the Seminoles sank 15-of-23 attempts. The Rebels hit 8-of-11 free shots.

Leading scorer for the Seminoles was guard Dale Ricketts, who bucketed 14 points. He was trailed by center Jerry Shirley with 12 points and forward Charley Long with 10 points.

"We weren't bad on defense," said Kennedy, pointing out that Valdosta, which has a 3-2 record now, effectively used a "wheel offense."

Top defender for FSU was Shirley, who came through with eight of FSU's rebounds. The FSU quintet held the Georgians to only 22 rebounds.

Valdosta, which triumphed over Rollins last week, was paced by Mike Perry with 11 points and Chuck Bonovitch with 10 points.

The varsity's next opponent, Florida, obtained its first win of the season the same night when they edged Jacksonville University, 82-81.

The decisive factor in this contest was the performance of 6-7 plus center Bob Hoffman, who sank two free throws with 28 seconds left in the double overtime.

Two Gators, guards Tom Baxley and Brooks Henderson, each sank 20 points, while Jacksonville's Ralph Tiner tallied a game-high of 29 points.

In basketball, the Seminoles have seen only three victories over the Gators and two of the triumphs occurred last year when Kennedy's 15-8 squad prevailed.

Frosh Defeat Chipola JuCo

The Florida State freshmen met one of the toughest junior college basketball teams Tuesday night and managed to nip the Chipola JuCo quintet, 69-63, after coming from behind at the half-time.

This was the second victory of the season for the freshmen, who had previously defeated Manatee Junior College, 72-43.

Bill Peacock, a 6-4 cager from Campbelltown, paced the Tribesmen with 17 points, while Ken Leakey was second for the Seminoles with 15 markers. Jim Wallace and Bill Phillips hit 13 and 11 points respectively.

Two Chipola Indians, Charlie Clark and Wayne Purvis, dropped in 16 points each for the junior college's high. Guard Larry Harris also hit in double figures with 12 markers.

The Freshmen's next match will be against the University of Florida's fledglings in a preliminary match before the varsity FSU-UF contest Thursday.

THE DAY THE RAINS CAME

... and people took to cover, as did Senator Arnie Gibbs, ducking into Longmire to attend a Senate meeting. The weather today will be clear and continued cold with a high in the 50's this afternoon.

Senate Defeats Resolution To Censure Sisco's Actions

In a dramatic session, Student Senate yesterday defeated a resolution to reprimand Senator Thomas Sisco for his "irresponsible actions by disregarding the proper procedures and channels normally used to voice complaints against student publications."

The resolution further stated that, "He acted in such a manner in the State Legislature as to imply and indicate that he represented the opinion of the Student Senate by presenting to the Legislators copies of a resolution bearing the title Resolution #15, which had not even been properly introduced into the Senate."

Last Wednesday when Senator Sisco introduced his resolution to the Senate, to direct the "editors of the Flambeau to refrain from printing Un-American articles," to was ruled out of order since it exceeded the authority of the Senate. President of the Senate, Johnny Smith, said the proper channels for registering complaints against student publications were to be made to the Board of Student Publications.

When yesterday's resolution was presented to the Senate by Senators Louis Barnett, Jeff Andrews, Arnie Gibbs and Frank Ryll, it came under considerable fire from Senator Ron Eward.

In presenting the resolution, Sen. Barnett said that Sen. Sisco's actions were irresponsible from the standpoint that he "first went down to the legislature by indicating that he was a member of the Student Government representing Student Government. Secondly, he took the resolution that he introduced to the Legislature and allowed the Legislators to draw their own conclusions, making it appear that the Student Senate had condemned the resolution when it had ruled it out of order."

Barnett said Sisco's actions were irresponsible because he did not follow proper channels for his complaint. Barnett made it clear that the present resolution before Senate was a reprimand to show Sen. Sisco and others that this should not have taken place. "It is not a censure of his beliefs," Barnett said, "only his actions."

Senator Eward rose to Senator Sisco's defense by saying that before passing the resolution, the Senate should realise its implications on Senator Sisco's future.

Earlier Sisco said that he realized that his actions did not follow proper channels. He said he believed he was acting in the best interests of FSU.

After Eward's statement, Senator Jeff Andrews removed his name from the resolution. Andrews said that he believed Sisco was trying to clarify the situation when he appeared before the Legislature, as a reaction to the Riggins column which appeared in the Flambeau advocating Socialism.

After the resolution was defeated by the Senate, Men's Vice President Gene Brown moved to reconsider the resolution, but it was defeated a second time.

The Senate, in defeating this resolution, did not approve of Sen. Sisco's action, said Vice Pres. Johnny Smith. Rather they felt that Sisco's admission of guilt and apology was enough said on the subject.

"It would seem that by defeating the resolution the Senate approved of the methods of Sen. Sisco," said Smith. "This is definitely not the case. The Senate rather felt that further action on their part was needless and would only serve to agitate the situation."

Senate Studies Court Methods

A revision for procedures concerning Honor Court has been undergoing careful study by the Judicial and Rules Committee in Student Senate and will continue to be worked on throughout the coming trimester.

A spokesman for the committee said that it is hoped that a meeting would occur between all parties involved to promote an acceptable solution to the growing problems and heavy work load in the Honor Court.

The present bill before the rules committee calls for the setting up of a chief prosecuter under the attorney general's office to do the actual investigation in cases to present the facts to the court against the student.

Chief Justice Ross McVoy said that definite changes need to be made. He said the present system is too inflexible and needs modification. The workload on the chief justice has gotten so heavy due to the trimester, that help is needed in investigating cases.

Under the present system, the chief justice investigates, prosecutes and judges.

The rules committee desires to meet with Men's Vice President Gene Brown, who introduced the bill, Justice McVoy, members of the administration, and the Student-Faculty Honor committee, to iron out the differences and present an acceptable revision of Honor Court that is fair to the students.

World Premiere Date Set By Theatre, Foundation

"The Longest Night," a play by Valency will have its world premiere at FSU Feb. 6 in Conradi Theatre. The play will be produced by the University Theatre and the Eddie Dowling Foundation. Last year the Theatre and Foundation jointly presented the initial production of Mark Van Doren's first play, "The Last Days of Lincoln." It was at Van Doren's suggestion that FSU decided to produce "The Long Night." This is the latest work of Valency, several of whose plays have marked successes on Broadway.

"The Gypsy Baron" was a hit of the 1957 season and "The Visit," starring Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine, in 1958. Others included "Ondine" in 1954, starring Audrey Hepburn and Mel Ferrer; "The Enchanted," in 1950, with Russell Collins.

Two of Valency's Broadway plays are being produced during the academic year by other Florida university theatres: the University of Florida is producing "The Madwoman" and the University of South Florida "The Visit."

"The Longest Night" is based on Leo Lania's "The Foreign Minister" and concerns the Czechoslovakian diplomat, Jan Masaryk.

Fallon said that one professional actor will be engaged for the FSU production. Students and faculty will take other roles for the production, which will have five evening and two matinee performances between Feb. 6 and 10.

The Eddie Dowling Foundation seeks to combine professional and university theatre talent in trying out new plays which are potential successes on the professional stage.

Valency, a Ph.D., has been professor of English and comparative literature at Columbia University since 1954.

EXAMS CHANGED

Four changes which should be made in the examination schedule printed in the "Flambeau" on Nov. 27, Registrar Murray W. Kenna noted.

The Sociology 105 and 305 exam will given Friday, Dec. 21, from 8 to 9:30 a.m.

Regular classroom times for two periods should be revised. Classes meeting at 10:20 to 11:15 M.W.F. or 4 or 5 times a week will have exams Saturday, Dec. 15, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Those scheduled from 11:30 to 12:25 M.W.F. or 4 or 5 times a week will take exams Monday, Dec. 17, from 8 to 9:30 p.m.

The 2:40-4:05 T.Th. classes will have exams from 8 to 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 18.

BOP CANCELLED

The Board of Publications meeting scheduled for tonight has been cancelled and will be recalled again next week, Toni DiCarlo, chairman of the Board announced.

Breckenridge Works Exhibited

The Little Gallery of the Lewis State Bank is currently presenting an exhibition of works by Jack Breckenridge, a former member of the FSU Art Department.

The presentation, which is being shown each day Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. till 1:30 p.m., will continue until Dec. 13.

Breckenridge joined the staff of the Department of Art at FSU in 1958 as Curator of the University Gallery and as a Graphic Art teacher. At that time he had been awarded the M.F.A. by Iowa State University and he had shown his work in various local and regional exhibitions in the Midwest. He had also won the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship in 1956.

"As a pioneer, during the first two years of his stay in Tallahassee, he was chiefly under the influence of the intense color and slashing, visible brushwork of Hans Holmann with whom he had studied in 1952," commented Dr. Adolph Karl, of the FSU Art Department, in the informational guide of the exhibit.

"The brush has given away to a rough, granular, almost lunar surface. The works are pitted, gutted, jagged. Bright color gives away to dark color, relieved at times by little touches of gold, green or deep red," Karl wrote.

The paintings presented in this exhibit have been done in the past two years. The medium is what Breckenridge and others call a "mixed medium." The coloring matter is often "dry, finely-ground pigment."

Breckenridge received his B.S. degree from Wisconsin State College and is currently teaching at Arizona State University.

Admission Of Guilt

Sen. Tom Sisco, by his emotional admission of guilt on the floor of Student Senate yesterday, virtually censured himself in front of that body. The resolution calling for his censure was unnecessary. A man standing clothed in guilt needs no whipping.

The circumstances surrounding the instances clearly lay the blame for injury to the university on the senator's head. His misrepresentation of the facts and libelous statement that the Flambeau "editorials expressed the Un-American ideas of atheism, communism and socialism" caused a misimpression on the part of State Senators and Representatives. They lacked the full story. This misrepresentation, along with other statements, caused damaging press releases to be circulated around the state.

"Certainly any student can appear as a citizen of the State of Florida before the Legislature to explain the situation as he sees it," said Student Body Pres. Ken van Assenderp. "However, he does not have the right in so doing to make it seem in any way that he represents all of us."

The proportions to which this situation was blown should be a clear indication to all students that irresponsible actions by one individual can cause grief and damage to many. The citizens of the state watch their universities. They can be easily misled by a hasty word or an unthinking action.

Senate did not approve of Sen. Sisco's actions, but felt that his apology, given in good faith, was sufficient. However, it can be safely said that the Senate, and the Student Body, will be watching the actions of Sen. Sisco. Any further irresponsible action can not be easily forgiven. The university can not, and will not, tolerate another overt act.

Thanks For Freedom

The editorial staff of the "Florida Flambeau" sincerely thank the multitude of students, faculty members, and administrators who have readily defended this newspaper's freedom to print all sides of every question. We appreciate the many expressions of support which have come from every side.

Freedom of discussion is a fundamental part of every university and a basic right of every American. Those who would compromise this freedom under the guise of patriotism are endangering one of the primary strengths of the United States. Those who have risen to help defend freedom insure its continued strength.

Socialism Not Democratic

Hardly a day passes that we don't hear some socialist whine, in a speech, informal discussion, or on an editorial page, that "Socialism is not Communism. We socialists of the Free World believe in democracy; we seek to establish 'Democratic Socialism'."

How noble of these self-appointed saviors of our society to fight for their cause of socialism under the shining banner of Democracy. To call immorality "Virtuous Immorality" in order to make it more easily defendable would be [illegible] tradictory and [illegible] call socialism "Democratic Socialist."

The two major precepts of democracy are individual freedom and majority rule on a [illegible] basis. Any statement saying that [illegible] does not require a [illegible] deal freedom is completely [illegible]. All rights from the right to life to the right to [illegible] would be done away with under socialism.

Socialists claim that if elected they could be voted out of office at any time. As a matter of practical politics though, do you really think that the people would vote their employers out of power? Of course not! Just as the Army must be responsible down to the last recruit, so must people in the socialist state [illegible] have to be responsible down to the last district director.

The socialist state, by its very nature, cannot be democratic. Can you imagine the [illegible] of Staff and all the [illegible] Army were elected?

I don't [illegible] sell their warped ideas. I agree, in part with [illegible] Jefferson, said [illegible] them stand [illegible] arguments to the safety and [illegible] or of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it."

Let them try to [illegible] grade ideas to the people, but not be deceived by the sweet-smelling label "Democratic" that they tag on their product.

Ted Harvey

Controls Need Correction

State control and operation of public institutions of learning is a matter of technical and social necessity. Yet it is becoming obvious that in doing so, the state is casting away certain vital precepts of American political philosophy. When the right to dissent is outlawed, when freedoms of speech and thought are curbed, the system of government is deviant and must be corrected.

Responsible men in the system of government can pose a threat to the democratic nature of our state universities. On the floor of the legislatures students are attacked for responsibly voicing opinions, labels are cast at the student body. The greatest insult is the maligning of faculty by the crudest of names and accusations.

Rambling talk of uninformed and emotional men is best ignored by sensible persons, but when such men have wide powers there is great peril.

Though we complain about investigating committees and the Board of Control, is anything to prevent them from growing into some monstrous "Committee for Regulating and Censoring Knowledge?" No. Ridiculous? Perhaps so, but it would be better that the universities are closed, rather than exist as hollow, hypocritical reminders of liberty.

Times Answers Sisco Comment

In the December 4th issue of the Flambeau, Tom Sisco states "no other newspaper in the world will print news of FSU campus activities."

This is completely erroneous. The St. Petersburg Times is the only newspaper in the state that has someone covering FSU's campus exclusively.

I'll be happy to show you my clippings which range from a front page story on FSU rejecting the restrictive decree of the State Board of Control to a feature on the seven Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation houses.

Better still, how about a subscription to read for yourself the Times coverage of FSU?

Marxism Exists In America

LENDING, CURRENT, and past legislative investigations into Communists and Communist teachings in our public school and university systems have once again brought to light the old question: Who is a Communist?

It would seem logical that an advocate of policies that parallel the party line would be a Communist. And (according to the speaker for Operation Abolition, Information, or Enlightenment that visited the campus last semester) a non-Communist is a person that utters just the opposite of the Reds.

But this cannot be, because nearly all ten points of Karl Marx's "Communist Manifesto" have been installed in the American government. Drew Pearson, in one of his more logical moments, pointed this out a few years ago while innocently trying to point out that the U.S. and Russia were actually involved in friendly economic competition.

First of all, the United States has adopted the "expropriation of landed property and the use of land rents to defray state education." Lands have been expropriated to build highways, hydroelectric projects, and other civic projects, while most state colleges get their revenue from the leasing of government-owned lands.

SECONDLY, WE HAVE adopted a graduated income tax. We've "out graduated" the Russians, 91 to 13 percent, but then our citizens have much better salaries.

We haven't adopted the third point, the abolition of the right of inheritance, but we have practically turned it into a privilege with a graduated inheritance tax that may go up to 77 percent.

We also haven't "confiscated property of all emigres and rebels," according to Pearson. The contrary has been true in America; "we've become a haven for refugees," he said. But even before the country was founded, traitor Benedict Arnold's property was auctioned by the government. And as late as World War II, the government followed the spirit of Marx's idea by moving loyal, but suspected citizens of Japanese ancestry from their property and concentrating them in "relocation centers."

Fifth, Marx called for a centralization of credit in the hands of the State. Credit, loosely centralized under the Federal Reserve System, was tightened more during the administrations of FDR and Truman. Deposits up to $10,000 are even insured, which was more than Marx ever dreamed of.

FURTHERMORE, such things as the Tennessee Valley Authority, Bonneville Dam, Grand Coulee, the Panama Canal, Navy-Interior Department ownership of oil lands follow Marxian philosophy, while the Soil Bank runs counter to it.

Marx wanted to establish universal and equal obligation to work and industrial armies especially for agriculture. We must only think of [illegible] governmental agriculture [illegible] that are common to cotton, orange, etc. fields ... and, of course, there are the CCC and the WPA. (Senator Goldwater, however, would question that "welfarism" is establishing an obligation to work.)

Agriculture and [illegible] should work hand-in-hand. [illegible] quoted, to "obliterate the distinction between them." But [illegible] advances, such as mass communication and the automobile, have already done more than the government could have done. In addition, the farm population has dropped from 50 percent in 1900 to 17 percent at the present.

Marx's request for public [illegible] for all children, abolition of factory work for children, and education and material production to be combined have been fulfilled by compulsory free education, century-old child labor laws, and vocational high schools.

Gay Pur-ee 'Delightful'

BY TIM CARR

This feature-length cartoon by UPA is thoroughly delightful. Warner Bros. used the voices of several prominent stars in the production.

This is the story of the adventures of Mewsette, an innocent but ambitious cat (Judy Garland) who leaves her fiance, Jean-Tom (Robert Goulet), to go to Paris. She immediately falls into bad company. A "bad cat" puts her into a Salon de Felines. The madam (Hermione Gingold) of this Gay Nineties establishment is one of the most enjoyable characters we've seen in years. A frumpier, froozier creature is hard to imagine.

Jean-Tom and his ever-present little pal Roberpierre (Red Buttons) go to Paris to rescue Mewsette, but are shanghied and shipped to Alaska, where they strike it rich in the Gold Rush. They return to Paris just in time to save Mewsette from a fate worse than death.

The animating is quite [illegible] ginative--four demon cats [illegible] slaves to the "bad cat" are [illegible] credibly wicked that even [illegible] daylight they are seen only [illegible] houettes.

The characters romp through Van Gogh countrysides, prowl [illegible] Utrillo streets, and on one occasion get very tipsy in a Toulouse-Lautrec cafe (the Mewlon Rouge). The color is bright and sometimes stunning.

Judy Garland sings several songs well, and the music throughout is quite pleasant.

As we stood under the marquee buttoning our overcoat against the winter wind, we recalled one balmy day years ago, when a little boy on his fourth birthday was permitted to sit through Fantasia three times. He emerged from the theater not at all ashamed of his tear-stained cheeks.

WASHINGTON--Informed sources in Washington say Russia is shipping its bombers out of Cuba at a rate which should remove them all well in advance of the December 20th target date. The sources reported last night it also is understood the Soviets have told the U.S. they had more than 40 of the IL-28 jet aircraft in Cuba. U.S. intelligence originally estimated the number as 30 to 35.

WASHINGTON--The White House made public a letter from Pres. Kennedy to Adlai Stevenson in which Kennedy assured the U.S. Chief Delevate to the U.N. he has the president's fullest confidence and best wishes. It's an obvious effort to knock down continuing rumors that the administration is dissatisfied with Stevenson. The letter credits Stevenson with an active part in formulating policy which the president says resulted in eliminating the nuclear menace from Cuba.

Stevenson earlier described as false and irresponsible a magazine article saying he opposed the president's policy on Cuba. Stevenson said he emphatically approved in advance the blockade of arms shipments to Cuba. And Stevenson says he also opposed an invasion of Cuba at the risk of nuclear war until the peace-keeping machinery of the U.N. had been used. Stevenson says this was the policy adopted by President Kennedy and worked so successfully.

White House News Secretary Pierre Salinger emphatically denies published reports that Soviet reconnaissance planes recently flew over the Southeastern U.S. Air Force Chief of Staff General Curtis Lemay also denies the story carried by the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain last week. The Editor-in-Chief of the chain says the story was true and the sources of information were men high in the Kennedy administration.

Lemay says the only aircraft from Cuba to appear over U.S. territory have been small planes flown by defectors who landed in the U.S.

NEW YORK--At the U.N., the U.S. and Russian announced agreement to cooperate in using satellites in communication, weather forecasting and mapping the world's magnetic field. U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson calls it "a practical demonstration that our two nations can, despite political differences, cooperate in a highly important field of human endeavor."

NASHVILLE, TENN.--A man fired an air pistol at Teamsters Union leader James Hoffa at Hoffa's conspiracy trial in a Nashville, Tenn., courtroom. Bullets bounced without harm off Hoffa and he counter-attacked his assailant. The shots were fired by 23 year old Warren Swanson, who said he was a former mental paitent who got a message or vision from a higher power to attack Hoffa.

Eikman To Go To Caracas

Edward Eikman, associate director of FSU institutional research and service, has been given a year's leave of absence to serve as a United Nations specialist in financing and administration of education in Venezuela.

Eikman is now attending a conference in Paris and will assume his duties in Caracas at its end. Eikman received the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural recommendation of the U.S. State Dept.

During his stay in South America, he will make a study of the economy of Venezuela to determine its capacity to support various educational programs, and will act as adviser to the government on criteria for changes and priorities in regard to the educational budget.

His other duties will include counseling on the utilization of national and international sources of finance in the development of projects and on the acquisition of the specialized personnel to operate the programs.

Prior to coming to FSU in 1948, Eikman served as a college registrar and business manager for five years. He was for ten years a member of the Indiana State Board of Accounts.

ANNOUNCING THE 1963-1964 AFFLERBACH FELLOWSHIPS*

BACKGROUND OF THE COMPETITION: No matter how much time our People in Naming spend thinking up just the right color names for our shirts (Maize, Stone Green, Peat Blue, etc.), the Eagle Secret Shoppers inevitably report that you choose your Eagle shirts with such statements as "Gimme six of them greenish ones" or "Could I bother you for two or three dozen of those stri-ped ones." Our problem is in selecting names which will capture the imagination of the shirt-buying public. ✣ NATURE OF THE COMPETITION: The 10 Afflerbachs for 1963-64 will go to those persons suggesting the best names for our colors. Imagination-capturing names, like Well Red, Long Green, Charlie Brown, or Navel Orange. You may wish to inspect our shirts – for inspiration, if not purchase. Eagle shirts don't always have an Eagle label – some fine stores sew in their own – but if you write us, we'll suggest your nearest Eagle Shirt Color Inspection Station. ✣ STIPEND: The grand prize winner will have his (or her) choice of a Traveling Afflerbach (a grand all-expense-paid weekend at the Bush House in Quakertown – an exciting chance to become acquainted with the natives – many of whom are us, including Miss Revera Afflerbach, herself) or a Stationary Afflerbach (a dozen Eagle Button-down shirts). The 9 other Afflerbachs will consist of a grant of four Eagle Button-down shirts. Each, that is. ✣ RULES: The competition is open to all students and faculty members at schools, as well as to those who have filled in the coupon below.

*This, actually, is Eagle's second competition in as many years. Those of you who partook of the first, that is, what to do with the pocket on a Shirtkerchief, will doubtless be excited to learn that the book containing many of your letters to Miss Afflerbach has now been published by the Macmillan Co. and is now available at your bookseller. We have called it Dear Miss Afflerbach, or The Postman Hardly Ever Rings 11,342 Times, and the price is $4.95.

From Persia And India

Miniature Collection On Display

A collection of 160 miniature paintings from Persia and India, the illustrations for handwritten books done for Eastern potentates between the 9th and 18th centuries will be on display in FSU's Art Gallery from Friday night, Dec. 7, until Dec. 19.

The show will open Friday night from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and will continue until the beginning of the Christmas holidays. The Gallery will be open on weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and on Saturdays from 9 to 12 noon and on Sundays from 1 to 4 p.m.

Dr. Oscar Bosch, professor and head of the Art Department will speak on the miniatures, all of which are on loan from the Olsen Foundation, at 8 p.m. Dec. 12.

Dr. Bosch, whose field of special interest is Islamic art and culture and much of her research at the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago.

Many of the illustrations in the collection of miniatures are from the Shah Nameh or Book of Kings, by the famous author, Firdusi. The exploits of Rustam in this book are reminiscent of those of Hercules. Fairy stories, love stories and royal histories from the same source are also included and the 160 minatures cover a wide range from animal fables to portraits. There are portraits of royalty, saints, musician, acrobats and wrestlers.

Here's an illustration from the History of Bahram by Nezami, 1492 A.D., one of the 160 miniatures from India and Persia which will be on display in the Art Gallery at Florida State University Friday night, Dec. 7, through Dec. 19.

In addition to figural miniatures there are many good examples of Arabic, Persian and Hindustani calligraphy interesting for its decoration and design.

Geology Students Explore 30 Caves

BY PAT FREEMAN
Flambeau Staff Writer

Climb the ladder to success? Not FSU graduate John D. Waskom! This enterprising young man pulled a reversal of the normal procedure by sliding DOWN a ladder, not once but 30 times.

This was Waskom's first experience in cave exploration on an active level. Assisting his first venture into "inner space" were two accomplished spelunkers: Donald E. Smith, student in the FSU Meteorology Dept., who is interested in exploration as a hobby, and Jack Haslam, community planner employed by the Florida Development Commission. Haslam is an experienced cave explorer.

On the first trip, the caves were explored to see if they could be used adequately as fallout shelters in the event of a national emergency. Suitability depends on such things as height, air-space, capacity, storage space for at least two week's rations, entrance accessibility, air circulation, dryness, and types of animals and insects present.

Of the 30 caves examined, only eitht were discovered to be of potential value. These were then mapped. Mapping takes from four to eight hours for a cave, according to Waskom. Measurements of ceilings and dimensions of tunnels and rooms were made, using a compass. Two-dimensional maps were then made of each cave.

All of the caves are located a couple of miles north of Marianna on a line running east-west. Entrances will be sheltered to protect occupants from radiation. Installation of emergency lighting and air filtering systems will be necessary for survival.

"The caves that we found to be the most useful for shelters," Waskom said, "were those that had been, according to people of the area, inhabited at one time."

One cave was discovered to be occupied at the time of exploration. About 3,000 bats were dwelling in spacious comfort around its ceilings, but on the geologist's return the next day they had evacuated their abode for parts unknown. Only a couple of hundred of the nocturnal individuals were present to serve as silent hosts for the explorers' revisit.

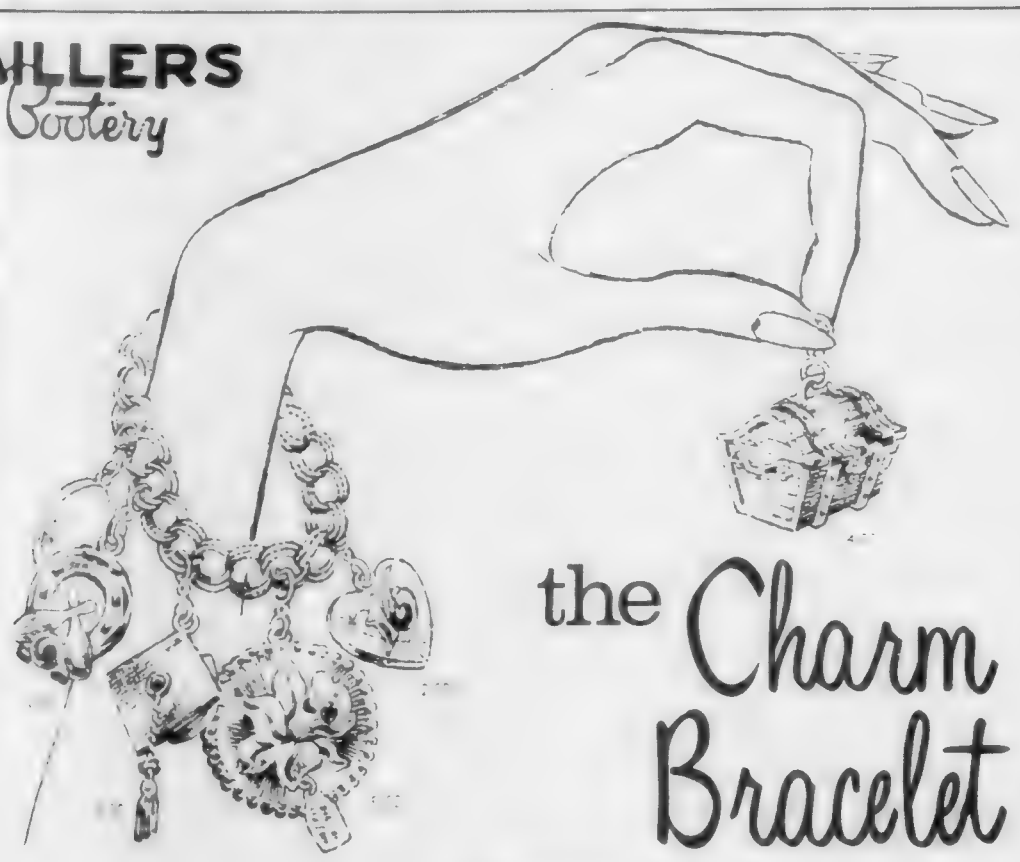
Gear used in the survey included helmet, head lantern, gloves, knee pads, ropes, canteen, rock hammer, compass and tape measure.

Graduate Art Student Exhibits 19 Works In West Palm Beach

Nineteen paintings and drawings by FSU graduate student Gladys Shafran-Kashdin will go on exhibit at the Norton Gallery of Art in West Palm Beach, Dec. 9-20.

Most of the paintings were done as part of Mrs. Kashdin's master's degree work at FSU. They represent the artist's research on the textural possibilities of additives such as mica, bentonite and linen string to the dry pigment and polymer medium.

Two of the paintings, "The Sea" and "The Forest," are on poetic themes. Several paintings by the artist have been on inspiration of the imagery in the poems of Marianne Moore. One of these, "Crabs Like Green Lilies," from the poem "The Fish" is owned by FSU.



Mrs. Kashdin teaches classes in watercolor and drawing techniques at the Thomasville Art Guild in Georgia and has previously taught adult classes in oil painting, art appreciation and design in Palm Beach County.

She has had shows in Miami, at the Tucker Galleries in 1950 and the University of Miami in 1960. Her work was first exhibited in a national group show in 1944 at the Brooklyn Museum.

Included in the honors she has received are Palm Beach Art League Awards of Merit for an oil painting in 1958 and an ink drawing in 1960, and a gold medal and merit awards for a group of watercolors and etchings in Miami in 1960.

Mrs. Kashdin is currently studying toward a degree of doctor of philosophy in humanities at FSU where she received a master of art degree also. She holds a bachelor of arts (magna cum laude) from the University of Miami.

Seminoles Strive For 4th Cage Triumph Over Florida

Florida State basketball coach J.K. (Bud) Kennedy says he still doesn't know how good-- or bad -- his 1962-63 team is after easy warmup wins over Tampa and Valdosta State; but it won't take him long to find out now.

The Seminoles start off with Florida this Thursday night in Tallahassee, and before the week is out they will have met four Southeastern Conference teams in seven days.

Florida, of course, is the big one. The Gators have won one and lost one in a pair of double-overtime games, losing a 91-87 decision to Miami and taking a tight 82-81 win over surprisingly tough Jacksonville University Monday night.

A capacity crowd is expected to jam 4200 seat Tully Gym on the FSU campus Thursday night for the Seminole - Gator game. Tipoff time will be 7:45. The varsity game will be preceded by a 5:30 FSU-Florida freshman game.

Florida State, in racking up the two victories against Tampa and Valdosta State, has a couple of streaks going. The Seminoles have now won nine straight games,-- the longest FSU streak since the 1954-55 team won ten in a row, a record that still stands. In addition to that, FSU has won nine straight at home-- last defeat in Tully Gym coming on Dec. 30 of last year at the hands of Auburn.

Florida leads the FSU-UF series, 7-3, but Florida State has won the last two meetings-- both of them last year. The scores in 1961-62 were 85,-71, in Gainesville and 79,-56, in Tallahassee.

After two games, 6-4 sophomore center Jerry Shirley of Mobile, Ala., is leading FSU in both scoring and rebounds. The burly rookie who led last year's frosh in scoring has sacked 13 or 18 field goal attempts for a 72.2 percentage, and has hit 7 of 8 free throws for a total of 33 points. He has pulled down 19 rebounds.

No. 2 scorer is senior forward Charlie Long of Louisville, Ky., with 24 points. Second-best rebounder is 6-7 junior Dale Reeves, also of Louisville, with 15 rebounds.

Donatelli Named All-Star Center

A former Florida State football player was named a member of the honor squads of the United Football League's All-Star offensive team.

Don Donatelli, a 1961 graduate of FSU and now a member of the Indianapolis Warriors, was named center of the offensive team. The 21-year-old, 6-4 graduate was selected by the league coaches.

Kinderman Drafted; Feely Sets Records

Florida State placed a man in the top three of each division of state football statistics, the final season stax reveal.

Senior quarterback Eddie Feely finished the season with the best total offense average in the state, as he carried 165 times for 982 yards for an average of 5.9.

He trailed quarterback George Mira of Miami in yardage, as the Miamian tallied 1,732 yards.

In FSU statistics, the Little Fox finished with 213 yards rushing on 66 carries and 769 yards passing on 56-of-99 passes.

Official figures show Feely with 1,711 career passing yards, breaking Joe Majors' total of 1.649 set during the 1947-49 seasons. Feely has a total offensive career record of 2,346 which snaps Nelson Italiano's 2,129 mark set during the 1959-62 season. And he re-wrote the pass completion record by hitting on 160 attempts; this broke the old record of 136 by Majors.

In passing, Mira grabbed first place with 1,572 yards gained on 122-of-260 pass attempts, while quarterback Steve Tensi of the FSU Warriors finished second with 796 yards. Tensi completed 60-of-121 passes, getting five touchdowns.

In rushing, fullback Gene Roberts of the Chiefs finished third in the state by racking up 299 yards on 75 plays. He had an average of 3.9 yards per carry, and finished behind Nick Ryder of Miami and Larry Dupree of Florida.

Keith Kinderman, a senior halfback for the Chiefs, who was drafted by the San Diego Chargers, was third in pass receiving in Florida, as he caught 20 aerials for 257 yards. He finished behind Nike Spinelli and Sparks of Miami.

Kinderman was FSU's leading scorer with five touchdowns, the top kickoff returner with 68 yards in four carries, and the top pass catcher.

The 205-pound Chicagoan may also be offered a Toronto contract and he is reported to be under consideration by the National Football League.

In addition to rating high on offensive ball playing, the halfback ranks high as a blocker and defensive cornerman.

Renegade quarterback Charlie Calhoun kicked more for yardage than any other gridder in the state, as he booted the ball 2,083 yards for a 37.9 average. However, Hagood Clark of Florida had a better average, with 40.9 yards per punt, but he only booted the ball 1,884 yards.

Coach Bill Peterson said Calhoun, a junior from Tallahassee, "was without a doubt one of the real great things that happened to us this year." He said Calhoun's kicking was invaluable and praised the gridder for his defensive play.

FOR GARNET-GOLD MEET

Tankers Gear

BY SETH BRAMSON
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State's varsity swimmers take on the Baby Seminoles at 7:30 p.m. on Friday in the Montgomery Gymnasium. The varsity has a decided edge, not only because of their experience and age, but also because of the fact that all events will be varsity distances. This means that all single stroke events will be 200 yards, the individual medley will be 400 yards, and the relays will also be 400 yards.

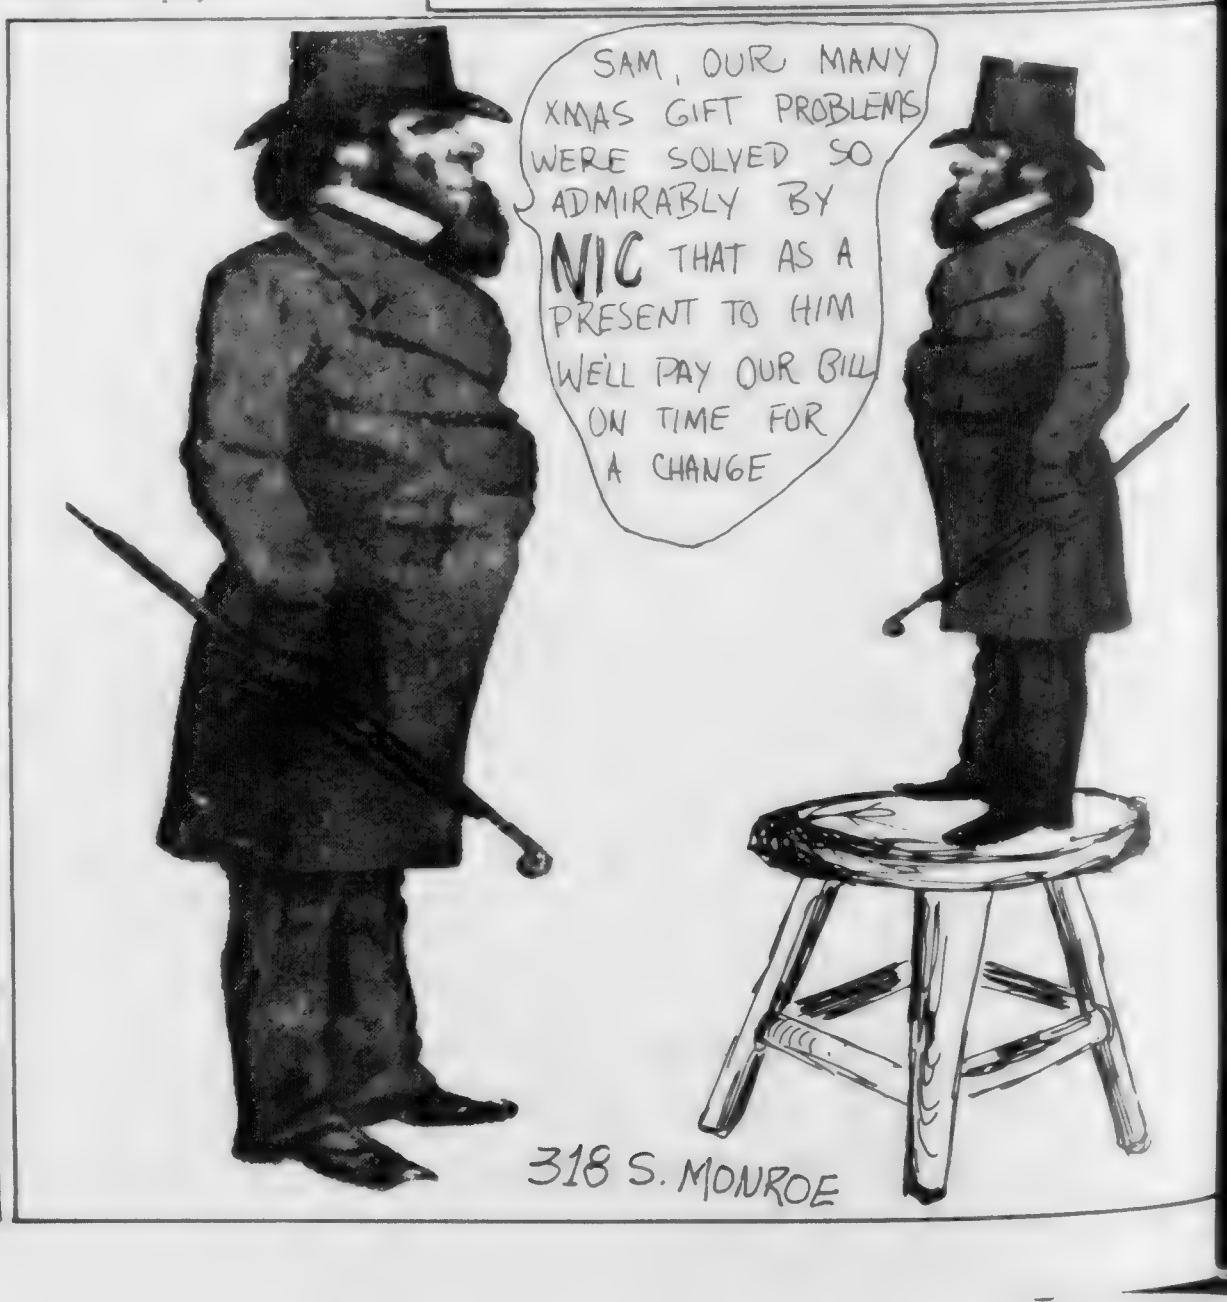
This meet will not be like a usual meet in that all members of both the teams will participate. Each stroke will have more than two "heats" but each heat will be a single event. In other words, each new group of swimmers will have their own winners. Times will not be taken, so judging is to be done on how the swimmers place without the aid of a stopwatch.

The butterfly should prove one of the meet's tight contests. The varsity will be sending up big Risto Fyykko and Pete Combes to take on Dan Jefferies and Bill Nance. In the breaststroke will be a quantity and a quality event for both frosh and varsity. Doug Kruger, Sherman Henderson, Roy Davis and Dick Green will handle varsity honors while the frosh will be swimming Preston Howland, Seth Bramson, Scott Guthrie, Gary Hurlbutt, Jim Welch, Chuck Gentile, Nils Bernsteen and Jack Baldwin.

The backstroke will see [illegible] Acosta and Pete Davis facing a tough battle from Tut Heisler and Mike Rowe of the frosh. [illegible] medley promises [illegible] evening's top events [illegible] men, Pete Davis, Tony Kowals, [illegible] Lawrence and Mike [illegible] on Dick Abbot [illegible]

In the diving it will be Bill Davis and Larry Profumo along with transfer Chris Albrecht for the frosh facing Don Montgomery [illegible] Neal Allen.

The freestyle events will prove their share of the competition. There will be 100, 200, [illegible] style events. In the 100 for the varsity, it will be Bruce Quayle, Dan Smith, Charles Tandy, and Mike [illegible] hen going against Mike Blouin, Steve Schultz, Jim Mauldin, and Keith Brockman.



In the 200 the varsity will line [illegible] the same as in the 100, and the frosh will swim Scott Young, Charles Robertson, Dick Abbot, Keith Brookman, and Steve Schultz.

The 500 free, which is 20 laps [illegible] see Allan Roles, Gene Dayton, [illegible] Durocher, and Ron Bisland of the varsity oppose [illegible] and Mike John[illegible] palardo.

There is no admission [illegible] the public is welcome.

The Sacred Service is composed [illegible] five parts. The first part, a Meditation, begins, "How goodly are [illegible] tents, O Jacob, thy dwellings, [illegible] Israel! Dr. Ervin Cooper of the School of Music, surrounded by four pretty coeds of the Women's Glee Club, will be specially honored by the choral group in its traditional Christmas vespers concert Sunday afternoon. Pictured before the triptych backdrop are Bobbie Price, Janie Merritt, Dr. Cooper, Patsy Kinsey and Ann Balkcum.

Sunday

Women's Glee Club

The Women's Glee Club of FSU will dedicate its Christmas vespers program Sundwy to Dr. Irvin Cooper, professor of music education who has for the past five years made many of the special arrangements of music for the glee club.

Two of his arrangements, "Silent Night" and "O Come All Ye Faithful," will be performed on the vespers concert at 5 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

This year's program, Miss Betty Jane Grimm, director of the 68-voice choral group said, "is dedicated with affection to Dr. Irvin Cooper, whose unceasing efforts have enriched the field of music both materially and spiritually."

The five-part program capsules the Christmas Spirit of the early days to the present through classical to contemporary compositions. The Rev. Paul Minus, university chaplain will give the scripture readings.

Opening the program will be a prelude by the Brass Choir, invocation, processional and Scripture reading. "Benedictus" by Palestrina and "The Prophecy," a 1962 composition by Richard Powell, will make up the second part of the program.

Other numbers include "Fragments From the Mass" by Diemer; "Te Deum Laudamus" by Wilson; two English Christmas carols; "One Little Manger" by Powell; "Before the Paling of the Stars" and "Babe of Beauty" by John Boda of the music faculty, and "Benediction" by Lewis Ossinsky, an FSU graduate who is practicing law in Daytona Beach. The selection was premiered by the Glee Club in New York's Town Hall last June.

Communism Vs. Freedom

Sen. Thurmond Speaks Tomorrow

Senator Strom Thurmond, Democrat of South Carolina and a leading spokesman for conservatism, will speak at Westcott Auditorium at 8 p.m. tomorrow on the topic "Communism vs. Freedom."

The Senator has a varied background in public life, having served his state in the South Carolina Senate, as a circuit judge, and as governor, before becoming the first man in history to be elected to the United States Senate as a write-in candidate.

In 1948 Senator Thurmond was candidate for President on the States' Rights Democratic ticket, carrying four states and receiving 39 electoral votes. He served in the Army in World War II, served in Normandy with the 82nd Airborne Division, and was awarded five battle stars and sixteen decorations. He is a Major General in the U.S. Army reserve.

As a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Senator Thurmond recently was instrumental in prompting an investigation of the alleged "no-win" policy of the governmental censorship of speeches by military officers. The investigation resulted in criticism by a Senate subcommittee of some of the State Dept. policies in this area.

The speech will be sponsored by two campus groups, Young Americans for Freedom and Project Awake, and Operation Information of Tallahassee. Tickets, which are $1 for non-students and 50¢ for students and their wives, may be obtained on campus from the Mecca and Mike's University Inn, or from members of YAF or Project Awake. Only house capacity will be sold.

EXAM CHANGE

One more correction is needed in the exam schedule which appeared in yesterday's "Flambeau."

Regular classroom times for for those meeting 11:30 to 12:25 M.W.F. or 4 or 5 times a week will take exams Monday, Dec. 10, from 8 to 9:30 a.m. This is a correction from P.M. which appeared in yesterday's paper.

Radio - TV Conference Here Today

The Southeast section of Alpha Epsilon Rho, national radio-television honoray, is holding its conference at FSU today and tomorrow. The convention draws from schools in the southeastern conference such as Georgia, Alabama, and Duke. At present there is no chapter of Alpha Epsilon Rho located on this campus, but one of the goals of the meeting is the establishment of a chapter here.

Tommy Wright is conference host, with Duane Franceschi of WFSU-TV coordinating plans for the meeting. Franceschi, program director for the university television station, and a member of the fraternity came to FSU from WQED in Pittsburg this summer.

The conference will convene at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Dec. 7, and will end Saturday afternoon.

Reward Deserved

The Junior Counselor's, FSU's group of dedicated laborers, can truthfully be counted as one of the most overworked, underpaid groups on campus.

RESPONSIBILITIES associated with this position are considerable. The J.C.'s are charged with the care of many freshman girls. They must guide them on subjects varying from what courses to take to what dresses to wear. They are presented with a multitude of personal problems and are expected to come up with a solution. They must discipline freshman girls, perhaps the most difficult group to control ever assembled. They serve on house council, put up display boards, organize dorm projects, run dorm teas and handle many other time consuming endeavors.

Their reward: satisfaction.

THE J.C.'S WORK long hard hours because they are dedicated and sincere. It is an honor to be a J.C. and they are willing to sacrifice for it.

But we think that satisfaction goes just so far, and the J.C.'s have passed the point where honor should be the sole reward of their endeavors.

In men's dorms, house fellows are paid and have their room paid for. These men also work hard, but they are rewarded for their labors. J.C.'s also deserve some material remuneration.

Two suggestions for a proper reward of these services are: paying of all or part of the J.C.'s housing bill and/ or setting up a fund for J.C. supplies.

As it stands now, the job is costing each J.C. a significant amount. They must pay out of their own pocketbooks many costs of the position, such as bulletin board supplies, cards, Thank You notes, etc.

THE TIME CONSUMED by this job often prevents girls from holding other jobs. Girls who are both J.C.'s and student assistants suffer scholastically. This situation keeps many capable, qualified girls from attempting to be J.C.'s.

We feel that it would be proper for the university to take steps to defray some of the cost. Paying professional councelors to do the job the J.C.'s are now doing would be a tremendous expense. Rewarding the J.C.'s for their efforts is small in comparison.

The nature of the job is one of service and honor. But we do not think that a reward for their time would detract from the position any more than the honorarium of the Student Body President detracts from his. And certainly reward is deserved.

What Kind Of Freedom?

Thurmond, according to YAF posters, is one of the U.S. Senate's strongest defenders of constitutional government. He is the South's home-grown Barry Goldwater, a staunch opponent of atheism, communism, United Nationism, socialism, and other un-Americanisms.

The Senator will speak on "Freedom vs Communism." Since Thurmond will doubtlessly be advocating "freedom," a somewhat hard-to-pin-down concept, a short examination of his kind of freedom may be helpful.

In 1946 Thurmond, a paratrooper colonel had returned home and been elected Gov. of South Carolina. By South Carolina standards, Thurmond was a liberal. That is, he stayed away from the White Supremists and Charleston's aristocracy. He was a good governor, and brought about several needed reforms.

However, Harry Truman and other Americans had taken seriously some of that "war-time talk" about the dignity of man and the persecution of minorities. He asked for a comprehensive civil rights plank in the Democratic platform for 1948. Our country had a minority problem. One-tenth of the population of this great democracy was deprived of their rights and liberties.

Deep-South delegates came marching home from the convention bent on protecting "the white race," "our way of life," and "Southern womanhood."

Southerners, 6000 strong, gave birth to the Dixiecrat Party. Their strategy was laid: carry enough votes to keep the national parties from winning the presidential race, thereby throwing the decidion into the House, where Southerner's c... extract promises from Truman, Dewey to halt this human rig... nonsense.

Potter -- God, Man And Clay

On the red-clay lined highway that runs from Greenville to Newnan, Georgia, is a large barn-like structure of dark-stained, unfinished boarding. Inside this drafty enclosure there works a human anachronism in the form of a soft-spoken young man with horn-rimmed glasses.

His father was a potter, his grandfather was a potter and now he is a potter. As he picks up a glob of grey Georgia clay, and begins working it in his hands, he talks absently of what products are in demand, overhead and decreasing markets. The contrast between basic economic theory and mud is astonding.

He then begins to chop the glob of clay in half on a taut guitar string fastened to two wooden pegs. As he slices the clay, he slaps the two pieces together and slices in another place. You hardly notice him tell you that this to produce a unified texture by getting rid of air bubbles, because the strum of the guitar string and the slapping of the two pieces of clay takes on a crude, but hypnotic rhythm. You can't avoid smiling at ... of Elvis Presley trying to gyrat... and throw mud at his guitar stri... at the same time.

On Educating Everybody

By TIM CARR

We were sitting in a cafe in Hell's Kitchen recently and heard a bit of repartee that, when we thought about it, we realized we wouldn't have heard in the South.

A very dirt, unkempt, unintellectual looking customer shouted at the counterman, "Give me two rolls with butter, and they had butter be good." Another even less intelligent looking customer drawled, "That missed being funny by a wide margerine." Considering the place and the people involved, we thought that was very enlightened humor.

Out on the street, walking uptown, we overheard a discussion between two garbage men: "Javits certainly seems liberal, and so it seems incongrous that Eisenhower endorsed him so strongly," said the first. "But the good Senator is an opportunist who knows how to play both ends against the middle," explained the second.

Being a recent emigrant from the South, we were amazed. We couldn't recall ever having heard such a lucid discussion except among recognized intellectuals.

We have repeatedly heard the political axiom that an educated electorate is the bulwark of democracy. But there is a much greater reward, we feel, in giving a good education to everybody. A man's morale must be increased immeasureably when he realizes that he is not just some insignificant insect who can play no part in forging his destiny. High morale is the force that makes nations great.

Encyclopedias, Topic Of Coffee Hour

"...our Good Encyclopedias" will be the subject of the dean of the FSU Library School, Dr. Louis Shores, who will speak at the English Coffee Hour this afternoon.

Shores, a well-known encyclopedist who teaches reference at FSU, will speak at 4 p.m. in Westminster House. The public is invited.

"Last year the American people spent a quarter of a billion dollars for encyclopedias, which he said have "...provide all good grades ...elementary school through ...college..." He added:

"...the difficulties is that ...and some teachers do not ...use the encyclopedia correctly. "...good encyclopedia represents the highest scholarship authority. A ...er encyclopedia uses about 5000 ...holars drawn from all major universities of the world in order to ...ide the best in writing, illustration and indexing."

Shores recently spent a year on leave of absence from FSU as editor-in-chief of "Colliers Encyclopedia."

He compared the American encyclopedia with the Russian encyclopedia, "The Bolshaia Sovetskaya."

He said that on a controversial question, the American encyclopedia tries to give both sides, but the Russian encyclopedia propagandizes and presents information from the Communist standpoint.

Music By Arrangement - New TV Show

By CHRIS CLARKE
Flambeau Staff Writer

A new idea in television production entitled "Music by Arrangement" using Richard Maltby's orchestra has been proposed by WFSU-TV, Channel 11. "Music by Arrangement" if accepted by the National Educational Television and Radio Center for production, would be similar to a network syndicated production. If adopted the programs, produced by WFSU-TV, will be distributed to 67 eductional television stations in forty eight states.

The programs will feature various sized groups from a jazz quartet to a complete "pops" orchestra. Among the subjects covered are how the big bands like Miller and Kenton got the particular sound that became associated with their groups.

Money for the proposal would be supplied by contract with the NETRC. Visualization will play a large part in this realm of the nature of musical sound. A painting in different stages of development will be shown in order to point out the similarity of construction between the painting and a musical arrangement. Also included will be dance routines and film clips showing how music is integrated into dance and the movies.

Three Doctoral Students Study JC Administration

Three doctoral students are completing their first trimester of studies in junior college administration as part of the Junior College Leadership Program, supported by a grant of $1,500,000 from the Kellogg Foundation to 10 universities over the country.

Dr. Raymond E. Schultz, director of the FSU program, said four others at FSU are further along in the two-year-old program. More than 100 persons over the country are taking advanced graduate work in the program in preparation for jobs as president or dean of a junior college.

Those completing their first trimester of work this month are William T. Cottingham, who has been registrar of South Georgia College and who holds a BA degree in English from Duke University and an MA in English from Emory; James Rogers, counselor at Pensacola Junior College with a BS degree in biology from Delta State College and a master's degree in religious education from New Orleans Theological Seminary; and John Roueche, instructor at Appalachian State Teachers College, with an AB degree in history, cum laude, from Lenoir-Rhyne, and an MA degree in history from Appalachian State Teachers College.

Second-year students in the program at FSU are D. Ray Farley, Kenneth Clawson, Dayton Roberts, and Claude Gates.

Dr. Schultz and Dr. Maurice Litton, associate professor in the program, last month attended a meeting of representatives of the other 10 universities in Dallas. Present were Ed Gleazer, executive director of the American Association of Junior Colleges, and Dr. Maurice Seay, educational director of the Kellogg Foundation.

OUR 40th YEAR OF CHRISTMAS SERVICE

Top Coed Netters Bolster Racquettes

Through no coincidence, the number two and three positions on the women's tennis team are held by players from Daytona Beach. Both Jan Quinn and Judi Dunn are products of the very outstanding coaching of Mrs. Gail Stewart at Seabreeze High School. Mrs. Stewart was awarded the Senior Bowl Award in 1961, one of the highest honors that can be given a woman by the American Lawn Tennis Association. The award is engraved, "To the player who annually makes the most notable contribution to the sportsmanship, fellowship and service of tennis."

Judi has played tennis for eight years, and is ranked tenth in the Florida Lawn Tennis Association Girls' 18, Girls' 15 and eighth in Girls' 18, as well as being captain of the Seabreeze High School team that won the state championship in 1959. That same year she received the Florida Lawn Tennis Association Sportsmanship Award, and admits modestly that she was awarded "a couple of others" for sportsmanship in several separate tournaments.

An English major, Jan graduates at the end of the second trimester and plans to spend next fall and winter touring Europe and working abroad. Her ambition is to be a stewardess on an airline that goes to the South American countries.

Jan's campus activities include being a Junior Counselor, vice president of her dorm, officer in the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, and President of Racquettes. She was a candidate for Homecoming Queen sponsored by the tennis club.

A fine player and an excellent student, Judi Dunn in her junior year has maintained a 3.48 overall average and has studied in the Honors Program. She is majoring in math with a minor in biology and chemistry, and hopes to take graduate work toward the MS degree in biology, or a double major in math and biology. Judi is preparing for a career in biological research.

The tennis club faces Valdosta High School this Saturday on the Tully Gym courts in their second match this trimester. Last month in the season's opener, they swamped the Rollins College women's team, 15-0.

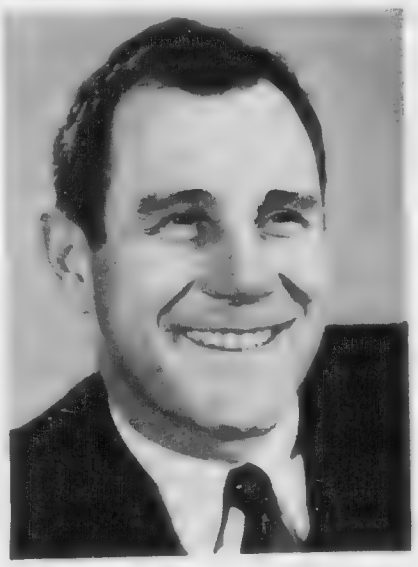
Intramurals To Close Second Sports Season

Semifinals in the shuffleboard and table tennis competition, plus the finals in deck tennis, will bring the second intramural sports season to a close before the exams and Christmas holidays.



Twelve organizations entered the deck tennis tourny, which is headed by Judy Seymour and is now seeking winners. Shuffleboard, headed by Eugenia Britt and assisted by Sylvia Mickler, had more than 150 entrants.

Both leagues will begin semi-final matches today and tomorrow.

The table tennis tournament is in its last rounds of matches and will continue into the early part of next week. It is headed by Gayla Beauchamp and Peggy Hartley.

The new sports season will begin soon after second trimester classes start and will continue until the latter part of February. A Unit managers meeting is slated Jan. 8. Sports managers for this trimester will be Nancy Kropp, bowling; Kay Fry, basketball; and Diane Hall, horseshoes.

Any woman student or faculty member may coach the teams. If a physical education major is requested, a request should be filed in the intramural office.

Coach Bill Peterson of FSU has replaced UF's Ray Graves as a coach for the South inthe Dec. 22 annual Shrine North-South all-star game.

Garnet-Gold Competition Set Tonight

Stults, beginning his 15th season at FSU, is concerned with the loss of double All-American Paul Thompson, naturally. "But if a couple of kids can halfway replace him, we could be as good as last year."

Last year Florida State won 11 of 12 dual meets to push Stults' lifetime coaching record to 110 wins, only 19 defeats and two ties. Twelve lettermen from last year's squad have departed for various reasons.

FSU has already won two preseason Amateur Athletic Union events with skeleton squads--one in New Orleans, the other at Tuscaloosa, Ala. Regular dual-meet season opens on Jan. 9 when Georgia comes to Tallahassee.

Cage Championship At Stake Tonight

The fraternity basketball championship will be decided at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Tully Gym when Phi Delta Theta tries for its second win over Delta Tau Delta.

The Phi Delts reached the finals by defeating the Kappa Sig's and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

The Delta Tau's fell, 40-32, in the first game of the double elimination tourney.

In dorm independent basketball, the Ole Timers copped the championship by a narrow margin by defeating the P.E. Majors. Geology was second, will the Wesley Foundation was third.

In fraternity softball, Alpha Tau Omega came out on the top of the heap, while the KA's and Phi Delts were runnersup.

The campus-wide men's table tennis tournament will start at 4:30 p.m. Monday, with the first 32 entries in both singles and doubles competing.

Seminole Shorts

The Florida State Seminoles, who pulled one of their greatest upsets in athletic history when they defeated Kentucky in 1960, have three Bluegrass boys on their own roster.

The three are Charlie Long, Dale Reeves and Faurest Coogle.

Florida Gets 80-90 Triumph On Henderson's Top Effort

By JOHN WOOD
Asst. Sports Editor

In their biggest test of the new season, Coach Bud Kennedy's varsity basketballers suffered a humiliating defeat at the hands of Florida's galloping Gators 80-59. The only thing that can be said is that the Gators were the better team.

The first half was a see-saw affair with the lead rapidly changing hands. At one time, Florida State held a five point advantage, but it was wiped out in a number of seconds. As the first half ended, Floridw managed to fashion together a 38-33 lead.

The second half was as fast paced as the first, but it seemed whenever there was a break to be gained, Florida was first in line. They managed to hurry the Seminoles' usually slow, concentrated play by using the fast break effectively. With four minutes gone in the secon half, Florida owned a 56-45 lead and was pouring on the coal.

The Gators couldn't seem to miss a shot, be it field goal or free throw, and were on top 61-47 with just nine minutes left. The Florida express roared on and was out in front 65-48 with seven minutes to go, as the Seminoles couldn't seem to get on the right track.

To Show the closeness at times of the contest and the difficulty a team had to go through to get a point, between the times of 7:18 and 4:18, a length of three minutes, Florida managed only four points while FSU tallied three. In contrast, Florida picked up nine markers and the Seminoles eight in the last three minutes.

The harried Seminoles managed only a pitiful 38.1 percent of their shots, making 24 shots out of 63. The Gators only made three more field goals, ending up with 27 out of 46 attempts for a sterling 58.7 percent. The free throws stacked about the same as the field goals, with Florida holding an advantage.

The Gators missed only two of their attempted 14 free throws in the second half for an overall free throw average of 83.9 percent or 26 out of 31. FSU made 11 of 16 for an average of 68.8 percent. Both teams got 34 rebounds. FSU committed 21 personal fouls against 13 for the Gators.

Baby Tribe Socks Alligators, 82-53

The Florida State freshman basketball team put together it's third win of the season last night in the finest style possible as it trounced the University of Florida Baby Alligators, 82-53.

Having a 43-25 lead at halftime, the Seminoles kept a 15 to 30 point margin between their score and the Gators' through most of the game, as five Tribesmen broke into double figures.

Forward Jim Wallace of FSU was the high-scorer in the game, as the St. Petersburg cager sank 7-of-17 field goal attempts and 3-of-4 free throws. In addition, Wallace dragged nine rebounds from the board.

Guard Ken Leakey, a 6-7 Indianian, hit for 14 points by FSU as he tallied 7-of-13 field goals and no free throws. Third in scoring was center Bill Phillips, a 6-7 17-year old from Okeechobee, who sank 13 points. Phillips, who tied Wallace with nine rebounds, 4-of-7 field goals and 5-of 10 free throws.

Eleven points were tallied by guard Bill Peacock of Campbellton, as he was successful with 4-of-7 shots from the floor and 3-of-3 charity tosses.

Forward Gary Schull, who was slowed by the flu this week, scored 10 points. The 6-6 Pompano Beach cager hit 2-of-6 field goals and 6-of 10 free throws.

Florida had only three players in the double figure brackets. They were Moore, Boyd, and Goolsby, who scored 11, 10 and 10 points respectively.

Statistics tell the tale, and FSU did most of the talking. The Baby Gators tried for a game high of 52 field goal attempts, but hit only 17, while the Seminoles attempted 65 shots and came through 30 times. The sloppily playing Gators sent the Seminoles to the free throw line 37 times and the FSU cagers scored 23 of the times, while the Gators were given only 25 attempts and scored 21 times.

The Seminoles dominated the boards, taking 43 rebounds to UF's 29.

Gators Were Better Team

By BOB DENSMORE
Flambeau Sports Writer

Not much could be said after our 80-59 loss yesterday: none of the FSU cagers felt too much like talking after losing to UF. Coach Bud Kennedy summed up all that could be said in a few succinct sentences: "We were just out-played by a good team. However, I still don't know what kind of a team we have. The only two bright points of the gamer were Rogers and Huge."

Pete Rogers, a junior transfer from Daytona JC, played a whale of a game for the Seminoles, scoring 17 points. Going into the game no one knew whether or not his left arm, injured in a pre-season accident, had really come around. Last night, he played at times like a man with three arms.

Cal Huge, out with a bad ankle last year, came on last night like a Tallahassee cold snap. Huge sparked the team throughout the first half, zeroing in for ten points, and played a good game off the boards all evening.

The team, as a whole, didn't see any bright points of the game. The general team consensus gave Florida's Henderson the "villian of the night" award. The only dissenting opinion encountered was Cal Huge's. He didn't like any of them.

When asked about the outcome of the next FSU-Florida clash, Pete Rogers said, with a serious look in his eye, "our head's will be up for the next one."

SAYS HUGH DURHAM

Auburn Is Tough

Hugh Durham, assistant basketball coach, gave FSU students the inside dope on one of the toughest teams in the Southeastern Conference yesterday, as he kicked off the Flambeau's scouting reports for this season.

Now that Florida has come and gone, the basketball team must next set their sights on the Tigers of Auburn. The contest will be played tomorrow in Auburn and will be carried by the same local station that carried last year's games. Since Auburn's Gymnasium seats only 2500, one of the smallest in the SEC, the place should be packed.

TEAM CHARACTERISTICS: Auburn runs under an offense very similar to the Seminoles'. They use a shuffle offense and work for percentage shots. They have led the nation in percentage shooting several times and still hold the national record of 52.4 per cent. The Tigers finished third in the Southeastern Conference last year, and is tabbed by pre-season polls to end behind the top powers of Mississippi State and Kentucky, respectively.

As far as defense goes, they finished second in the nation last year by keeping their opponents down to a 51.2 point average per game. They are probably one of the best coached clubs in the SEC, as far as precision and knowing what to do is concerned. They also possess one of their finest freshman teams in years.

KEY PERSONNEL: The Tigers' best boy is 6-7 center Layton Jones, who wears number 42. The 215-pound senior was All-SEC last year and ranked second in the nation in field goal accuracy, with a final mark of 58 per cent, right behind Jerry Lucas of Ohio State. (Now departed Ray Swain ranked fourth in FG year as a Seminole.)

At one forward will be Mac land, number 34, a 6-6 senio played one year at nearby Ch Junior College. The other fo spot will be filled by Billy T This 6-2 senior is one of the defensive men in the SEC and p esses exceptional jumping ab He is considered by Coach Jod as one of the keys to the suc of this season, although he ha slowed by a knee operation.

At guard, will be two juniors, L Chepman and John Blackwell. C man, who sports number 20, is footer who is a good shot and handles the ball well. He the number two man last year be Johns. Blackwell is an excepti defense man, who played as last year.

If any substitutes are sent in game, chances are they will be of the following: guard Larry C a 5-11 junior who is a good handler, passer, feeder but wil out the first few games. He tr ferred to the Tigers from Y Harris College, a Georgia j college received 100 offers to ball. Forward-center Joe Ne who was one of the top freshme last year's team, will also be ning a hot seat on the bench. 6-7 soph is also a top rebound

The Seminoles will be [illegible] for the clash now that Pete Roge hand is healing.

Academic Freedom Policy Outlined By BOC, AAUP

The Board of Control adopted a statement on academic freedom in Boca Raton Friday which declared mainly that "A university faculty and student body must be free to cultivate a spirit of inquiry and scholarly criticism." At the same time, the Florida Conference for the American Association of University Professors published a statement entitled, "Academic Freedom --What and Why?" in an effort to explain to the general public what the professors mean by academic freedom. Published on page 3 is a partial text of the Florida's AAUP.'s statement regarding academic freedom. The following is the complete text of the BOC statement.

"The State of Florida can achieve its full potential for greatness only with an outstanding unversity system. Achieving; this greatness necessitates a strong and respected board of control, administration, and faculty. The Board of Control reaffirms its determination to develop the State University system of Florida as a group of universities of high academic distinction in their respective fields.

"The board is dedicated to making these institutions prominent centers of learning, leadership and dynamic forces in American progress. The board emphasizes that the dissemination of knowledge, the search for truth, and the development of educated minds constitute the professional responsibilities of the faculty. These responsibilities must be maintained while each university exercises its function of providing a favorable climate for the study and exchange of ideas.

"The board of control as the legally constituted agency for policy-making and supervision of the State universities believed that academic freedom and responsibility are essential to the full development of a true university and apply to teaching, research and creativity. In the development of knowledge, research endeavors and creative activities, a university faculty and student body must be free to cultivate a spirit of inquiry and scholarly criticism and to examine ideas in an atmosphere of freedom and confidence. A similar atmosphere is required for university teaching. Consistent with the principle of academic responsibility, a teacher must have freedom in a classroom in discussing his subject. The university student must likewise have the opportunity to study a full spectrum of ideas, opinions, and beliefs so that he may acquire maturity for analysis and judgment. Objective and skillful exposition of such matters is the duty of every teacher.

"The established policy of the board of control continues to be that the faculty member must fulfill his responsibility to society and to his profession by manifesting academic competence, scholarly discretion, and good citizenship. The university teacher is a citizen, a member of a learned profession and an academic officer of an educational institution. He should be constantly mindful that these roles may be inseparable in the public view, and he should therefore at all times exercise appropriate restraint and good judgment.

"It has long been the established policy of the board of control that institutions under its direction shall select faculty members of good moral character and of the highest educational background. The Board has also been concerned with the careful selection of students in the various institutions under its management and with their continuing social, economic, moral and spiritual welfare.

"In order to assure a wholesome educational environment within the State universities of Florida, the Board of Control has adopted the following policies for the guidance of the universities:

"Each institution shall continue to examine carefully the qualifications and records of those individuals who are to be employed by it, not only with regard to their professional and academic competency but also with regard to their general character and their moral conduct. Furthermore, the Board directs the institutions under its control to continue to exercise due care in the selection of students taking into account not only their academic ability to perform satisfactorily but also their character and moral behavior. The Board of Control also enjoins the administration on each of the institutions to continue to guard against activities subversive to the American democratic process and against immoral behavior, such as sex deviation.

"Religion plays a vital role in our American way of life and inevitably this subject will arise in classroom discussions. Religion may be properly discussed and analyzed there. The teacher bears the responsibility of pursuing such discussions objectively and impartially with advocacy or in respect for the religous beliefs of all concerned.

"The Board of Control continues its concern that students are exposed to the best in books and teaching materials. While recognizing the right and responsibility of the individual scholar to choose his teaching materials, the board enjoins each member of the faculty to select mat-

FSU's Finest Voice Gives Recital Tonight

Mezzo-soprano Elena Nikolaidi will present several selections from her recent New York Town Hall program, in a recital tonight at 8:15 in Opperman Music Hall.

The former opera singer, now professor of voice at FSU, will open the program with Handel's "Thanks Be To Thee," Dido's Lament from Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas" and three selections by Schubert: "Fischerweise," "Nacht and Traume" and "Die Junge Nonne."

The program will include a song cycle "Frauenliebe unde Leben" (Woman's Love and Life) by Schumann; "Vocalise en Forme de Habanera" (Song without words) and "Chanson Hebraique" (Hebrew Song) by Ravel and "Fetes Galantes" (En Sourdine, Claire de Lune, Fantoches) by Debussy.

Two Spanish songs, "Montagnesa" and "Granadina" by Nin, and two Greek folksongs by Riadis will conclude the recital.

John Boda will be accompanist for the presentation, which is free and open to the public.

Miss Nikolaidi appeared in New York's Town Hall Nov. 14. Her program there included the song cycle, Ravel and Debussy selections and two Greek songs by Riadis.

The mezzo-soprano made her initial appearance in Town Hall in 1949. Her Metropolitan debut was made during the 1951-52 season.

She was featured soloist on CBS television during the 1958-59 season.

BOC Head Speaks Tonight At AAUP

Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, executive director of the State Board of Control, will discuss the future of higher education in Florida at tonight's meeting of the Florida State University Chapter, American Association of University Professors.

The meeting, which will be presided over by Dr. Francis Allen, president, will be held in the Strozier Library Lecture Hall at 8 p.m. Dr. Culpepper will tell about the unfoldment of the plan for higher education being designed by the Board of Control. In the past only three universities were state-supported -- the University of Florida, Florida State University, and Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University.

FSU faculty and students are deeply concerned about the place their institution will have in the decades ahead. A number of fears have been expressed about the future role of Florida State University in the midst of the multiplication of universities and the growth of urban centers with large populations which will have colleges within commuting distance.

Dr. Culpepper will describe how the Board of Control is seeking to co-ordinate the multiple institutions, prevent unnecessary duplication and yet provide a quality education.

Proper Responsibility

The statement issued by the Board of Control clears the air in the dispute regarding Academic Freedom, its needs and responsibilities. The joint meetings between the BOC and members of university administration and faculty can serve as a model for future disputes between the governing and the governed.

This is deeply encouraging. The Board of Control, with all its good intentions, is not a body of professional educators. Nor do they claim to be. Rather, they are a group of state appointees attempting to do the best job possible of running the university system.

Seeking the advice and counsel of professional administrators and faculty members, is one of the wisest moves they can make in plotting a course towards educational greatness. Professional educators are closest to universities and are most familiar with the operation of a university.

Likewise, after setting down a reasonable standard of excellence, the Board of Control has properly placed the responsibility for the implementation of this policy on these professional educators.

"The Board of Control hereby charges the president, the deans, and the faculties of the universities to adhere to these standards within an atmosphere of academic excellence, freedom and responsibiltiy," reads the statement.

The responsibility placed on the individual university is a heavy one, but it is one willingly accepted. University administrators and faculty members should make continued efforts to keep their house in order in keeping with the responsibility entrusted to them.

Open Library

Much has been written throughout the Trimester on the need for longer Library hours. Academic pressures demand that the Library be open longer and more frequently. But at no other time has this demand been more acute.

We heartily suggest that the Library be open both Saturday night and Sunday morning during exams and for longer periods during the week. We feel the Library should help, not hinder, students during this crucial period.

Sisco Attack 'Journalistic Low'

On what meat do these Caesars feed? One may very well ask such a question after the recent turn of events in the celebrated FLAMBEAU-Sisco case. There had been little heard from around the State for a while, and the Student Senate had wisely decided to let the whole matter drop, accepting, as it should have, that Tom Sisco had acted in what he tought to be the best interests of the University, but unwisely. It would have been an extremely bad precedent to set... to censure a Senator for what appeared to be an unfortunate, but honest mistake.

But the gods of second floor Longmire will not let it rest. There is to be no attitude of "forgive and forget," but instead, an attitude of childish vindictiveness. One finds it hard to believe that some of the so-called "student leaders," unwilling to accept the verdict of Student Senate, have presumed to speak for Senate in analyzing the reasons Senate refused to censure Senator Sisco.

It is difficult to imagine them phoning Miami to see if it would be possible to further inflame the issue by bringing a libel suit against Sisco.

And yet harder to imagine the Editor of the FLAMBEAU, the one who spoke of limiting material in the paper to material "in good taste"... and "refrain (ing) from personal attacks on individuals," writing the editorial, "Admission of Guilt" which, in my opinion, hit a new journalistic low for bad taste and a general "stomp him when he's down" attitude.

How does he arrive at the conclusion that Sisco's statements are libelous? I was unaware that the Senator had been convicted of libel and was laboring under the misapprehension that a man was innocent until proven guilty. What "injury" to the University is he talking about? And who is he to speak for the University when he says "the University can not, and will not tolerate another overt act"? I thought all the trouble arose because Sisco claimed to have represented the University before the Florida Legislature, and the Editor's attitude is surely no different.

What Is 'American,' 'Un-American' ?

Anytime a minority group in our population advances a controversial opinion, it usually can expect charges of "Communistic" and "Un-American" to be hurled its way. Many patriotic organizations, business concerns, and great numbers of patriotic individuals are not among the least guilty of this fault.

Though I do not question the good intentions of these factions, I do question their ability to differentiate between "American" and "Un-American" things.

To look at it this way, let us consider four representative acts or four different "liberties" (i.e., things which every individual is free physically to engage in). These four representative "liberties" could be (1) the advocation of integration, (2) the stating that there is no God, (3) the organizing of a political group which employs honest and fair tactics in its relations with other political groups, and (4) the organization of a political group which employs dirty tactics (tactics shown to be subversive by substantiated evidence). Notice that these four "liberties" pertain to incidental aspects of man, religion, and political beliefs.

The heart of the trouble lies here. The aforementioned factions make no distinction between these four "liberties." They class the first three in with the fourth. They brand any deviant from their opinion on the first three liberties as a deviant from their beliefs on the fourth.

It can been seen that the only one of these physical liberties ... minently dangerous to our freed... is the fourth. This is the only o... we should take action against. If an... of the others gain ascendency, it wi... be by majority opinion and ... crary includes majority rule as o... of its precepts.

Partial Text Of The AAUP Statement

ademic freedom, a simple rase; a current phrase. A fre-ntly misunderstood phrase; a rbing phrase. A professor is spended, another is harrassed into signation, and the protests are vered with references to aca-ic freedom. The B. O. C. issues a directive aimed at the supervision of classroom materials, and professors protest in the name of academic freedom. Accreditation committees warn that interference with academic freedom may lead to the suspension of a state's institutions from the accredited list. Board of Control members and faculty members meet to discuss academic freedom. What is it?

Most simply, academic freedom means the freedom of the scholar to search for truth, and the freedom of the teacher to present what in his judgment is the best explanation of the problems with which he deals, even if this involves the discussion of ideas which challenge other views commonly held in the community of which he is a part. In this respect, academic freedom is the precise counterpart of the freedom which we demand for the scientist, for the physician, for the editor, for the judge--recognizing in each instance that progress invariably challenges ideas held by someone. Anyone who disagrees with the professional expert has the same right to express his disagreement that the expert has to present his conclusions: but if anyone who dislikes an idea has the right to prevent its being presented and discussed, then there can be no progress--no justice--no freedom.

While teachers, like anyone else, are apt to resent attempts of administrators or legislators to apply special tests and limitations to their conduct, there is no suggestion in the name of academic freedom that they approve of conduct generally condemned by the public, or that they should not be subject to all of the laws that apply to all citizens.

Questions involving the limits and the quality of one's professional activity are another matter. Here the ultimate authority recognized by the scholar, by the editor, by the judge and other professionals is truth itself. Each must be permitted to pursue knowledge where ever the search may lead, and he cannot, in good conscience, recognize the right of anyone of special interest or influence--religious, political, or economic--to say "you shall not inquire here."

Anyone who disagrees may protest or challenge; but when questions are raised they must be answered by persons of professional competence. If the charge is that Professor Smith has broken a law, the question of his guilt or innocence must be determined by legal authority. If the charge is that his teaching demonstrated bad judgment or professional incompetence, the validity of the charge must be settled by a group of trained scholars. Universities themselves are competent to judge such cases when they arise. Their authority to do so is recognized by scholars in general, and should be recognized by the public.

Academic freedom as thus described is the counterpart of generally recognized patterns of freedom of thought and action in other areas. Our judicial system grants freedom to the judge to do justice, regardless of the name of the accused. Take away his freedom to inquire into the facts before him and his freedom to apply the conclusions he derives from them and we are doomed to injustice.

Let it be repeated: "freedom" frees no doctor, editor, scientist, judge, or teacher from his legal, contractual, professional obligations. Academic freedom is everywhere synonymous with responsibility in teaching, and is the counterpart of the responsible practice of medicine, adminstration of justice, and scientific research. But like the professional in each of these other areas, the teacher must insist on the right to conduct his professional inquiries and make his professional reports according to his own judgments, unrestricted by the opinions of non-professionals. To destroy or to deny this independence of thought to the scholar or to the businessman is to destroy the system in which they mutually operate, not merely for their own good but for the common good of man.

For in the final analysis, all of these aspects of freedom are honored by society, not as special rights of privileged professional groups, but because all are grounded in a more basic right--the right of the people to have the truth. "Academic freedom" does not force John Public to accept or to refrain from challenging any idea that any professional scholar may advance--it simply guarantees to each citizen that his study of the ideas which scholars deem worth of his consideration need not be restricted to those ideas with which no other citizen disagrees.

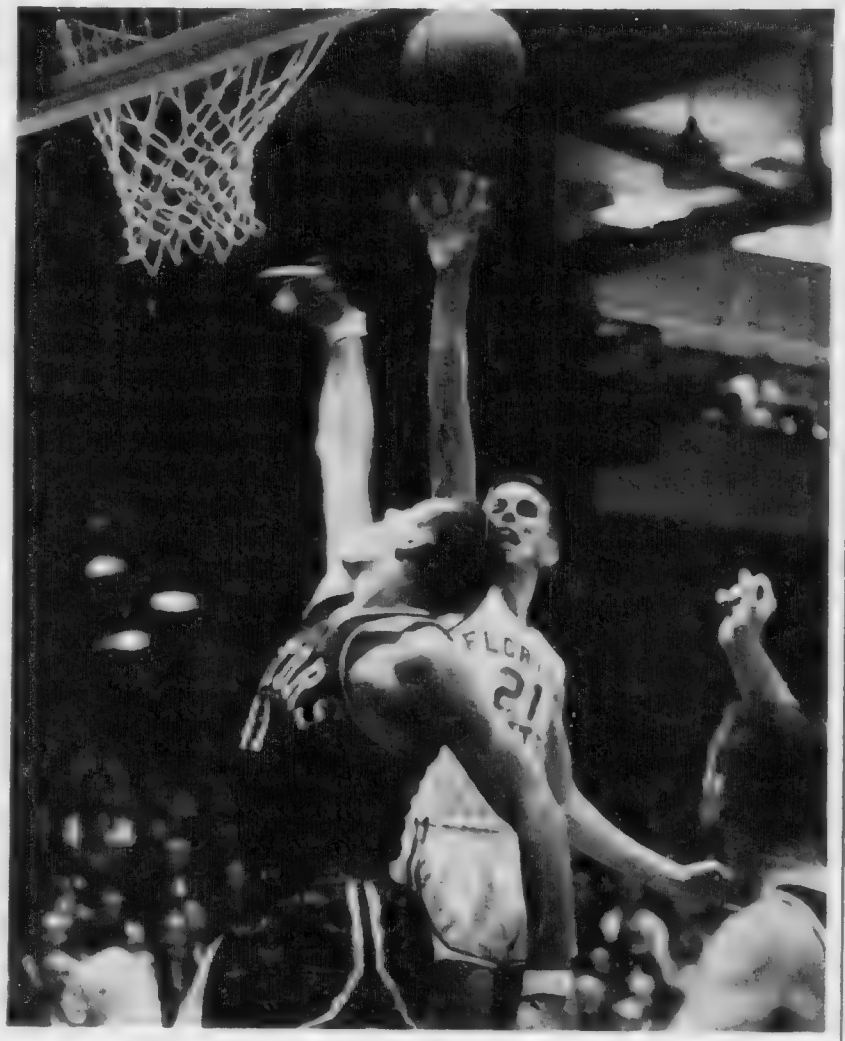
Auburn Defeats Seminoles, 65 - 4[illegible]

The Florida State basketball team sustained its second loss of the season, against two wins, Saturday night when the top-notch Auburn Tigers romped to a 65-47 victory.

The Seminoles had previously been defeated by the University of Florida, but while defeating Tampa and Valdosta.



Dale Ricketts, who scored 11 points to tie with Jerry Shirley for FSU's high hame, tallied the first points for the Seminoles at the free throw as he bucketed his second attempt.

The reason the Seminoles lost is told by the field goal percentages, the free throw percentages and the heights of the Tigers. The Tigers were ahead 50 to 40.4 percent in field goals, while sinking 15 of 20 free throws to FSU's 5-of-9 charity tosses.

The next time FSU scored, on Charley Long's jumper, the Seminoles tid the score, 3-3, to narrow the score to its closest point throughout the game. The Tribe came within one point when Dale Reeves hit a jumper with 15:18 left in the first half, making the score, 6-5.

But the Tigers moved out, building up a 36-24 halftime lead.

Leading scorers in the contest were 6-7 Layton Jones and Larry Cart of Auburn, who tallied 16 points each. Reeves was the only other Seminole to break the double figure column when he dropped in 10 points.

... when FSU's 6-4 forward Bob Ek (21) pushed in a field goal over the head of Florida's 6-8 center Bob Hoffman in the Gators' 80-59 triumph over the Seminoles last week.

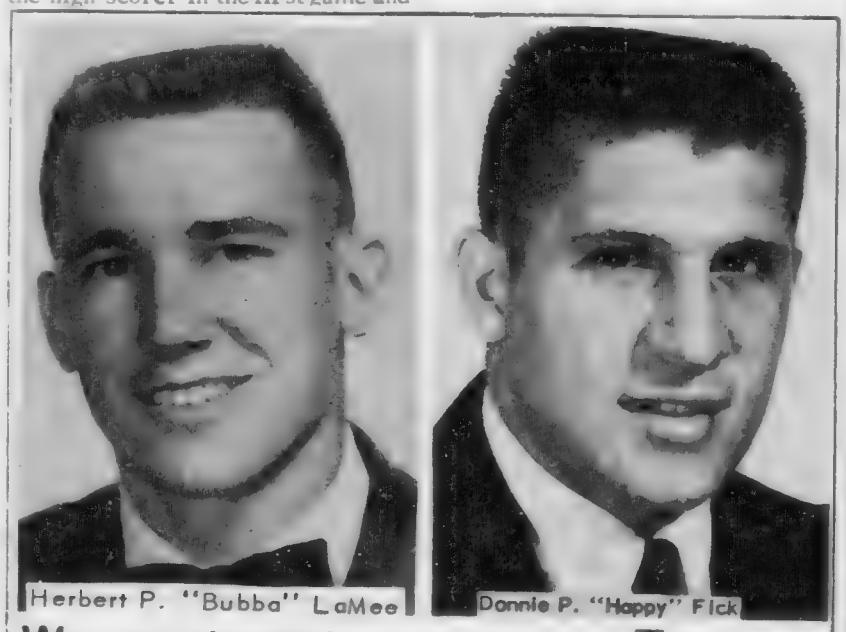
Bama..The Hustlers

Although the Alabama Crimson Tide team, which appears tonight, is not particularly big in size, it is long on desire and down-right hustle.

The Tide is unbeaten so far this season, although it has only played Southeastern Louisiana State and Southern Mississippi. toying with the latter Saturday night, 71-52. The Starters for the Bama outfit should be: at forward, number 42, 6-3 James Booth; at the other forward position will be 6-4 J.W. Barry, who sports number 44. The center will be one Reese Carr, who stands in at 6-5 and wears a 52 uniform. The guards will be number 34, 6-3 Buster Sullivan; and number 33, 6-2 Hinton Butler.



TEAM CHARACTERISTICS: Alabama will field a very aggressive team, both defensively and offensively. They play to control the boards at both ends. They will not hesitate to use the fast break on either defense or offense. In the game Saturday, Southern Mississippi did not manage to pull one fast break on them.

The Tide seems to follow a pretty set pattern in their play, using a single post offense with two guards out and the three interiour players guarding the key.

KEY PERSONNEL: Barry is the team's strongest rebounder, pulling down nine in the Mississippi game to pace the club, and scoring the game high of 21 points. Sullivan is the second highest rebounder, tallying for eight rebounds and four points Saturday night. Butler was the high scorer in the first game and is the only returning veteran.

When you think of Christmas gifts you naturally [illegible] Marlboro cigarettes, leading seller in flip-top box [illegible] states—and if we annex Wales, in all fifty-one—and [illegible] nex Lapland—in all fifty-two. This talk about annexing Wales and Lapland is, incidentally, not just idle speculation. Britain wants to trade Wales to the United States for [illegible] Great Britain needs a desert desperately on account [illegible] tourist trade. Tourists are always coming up to [illegible] Minister or the Lord Privy Seal or like that and [illegible] not knocking your country, mind you. It's very [illegible] picturesque, etc. what with Buckingham Palace [illegible] and Scotland Yard, etc., but where's your desert? [illegible] forget, let me point out that Scotland Yard, Britain's [illegible] clothes police branch, was named after Wally Scotland [illegible] Fred Yard who invented plain clothes. The American [illegible] clothes force is called the FBI after Frank B. Inch[illegible] invented fingerprints. Before Mr. Inchcliff's invention [illegible] body's fingers were absolutely glassy-smooth. This as you may imagine, played hob with the identification of [illegible] babies in hospitals. From 1791 until 1904 no American [illegible] ever brought home the right baby from the hospital. (He later became known as the Black Tom Explosion.)

But I digress. England, I was saying, wants to trade Wales for a desert. Sweden wants to trade Lapland for Frack & Jill. The reason is that Swedes to this day still don't have fingerprints. As a result identification of babies in Swedish hospitals is so haphazard that Swedes flatly refuse to take babies home. There are, at present, nearly a half-billion unclaimed babies in Swedish hospitals—some of them well over eighty years old.

But I digress. We were speaking of Christmas gifts which naturally put us in mind of Marlboro cigarettes. What could be more welcome at Christmas time than Marlboro's soft pack, Marlboro's flip-top box? What could be more welcome at any time of year—winter, summer, rain or shine, night or day? Any time, any season, when you light a Marlboro you can always be certain that you'll get the same mild, flavorful, completely comfortable smoke.

There are, of course, other things you can give for Christmas besides Marlboro cigarettes. If, for example, you are looking for something to give a music lover, let me call to your attention a revolutionary new development in phonographs. It is Low-fi phonograph. The Low-fi, product of years of patient research, has so little fidelity to the record you put on it that, for instance, you put "Stardust" on the turntable, "Mean to Me Baby" will come out. This is an especially welcome gift to people who have grown tired of "Stardust".

Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night.

Engineer Lag Hurts Florida Says Rogers

DR. GROVER ROGERS

A severe lag in production of professioan engineers is threatening to put a crimp in Florida's Spage Age industrial growth, an FSU department head reported.

Dr. Grover L. Rogers, Director of the Department of En- Science, said that in 1961 Florida universities turned out engineers at only half the national rate although Florida's population growth rate was the highest in the nation.

Rogers is chairman of a task force looking into Florida's engineering education needs as part of the Space Era Education Study being made for the State Board of Education.

In 1961, less than 500 students in Florida earned a bachelor of science engineering degree-- an average of one for each one million of Florida's five million population, Dr. Rogers said.

The national average that year was 1,000 B.S. engineering degrees for each one million population. Florida's output of Ph. D. degrees in engineering was only about half the national average in 1961.

The universities in Florida awarding most degrees in engineering are the University of Florida, a state institution, and the University of Miami, a private institution.

Therefore, Florida has made up for the shortage in production of professional engineers by recruiting from other states. But Dr. Rogers said recruiting was becoming increasingly more difficult because there is a growing shortage of engineers throughout the nation.

"Despite increasing enrollments in Florida's engineering schools, the state continues to lag far behind most of the nation in production of professional engineers," Dr. Rogers said in a preliminary report of activities of the task force committee.

The Engineering Manpower Commission of the Engineers Joint Council estimates that nationwide, newly graduated engineers will fall some 50,000 short of the number needed in each of the next ten years.

National and regional studies have cited many reasons for the increasing shortages of engineers. The Engineering Manpower Commission names the rigor of academic training necessary-- 60 percent of engineering freshmen fail to get degrees in the generally more academic courses required for a B.S. degree.

Complicating the shortage of engineers is a lag in production of engineering technicians-- graduates of junior colleges or two-year training institutes who can take some of the routine, mechanical work off of engineers.

Rogers said his group was equally concerned with production of engineering technicians. It has been estimated that three technicians are needed for each engineer employed in the space industries.

From Local Company

S G Offers Students Reduced Car Insurance

Student Government is sponsoring a program for offering reduced car insurance rates to FSU students through a local insurance company.

Bill Sheppard, Secretary of Student Welfare, announced the details of this plan today.

Reduced rates will be structured with $125 per year for men students as a minimum and $40 a year for women students. Past driving records will determine the actual rates.

The plan will be handled through the Rogers-Atkins Insurance Agency, 109 N. Gadsden Ave.

Student Government is backing this as a worth-while money saving plan for students, Sheppard said.

The plan was offered to the Student Body a month ago by the Rogers-Atkins Company, according to Sheppard, and has been given careful study before Student Government endorsed the plan.

Letters have gone out to 2000 men students' parents advocating the program from Ken van Assenderp, Student Body Pres. Plans call for letters to be sent to all students advocating this program.

"This local agency represents some of the largest and most reliable companies in the insurance field today," said van Assenderp.

"With the increase of automobile insurance rates, according to recent newspaper articles, this compounds the problem of car insurance cost for FSU students. Student Government is hoping to render each student a valuable service, that will save them money, by directing them towards a cheaper plan," said Sheppard.

Phi Kappa Phi Initiates Today

Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society will initiate 34 new members in the FSU chapter in Longmire Lounge today at 4:30 p.m.

Dr. Grover Rogers, director of the Engineering Science Dept. and president of the FSU chapter, will preside at the initiation. A banquet will be held at 7 p.m. at the Holliday Inn, with FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell as the speaker.

Founded in 1697, the campuswide honorary selects its members for outstanding scholarship from among all campus divisions. The society uses its funds for graduate fellowships.

New members are:

Juniors and first semester seniors -- David Lynn Cheshire, Thomas M. Hall, Bobbie Lou Kaminis, Ann Kendall, Norman Magee, Erica Rayner, Martha Reaves, Patricia Spear, James G. Allee, Hazel Avery, Alice M. Barron, Jeanne D. Brock, Roberta Carpenter, Edna J. Faggioni, Barbara L. Hepp, Judith H. Hughes, Robin L. Leeger, John M. Leonard, Donna G. McAllister, Barbara A. Norman, Barbara Lou Rich, Ruth Anne Rich, Edward Tempest, Charlotte Williams, and Horace B. Gray, Jr.

Graduating seniors -- Grant Drummond Jones, J. Ralph McLean, Penelope A. Roberts, Letitia Thomas, Joyce Bowman Thompson, and Joycelyn Ward.

Seniors Must Take Finals

In a resolution passed last April by the Faculty Senate, effective this trimester, the University policy concerning final examinations was clarified.

The amended statement of exam policy states that seniors taking undergraduate courses must take final examinations in those courses.

The new policy reads, "It is the general policy of the University that final examinations are required in all undergraduate courses, and that all students enrolled in such courses, including graduating seniors, are required to take these examinations."

Band Concert Offers Variety

Music ranging from the traditional to the contemporary will be played by the Florida State University Concert Band, directed by Robert Braunagel, at the band's concert tomorrow.

The program will be at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium and the public is invited.

A concert march, "Coat of Arms" by George Kenny, will open the program with other numbers on the first part of the program including Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in B flat minor" and "Suite of Old American Dances" by Robert Russell Bennett. The band will play three of the five movements of the composition, Bennett's first for band. They are Western One-Step, Wallflower Waltz, and the Rag.

One of the selections on the program, "Kiddie Ballet" by Ralph Herman, is a descriptive suite that is about the life of children from the baby buggy to the school yard.

Modern progressive jazz finds a meeting place with symphonic music in "The Man With the Golden Arm" by Sylvia Fine-Elmer Bernstein, arranged by Alfred Reed. The first most important sequences from the score will be presented.

'Explosion' Spreads Arts

Smith Indexes Florida Culture

A 200 page "cultural index" of Florida's 10 most populous cities has been prepared by Scottish-born Robert Smith, who wrote the work for the doctor of education degree in music he will receive from FSU at the end of the trimester.

Smith looked into the activities in art, the dance, drama and music in cities having a 1960 population of 50,000 or more. His survey covered Fort Lauderdale, Hialeah, Jacksonville, Miami, Miami Beach, Orlando, Pensacola, St. Petersburg, Tampa and West Palm Beach.

There's a "cultural explosion" nationally, he said, and activities in the arts in Florida have pretty well kept pace with the population explosion which has sent the state's population past 5,000,000 in recent years. Florida, he said, now "has an opportunity to set a pattern of cultural development for the benefit of its present citizens, future citizens and millions of anticipated citizens."

Smith's two-year-long study was made under the direction of Dr. Wiley Housewright, professor of music. The Florida Development Commission, which is interested in his findins, provided financial support for much of the work. Florida thus became the first state, so far as Smith could ascertain to assist with such a study.

The principal recommendation growing out of his study is that the state create a Florida Cultural Commission to act in concert with private and public agencies and individuals in fostering interest in the arts, encouraging growth of the arts and in general strengthening cultural life in Florida.

Smith's survey turned up 265 different cultural activities in 10 cities -- little theater groups, art galleries, choral organizations, orchestras and other activities. There were a total of 2319 presentations with a total number of participants and audiences of 2,596,112 in a year's time. Nine of the cities contributed a combined total of $220,900 from municipal funds, and the 265 activities had a total budget of $2,286,760.

A native of Paisley, Scotland, Smith had launched a career as a music educator when World War II came along and swept him into a tank unit. He received his licentiate from the Royal Academy of Music in London in 1932 and was teaching school and studying at the University of St. Andrews when war broke out in 1939.

After getting his discharge in February, 1946, Smith came to Jacksonville, where for three years he taught at Robert E. Lee High School, organizing the band, choral groups and orchestra there.

New Examinations?

As the end of the term approaches many lists are being drawn up of unforseen changes wrought by the trimester system. One last question of the utmost importance to many students has not yet been aired, but the answer will will be public knowledge after exams end next week.

Since the trimester has been used as a guise for so many other innovations, will professors also pick this time to change final exams? If so, what will the shift mean to those students who have always relied on fraternity and sorority "files" of past tests?

THIS QUESTION PROBABLY would not have been raised if the test periods had not been dropped from the traditional two hours to one and one half for the first time this year. There are many faculty members who never give the same examination twice. Others have altered them slightly or else alternated, giving the same test every third term. Another group has consistently given the same final examination for several years, sometimes verbatim.

Students quickly catch on to these faculty idiosyncrasies, and this perceptiveness has given birth to the "files." There is nothing dishonest about a copy of last year's test lying around where friends, presently enrolled in the same course under the same instructor, can see it. Neither is it cheating to use such a test paper to study for an exam. After all, there is no written guarantee that the same test will be used again--it might turn out to be merely a profitable study guide or an indication of the type of question asked by that particular professor.

NEVERTHELESS, STUDENTS with access to these files have a distinct advantage over their classmates in courses under professors who do not change their exams regularly. Through habit, some people have come to depend rather heavily upon the reliability of their prior knowledge of tests to get through finals with reasonable grades.

The advent of the shortened exam period has therefore raised a very interesting question: Since they have to change the tests to fit the shorter time, will professors merely cut out a few questions or will they take the opportunity to completely revamp their testing technique? Some students are trying to anticipate professors' attitudes so they will know how to prepare for exams. The answer, which probably will not be revealed until every test has been taken, may make a significant difference to quite a few grade point averages.

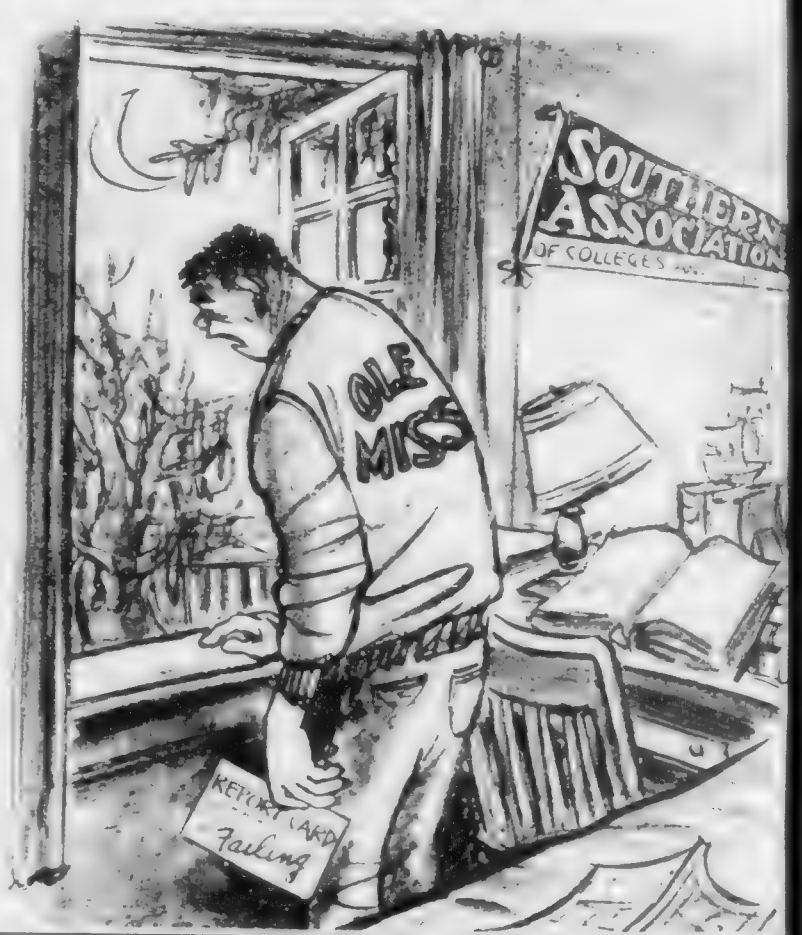
Socialism's Base In Democracy

A convenient, though by no means necessary starting point is to place the birth of modern socialism at the time of the French Revolution--when the agitators of the political and social doctrines of centuries crystalized about the writings of Babeuf. From Babeuf to Owen, to Foureir, Proudhon, Marx, Engles, Shaw, De Leon, Debis, Thomas, etc. socialism has grown, multiplied and diversified into a variety of schools and doctrines.

It is completely ridiculous to speak of "socialism" without qualifing the statement as to what kind of socialism is meant. Take for example a statement in Mr. Johnson's column: "The Socialist state, (by) its very nature, cannot be democratic." The "socialist state" like the "Golden mountain" does not exist in the first place and in the second place "whose" socialist state is referred to? In the third place what does "democratic" mean? Mr. Johnson gives us some hint of what he means when he mentions individual freedom and continuing majority rule as major precepts of democracy. What reasons are there why these precepts should not be operative in a socialist state. The answer is none.

Socialism as a form of social and economic reform in no way impinges upon individual freedom (at least no more than any society must limit the actions of its members.)



Individuality needs time and leisure to grow, explore and develop itself. If anything the greater economic security, coupled with more leisure time, would tend to allow the individual to better develop himself. Socialist regimentation "down to the last ditch-digger" is incongruous to the aims of the democratic socialist movements.

As for majority rule in our "socialist" state there is again no reason why it should be curtailed -- again democracy would be even more in effect that at present in the US. Workers and farmers and the like would actively engage in the ownership and management of the factories and farms they labor.

The basic forms of constitutional government are not disbanded by socialists. Look at England, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Austria.

One of the commonest misunderstandings regarding American-Socialism is its basic democratic nature. in the democratic sense and some which have had or have socialist governments. Democracy is even more apparent in these nations -- is individual freedom (where in all of these nations is a man prevented from voting because of his color, where is he economically suppressed and socially discriminated against because of his "race." Where is your democracy ? not for all men at all times?

Revise Punishment Scale

To the Editor:

Recently, Miss Toni DeCarlo wrote an editorial questioning the penalties rendered by the Honor Court in cases of stealing. While her presentation was inaccurate on certain points relating to the procedure of the Court, her main point--that there should be some scale where the penalty is determined by the amount of the article stolen--is worthy of consideration.

One might argue that a revision is in order because our own state and federal courts make a differentiation in cases of stealing by the amount. Obviously the penalties imposed for grand larceny are more severe. However, the basis for law in our society is to provide for order and the protection of the individual. The penalties imposed by the Honor Court in cases of stealing are made on these precepts. If a student has been a good citizen of his university--that is, a good record both morally and in the academic and extra curricular areas--should he or she have this fine record be balanced by one mistake which materially may total no more than one dollar?

As part of the University--in which each student's goal ought to be the pursuit of knowledge--the Honor Court endeavors to educate the student defendents that appear before it in a vitally important area--their own moral integrity.

Thus, the penalties of the present system are based upon the moral wont of the act of stealing, not so much upon the amount of the article stolen. The principle makes no differentiation in the value of the article stolen.

Although the traditional precedent for stealing has been suspension, the Court--under Chief Justice Earl Walbolt--saw fit to modify this precedent somewhat. This modification has been employed by the present Court in several cases. Basically it grants to first semester freshmen with good records thus far who are of a relatively young age--say 17 and 19--and who were completely honest throughout their case, a minimum of two semesters of Honor Court probation.

The question, then, is should the penalty for stealing be based upon the amount of the article stolen or the principle?

Longest Day Disappointing

By TIM CARR

Darryl F. Zanuck has done a remarkable thing. He has taken one of the most worthy subjects in history (the Normany invasion), Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, the Star Spangled Banner, five superb directors, more than two score of the most famous actors in the world, a cast of thousands and a budget of millions, rolled them all together, and come up with a very disappointing film. Every time the action should click and send shivers up the viewer's spine, nothing happens.

There are a few good performances, however. Henry Fonda, who is seen only briefly, is quite good. Curt Jurgens does a really praiseworthy job: his line, "We are going to lose this war because the Fueher does not wish to be wakened," hits home. Robert Mitchum and Fabian (believe it or not) are creditable. And there are a few others.

For sheer magnitude "The Longest Day" cannot be surpassed. If the viewer relishes seeing corpses spewed through the air for three solid hours, howitzer shells exploding in landing craft, heroes being created and killed in a split second, if he enjoys ear-shattering cannonade in stereophonic sound, the battle cries of vast hordes, and the incessant pounding of Beethoven, then he will not be disappointed in "The Longest Day."

LIEUTENANT JOHN MONTEFUSCO, HISTORY MAJOR, CLASS OF '61

"If I had it to do over again, would I take Army R.O.T.C.?

My wife and I are in Panama at the moment. She likes it. You know, Officers' Club, dances—that sort of thing. I like it, too. But whether I stay in the Army or not, the question is: Would I take Army R.O.T.C. if I had it to do over again? Yes, I certainly would. In spades, I didn't realize how lucky I was. At the time I figured: Okay, so I'll get my degree—get an Army commission, too, and pick up some extra money along the way! I wasn't the leadership type, I thought. I was wrong. Boy, was I wrong! Looking back on it, I wouldn't trade the leadership training I got for anything! Take my word for it, leaders are made—not born! Whether I stay in the Army or not, nobody can take away what I've learned. And let's face it, where can anybody my age step out of college and walk into a standard of living this good? Look, if you have already invested two years in college ROTC, take it from me: Stick it out! It'll be one of the smartest things you ever did. I say so."

Findlay Talks On Astronomy

By GENE STEARNS
Flambeau Staff Writer

Dr. John Findlay, deputy director of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank, West Virginia, spoke here Thursday afternoon, on instrumentation in radio astronomy.

The major portion of his lecture was devoted to the 300 ft. radio telescope recently completed at Green Bank. The construction of this telescope, Findlay said, was a successful attempt to minimize cost on a large scale radio antenna.

The antenna itself is a transit, parabolic reflector type, currently being used in most areas of radio astronomy. Cost, which was of major importance, forced the adoption of the most simple method of support, whereby te antenna is resting on two bearings with a chain drive to tilt the antenna in relation to the horizon.

The designing was begun in November, 1960; the steel was erected in December 1961, and it was actually completed and ready for operation in September 1962.

The final cost for this relatively rapid construction was $827,000.

Tribe Dampens Tide, 72 - 63

The Florida State Seminoles sweated out their third win of the season against two losses last night by defeating the University of Alabama Crimson Tide, 72-63.

Despite the nine-point scoring margin, the crying towel could have easily been hanging in the other dressing room, as four Tribesmen and three Alabamians cracked into the double figure column.

Charley Long, the 6-4 FSU senior, tied Alabama's 6-5 Robert Andrews for a game high as each man bucketed 16 points. Jerry Shirley, a Florida State sophomore, hit for 15 points for second place, while teammates Dale Reeves and Pete Rogers trailed him with 14 and 11 points respectively.

Forward James Booth (14) and guard Hinton Butler (12) were the only other Tidesmen to break 10.

Although the Alabamians, who had previously defeated Southwestern Louisiana (58-53) and Southern Mississippi (71-52), never led during the contest, the team of Hayden Riley did manage to tie the game, 42-42 late in the second half. On others occasions, they came within two points of Florida State.

With 19:51 left in the first half, Florida State drew first blook on a 20-foot jumper by Rogers. Seconds later, Shirley also hit a jumper to push the margin to 4-0.

But holding the Crimson Tide to one field goal, Reeves, Long, and Shirley went to work on the boards and soon pushed FSU to a 20-20 lead, with 12:43 left in the half.

As Long dropped in three field goals and Shirley hit two, the Tribesmen held a scoring margin during the succeeding minutes; but consistent buckets at the foul line by Butler and Andrews, added to the field goals by J. W. Berry and Charles Berry, allowed the Tide to narrow the distance to seven points with 3:46 left.

At this point, the fouling Seminoles gave the Crimson Tide a holiday at the free throw line. With 0:49 left, Butler hit one-of-two, and then Andrews was successful on 4-of-4 efforts to move the Tide within three points at halftime.

Booth sank a 20-foot jumper with 17:55 left in the second session for a 42-40 score, then 40 seconds later, the Alabamian dropped in a five-foot jumper to tie the score, 42-42.

Rogers broke the tie for Florida State with a jumper at the head of the key, and then Shirely rapidly pushed the ball three times at the basket before the ball fell in for a 46-42 count.

It was nearly five minutes before the Crimson Tide scored again, and this happened when Butler hit a jumper from 20 feet out for a 50-44 tally.

This time, the Seminoles went on the blink, although Wally Dale hit two from the corner. The Crimson Tide, flowing fast on the field goals of Andrews and Perry came within three points of FSU with 9:04 left as Perry dropped in a jumper. Then Andrews sank two-of-two at the charity line to move Alabama with one point.

Apparently the game might go Alabama's way, but with 7:53 left, Shirley bulldozed his way to the basket and slammed one through to break up the Tide threat. Being fouled on the play, the Mobile, Ala., cager added a charity toss to allow Coach Bud Kennedy to breath easier.

Alabama only scored four more times in the game, apparently because of a glass top on their basket. In addition, Kennedy told the FSU quintet to stick the ball in the icebox.

While using a full court press in vain efforts to take the ball away, the fouling Alabama team reversed the ending of the first half, and permitted the Seminoles to have a holiday at the free throw line.

Shirley sank one at the line with 4:03 left and FSU led by three points. Then Long was fouled and pushed two through the basket. Cal Huge, a 6-4 sophomore from Wisconsin, hit one-of-two to put Florida State ahead 66-60 with 2:55 left. Then hustling Charles Perry stretched FSU's Long on the floor and the Seminoles ed two more.

Guard Jerry Craig of Ala scored the Tide's last field go the game with 2:25 left and Riley watched the Seminoles throw performance [illegible].

POSTGAME PATTER

Ailing Tribesmen Also Beat Flu

By JOHN WOOD

"I didn't think Carr (Alabama 6-5 center Reese) was so tough," exclaimed Dale Reeves in the varsity basketball dressing room after last night's 72 to 63 spanking of the Crimson Tide. When he noticed a few nodding heads indicating agreement among his teammates, he continued "Booth (a Tide 6-3 forward with the monicker of James) was the one who seemed strong to me."

After some discussion between themselves, the team members reached the decision that the Alabamans were "prety tough and hustled a lot."

When Huge was asked how he felt, he analyzed that he was "pretty tired"... Jerry Shirley played the game despite throat trouble. He also felt "pretty bad." ... Others on the Seminoles ailing or complaining were Bobby Lovell, who had a touch of the flu bug, and Ross Winter, and Wally Dale, who complained of the same effects.... They were advised by trainer Don Fauls to guard aga dehydration by drinking Cokes,

As the team was leaving the dre ing room, one of the more spir members reminded the others tonight they will "Go get the The Cats are next" ... minded the others about the time got knocked down shot. As he said, "I h there ing for the foul call against joker. When I looked up everyone else was at the other playing basketball." ... last effects of the flu bug, he probably play be all right."

Freshmen Edge Junior Tide

The Florida State freshmen and the University of Alabama fledglings swapped leads throughout the game last night, but the FSU frosh managed to fight off a late Bama rally to win, 59-56.

In the first half, the score was being continually tied and it was only by careful maneuvering that the Crimson Tide was able to edge past the Seminoles, 25-22, at the half.

But when the second session began, the Seminoles pushed back the Baby Waves and stayed ahead until 3:00 were left. At this point, Willie Schumacher dropped in a field goal to tie the contest 52-all.

FSU's 6-4 guard Bill Peacock hit two free throws with 1:58 left to put Florida State in front, 54-52. Although the Seminoles did not lose their lead, the Alabamians continually threatened. After Jim Wallace bucketed a field goal for Florida State, Schumacher once again scored to make the score, 56-54.

Three free throws by 5-10 Kenneth Hey gave Florida State that unbeatable margin and, as the final buzzer sounded, Ed Moses scored Alabama's last field goal.

Three visitors broke into the double figures, as Pat Franklin tallied 12 markers, Moses dropped in 10 points, and Schumacher added 10. In addition, three of the Bamians were give five personal fouls. They were Bill Hobson, Franklin, and Schumacher.

Gary Schull of FSU sank 21 points for the game high. Schull's points came on 8-of-12 field goals and 5-of-7 free throw attempts.

Peacock, who scored 11 points, dropped in 4-of-10 field goals and 3-of-6 charity tosses; Peacock also grabbed 10 rebounds.

Ken Leakey also scored 11 points, coming on 5-of-10 field goals and 1-of-1 free throws. Wallace, who was the game's leading rebounder with 13 pulled from the boards, broke double figures with 10 points. Wallace dropped in 2-of-7 field goals and 6-of-10 free throws.

Despite their 81 field goal attempts, the Alabama freshmen only managed to sink 22 from the floor for a 27.2 average. One player alone, Moses, took 26 shots, sinking five. The Crimson Tide had the better free throw percentage, however, with 80 percent coming on 12-of-15 tries.

Although leading the rebounding at halftime, the FSU frosh were edged by one point when the final buzzer sounded, as the Tide pulled off 53 rebounds.

From the floor, the Seminoles had a 42.2 shooting percent gained on 19-of-45 tries, and Coach Joe Williams' frosh dropped in 21-of-38 free throws for a 55.3 percentage.

In an earlier game, the freshmen conquered the Jacksonville University fledglings, 71-65, as Bill Peacock exploded for 21 points.

The 6-4 Peacock from Campbellton bucketed 7-of-13 from the floor and 7-of-7 at the free throw line. He edged Jax's Robin Dice for high-scoring honors, since Dice trailed with 19 points.

Three other Seminoles scored in the double figures in this contest. Guard Roy Smith and Bill Phillips dropped in 10 each, while Mike Kingsberry sank 11.

Coach Joe Williams' Junior Tribe led, 35-30, at the half, and went on to bag its fourth victory.

Housing Under Revised Policy

Those students who have been wondering about changes in the University's policies concerning assignment to University undergraduate housing under the trimester system will find their questions answered in the 1963-64 edition of the University catalog.

For those that don't want to wait that long, however, Miss Edith McCollum, Director of Housing, has released a copy of revised policies.

Of particular interest to the student now in residence is the section concerning priority housing.

The housing policy states, "Students who have been in residence for two and a half trimesters during an academic year will have first priority on housing."

"New and qualified student entering the third trimester will receive priority for housing for the ensuing first trimester over the student who enters the University in the first trimester."

The revised regulations state also that freshmen women will be assigned to dormitories which have been reserved for them, and will not be accepted for admission to the University unless housing is available, or unless the student will live off campus with close relatives.

Freshmen will, as formerly, be expected to remain in the residence halls as long as they are classified as freshmen. Undergraduates will be required to live in University housing in any trimester as long as there is space available. Upperclass women who are unable to be housed in the residence halls may live in approved off-campus housing.

"Available housing will be assigned according to the date of admission or readmission," the policy states.

Under the revised rules, each student will be required to send a $25 deposit with his application for University housing which will be retained as long as the student is living in University housing. The deposit will be returned if a student ends his occupancy of the housing space in good standing, cancels his room assignment within 15 days after receiving the assignment (new students only), or is not admitted to the University.

The deposit will be forfeited if the student is suspended from the University, if the new students cancels his reservation more than 15 days from the date of the Housing Invoice Assignment, or a student in residence or a former student cancels a room reservation after: (1) July 1 for the first trimester, (2) Dec. 1 for the second trimester, or (3) April 1 for the third trimester.

Housing reservations will be cancelled if the rent is not paid by the due date.

Housing contracts will be made for one trimester. The contract becomes effective for the resident student when the student requests accommodations for the following trimester by signing the housing survey form.

Faculty Senate Adopts New P.E. Requirements

The effect that new physical education policies adopted recently by the Faculty Senate will have upon students presently enrolled at FSU was explained today by Dr. Murray W. Kenna, Registrar.

The policy, which will go into effect Jan. 1, 1963, will (1) decrease from four to three the number of physical education courses required for graduation, (2) increase credit given for physical education courses from one-half to one trimester hour, and (3) increase the total number of hours for graduation from 124 to 125 trimester hours.

Kenna said the first two changes will be implemented immediately at the beginning of the second trimester, while the third change will not be implemented until the new catalogue date, Sept. 1, 1963.

Therefore, he emphasized, the increase in graduation requirements will affect only those--freshmen and transfers--who enter FSU after Sept. 1, 1963.

Individual requirements for those already enrolled will be determined by the student's beginning date, the registrar added.

Kenna said that this change in physical education policy was enacted to lighten the student's work, and should not prevent any student's being graduated on schedule.

Text Authored By Dr. Reaver

Dr. J. Russell Reaver, associate professor of English, is co-author of a textbook, "Fundamentals of Folk Literature," just published by Anthropological Publications, Oosterhout, Holland.

Written with Dr. George Boswell of Moorhead State College in Kentucky, the 221-page book treats all phases of folk literature. It is designed for classroom teaching and the general reader.

The 24 chapters cover such subjects as folkways, legends, proverbs, the riddle folk speech and folk songs such as the ballad.

Reaver has, since joining the FSU faculty in 1947, made a particular study of the folklore of Florida.

APRIL GRADUATION

Those who expect to graduate April 20, 1963, should have their general education requirements checked now, Dr. Murray W. Kenna, Registrar, announced today.

Library Extends Saturday Hours

The Robert Manning Strozier Library will be open this Saturday, Dec. 15, from 5 to 10 p.m., N. Orwin Rush, FSU director of libraries announced today.

Rush said that 18 Library staff members had volunteered to work Saturday night. The decision to keep the Library open then was made at a called meeting of the Library Faculty.

The Library Staff discussed an editorial which appeared Monday in the "Florida Flambeau," urging that Library hours be extended during examinations.

Rush added that the Library Staff would be "more than willing" to allow the Library to remain open until midnight, as previous "Flambeau" editorials have suggested, "whenever the necessary funds are made available to us for this purpose."

The library director added that the Library staff, at the meeting, had discussed the need for longer library hours, the greatly increased use of the library brought about by the trimester, and the shortage of staff.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the student body as a whole or the administration of the Florida State University. Editorials represent the opinions of the editorial staff of the Flambeau with the initials of the writer following the editorial. Columns and letters to the Editor reflect only the opinion of the writer.

Evaluate Trimester

As this first experiment in Trimester draws to a close we are yet unable to project an accurate and objective evaluation of its various attributes. Both orange blossoms and sand spurs will be cast in a retrospective evaluation of the system's merits and failings. There are however, several observations that can be made at this time, some of which will prove valuable in the future.

Trimester's most obvious results will be felt by the students. It will be questioned whether they have fared better or worse from increased class hours and work. The increased academic load has definitely put a strain on students and teachers alike. Study schedules have undergone revamping and lecture notes of professors have necessarily been revised, condensed and revised again. Both parties to the learning process have readjusted and experimented to see just how much material could be presented and learned in the shortened term.

Reevaluation of the first trimester may show that a lot of dead wood may need to be cut out of many courses. This is a time to throw busy work out the window. Students are busy enough with the increased workload that they do not need superfluous material in classes to keep them busy when they could be doing more important things.

Students should not be required to cover material for the material's own sake. It should be evaluated to time standards in order that the highest amount of learning can be accomplished in the shortest time. We must of necessity substitute quality for quantity

If proper evaluation of this system is to be obtained, it must be done with individual study of each course taught at the University. New textbooks may have to be written. New evaluations of graduation requirements may have to be made. But it must be done with one objective in mind... What will the student receive in value from each course he must take.

Regardless of the outcome of the evaluation of the trimester system, one conclusion is obvious to all. FSU has taken on more of an academic atmosphere this term than at any time in the remembered past.

Limit 'Kissing' On Campus?

This is part two of a semesterly printed series concerning the public display of affection during the midnight-hour activities in institutions of higher learning.

As stated in part one, at the U of F one of the women's dormitories, Jennings, has a system called the PDA (Public Display of Affection). Everyone is limited to one kiss. If more than one is taken, the couple is issued an offense slip, and the girl has to go to what the women here call House Council.

Now, another college has develop kissing trouble. This time it is the Long Beach State College in California. The student governing boa of the woman's dorm stated th there would be no more "overdi plays" of affection when coeds a their dates said good night. Soo rumor spread that this meant more kissing at all.

A school official quickly issue clarification: "Kissing will still permitted. It's the 10-to-15 minu clinches that are out."

FSU Seminoles would go on warpath if any such action we taken here. It would be asked, "W can't an innocent little couple ste a kiss?" Perhaps, on the other ha a large number of 'innocent lit couples' stealing a kiss might e up in one big massive miss.

"Since these acts are done in open and most likely will continu it might be best if the couples a little more conservative in the in mediate areas of the women's dorm and limit themselves just to th 'stealing of a kiss' or two or so other low number."

War On Communists

The United States should adopt an all-out policy of economic and military intimidation, infiltration, subversion, guerrilla warfare, and propaganda against the Communist world. Many people, after reading the above sentence, would quickly condemn such action on the grounds that we would be "sinking to the methods of the Communists. Things like that aren't nice," they say. Slaughtering men with rifles, bombs, and artillery shells isn't very nice either, but the U.S. lost little time "sinking" to such tactics in 1941.

We must wake up to the fact that we are at war. The strategy and tactics of World War II barely resembled those of earlier wars; only the objectives were the same. With our constantly accelerating rate of technological advancement, war has undergone another, even more complete, metamorphosis.

The Communists openly declare their objective is complete rule of the world. Their weapons for achieving this end are propaganda, threats of force (and sometimes flagrant invasions to add meaning to these threats), infiltration of non-Communist nations, subversion of existing democracies, and the spurring on of guerrilla-type revolutions in free countries.

The United States has chosen to try to prevent the Communists from achieving their ends by defensive measures alone. A football team may have the best defense in the country, but if it never takes the offense, it can never hope to win.

Millions of people living under Communist oppression abhor their Red rulers. This is evidenced by a constant flood of refugees from enslaved nations and violent revolutions in eastern Europe. These people are our allies; let's help them to free themselves.

Advocates of an offensive policy for the U.S. are not mindless nationalists who have no fear of nuclear war.

We who want to win this new war have only one fear greater than the threat of nuclear annihilation. Our paramount fear is that unless positive action is taken, our great nation will be destined to become a mass concentration camp of slave laborers, devoid of economic freedom and natural "unalienable Rights," toiling under the godless communistic socialism of the Eastern dictators.

Ustinov: Versatile, Talented

By TIM CARR

Peter Ustinov demonstrates an impressive variety of talents in "Billy Budd," in which he starred, for which he wrote the screen play, and which he produced and directed.

This is Herman Melville's classic study of the conflict between law and reason. Melville, as usual dealing in absolutes, endows the thoroughly evil Master at Arms (Robert Ryan) with a consuming hatred for Seaman Budd (Terence Stamp), an illiterate saintly, leonine youth whose reverence for the captain (Ustinov) is exceeded only by his respect for the law.

The action follows Melville's story to the letter. This, consequently is its only weakness. Melville tries to make the point that under certain conditions reason and humanity must not interfere with the law, and mak it he does. But far too strong

At the outset he lays down the au om, in no uncertain terms, that a act which might be interpreted a mutiny will be punished by dea When Budd kills the Master at Arm for propagating an utterly vile sla der, the players are drawn by a irresistible force to their destinie Free will flies out the window. T captain is under such confining pre sure from the plot that his struggle with himself and his fellow officer over executing Budd seem sham battles, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing.

All the performances are impeccable. Just about every line the stuttering Budd uttered shivered our timbers. Ustinov remains our favorite actor.

Censure Failure Sisco Victory

To the Editor:

From where I stand, on the outside, it looks like the Senate's failure to censure the actions of Senator Tom Sisco was a great victory for the Senator and a harsh defeat for the me-too artists Johnny Smith and Gene Brown. These two men (Smith and Brown) have followed the "party line" set by The Flambeau to a tee. By smashing Sen. Sisco they can see nothing but green pastures ahead. After Senate failed to censure even the actions of Sisco, the third me-too man Flambeau Editor Ben Sharp tried to cover up Senate's censure failfure by saying that Sisco "virtually censured himself in front of that body" (Senate). He continues by stating, "a man standing clothed in guilt needs no whipping." Now Mr. Sharp, since you are not a member of Senate and to my knowledge, Senate as a group made no authorized statement saying that censure was not necessary since Sisco apologized for not moving through the "proper channels," where do you get the right to speak for Senate.

I do not feel that Sisco's actions were irresponsible and caused grief and damage to this university as reported in this paper, but that the damage was already done through the column by Riggins.

A good stand Senator--too bad there are so many Senators that want higher positions in our student government and are afraid that voicing opposition will hurt their chances.

Conservative Speaks Out

To The Editor:

I have followed with much interest the charges and countercharges presented by both liberals and conservatives this year in the "Flambeau." Until now I have kept quiet; now I must speak out.

First let me state my bias. I am conservative. Although I founded the YAF, I do not approve of the present trends of that organization and certainly hold nothing in common with the John Birch organization.

The present furor over the printing of Tom Riggins' article is quite amusing. I certainly cannot approve of his beliefs, and will now try to refute some of his claims. First his belief that natural resources should be controlled by the federal government would mean an end to freedom of the press. All the federal government would need to do would be to withhold pulp paper from the newspapers in order to control their editorial content. As to his view that socialism is the worst enemy of communism, all one has to do is to look at the recent election in France to refute this. But further one might look at the beliefs held by the socialists to see that while they may be sincere, they are helping communist's goals. Mind you I am not calling them communists.

Now my other good friend, Tom Sisco has fallen to Democratic propaganda and believes that there are only four freedoms. Tom--go back and read the Constitution, and you will see that FDR has even converted you.

The recent editorial "Call for Collins" was well-written and meets my hearty approval. Perhaps I am more of a moderate than a conservative.

Now what? Let's have fewer of these bitter attacks by both extremists and more that would favor the moderates. This moderate has had it.

Ignores Logic

To the Editor:

Dear "under 21" Johnson,

Your letter shows you to be obviously "under 21" and demonstrates aptly why you are "discriminated" against. You ignore a local custom "academic" of sound logic. I hope your logic improves with your age.

Trimester System Inferior

To the Editor:

We have come to that point in the Trimester when we can make a valid judgment concerning the effect of this new system on our university, student body, and faculty. After some consideration, we feel that the trimester system is inferior to our previous system for the following reasons. (1) There is a lack of study time. This is to say that we are deprived of weeks of out-of-class time which could be used to assimilate our course work. It is quite true that we have the same amount of class time but can we learn as well if we are forced to study in large gulps as we must under the trimester system? This system is detrimental to the basic purpose of a university, which is learning. (2) Professors are prevented from preparing their work as well as they could. The same lack of non-class time forces professors and instructors to ready the same material they woul prepare under the semester system in a much more compressed period. (3) Valuable out of class activities are infringed upon. Activities such as the Artist Series, Government Lectures, religious, political, and social events are deprived of maximum participation, due to pressure on sutdents to study and ignore these events so very necessary to full development. (4) Already we note that many people are being forced to cut their class load in order to compensate for the increased pressure of the trimester system. Thus forcing many students to spend extra trimesters in school which would not have been necessary under the semester or some other system. These reasons lead us to feel that the trimester system is a serious obstacle to the purpose of our university. Therefore we feel that students should use every means of protest possible to bring the attention of the people of this state to the potentially damaging effect of this trimester system on the universities of the state.

The time is past for mutterings of discontent and meaningless griping--something must be done.

Conservatives Hate War, Too

To the Editor:

To Mr. Glavin:

Will you please enumerate on the "other ways to settle international differences" as stated in your editorial on December fourth. Are they peace and disarmament talks with the Soviet Union? We have had them for the last ten years and little has come of them. Let us continue these talks, yes. But let us not stop the refinement of our defenses and the betterment of their effectiveness.

I defy you, Mr. Glavin, to find any instances in history where a country has won a war by laying down its arms.

The "insanity of the present course," as you so gravely put it, is being led by the present administration. (Oh yes, didn't you know? President Kennedy is a staunch conservative.)

Conservatives do not want war. If the world were annihilated, what would the conservatives gain? They would gain the loss of their lives. I, just as much as you Mr. Glavin, do not want to die.

Establish Chapter Of SANE

To the Editor:

As we approach the season of Peace and Good Will, most of us are acutely aware of the absence of both in our present world situation and some are wondering what we as individuals could possibly do to help ease international tensions. One positive step might be to start a local committee of SANE--the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy. Several of us in the community, including some students, are interested in organizing just such a group, and we would like to invite others to join us.

SANE is a large, nationwide, nonsectarian organization that works for cessation of nuclear tests, and disarmament with inspection and control. They especially advocate a strengthened United Nations and economic planning for peace. The sponsors include Albert Schweitzer, Pablo Casals, Jules Feiffer, Erich Fromm, Harry Belafonte, Leonard Bernstein, Dr. Benjamin Spock, Walter Reuther, Walt Kelly, Ray Bradbury, and many others. Norman Cousins, Steve Allen, and other eminent citizens are on the board of directors.

As yet, SANE has no local committee in Florida outside of Miami. We would like to hold an "exploratory meeting" around the first of the year, right after the Christmas holidays, about the possibility of establishing a SANE committee in Tallahassee. Any students, faculty, and staff who are interested, or who would like to find out more about SANE, please write to Marshall LaCombe at 712 Edgewood, Tallahassee.

Don't Restrict Flambeau

To the Editor:

I was rather appalled by Mr. Sisco's views concerning what events and affairs the Flambeau should report. If it is proper in his opinion for the students who read the Flambeau to be interested only in what occurs on campus, then it is also proper for the citizens of New York and Tampa who read their respective papers, to read about only what takes place in their own cities.

It appears that according to what Mr. Sisco advocates, the students who help pay for their own newspaper are to be deprived of the views of their own upon the vital issues which occur not only in the state and the country, but the world as well.

To exclude comment in the press on those issues that Mr. Sisco wants to relegate to a minor position so that all may know what is going on at Psi Psi Psi Sorority and what movie is showing this week, is a harness placed upon the spirit of freedom of press and speech.

I am only reminded of what has occurred in history, i.e. Nazi Germany when the people of that state were shut off from the objective appraisal of external events by the erecting of a wall disallowing any kind of mention of what was going on in the outside world; it was the wall of suppression of press. I am not suggesting that the logical sequence of your proposition would be suppression of the press, but just what harm could come by treating only campus news and not the problems that face students who are just in calling themselves members of the community of man. With alienation, comes unanimity of opinion, and with the latter loss of the meaning of freedom.

For all we know the New York and the Tampa newspapers, as well as the Flambeau may not know the truth, but I will defend to the end their right to comment on whatever issues are relevant not only to their immediate subscribers, but relevant to all men. Through discussion and debate we may not get to the truth, but we may get closer to it than we would if a restrictive plan such as yours was followed.

English Metric System Called Primitive By FSU Scientist

Is this country handicapping science education by continuing to use yards, ounces and gallons in weighing and measuring instead of the almost universal system of meters, grams and liters?

One of several FSU scientists interviewed on the subject termed the so-called English system of weights and measures, which he described as "ridiculous," as a severe educational handicap.

Dr. Dexter M. Easton, a physiologist, said,

"The worst aspect of the awkward and ponderous English system of measurement is the handicap it gives to the scientific education of our youth. If the Russians excel us in technological matters, it may be because of the time we waste in trying to use our primitive English system of measurement."

Easton's comment and those of the other scientists came in response to questions in connection with the step being taken by Great Britain on Jan. 1, as it abandons Fahrenheit in measuring temperatures and begins using Centigrade. This would leave Canada and the U.S. almost alone among the users of Fahrenheit.

Such a change, said Dr. Grover L. Rogers, director of the FSU Engineering Science Dept., "must be accompanied by a change also to metric measure in order to be fully acceptable," and the other scientists agreed.

Easton's condemnation of the English system as a hindrance to education was echoed by the chairman of FSU's Chemistry Dept., Dr. Earl Frieden, who said:

"The use of the metric system would simplify the entire scientific process for students, because they would not have to switch from our present system of measuring by pounds, feet, etc. when they enter science courses.

"It would certainly simplify handling not only commercial but scientific subjects as well, and would perhaps ease the problem of educating the public to some of the basic scientific facts they need for the Atomic and Space Age."

Another scientist, Dr. Barron E. Scarborough, a psychologist, noted that better schools through the country "are already building the necessary foundation for such a transition" to the metric system.

Easton said of the two systems: "The metric system of measurement is universally used in scientific work because of its extreme simplicity and convenience compared with the English system. The difference is this: in the metric system, the units of measure are related to one another by multiples of 10, while the relations in the English system are typical, unpredictable numbers."

GARNET VERSUS GOLD

The swimming season opened with the annual Garnet-Gold swimming match between freshmen and varsity tankers. The upperclassmen triumphed overwhelmingly over the freshmen, but Coach Bim Stults was not entirely pleased with the Tribe's performance. He said improvements culd have been made in some individual performances. (Photo by Art Campbell)

Varsity Mermen Swamp Freshmen

The varsity soundly thrashed the freshman swimmers, 225-157, in the annual Garnet-Gold contest, and Head Coach Bim Stults said "It was a swell swim meet, although some individual performances could have been better.

"Some of the boys certainly could have done better, and believe me, we'll sure be putting a great deal of hard work in," he said.

The meet's only double winner was freshman Dick Abbott, who copped the 200-yard freestyle and the 200-yard individual medley.

The results:

400-Yard Medley Relay--Group one: won by varsity team of Acosta, Pyykko, Kruger, and Quayle; Group two: won by varisty team of Mullaly, Combs, Henderson, and Smith.

200-Yard Freestyle--Group one: Robertson (F), Roles (V), Dahl (V); Group two: Smith (V), Young (F), Brockman (F); Group three: Abbott (F), Dayton (V), Mauldin (F).

200-Yard Individual Medley--Group one: Abbott (F), Davis, (V), Jeffries (F), Heisler (F), Acosta (V), Lawrence (V).

Diving--Allen (V), Payne (V), Albrecht (F).

200-Yard Butterfly--Group one: Pyykko (V), Roth (V), Jeffries (F); Group two: Combs (V), Hartle (F), Brinson (V).

100-Yard Freestyle--Group one: Mauldin (F), Smith (V), Quayle (V); Group two: Brockman (F), Tandy (V), Cohen (V).

200-Yard Backstroke--Group one: Acosta (V), Mullaly (V), Rowe (F); Group two: Davis (V), Kowals (V), Casper (V).

800-Yard Freestyle--Group one: Dayton (V), Durocher (V), Dahl (V); Group two: Roles (V), Bissland (V), and Johnson (F).

400-Yard Freestyle Relay--Group one: won by freshmen team of Blovin, Mauldin, Abbott, and Schultz; Group two won by varsity team of Durocher Roles, Dayton, and Pyykko.

Cats Have Slow Start

Although Kentucky barely managed to squeak past the Temple University cagers recently, the FSU Seminoles can still expect a quintet that is strong in rebounding, well organized, and strong in size.

Despite the loss of All-SEC Larry Pursiful at guard, the Wildcats have four sophomores to fill his shoes. Already the Cats' limited actions shows they know how and when to use the set pattern and fast break.

KEY PERSONNEL: At guard, two inexperienced cagers, Terry Mobley and Tom Harper, have been used thus far. Mobley measures 6-3, while Harper is 6-2.

At center, the Wildcats have 6-7, 216 pound sophomore Don Rolfes, who was the leading scorer for last year's freshman team. In addition, Rolfes was picked to the pre-season All-American list by Dell sports magazine.

Coach Adolph Rupp of Kentucky says Rolfes is the best since Cliff Hagen of the 1953-54 team.

Also at center, the Wildcats have 6-7, 210 pound sophomore John Adams, who was the leading rebounder for his freshman team.

At forward, Cotton Nash, the 6-5 junior All-American, dominates the scene, since he led the Southeastern Conference in scoring last year and has been picked by some sports observers to be Number One in the nation this season. He is Kentucky's main threat on offense.

At the other forward position, Rupp can send in 6-4 senior Roy Roberts, who is the Cats toughest defensive inside man. He is also strong and aggressive on the boards.

Sports Publicity Emerges Unscathed In Ducat Fuss

By JOHN WOOD
Assistant Sports Editor

The University Sports Publicity and Public Relations offices were recently criticized by announcer Carl Swamson on his Saturday sports program on WTNT.

Swamson accused the publicity offices of discourteous treatment of sports personnel from the various news media in the Tallahassee area. He said he made the criticism in response to several telephone calls protesting the lack of local publicity for the Seminole football team.

In view of the charges against the university, the Flambeau interviewed the announcer of "Sports Parade" about the charges and found Swamson willing to talk.

He declared the program came as a result of his reaching "a boiling point." "I had taken all I could and decided the public should know how I felt."

"My first beef," Swamson began, "is the issue of complimentary passes to the FSU ball games."

"Myself and several other representatives of news media have for the past several years attempted to obtain from the sports publicity office press passes to Seminole football activities: we have been refused in each instance," Swanson said.

"Last year, in contrast," he said, "we asked for and promptly received press passes to the World Series and the Indianapolis 500."

He said WTNT had been receiving five complimentary passes, but this number has been reduced to two passes, which were snatched up by the station's management and not given to the members of the working press.

Since he cannot see the FSU football games first hand, "I don't think it fair to the university to try to cover a game I didn't get to see. If I did my report would be second-hand."

Thus, he explained, whenever releases from the FSU sports publicty office come the station, he chunks them into the wastebasket and neglects Seminole sports.

FSU Sports Publicity Director Paul Hemphill was quite eager to clear up the ticket situation.

"In the matter of press passes," he said, "we are strictly governed (by the Board of Control.) Since 1948, the Board of Control has strictly regulated our passes, allowing us to distribute a maximum of five season to press, five to television stations, and two to radio stations."

But feeling the university should be "good" to local radio stations, "we have also given the stations five."

For two years, the publicity office was criticized by the BOC for doing this and "this year we decided we would return to the policy of two press passes and not provoke the BOC."

Hemphill continued, "The BOC regulation is very restrictive, but not specific enough to give an edge to a local station; we are also governed by another BOC clause which states we cannot give more than 200 complimentary tickets during the year."

He denied that sports publicity was inadequate, saying, "We have never had as much sports publicity being turned out. We have never had as many campus correspondents."

Mentioning areas that formerly ignored Florida State, he said, "We are getting more publicity now in Atlanta, Birmingham, and Jacksonville, for instance, than ever before."

On his desk was a mile-high pile of press releases and a long box of address labels. In addition to the articles, Hemphill pointed out the large amount of pictures that the publicity office takes of various athletes.

This is the first year, he contin... that pictures and releases have b... sent to hometown newspapers o... freshman football players.

After listening to both sides ... Flambeau came to this conclus... There has been a misunderstandi... and each side has its good po... and local sports commentat... being unaware of the BOC poli... may feel they were "being t... for granted."

A high university official told ... Flambeau that something would ... done and a meeting between ... publicity office and local public... is being planned.

Georgia Tech Dominates FSU's All-Opponent Unit

Sidle, a sophomore from Birmingham who gained more than 200 yards rushing and passing against the Seminoles, was named 'Most Valuable Opponent' by 42 FSU players voting for an All-Opponent team. A close second was Florida halfback Hagood Clarke, whose 63-yard punt return broke FSU's back in the 20-7 Gator win.

The first team was dominated by Georgia Tech players. Four Engineers made it, despite FSU's tieing the rugged Georgians, 14-14. Two players each were selected from Kentucky, Miami and Houston. The other first-teamer, of course, was Auburn's Sidle.

Named to the second team were three Florida players; two each from Auburn, Houston and Miami; and one each from Georgia and Kentucky.

Florida Has Unique Space Opportunity

One of the nation's foremost authorities on space said today Florida had a unique opportunity through its Space Era Education Study to win worldwide recognition for its universities in certain fields of space sciences and engineering and to attract new industry.

Dr. H. Guyford Stever, head of mechanical and aeronautical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said the studies, scheduled to be completed by March 1, also could pay big dividends for Florida in advancing its system of higher education on a broad front.

Stever met Gov. Farris Bryant on the FSU campus at the windup of two days of conferences with task forces engaged in making space education studies for the Board of Control. The Board plans to make recommendations to the 1963 Legislature on the basis of the findings.

"This study presents a unique opportunity for Florida to make advances in several fields of space education and in allied fields in the earth sciences and planetary sciences," Dr. Stever said.

"You in Florida have a tremendous laboratory with the oceans near you.

"With your growing industry you should have growth of graduate education and growth in research. Here is a golden opportunity for putting all these things together for overall development of Florida. California educators understand what can be accomplished by putting these things together."

The Defense Dept. reports that in the fiscal year 1961 California held 41.3 per cent of its research, development and testing contracts, while Florida had 2.5 per cent. And in the same year, one-fourth of the nation's entire defense expenditures were made in California, while Florida got only a fraction of that amount.

Dr. Stever said he hoped that the studies would result in "building on strength in the state universities."

Dr. Stever, one of the major consultants of the Florida task force studying the space sciences, also is chief consultant for the Chief of Staff of the U.S. Air Force on matters relating to space.

Special Notices

HOUSING

All residence halls will be closed from Saturday, Dec. 22, at 9 a.m. until Tuesday, Jan. 2, at 12 noon, according to an annoucement made by the Housing Office.

Any student assigned to the Family Housing Areas may check in at any time with the resident manager on duty during the holidays, the notice stated.

The Housing Office will be closed Saturday through Tuesday, Dec. 22 through Dec. 25, and Saturday through Tuesday, Dec. 29 through Jan. 1.

LOANS

Students who will need to borrow from University funds to meet their obligations at the beginning of the second trimester should contact the Office of Financial Aid before the Christmas holidays, Dr. James F. Carrr, director of Financial Aid, announced today.

Carr said that all funds may be committed by the period of registration.

BOP

The Board of Publications will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Longmire's Faculty Lounge.

Wrap Carefully

Half a million parcels, including many lost during the Christmas holiday season, are not delivered because of poor packaging or inadequate addressing.

J. Peyton Yon, postmaster of the Tallahassee Post Office, suggested that mailers protect themselves against loss of valuable Christmas gifts by following these steps:

1. Check and revise mailing lists, to be sure addresses are correct.
2. Type or hand-print gummed mailing labels.
3. Use complete addresses, and include delivery zone numbers. Do not abbreviate.
4. Use good quality mailing materials--strong cord, heavy wrapping paper, and so forth, to protect gifts.
5. Include a separate sheet of paper inside the parcel with the address of the intended recipient, as well as the name and address of the sender.
6. Use insurance on all parcels. Neither insurance fees nor parcel post rates were changed by recently-enacted rate legislation.

Ever wonder what happens to parcels that become lost in the mail? Each year these parcels are auctioned, yielding roughly $250,000 annually for the U.S. Treasury.

Postal employees cannot participate in the bidding. They do, however, act as auctioneers, and are said to take pride in attempting to get as near the true value of the article as possible.

One story that is told in post office circles concerns a postal auctioneer who became so absorbed in his work that he sold his own coat for $1.50.

Campus Sing 1963 Rules Set

Changes in regulations concerning Campus Sing were made this week by delegates from campus organizations.

The changes were prompted by the more compact activities of the trimester system, and concerned primarily approval of music used in Campus Sing.

The revised regulation now reads: "Two numbers are required of each group. The type of music is left to the discretion of the individual choruses; however, the Campus Sing Committee strongly suggests that they be contrasting in color and interpretation so that the judges might best judge the versatility of the group.

"No two organizations may perform the same number, and preference will be given to the group first submitting the music.

Three copies of one of the numbers chosen for performance must be submitted before Janaury 10, 1963, through the Music School office, to the Campus Sing Committee for approval, and to avoid possible accidental infringements of copyright laws, groups singing fraternity or sorority songs must be able to ascertain that the song is legally registered in the name of the organization.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the student body as a whole or the administration of the Florida State University. Gross Hypocricy

Lockheed Aircraft Corp. recently refused to comply with the President's Aerospace Board's recommendation that the company's employes decide whether they want a compulsory union shop. The firm issued a bulletin explaining its action:

"First, our American way of life is also built equally on another principle: the protection of minorities--racial, religious, political and labor minorities. We believe it is wrong to force 14,000 Lockheed men and women to join a union against their will. Second, because we believe this is not the right way to settle a question of such far reaching consequences. A basic freedom is not something to be voted away."

This is unctious doubletalk and gross hypocrisy. Lockheed is not interested in protecting anything except its fantastic profit margin. If it can succeed in keeping open shops, the union's bargaining power will remain practically nil. The basic principle of collective bargaining demands a closed shop.

And it seems even more sinister that Lockheed should speak of the "American way of life" and in the same breath say "A basic freedom is not something to be voted away." Is Lockheed promoting a benevolent dictatorship?

Policy Clarification

The "Flambeau" deals with issues, not personalities. Our quarrel is with Tom Sisco's actions. We regret reflections on his character which may have been implied in our editorial of Dec. 6. Such was not intended.

AROUND THE WORLD

WASHINGTON--President Kennedy has told a news conference the U.S. has tried to discourage foreign countries from shipping goods to Cuba... and some nations have responded. He said the U.S. is preparing new regulations affecting shipping to Cuba and they should be available in two weeks. He gave no details.

The President said it was unfortunate that information leaked out on deliverations of the National Security Council on the Cuban crisis. But he said he is satisfied the leak did not come from the Council itself. This was in reference to a Saturday Evening Post article saying Adlai Stevenson had advocated a soft approach. Stevenson denied this, and the president backed him up.

MOSCOW--Soviet Premier Khrushchev in a speech to the Soviet Parliament, denied he retreated in the Cuban crisis and says it was a victory for the policy of peace. Khrushchev says Russia will fulfill its commitments in the Cuban settlement and the other side must observe its commitments--including a U.S. pledge not to invade Cuba--or Russia will be compelled to take action. As for criticism from Red China, on his actions in Cuba, Khrushchev says Socialist Cuba exists as a beacon of Marxist-Leninist ideas in the Western hemisphere... and the U.S. has pledged not to invade Cuba. He asks: "Is this retreat?"

VANDENBURG, CALIF.--A Nike-Zeus anti-missile rocket has been shot to within kill range of an Atlas intercontinental missile in mid-Pacific in a test. It was the second such successful test of the defensive weapon the Army is trying to perfect as the dey defense against nuclear attack. The Atlas was fired from the California coast and sped westward at 16,000 miles an hour when two Zeus missiles were fired at it from Kwajalein Island in the Pacific. One came very close... the other had a defect and was destroyed automatically.

NEW YORK--Federal mediators have called off joint peace talks in the five day strike that has shut down New York City's nine major daily newspapers. The parties are reported too far apart and talks will resume next week.

NEW YORK--The Central Congolese Government has begun a campaign of economic penalties to end the secession of Katanga province. It has asked 17 nations to stop importing Katangan copper and cobalt, which is being shipped out without permission of the central government.

East—West Co-Existence Possible

Is co-existence possible with the Communist world? This is perhaps the most important question to be answered by our generation. Those who advocate an all-out American policy of brinkmanship and infiltration, along with the fermenting of revolutions and other reactionary measures against the Communist world in order to preserve the "American" way of life are, I feel, committing two major errors of judgment.

The first is that the Communists are absolutely bent upon dominating the world by military means, and that the basic tenets of communism have not changed, or will not, since their formulations over a half-century ago.

The second error is that we must defeat the communists in order to prevent them from taking over America. It is true that the Soviet's tactics in the twenties and thirties, and even as recently as 1956 have ignored many of the basic rights that we feel all men are entitled to.

After all these grim aspects of the Revolution are predictable, for any new social order finds itself surrounded by a hostile world -- for instance the Christians and Moslems had such barbarous reactions after their ascent to power, and the French Revolution, which did so much to aid the course of liberty in the world, was hardly a peaceful transition.

But these periods of aggressiveness pass and the liberal atmosphere asserts itself. I tend to agree with Toynbee when he says that our descendents will view the present dichotomy of Communist and Capitalist deeds and actions as we view those of Protestants and Catholics of a few centuries ago whose methods destruction were limited only by technology.

Given time and closer cultural and economic relationships the East and West should find themselves drawn closer together in the decades to follow.

As to the second error -- the defe of the East-- this is a thing ba on a fear of the communist for government and the idea that seeks to "win" over the w course it would like to win west, but no more than the west the east.

Significant indicators of a Mos -Peking split have been publis that seem to indicate that the Co munists are divided dealing with the w against military ac example, while Lenin of the Soviets in the twenties) st is in a period of reactionary fo eign policy.

Rather than alienate over one t of the world, and risk annihilat by nuclear war, we ourselves with discovering points of agreement than points of difference.

Armed force may repress id and values we disagree with may cover these them, but pro Only by willingly for the kind of society we all will we escape the abyss of truction.

It will take a great deal of t the road to newer street never pass this way again.

Old Fashioned Christmas

No matter what other people say, I like aluminum Christmas trees. . . I also like neon signs glaring out Christmas greetings and loud speakers playing carols just a little too loud. I like the constant feeling that i'll never get all the things done that I have to do. I like trying to figure out how I'm going to buy those seven presents with the five dollars in my pocket. I like to see the Christmas decorations on the streets just after Thanksgiving (or a little before). I don't think that my grandfather enjoyed his old-fashioned Christmas any more than I enjoy the holiday season today.

Now, as in the past, the spiritual side of Christmas is the most gratifying part of it. We have all heard people speculate as to the "truth" of the Christmas story. There is one thing, though, that no one will argue: in the minds of hundreds of millions of men today, Jesus Christ is the living hope of a better tomorrow.

Have a wonderful Christmas!

'Requiem' Oscar Material

If Anthony Quinn does not get an Oscar for his role of a nearly punch-drunk ex-prizefighter in this tensely dramatic film, it will be a great surprise. All the performances are topnotch, with even little Mickey Rooney playing a very believeable and sympathetic part.

The theme is simple: loyalty versus pride. Jackie Gleason, Quinn's profiteering manager, is deep in debt to the syndicate because he told them that Quinn would be knocked out before the fourth round in his last bout. Everybody, including Gleason, bets his bankroll against Quinn, who surprises them by lasting seven rounds. The doctor tells Quinn that he must quit the fight game for good. Gleason, frantic for money, tries to get Quinn to be a professional wrestler "like Gorgeous George." Quinn protests: "I've never taken a dive in my life." But Gleason, magnificent in his portrayal of the ultimate heel, prevails.

Julie Harris injects a bit of magic into the film with her warm depiction of a social worker who falls in love with Quinn. The best scene of the year occurs in a saloon when Quinn tries to describe a fight to her and becomes confused, forgetting where he is and whom he is with.

There are not superlatives enough to describe this film.

Camp Placement Period Here

December and January are the months to apply for jobs in summer camps, Dr. Mary Alexander, head of the Camp Placement Service, announced today.

Dr. Alexander said that those interested in getting information regarding summer camps may contact her at the Camp Placement Office, Rm 202 Montgomery Gym, after the beginning of the second semester.

She added that men and women who are students, faculty members or staff members may apply through her office for positions in private or agency camps throughout the United States next summer.

Those interested should fill out personal data sheets when inquiring about available positions, Dr. Alexander said. She stated that many camp directors will come to the University campus next January, Febraury and March to interview students who have expressed an interest.

She emphasized the varied positions that are available, which can utilize diverse skills and talents. Among job opportunities open at these camps, she listed waterfront activities, such as swimming, sailing, canoeing, and lifesaving; nature study; sports; horseback riding; campcraft; music; drama; handicrafts; office positions in trading posts or as business managers, etc. nurses; food services; and special activities and interests, including photography, creative writing and worship services.

Dr. Alexander added that the most recent job possibilities will be posted on the Camp Placement bulletin board in the lobby of Montgomery Gym.

Cummer Named

Dr. John P. Cummer, assistant director of counseling at FSU, has been named president-elect of the Florida Association of Deans and Counselors.

He was elected at a workshop of the association in West Palm Beach. As president-elect, he will be chairman for the 1963 workshop to be held next fall in Clearwater, and will be delegate to the American Personnel and Guidance Association convention April 8-11, 1963, in Boston.

The FADC is the professional organization of deans and counselors working at all levels -- elementary, secondary, county guidance coordinators and college university personnel. Three Students Cop Scholarships

Horace B. Gray, Jr., has been awarded a $500 scholarship, given annually by Chemstrand Company to an FSU chemistry major completing his junior year with a superior scholastic record.

Gray has been studying at FSU under a $400 a year continuing science scholarship. Currently he has a 3.8 cumulative grade point average.

Gray was one of the top 40 students in Florida in a science competition sponsored by the Florida Junior Academy of Sciences. In 1959 he won the district award in the Florida State science fair with an exhibit on "The Theory of Luminescence."

Chemstrand has awarded the scholarship each year since 1957. It is matched by a $500 grant-in-aid to the Chemistry Dept.

Ethel Donaldson, a voice student, has been awarded an all-expense scholarship to FSU for the 1962-63 year. The scholarship was awarded anonymously.

A native of Palatka, she has studied voice at FSU under Herman Gunter, Elena Nikolaidi, and Richard Collins. Her voice has been described by Dean Karl O. Kuersteiner as "probably the finest voice of any student in the history of FSU."

Miss Donaldson has sung leading roles in a number of FSU-produced operas including "La Traviata," "Tosca," "Madame Butterfly," "La Boheme"

Gordon L. Struble, of Sun City, Ariz., has been awarded the Ethyl Corporation graduate research fellowship in chemistry at FSU for the 1962-63 academic year it was announced today.

In addition to the $2,100 award to Struble, the Ethyl Corporation will give $600 to the Chemistry Dept. of the university for expenses in connection with Struble's research work, which is being directed by Dr. Raymond K. Sheline.

Deadlines Near For Scholarships

STANFORD UNIVERSITY

The Stanford University Communication Dept. is now receiving applications for graduate scholarships for the 1963-64 academic year. The scholarships carry stipends from $1,410 to $2,850.

The awards are for persons preparing for careers in editorial journalism, mass communications research, advertising and media research, and broadcasting and film.

These are grants, not assistantships, and no service is required of the recipient.

Requests for particulars should be addressed to the Executive Head, Department of Communication, Stanford University, Stanford, Calif. Feb. 8, 1963 is the deadline for completing applications.

In addition to these grants, the department also appoints some research assistants.

UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII

The Center for Cultural and Technical Interchange--known as the East-West Center--is offering 21-month scholarships for graduate work at the University of Hawaii and research in Asia to 100 U.S. students.

The scholarships provide round-trip transportation tuition, books and fees, housing, food, health insurance, a small monthly personal allowance, and an Asian study tour for qualified students.

Application deadline for the 1963-1964 academic year is Feb. 1, 1963.

Two hundred scholarships will be awarded to students from Asia and the Pacific Islands area also, to foster the Center's aim of strengthening mutual understanding between East and West.

Students, senior scholars, and technical trainees from both sides of the Pacific are brought to the East-West Center to live, work and study together.

A special feature of the scholarship is a study tour to Asia for U.S. students, who may supplement their academic work in the country or area in Asia related to their thesis. Asian and Pacific Island grantees receive a comparable study tour to the mainland U.S.

Grants to Americans are awarded only to students who undertake the Asian or Pacific Island studies program, the Overseas Operation Program, or a curriculum with special reference to Asia or the Pacific area.

Further information on Center scholarships is available by writing the Admissions Secretary, East-West Center, University of Hawaii, Honolulu 14, Hawaii.

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA

Three fellowships for $1500 each will be granted by the National Council of Alpha Lambda Delta for graduate work at any university or college where there is a chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta.

Any member of Alpha Lambda Delta who graduated in 1960, 1961 and 1962 and who has maintained a 3.5 scholastic average throughout her college career is eligible. Graduating seniors may apply if they have maintained this average to the end of the first trimester of this year.

Applications will be judged on scholastic record, recommendations submitted, the soundness of the applicant's project and purpose, and, to some extent, on need.

Application blanks and information may be obtained from Dean Katherine Warren or Miss Sarah M. Robinson, faculty advisor.

The application must be completed by the applicant herself and submitted to the National Fellowship chairman by Feb. 15, 1963.

LITWHILER IS NAMED TO BIG-BEND SQUAD

The Dick Litwhiler named to this year's All-Big Bend high school football squad is the 185-pound fullback-son of ex-major leaguer Danny Litwhiler, who now coaches baseball at FSU. Son Dick plays for Florida High in Tallahasee, and daddy doesn't know whether he'll play football or baseball in college--or where he'll enroll... Litwhiler, incidentally, may have the two finest baseball prospects this Spring that he's ever had on any of his star-studded squads (remember Dick Howser?). One is All-American catcher Buddy Teagle, who was the nation's best last year, and will pitch this season. Other is shortstop Woody Woodward, who'll have to be All-American, too.

Says Bill Peterson

Athletes Need Three Goals

(Written for the Birmingham Post-Herald)

Getting into college today is no small problem, with qualified applicants outnumbering available facilities at many universities, and we need to stop fooling student athletes about what an education is....

I like a statement by Warren G. Hill, state commissioner of education in Maine:

"Education isn't the three R's, or unlimited facts, or a Phi Beta Kappa key, or a high school diploma, or adegreefrom an Ivy League College. Education is a state of mind, a sense of responsibility, a commitment, a never-ending progression toward the realization of a dream."

... Merely playing good high school football, without good grades won't get a boy into most colleges....

We must tell our children that we will expect great performances from them in college. As things now stand, a college athlete can't "coast" in college. He must be off and running--in the classroom as well as on the playing field--from the very beginning of his college career.

We believe that an athlete entering college should have three goals:

1. To get a degree and a "sense of responsibility" along with it.
2. To make his college's first team in his sophomore year.
3. To look ahead 10 years to what role he will play as a citizen in the community and the nation.

To accomplish these objectives, a student-athlete must be prepared to sacrifice--to voluntarily give up many things in order to play college football and to maintain satisfactory academic progress.

This does not mean that we encourage our football players to leave the mainstream of college life, to give up the activities essentail to a well-rounded education. Quite the contrary.

New Athletic Image

At Florida State, we are in the third year of a program designed to encourage involvement of our athletes in all phases of campus life. In turn, we are creating a new image of athletes on our campus.

Our pursuits of a new image for our athletes was touched off by an incident described to me by a close friend shortly after I came to FSU in 1959.

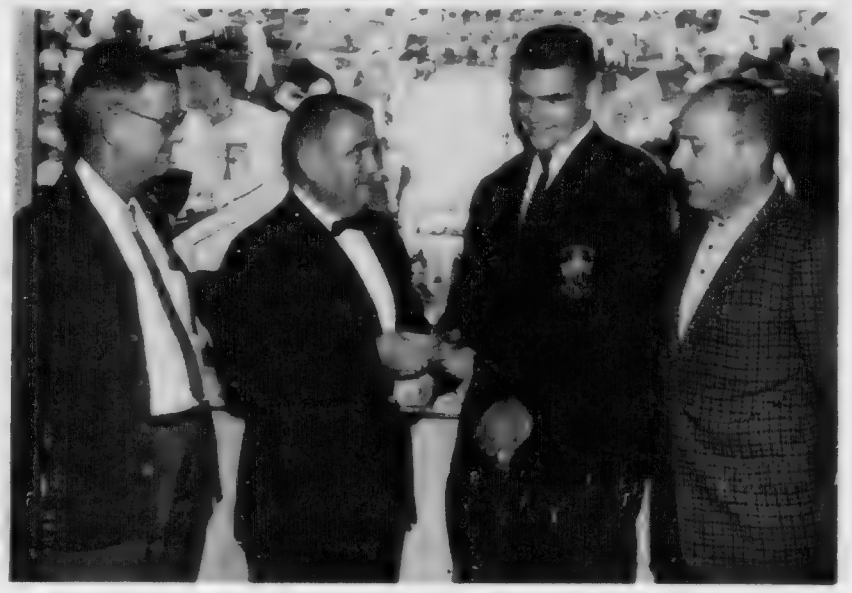
The setting was a Florida State football game of several years ago... Al Ulmer, a Seminole guard now doing an outstanding job for the Peace Corps in Nigeria, was complimented repeatedly by the public address announcer for his excellent defensive and offensive play. Although Al was one of the finest football players ever to play for FSU, it is more important to me that Al was first, truly, a gentleman and an excellent student in biology.

My friend said that late in the game the person sitting next to him commented: "Can THAT Al Ulmer possibly be the Al Ulmer that I have in my class?" My friend assured him that it was.

Is THAT Al Ulmer?

(Bothered by the image of the football player, the friend asked questions to see how others view gridders. They considered them negligent, tardy, boastful, aggressive, socially insensitive, belligerent, and convinced that "rules are made for others and not me.")

Let me say emphatically that this is not the image we want associated with athletes at Florida State. We are rapidly erasing that image by good deeds and exemplary conduct...



(FSU coaches and players have established high academic, social and personal standards and then live up to them.)

Our models are the Al Ulmers... In our recruitment of athletes, we continually stress the importance of education. Studies of annual lifetime incomes in relation to education show that the four college years are worth $44,000 each to the college graduate above the high school graduate.

And there are social and cultural values of education that cannot be evaluated...

The President's Committee on Education Beyond the High School has said, "World peace and the survival of mankind may well depend on the way in which we educate the citizens and leaders of tomorrow."

All of us are in this responsibility.

FSU Catcher Buddy Teagle receives a ring from the Coca-Cola Company designating his selection as a 1962 college baseball All-America. Presenting the award--given all over the country by Coca-Cola to NCAA All-Americans--were local representative Earl Lambert and District Representative Robert Carter. From the left are Lambert Carter, Teagle and Litwhiler. Teagle, who has one more year of eligibility at FSU, is a senior from West Palm Beach, Fla.

Football Changes Slated?

A "sleeper" on FSU's football squad for next year could be the giant 6-5 240-pound tackle Frank Pennie of Hollywood. Pennie, who transferred here from Ohio State, is undoubtedly the strongest specimen FSU has ever seen.

Playing with red-shirts and "scout" teams this fall, coaches had to call him off the starting tackles on several occasions.

... And look for perhaps two slightly startling position changes next fall. One would move Fred (Colt 45) Colvard, the transfer from West Virginia, to halfback, while the other would shift pass receiver Fred Biletnikoff from end to slot back.

Colvard was the Associated Press' Back-of-the-Week once in 1961 when he was calling signals at West Virginia.

Look for Florida State to try, try again for a membership in the 12-school Southeastern Conference at the league's annual meeting Jan. 23-24 in Atlanta. Athletic Director Vaughn Mancha is preparing another dossier to show school officials. FSU has tried two other times, but been turned down on the theory--and a good one--that 12 schools is enough. "We have our best case this time," says Mancha, noting a football season which included a win, a loss and three upset ties against SEC teams.

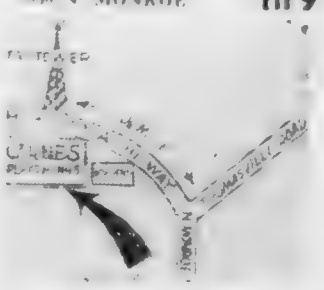
* * * * *

FSU quarterback Eddie Feely broke three school career records--two of 'em in passing--but in his senior year this season was the team's No. 2 passer to lanky (6-5, 195) sophomore Steve Tensi of Cincinnati. Feely passed for 769 yards, Tensi for 796.... FSU basketballer Faurest Coogle, a senior from Louisville, Ky., had to quit for good when he had about 150 ounces drained from a bad knee in one week.

Football season's over, but it's no vacation time for the coaches. FSU's Bill Peterson, for instance, had seven speaking engagements scheduled in one 16-day period, taking him from Macon, Ga., to Coral Gables, Fla. And in between he'll coach in the North-South Shrine game in Miami on Dec. 22.

BULLETIN

Wildcats Defeat Florida State



The University of Kentucky defeated the Florida State basketball team, 83-54, last night in Lexington, Ky. The Seminoles, who were trying to repeat their upset of the Wildcats of two years ago, are now 3-3. Kentucky, which was previously defeated by Virginia Tech, has a 2-1 tally. For complete coverage, see tomorrow's Flambeau.

Quotes Of Note

Why do prep gridders come to Florida State?

The 195-pound halfback George Wright of Tampa Jesuit said he signed a grant-in-aid scholarship with FSU because it's a college of business administration and because he thinks the Seminoles need halfbacks.

The 205-pound tackle Jim Peterson of Tampa Hillsborough said, "They (FSU players) really love that school and their coaches. All the boys told me I ought to come to school there. I had some boys at other universities warn me not to come to their school."

WFSU-TV Presents Christmas Programs

An evening of special Christmas programs for the entire family will be offered by WFSU-TV, Channel 11, on December 24.

Beginning with "Seeing Music" at 5 p.m., the telecasts will extend until 10 p.m. "Magic Langern Christmas" with Max Morath will feature Christmas as it was at the turn of the century. Following this program at 6:30 will be "Christmas Painting," supplied by the National Educational Television Radio Center.

Four programs produced by WFSU-TV will make up the remainder of the evening. A specially written play, "The King's Own Christmas" by studio supervisor Keith Carlson, with special music by FSU students Carl Volrath and Jim Preston, will be offered at 7 p.m. The play concerns a selfish king who learns on Christmas of love the greatest of all gifts. Geared for the younger set, it features songs such as "Love is People" and "Recipe for Christmas."

This program will be followed at 7:30 p.m. by a half hour of Christmas music. This show, produced by John Willmott, is entitled "And the Glory of the Lord." Great religious music, combined with photographs of the world's great cathedrals, will be spotlighted, along with the music of such masters as Handel, Bach, and Berlioz.

James Konlenberg has produced a new type of Christmas program called "The Prayers of the Animals." The faculty of the FSU School of Music will provide the background, as the audience sees how each animal would pray if it had a voice, and what it would wish for. The prayers are translations of French poems by Carmen Bernos de Gasztold. This show for old and young will be run at 8 p.m.

From 8:30 till 10 p.m. WFSU will feature "The Sound of Christmas." Choral groups from the Tallahassee area will combine for this hour and a half of sacred music.

Christmas, Exams, Weather Close The First Trimester

Accident Reported

By TONI DICARLO
Executive Editor

Temperatures ranging to 10 degrees, with unofficial reports as low as four and five degrees, brought havoc to Tallahassee and FSU Wednesday night and yesterday morning.

William Tyler, 48, a stock clerk at the University Book Store, fractured his right leg after slipping on ice at the rear of the store yesterday morning.

Campus safety officers received a call for aid at 7:40 a.m. They reported Tyler was in the process of opening the store for the day's business when he fell on ice which had formed near a water drain.

Store manager Gordon Wheeler reported the accident. Tyler was taken to Tallahassee Memorial Hospital where his condition was described as "good."

Elsewhere in the city native southerners placed ice cube trays on their back porches to see if the water would really freeze outside. When it did, one graduate student calculated that it was colder outdoors than in the freezer of her refrigerator.

Westcott fountain sported icicles as did various fences and trees which the local populace had drenched with water in hopes of creating a true winter scene. Phi Kappa Tau fraternity flooded their patio and spent the morning ice skating.

When students straggled into class late, a muttered, "My car wouldn't start" was usually sufficient to calm the ruffled professors. On student's car refused to start even though he had removed the battery overnight and kept the radiator warm. Another finally got the engine to turn over at 3 p.m. only to run into a pole because the brakes went out.

American Myths Subject Of Next Lecture Series

"American Myths" will be the subject of the American Studies lecture series to begin second trimester. Lectures will be given in the Library Lecture Hall on Wednesday evenings and will be followed by a question and discussion period.

Most of the talks in the series will be given by FSU faculty members. Visiting speakers will include Randall Jarrell, recently poetry consultant to the Library of Congress, and Saul Patover, specialist from New York on Thomas Jefferson.

In its 14th year at FSU, the lecture series will be open to the public, but may be taken as a course for two semester hours credit as American Studies 436. Students enrolled in the course will be expected to do parallel readings from a prepared list, and to participate actively in the discussions following the lectures.

Among popular American beliefs that will form the basis for lectures will be: "Radical Movements are UnAmerican," "General Custer

Six Juniors And Seniors To Start Honors Program

Six FSU juniors and seniors are planning to start honors work in advanced studies in the College of Arts and Sciences next trimester. These students will be enrolled for from six to 12 hours of credit in 499 courses and, if successful, will graduate "with honors" in their respective areas of study.

The College of Arts and Sciences currently has 44 students doing honors work at this level.

The new students who expect to start this work in January, their field of honors study, and their prospective faculty directors are: Ann Kendall, philosophy, Dr. Jackson Ice; David Gregory, anthropology, Dr. Hale Smith; Roxanna A. Smith, art Dr. Rudolph Jegart; Kurt Snover, physics, Dr. R. H. Davis; Kenneth Hepfer, physics, Dr. Georges Temmer; and Mickey Parker, biological sciences.

Other students interested in advanced studies honors work in Arts and Sciences, Music or Education should see the faculty honors committee representative for the college or school in which they wish to study or they may make initial contact with a professor in the field of their choice.

Flambeau's Last Of The Year

This is the last issue of "The Florida Flambeau" for the first trimester. It will resume publication on the first day of classes, Jan. 7 1963.

The members of the "Flambeau" staff would like to wish every FSU student a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

EXAMS BEGIN

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the student body as a whole or the administration of the Florida State University. Editorials represent the opinions of the editorial staff of the Flambeau with the initials of the writer following the editorial. Columns and letters to the Editor reflect only the opinion of the writer.

Staff Lauds Pair

Two "Flambeau" major editors will receive Bachelor of Arts degrees this month. We of the "Flambeau" staff take this opportunity to offer final thanks and appreciation for the efforts of News Editor Joan E. Abbott and Managing Editor Jim Smith.

ALTHOUGH THE "FLAMBEAU" claims Joan as its own pride and joy, she has honored herself as a member of the English departmental honorary, president of the government honorary, a member of Garnet Key and will be listed in "Who's Who." We fondly remember the day when Joan timidly walked into the office looking for a job as a reporter, still wearing her garnet and gold rat cap.

Joan's newspaper days began as a St. Petersburg "Times" trainee. She was assistant news editor for the "Flambeau" early in her career, and in her junior year became news editor. From this desk she has battled with managing editors for a year and a half about which story should get into the paper and on which page. She has always championed the small-but-important item, and has probably wrecked more page layouts than anyone in "Flambeau" history by writing "page one, MUST" across the top of six or eight three-inch stories for one edition.

A government major with an English minor, Joan will rejoin the staff of the St. Petersburg "Independent" in January. Future plans may include graduate work in government, but not until she has tried professional journalism for a while.

JIM SMITH, one of the managing editors with whom Joan battled to get stories in the paper, is also from Pinellas county. A transfer student from St. Petersburg Junior College, Jim was a relative newcomer to the staff when he became assistant managing editor his junior year. He has nevertheless sustained his share of the blows that go with being a major "Flambeau" editor.

MORE THAN an office associate to his co-workers, Jim has often been seen speeding out in his green Ford to rescue some fellow staffer whose car wouldn't start, or who has run out of gas. He remarked, "Working on the "Flambeau" has been a good experience. I have never seen a more dedicated group of people who lose many hours of sleep when "their" newspaper is criticized."

No two people have lost more sleep over the "Flambeau" than Joan Abbott and Jim Smith. We thank them, and second floor Longmire will miss them.

Peace Talks Are Indispensable

Peace and disarmament talks with the Soviet Union are indispensable. Although they do not seem to be producing rally tangible results as far as disarmament is concerned, the possibility is always present that effective results can be reached.

Surely none of us is so naive as to assume that peace talks are a panacea. Take for example the attack on Pearl Harbor which occurred as Japanese diplomats were talking peace with the United States, or the Soviet Union's breach of promise regarding its moratorium on nuclear testing.

However, peace talks do serve at least the indispensable function of an international forum, no matter how limited. As long as nations are willing to meet in open debate, there is still hope. Another means is through the United Nations. Again, the UN is certainly not a panacea in its present form, but the above discussion applies to it as well.

It has been said that nowhere in history has a country won a war by laying down its arms. This is quite obvious. However, if war were to break out between the nuclear powers, there would be no victor. Regardless of its function in the past, war is no longer even a feasible means of settling international differences, due to its staggering destructive potential. It is therefore the task of man today to seek alternatives -- effective alternatives.

Obviously conservatives do not want war, nor does anyone else in his right mind. Yet many conservatives, particulary the more rabid ones, do not seem to realize that this is where the arms race is leading us.

As to the actual mechanics of effective alternatives to the arms race, I am surely no expert, and can offer no infallible solutions. There are organizations and publications devoted to research into the causes of war and peace which argue the issue with much more authority than I could ever hope for. The most consistent plea of those who are actively seeking these alternatives is for a strengthened United Nations -- one capable of instituting world government and enforcing worldlaw.

Though many people disagree on general procedure, we generally seek the same goal, a meaningful world peace. Perhaps those genuinely interested in working toward this goal would like to attend the organizational meeting of SANE, to be held early next trimester.

Mary Ann Stevens

Approach Education Openly

In one of my classes the other day, the time honored argument over BOC reared its ugly head. One young man said, with a refined Southern accent, "Well, I think somebody ought to tell these teachers what they can teach and what they can't teach! There are too many immature students around here who take what their teachers say as the gospel truth!"

What he said coined the impression that I have received of this society. So I asked him what the "gospel truth" was. He started to answer but upon realizing that there was a distinct lack of Southernness in my voice reconsidered.

"It's whatever you want to believe in," he said. By this definition, we can take his statement about gospel truth to be: ". . . immature students take what their teachers say as what they want to believe in." Is this bad?

If a student had only one professor, and he constantly expounded upon his opinions, then this might be bad. But most of us have four or five professors and we must constantly weigh and evaluate their opinions before arriving at our own conclusions. In short, it seems to me better that a person be immature at 20 instead of completely indoctrinated into a decadent Southern mode of belief by the age of six.

Bonnie Freedman

Pursue Knowledge For Its Sake

The controversy that I could never imagine in America, the ascending voices of the FSU professors in response to the wrongly condescending voices of the Board of Control, remains my strongest memory of my education at FSU.

Academic freedom is not to be compared with freedom to eat steak, or freedom to go to the movies. Certainly it is not one of the freedoms listed in the Bill of Rights. For it is a much more basic freedom than that.

The distinction between man and the animals must be the ability of man to learn from the experience of other men, to learn from a written and spoken language; to LEARN. What makes any man more the man is his intellectual sensitivity -- his ability to reason, to judge fairly, to understand himself and his fellows.

Forman education cannot claim to be able to develop such a faculty in every man. But it is important that formal education be given every opportunity to do so.

It is true that minds which have not yet been trained to reason properly can become victims to false reasoning; that an impressionable mind can be led into any channel that a stronger mind chooses to lead. It is a fervent requirement that education be unrestricted. Surely persons in positions to affect such minds ought to be aware of their power. But it is practically inconceivable that those less educated, those less able to reason logically and objectively, should be the ones to place the restrictions on realms of education.

Persons placed in governing posts by popular election are not put there by reason of their grasp of the situation over which they govern. (Perhaps this is one of the most serious flaws in our governmental system.) Their power should extend over the functions of government and politics, and efficient organization of cities. Pursuit of knowledge should be for the sake of knowledge, without regard to political influence, religious concerns, and prejudices.

It is to be hoped that politics shall become a worthy pursuit for the educated; that questions of academic freedom and human rights are so basic to the intelligent man that they can be taken for granted. Emmanuel Kant suggested that education was such that, "however bad the world may be, those being educated, may adopt themselves to its present conditions. But education ought to be so much better than this, that a better condition of things may be brought about by the future."

Guarantee Minority Rights

One can see an almost perfect example of "ad hominem," or, in this case, "ad corporationem" argument in the recent "Flambeau" editorial, "Gross Hypocricy (sic)." According to the editorial, the reasons given by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation for refusing to allow its employes to decide whether or not they want a compulsory Union shop were "unctious doubletalk and gross hypocrisy." The Authors, burrowing their way into the subconscious of Lockheed and, like Gypsy palmists, reading the Corporation's innermost thoughts, write that "Lockheed is not interested in protecting anything except its fantastic profit margin."

Impugning the motives of Lockheed is no way to argue that its decision was wrong. And, in fact, a fuller examination of the facts reveals that Lockheed has much to lose, and little to gain by its refusal to permit the election.

In two earlier elections, at other aircraft corporations, the employes turned down the Union shop, so Lockheed might well win, if an election were held. In addition, as the result of Lockheed's refusal to hold the election, the Kennedy Administration has threatened to cancel the company's military production contracts.

Seen in this light, Lockheed's stand appears to be based on factors other than greed. But why? Because Lockheed does not believe in the tyranny of the majority which would result if the employes were to vote the Union shop. Lockheed feels that no minority to contribute to an organization in which it disbelieves, in this case, the International Association of Machinists. Lockheed believes that any qualified individual should be able to work in its plants, not just those who belong to the Union. It is wrong to fire a man for no greater reason than that he couldn't in good conscience join a Union.

There is an immense difference between this proposed election, and the type of democratic government we have under the Constitution. In the United States, minority rights are guaranteed...no majority can destroy them by use of the ballot. Lockheed believes the rights of a minority to jobs should not be thus destroyed. I believe most Americans will agree.

Manchurian — Superb, Shocking

BY TIM CARR
Flambeau Broadway Correspondent

A weird study of Communist brainwashing and abnormal psychology, this film is superbly filmed and directed. Laurence Harvey is fairly good, Janet Leigh is passable but Frank Sinatra just doesn't make it, which is a shame, because the story is one of the best.

The plot is confusing; this is one film which must be seen from the beginning. And it's one of those "Please Don't Tell Your Friends" affairs, so we won't divulge any secrets.

"The Manchurian Candidate" is unquestionably a shocker worth seeing, but it could have been better.

Collegians Establish Tradition

The fall trimester, and especially the "football concert" with the University of Florida Nov. 16, may have marked the establishment of a tradition for the Collegians, FSU men's glee club.

Since the Collegians' concert with the U of F Singing Gators was rated a "smashing" success by a reviewer for the Gainesville "Daily Sun," much public pressure has been put on both clubs to make plans to combine again for a concert for the next UF-FSU game.

The Collegians will go on their Spring concert tour through the population centers of Central Florida, Feb. 27, 28 and March 1. The second trimester, there will be openings for new members in the vocal group. Qualification for the glee club, open only to men, is "a desire to sing, regardless of major or ability." Men may participate and receive one semester hour credit by registering for Music 32, or without credit by consulting Dr. Ramon Meyer, director of the Collegians, in 305 Music Bldg.

Coming Events For Next Year

Artist Series. . . Student Artist Series . . .

The San Francisco Ballet, America's oldest performing ballet company, and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will perform at FSU next trimester, under sponsorship of the Artist Series.

The Symphony, directed by Stanislaw Skrowaczewski, will perform March 6 and 7. Mrs. Kathryn Vernon, head of special events, said that a selection for the program to be performed will be made soon.

The San Francisco Ballet Company, with a company of 70 and orchestra, will appear here Feb. 26 and 27. Founded in 1933, the company has been praised by critics for its "technical mastery of the finest classical tradition."

In recent years the ballet troupe has made three international tours. The dancers have performed before the King of Thailand, Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, the Prime Minister of Burma, and the King and Queen of Greece.

After a command performance in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, the company was compared by a Rio newspaper to the Bolshoi ballet, and the headline recorded the score: "US -1, Russia, 0."

Emperor Haile Selassi awarded a gold medal to each dancer, and Director Lew Christensen was decorated by the King of Cambodia.

The San Francisco group also recently completed a cross-country tour of 23 US cities.

Lew Christensen, director and choreographer for the San Francisco Ballet, has been recognized in America in every phase of ballet: as a dancer, choreographer, and director.

With his re-choreography of "The Nutcracker," he became one of te few American choreographers to have scored a full-length ballet. "The Nutcracker," which has become a tradition with many families, is performed by the San Francisco troupe each year.

Christensen became choreographer for the San Francisco company in 1948, and took over as director in 1951. Until recently, he was also director of the New York City Ballet.

His wife, a ballerina, who professional name is Gisella Caccialanza divides her time between teaching in the San Francisco Ballet School and taking care of "a new addition to the ballet world" -- their son, Chris, who is three years old.

During the third trimester, Isaac Stern, violinist, will be presented May 27-28 by the Artist Series.

San Franciso Ballet arrives with a troup of 70 February 26 and 27.

Stanislaw Skrowaczewski conducts the Minneapolis Symphony March 6 and 7.

Isaac Stern plays May 27 and 28.

Four Saints Arrive In February

"The Four Saints," a relatively new instrumental and vocal group on the commercial entertainment scene, will appear at FSU during the second trimester under auspices of the Student Artist Series.

The group, whose first album has just been released, will perform here Feb. 9 and 11. Several FSU student government members who attended a meeting of the Southern Union of Student Government Associations (SUSGA) in Clemson, S.C., last April, saw the group in action there and returned to FSU praising the performance of the four.

The "Four Saints," although new in the commercial field, have been together for 10 years.

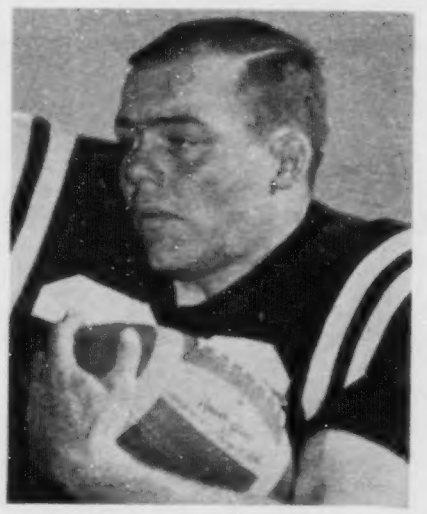
An Army?

A sweet young coed, hearing that FSU halfback Keith Kinderman had been drafted by San Diego, said, "Oh? I didn't even know that it had an army."



Kinderman In Senior Bowl

Halfback Keith Kinderman of Florida State will be seeing post-season football action in th 14th annual Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala., Jan. 5.

The FSU gridder and Floyd Dean of the University of Florida are the only athletes from the Sunshine State playing on the South team.
